An angel was commissioned to instruct the prophet Daniel that at the time of the end, when the [illegible] to him should be unsealed, many should run to and fro, and knowledge of the revealments should be increased.

Is it not true that many are now running in all directions over the earth as never before, and that many go for the very purpose of proclaiming to all men the same truth revealed to Daniel? These are surely providential events, which in their relation to revealed truth is the authoritative voice of God, louder than seven thunders, calling upon every loyal heart to respond to the divine mandate in warning the world of speedily coming judgment.

To all the true friends of Christ, the gospel and our age we imploringly say, Enter the door which God has opened for you, and work much in the field now made ready to your hand. Never was there a wider door open to any generation of God's people than to you. All legal restraints are removed; all means are furnished at your hands; and the ear of many millions is open to hear the important proclamation. Can we read communications from our brethren in the gospel, like that of Bro. Masillamani, and many others published in the Crisis, without realizing that God is doing a great work in our day, and that if we would walk with Him as Enoch did we must engage in this work with God, that we also may be entitled to translation? The Macedonian cry comes to our Mission Boards from every quarter, Send us help in preachers, publications and funds. This cry is real, and comes not only from God's servants, but from millions in the borders of our own land, and from the dark corners of ancient lands.

Brethren of [illegible] faith, God has put into our hands, within the last four years, millions of dollars of earthly treasures, not that you might add farm to farm, build princely mansions and appear in the livery of millionaires, but that you should have no excuse for neglecting to assist in doing this noble, heavenly work for this perishing generation. We need liberal contributions for both the home and foreign work, but especially are the funds low in the foreign treasury. We could use thousands of dollars in the next six months to the glory of God, we believe, if we had it. Much of this wealth lies unemployed and not needed. Will you trust your brethren with some of this money that God has trusted you with! Our Boards will endeavor to wisely and justly appropriate it in this holy cause. We pledge ourselves to send each donor of one dollar, or more, a receipt for the amount sent, and to furnish published accounts of [illegible] how all the funds were expended. You will see by the published letters from foreign lands that the American Quarterly Journal of Prophecy is much sought after, for the reason that these peoples have been awakened to a sense of the approach of some great event. By the fearful sights and great signs which they have seen, God has caused to impress them that the end of the world is approaching. This impression causes many to desire to read or hear arguments upon those subjects. If the friends of the cause at home would subscribe for the Journal, and assist in obtaining subscribers, they would greatly aid in replenishing our treasury. The receipts for the Journal go into the foreign treasury. The subscription price is 40 cents per year for single subscribers, and 30 cents for clubs of fifteen, and 25 cents for preachers.

Will our ministers and churches take this subject of mission work into prayerful consideration, and see what can be done in each place for this pre-eminently important cause. We can just as reasonably doubt that God is calling sinners to repentance, as to doubt that He is calling us to this great work. Will our ministers take hold of this urgent subject with a strong hand and a prayerful heart, realizing that they have but an hour to labor, and they may gather golden sheaves for the feast of harvest. Let our young men aspire to do noble deeds for God and humanity, by organizing the young people of our meetings into working committees, to carry forward in various ways this benevolent work. Perhaps no class would be more successful in this enterprise than the noble-hearted women of our congregations. Solicit coppers, nickels and dimes from the children and the poor; it will benefit all to form a habit of giving into the Lord's treasury. We have many among us who could give a hundred dollars each without diminishing their comforts, and it would greatly increase their spiritual power and peace. Let all who send funds to our Treasurer designate how much is designed for the home, and how much for the foreign work. May God help you all to be faithful in this matter. Amen. J. C.

DARK OUTLOOK.

To the business man the present outlook is quite discouraging, as the following shows, taken from the New York Herald, Oct. 24, 1884: "Trade is dull, 'and nothing is doing,' is the universal cry in this great city, a kind of echo to the reports that come from the mills throughout the country whose doors are shut, whose looms are idle, whose furnaces are banked. Men who see the lower part of the city barricaded and blockaded, crowded with carts and wagons and drays of every sort, should look beyond if they care to know the precise status of business in New York city. The universal answer made to questions concerning the condition of commerce here is as above, 'Nothing is doing.' . . Wholesale dealers in dry goods, boots and shoes, woollens, silks, furniture, pictures, carpets, silverware and jewelry concur in the opinion that the present dearth of business is abnormal and without precedent during the past ten years."

Of course we cannot tell what will be on the morrow; but it is plainly foretold in the sacred Scriptures, that when Christ shall return, he will find the world in a very wicked condition. Though they have been faithfully warned of the approaching great day of the Lord, only a few will give the subject any attention. M. G.

FALSE PROPHET.

The latest news to this date (Nov. 1st) says: "Khartoum has succumbed to the repeated attacks of the forces of El Mahdi. According to a native report, which is credited at Dongola, the rebels who have been menacing Khartoum recently received large reinforcements from the Mahdi and made a sudden attack on Khartoum, and that General Gordon and his followers, after fighting [illegible] rebels, who swarmed into the town in vast numbers."

It is said "one hundred thousand rebels were around Khartoum." "Whether Gen. Gordon is alive or not is unsettled." A great crisis in the Eastern question seems to be near. M. G.

THE HOMES OF MOURNING.

Bro. Stockman:—I had been laboring through the week, and had prepared two sermons for Sunday, the 26th inst., with the intention of pleasing God (which I ever intend to do), but Saturday morning I received a telegram that we were wanted to attend a funeral at North Adams, Mass., the same Sunday. So, consulting one of the committee, Bro. J. B. White, we felt it duty to leave our meeting, and go and help bury the dead. Arriving at North Adams, we found that Sr. Anna Rogers, aged 21, was lying in death. The funeral to be at 3 P. M., Sunday. She was the daughter of Anna Rogers, formerly of North Bennington, Vt., whom many of our preaching brethren will remember.

As we do not wish to be idle, we suggested to Bro. Pike, that if he would summon the few scattered sheep together in the morning, we would talk to them. He did so. We had twelve or thirteen out, but we spoke to them with liberty, and God blessed the word. Those present were stirred to renewed action. We hope that the few members there, may yet prosper in the way of God. In the P. M. we met at the house of our sister, and spoke concerning our hope from Job 17: 15, to a large audience, who listened with much interest. We trust that the seed sown will result in much good, and some will be saved in the land where death can never come.

Are we so near the time when Jesus will come and destroy death by destroying the causes, which is sin? I trust so. Sister Anna had been a great sufferer for several years with a malady that terminated in "Bright's disease." But with the hope that she would dwell in that better land (of which she talked a great deal), she was enabled to bear her suffering to the last.

She leaves a widowed mother, four brothers and three sisters to mourn her loss. God bless the bereaved ones.

CONFERENCE REPORT.

The Knox and Lincoln Quarterly Conference met with the brethren and friends at Washington, Maine, Sept. 25th, and held meetings over the following Sunday. Ministering brethren present: G. W. Weeks, F. E. Hall, M. M. Stevenson, A. Blaisdell, A. Cooper, A. A. Fowler, Jr., Carr. The meeting was largely attended and a blessed spirit was manifest among the people. The preaching seemed to be timely and well accepted by all present, and quite a number made a start during the meeting and quite a number since. The people in Washington are a kind-hearted and liberal people, and know how to respect a religious meeting. May the Lord bless them with his salvation. The next meeting will be held, if the Lord will, at South Hope, Me., in December.

NOW READY, "OUR HOPE, OR, WHY ARE WE ADVENTISTS?"

This book supplies a long-felt need—that of presenting within a readable compass the special truths believed and taught by Adventists. That it does this fully, ably, grandly, we feel sure will be the verdict of every reader. It is a book that brethren may safely lend to inquiring friends, being a compendium of reasons. All expressions of an offensive or insinuating character are forbidden an appearance upon its pages. Its mission is to convince; but where it fails to work a change, it must command respect as the product of an intelligent and reasonable mind.

Buy it right off, and exhaust the first edition without delay. We would like to put six editions upon the market by the end of the year. You can help us do this.

The history of "Our Hope" is as follows: We desired the Editor of the Crisis to prepare a series of clear, strong articles upon the matters in which we differ from some to more accord with Scripture. This he did. These articles have been carefully revised, and new matter added, and they now appear in the form of the book presented.

☞ Do not overlook this book; it is not a common production. Price 75 cts.

MAKING ITS MARK.

BY I. C. WELLCOME.

What? That new book by J. H. Pettingell, "THE UNSPEAKABLE GIFT." It draws hard on the religious editors. Several of them seem to be converts to its great and pungent truths. Others seem to have been awakened by it to new and favorable thoughts. A few small men quarrel with it and seek to blacken it. I have received, perhaps, fifty editorial notices. It will be interesting and profitable to read what some of them say. It will show that gospel truth is making great headway among the teachers of the people.

The editor of "The Christian at Work" says: "Whether agreeing or disagreeing with the author's teaching that none but the righteous will gain immortality, and that all others must utterly perish, this recent book will be found intensely interesting." Yes. Many in the various churches have already found it so, and confess it.

"The Central Methodist," of Ky, says: "Mr. Pettingell maintains strongly the position of conditional immortality, holding that eternal life is the special gift of God to believers, through our Lord Jesus Christ. He is a strong, clear writer, and certainly presents that side of the subject in the very strongest and best light. To those who want to read upon this question we know of nothing better than the book under notice."

I should conclude that the above writer was fairly under conviction. But the editor of "The Philadelphia Methodist" writes like a full convert to the faith. He says: "The numerous publications of this author have won him a reputation as a writer, and this new work is upon a theme that requires scholarship and a disciplined mind to handle successfully. It treads a pathway which he has already passed over in considering conditional immortality, in which he distinctly shows that eternal life is the gift of God—through Jesus Christ; that none but the righteous will gain immortality; that all others must utterly perish. The author shows conclusively that it was God's original purpose to give immortality to man, but having fallen by sin he can only be restored through Christ. We want more of this 'Unspeakable Gift' to overcome sin and secure holiness." If the author shows this much conclusively, then this is "the gospel of God."

The editor of "The Christian Standard," Pittsburg, Pa., after stating the doctrine of the book fairly, says: "He is a pleasant writer, and shows no mean ability in arranging his arguments in defence of his positions. Indeed, we know of no book in advocacy of the same views that makes a more plausible showing of that side of the question."

This is what many of the editors, doctors, lawyers, professors, ministers, deacons and laymen are saying. And the first thousand books went off in two months.

"The Herald and Presbyter," of Cincinnati, O., says, after stating the doctrine of the book fairly: "The author appears to have examined the question with much care, in which he displays a large amount of literary and biblical scholarship. In all other respects he holds the general system of doctrine common to evangelical Christians. He presses his views with great earnestness and undoubted sincerity. Whether his views are accepted or not, he will not fail to command the respect of the reader." "The Evangelical Messenger," Cleveland, O., quotes the above and endorses it.

"The Portland Transcript" says: "That 'the wages of sin is death' has not for ages had a wide belief in the Christian church, as a literal fact. The constant recurrence throughout the Scriptures of the threat of death to all who do not accept the terms of life offered by Christ, is almost universally held to mean something quite different from the annihilation of the wicked. And yet it seems quite clear that in the early Christian church, the belief was common if not universal, that there was no immortality except for those who believed in Christ. We have before us a work by J. H. Pettingell, A. M., entitled 'The Unspeakable Gift,' in which the argument against the natural immortality of man is set forth with great vigor, and with copious reference to Scriptural and other authorities. Those who wish to see how much can be said by an evangelical writer in regard to the indebtedness of our race to the Saviour for the gift of immortality should read this book." Many are following the counsel of the Transcript.

The editor of "The Central Baptist," St. Louis, says: "The author is a man of extensive scholarship, and argues his points forcibly and earnestly, so that the book is a good defence of his views, whatever may be the opinions of the reader."

An impression is made on the minds of these editors that cannot be effaced, and they will impress many thousands of their readers. A few years ago these men would scarcely write as they now do. The light shines. Let us publish and preach the word.

Some truths do not influence the mind, but every Scripture truth does when rightly received. It cannot be otherwise, for it is nothing less than an eternal matter between God and our souls. Our knowledge will be our only safeguard if we know not how to put it to good account before God.

VOTE OF THANKS.

At a meeting of the Second Advent Church of Westfield, Mass., held Oct. 12th, 1884, it was voted that we sincerely regret, as a church, the loss by resignation and removal of our beloved pastor, S. G. Mathewson, and his companion from our midst. But what is our loss is the church in Worcester great gain. In view of their departure from us, we return to them our heartfelt thanks for their faithful and unceasing efforts for the welfare of the church during their stay of over five years in our midst.

W. H. CUSHING, Secretary.

PERSONAL.

Bro. Stockman:—It is with the deepest sorrow we announce that we received a letter from Bro. Shriner's household, written Oct. 21, saying: "Sister Shriner is yet alive; have been looking for her to breathe her last for some days. She is perfectly conscious, waiting and trusting, as calm as a summer evening." S. R. KNOX.

"OUR HOPE."

E. A. Stockman:—My dear Brother,—While at Amboy, I bought a book of your production called "OUR HOPE." I brought it home with me, and my son-in-law read it through before I did, and it has thoroughly converted him to its sentiments. He admires the book very much indeed. Soon after he read it through I read it through; and I am so thoroughly ravished with it that I am reading it through the second time. Dear Brother, I did not know that it was in you to write such a deeply interesting work, but I see that the root of the matter is truly within you. It is a book of no ordinary merit. It is a very able, clear, powerful, convincing, demonstrative and reliable work; and it should have an extensive circulation in the religious world, especially among the ministry. Every minister should certainly read it. I go to the bottom, and no one can read it carefully without being thoroughly convicted of its reliability. It presents the Christian hope in exceedingly glowing colors. I do hope and pray that all our brethren in the ministry will put forth their best efforts to circulate this noble book. Although my means were short, I bought it, and I am more than glad that I did it.

I am sure if the mass of unregenerate men could only thoroughly read and digest this little volume, multitudes must fall in love with our blessed hope, and cheerfully yield to its demands. I do earnestly solicit every one to give it a thorough reading and then circulate. Those who have plenty of means cannot do a better deed than to make presents to children and ministers and friends. Your brother, deeply in love with the precious hope this book presents.

THE NEW BOOK—GOSPEL IN SONG.

"Thy testimonies are very sure; holiness becometh thy house, O Lord, for ever." Ps. 93: 5. "Rejoice in the Lord, all ye righteous; for praise is comely to the upright. Praise the Lord with harp; sing unto him with psaltery, and an instrument of ten strings. Sing unto him a new song." [illegible]

There is something very attractive in a new song, to such as have an ear for music and can sing the praises of Jehovah. David the sweet singer of Israel often alludes to a new song, as though the old had accomplished its mission, and a new one of richer melody was in order. The redeemed are represented as singing a new song before the throne. The elders and angels join in sweet songs of praise to God and the Lamb, and saints on earth are exhorted to praise the Lord, "in psalms and hymns and spiritual songs, singing with grace in your hearts."

The new book—Gospel in Song—is just adapted to the praise of Jehovah. Our church in Salem are learning to sing the music of this pretty little book, and outsiders pronounce the music excellent. Many are attracted to our hall through the songs we sing in our praise Sunday evenings. We cheerfully commend this book to our people East and West. We learn that the second edition is being issued. "We wish it success in every field of Christian work." Its title will commend it to your examination, and soon it will win your hearty endorsement.

THE most destructive fire that has ever visited Northern New York occurred in Carthage on Tuesday, the 21st, laying waste the chief part of the business portion of the village, consisting of eighty acres of ground, and including 202 buildings, of which 108 were dwellings, and four of them were church edifices—Baptist, Presbyterian, Episcopal and Disciples. Loss of property amounts to $500,000. Many families are homeless. Carthage has subscribed $1,000 for the sufferers, and Watertown $3,000.—Ex.

The Committee, in behalf of the Association, most cordially invite all our ministers in the East to attend this Convention. And we especially request every preacher, young and old, to come prepared to speak on one or more of the topics proposed. Let us meet in the name of the Lord, for mutual enlightenment and encouragement, and for closer unification of our views and methods, and more efficient utilization of our talents and resources in proclaiming the evidences of the second advent of Christ at hand, and the imperative need of immediate and entire personal preparation to meet our Lord at his coming.

The Worcester church has, with its accustomed kindness and cordiality, offered to entertain the Convention; and of its ability to do so in the most satisfactory manner, past occasions give abundant proof.

We request the prayers of our people that the blessing of God may rest upon our meeting, that the Holy Spirit may direct in all the exercises, and that it may result in great good to our ministry, our churches, and the cause of truth and holiness at large.

The hours remaining for the consummation of our grand and glorious message and work are few. We have need to gird ourselves afresh and re-light our torches at the Pentecostal fires.

FROM ELD. B. FORESTER.

Bro. Stockman:—I have just returned from my appointment at Hazel Grove. The Lord is with the little flock at that place. I baptized two there this week.

Death has robbed us of one dear sister since we organized nine months ago; but she sleeps in the hope of "the better resurrection." They have grown in numbers, and what is better, "in grace and in the knowledge of the truth."

Eld. H. G. McCulloch preached to them five nights last week on the prophecies. There was much interest manifested, and we hope and believe much good was done.

Allow me to digress long enough to speak of an impression that has grown into a strong conviction; namely, that these short meetings of four to eight days are of but little use. They close before anything scarcely is effected. They might be likened to an army laying siege to a city, and remaining until the walls began to fall, then raising the siege and trying another place. Now and then a shot might kill, but it would take a long time to reduce a country in that way. It would not take long to repair the shattered walls; neither does it take the people long to shake off the impressions made by a week's meeting, and then they are in a worse condition than they were before the impressions were made. Satan rejoices over the fruitlessness of these little spurts, and smiles at our simplicity. I do not remember of a single meeting, held for but one week, in which anything scarcely was accomplished. Let us quit them, then, and have a better way. Can we not have at least ten good meetings in our district this winter, which shall be undertaken in the name of the Lord, and by his help carried on until victory crowns the effort?

The Gravity meeting resulted in an organization of a church of twenty, with more to follow. A few meetings of that kind will make a showing in our Conference and rejoicing in heaven. Then let us be up and doing.

But I began to write about Hazel Grove. The Lord has blessed our labors there, and we have found a great deal of pleasure in our work. But we feel that much of the success of this church is due to the energy, promptness and zeal of its Elder. May the Lord repay him. When there is "a mind to work" in a church, it is both easy and pleasant for the pastor. Yours in hope.

Mt. Etna, Iowa.

ON Saturday, Oct. 25th, services were held by the Jews throughout the civilized world in observance of the hundredth anniversary of the birth of Sir Moses Montefiore, the Jewish philanthropist, who was born at Leghorn, Oct. 24th, 1784. In New York and vicinity the celebration began in Chickering Hall on Saturday. Mention in honor of the philanthropical patriarch was made in many of the Christian churches, and many Christian ministers attended services in the synagogues. In the forenoon the Montefiore Home for Chronic Invalids, at Eighty-fourth Street and Avenue A, was dedicated. The Hebrew service of prayer and thanksgiving, as used in all the synagogues of Great Britain, was adapted for use and was used in most of the services. Little decoration of any kind was made and the exercises consisted mostly of short addresses.—Ex.

NEWS COLUMN.

In this column may be found the latest news available before going to press.

FOREIGN.

CAIRO, Oct. 28.—The plan for General Lord Wolseley's expedition to Kartoum, as finally settled, furnishes him a total force of 8,500 English troops. He will take 5,000 of these troops to Dongola, leaving a reserve corps of 3,500 at Wady Halfa. The Mudir of Dongola has promised to furnish a contingent of 3,000 men, to be composed of members of the mercenary tribes, which he will have recruited from the vicinity of Dongola, and to be armed with Remington rifles. If an advance in force shall be deemed necessary beyond Dongola, the reserves will be pushed on from Wady Halfa. Several sheiks are acting as escort to General Wolseley on his route from Wady Halfa to Ambigol. He reached Sarass to-day. Rumors are current here that Khartoum has fallen into the hands of the rebels. They probably emanate from Zebehr Pacha's people. The government has heard nothing of the kind. A heavy division of mounted infantry has arrived at Assouan.

PESTH, Oct. 28.—Emperor Francis Joseph to-day received the delegations. He said that he had every reason to expect the Empire would be blessed with a prolonged period of peace. The foreign relations of the country, especially those with the neighboring States, were on a friendly footing. "The present conference," he added, "at Skierniwice enabled me to renew cordial relations with the Russian Imperial family. It likewise attested the complete agreement between the three monarchs who participated in it to maintain and assure peace on the basis of the maintenance of treaties and mutual confidence, which should form the substantial guarantee of peace.

LONDON, Oct. 28.—A northwest storm prevailed last night and to-day throughout the British Isles and the neighboring seas. Houses were demolished at Shields, vessels in the Clyde were driven from their moorings, and many small wrecks are reported along the coast. Four vessels were driven ashore off Greenock. Incoming steamers report that disastrous weather was encountered out at sea. A steamer from Lisbon for Cardiff was wrecked at Penzance, and the German cruiser Undine was wrecked off the Danish coast. The crews of both were saved.

THE British Cabinet has not yet sanctioned the advance of the Nile expedition to Khartum. They will not decide the question before the return of Lord Northbrook, the British High Commissioner. It has finally been decided to reduce taxation in Egypt. Nubar Pacha, the Egyptian Prime Minister, informed Lord Northbrook that a reduction of taxation of £1,200,000 yearly would assist in promoting the prosperity of the country, but he insists that the reduction be postponed until 1886. The reductions agreed to in the interview between Lord Northbrook and the Khedive, include a reduction in the army, which will effect a saving of £170,000 yearly, a reduction in the civil service, the police, the Khedive's household and the suspension of the sinking funds. Upon the reduction of the Egyptian Army to 30,000 men, all but ten of its British officers will resign. Lord Northbrook will return to England from Egypt by the way of Paris, arriving home about November 4th. While in Paris he will have an interview with Prime Minister Ferry. The proposed Government credit for the Nile expedition is £2,000,000.—Ex.

IT is asserted that the losses sustained by the Australian flocks, during the late, and perhaps present drought, will reach millions. If this statement is anywhere near correct it will affect prices of wool in this country.

Y., commencing Wednesday evening, Nov. 12th, and continuing over Sunday, Nov. 16th. We wish that the ministers and delegates will be early at the meeting, so that the business of the Conference may be gotten over so as to devote as much time as possible to spiritual things. [redacted] churches and brethren make special eff[redacted] attend. Our work is nearly done; the Lo[redacted] hand. Let prayer be offered to God con[redacted] that the meeting may be a source of rich bl[redacted] to the church with which it convenes. Co[redacted] all things are ready. GEO. A. STREETER, [redacted]

Time of Annual Conference.

The Province of Quebec, N. N. H., and N. Vt. Annual Conference will commence its services Dec. 31st, with a "watch night meeting," and continue over Sabbath, Jan. 4th, 1885. L. C. MCKINSTRY, Secretary.

New York Conference.

The Lord willing, the Semi-Annual Session of the New York A. C. Conference will be held in the village of Wolcott, Wayne Co., N. Y., commencing Thursday evening, Nov. 27, and continuing over Sunday, Nov. 30. Wolcott is situated on the R. W. & O. R. R. The meeting will be held in a hall a short distance from the depot. And now, dear brethren and sisters, both of the ministry and the laity, we very much desire and also need your presence and assistance at this meeting. The cause which we profess to love is in a precarious condition. Shall we lend our aid and with the divine blessing make it thrive and prosper? or shall we by refusing to perform our individual duty let it wane and die? This cause we believe to be God's cause; but God has seen fit to employ human instrumentality in the prosecution of his work. If we are willing and even anxious as we should be to be used by him, a good work will certainly be accomplished and we shall be sharers with him in his joy. If we are dilatory on our part, how can we expect to hear him say "Well done" in the great reckoning day? Trusting that all will act from a prayerful sense of duty, we will urge no further.

M. R. MILES, President.
O. M. OWEN, Secretary.

Conference Notice.

The Annual Session of York County A. C. Conference will be held with the church at South Windham, commencing Thursday, Dec. 4th, at 2 o'clock P. M., and hold over the Sabbath, Dec. 7. This being the annual meeting, the first business in order will be the election of officers, so we hope the brethren and sisters will make it an object to be at the first meeting. Those who have been there in the past need not to be told that ample accommodations will be provided for all who attend. Come prepared to enter into the labor for the lost ones. Let us do our mending up before we leave home, so as to be prepared to immediately enter into the work of the Lord at the beginning of the meeting. Pray earnestly that the blessing of God may be abundantly showered on this gathering, and that a few more may be gathered in ere the judgment sets.

T. J. CARLE, Secretary.

The Second Personal Coming of Christ. By [illegible]

[illegible]

IS IT TRUE?

BY W. H. NUTTER.

Is it true that Christ is coming?
So the prophets have foretold.
Can their statements be relied on?
Yes, they're worth their weight in gold.

For holy men of by-gone ages
Wrote with inspiration's pen,
And we read among their writings,
"Christ is coming back again."

Is it true that Christ is coming
Back to earth where once he died?
Yes! we are trusting in the promise
Made by him, the "Crucified."

For he said to his disciples,
Just before he left them here,
If I go away to heaven,
In due time I'll reappear.

It is true that Christ is coming;
Even now he's at the door;
Are we ready now to meet him,
And be with him evermore?

He is coming with his angels,
"Chiefest of ten thousand" fair.
Christ is coming! Hallelujah!
And we'll meet him in the air.

Sinner, will you take warning,
And at once to Jesus fly;
Then with us at his appearing
You may meet him in the sky.

GOOD NEWS.—No. 45.

FROM ITALY.

"Dear Bro. Wellcome:—As I told you in my last I was on the point to start for Scotland. I went to Glasgow to attend the Conditional immortality Association's Conference on the beginning of September. Then I was invited to stop at Bradford, and at London. Then I took a rest in Geneva, at my friend's—Mr. Petavel, and arrived back at home Sept. 26th. Meantime the brethren here met together on Sunday mornings, read a chapter, and offered prayer. I was very well received among Scotch and English friends. The Conference at Glasgow was very interesting. Public meetings largely attended, sermons and prayers very good. A new interest for the truth was awakened. There were some remarkable features. I will send you the printed proceedings. I spoke four times in Glasgow, once in Bradford, and once in London. The European Association will help me for the next year, giving me one hundred pounds for my own support for my regular work. This is enough to provide a piece of bread for my family through all [illegible] meetings, and the book and tract department. This you and other American brethren are supplying with your contributions. The money you have sent was applied in part to publish my book, and a part to tracts. One tract has been already published, and another is on issue. To the journal, Biblical Bee, was applied the one hundred dollars sent me by the A. F. Mission Board, but it covers only half the expense. I need one hundred dollars more for that.

As for lectures as I did last winter in Pinenolo, I will do next winter in Turin and Genoa. To support these will require the aid of my American brethren, and I commend them to your Christian interest. May God bless you and crown your efforts with an abundant harvest of souls saved through the life of our Lord Jesus Christ.

Yours cordially, O. COCORDA."

Oct. 2, 1884.

The above letter shows that the work is being done; that the Lord has in Italy a man of broad plans and of executive ability. In a recent letter by Rev. E. White, of London, we have the following item: "It pleases me greatly to observe your sympathy for Bro. Cocorda, of Italy. Having lately enjoyed a visit from him, I am able to speak with more confidence than was possible when we knew each other only by correspondence. He is indeed a noble man, gradually trained by the knowledge of Italian modes of thought, Romanist, Protestant, and Atheistic, for the work which is opening before him. I have had the honor of assisting him a little last year; but the case of Italy calls for united effort.

Cocorda is no favorite with the religious parties; but I think the reasons of their dislike become more obvious on acquaintance with him. He is far too much in earnest to please them, and far too regardless of established interests in the propagation of truth, to be accounted by them a 'safe man.' But he is a learned, modest, [illegible] self-sacrificing servant of God; and we ought all to join in helping him in Italy. I shall continue to invite English friends to aid him; but I earnestly beg American friends to join us vigorously in contributing to his funds, both for living and printing. He has a wife and children, and requires to be steadily backed in his arduous work."

This is what we intend to do, the Lord helping us, while time and means are given to aid in preparing a people for his coming and kingdom. I. C. WELLCOMB.

GOOD-BY.

BY J. F. ADAIR.

How often we are compelled to use the [illegible] that we use it. This was true with us only a few weeks ago when we took the parting hand of those we had learned to love, those with whom we had labored for twelve years, whom we had tried and knew to be true; friends that had and would again stand by us in the dark and trying experiences of life. It was with a feeling that language could not fully express that we said "good-by" to friends and home.

The greater part of our ministerial experience has been among the people of southern Iowa. What I do not owe to the Lord I owe to them; for they have helped to make me what I am. Through our weak instrumentality the Lord has seen proper to lead a goodly number into the light of his truth and grace. We call to mind now a church where we had the privilege of baptizing more than sixty of its members; among the number was a teacher who taught me to read nearly thirty years ago.

Well, we thank God for all the victories achieved on the old battle-field, and ask his pardon for all our mistakes. We shall always think of our friends in Iowa with pleasure and delight.

We have been in our new home almost two months. We have reasons to believe that our lot has been cast among a very excellent class of brethren and sisters, who seem to be given to faith and good works. From the very first we were made to feel that we were at home and among friends.

We are asking the Lord to so direct us in our work that we may be of real use to them and the cause of truth we all so much love. Bro. and Sister Mansfield, who preceded us here, have done a good work in this part of the country, and have left behind them a good report which speaks well for them and also for the cause they represent. This is as it should be. As ministers we are not only called to preach the Word, but to be ensamples to the flock over which the Holy Ghost hath made us overseers. Brethren, pray for us that the word of God may have free course and be glorified.

Auburn, Ill.

FROM ELD. M. A. POTTER.

Bro. Stockman:—I returned this morning from Webster, Mass., where we have been holding the Quarterly Conference of this district, and God's blessing rested on the meeting. We were all very much disappointed in not seeing Bro. Boutell and others who had promised to be with us. I hope our dear preachers will remember in the future to visit small places and help on God's work, where they are very much more needed than in large places like Boston and Worcester.

Bro. Cross and I were obliged to do all the preaching, for there were no other preachers present during the meetings. But God blessed his word, although spoken in weakness, and some were led to inquire, "What must I do to be saved?" One Roman Catholic woman confessed Christ for the first time.

Sunday afternoon at the close of the preaching the pastor buried two in baptism. Quite a number came in from the surrounding towns to enjoy the meetings. God has wonderfully blessed the labors of our dear Bro. Cross. Quite a number of families from the different churches have embraced the present truth and have united with the church, and are among the earnest workers in the cause of Christ, and through their united efforts have brought a large number of sinners to Christ. They have recently built a beautiful chapel to worship God in, capable of seating three hundred people.

I had the pleasure of forming the acquaintance of a number who came from three denominations, and who embraced the blessed truth that we hold as a people. During my stay I was kindly entertained at the home of Bro. Parsons. It was indeed a Christian home. May God bless them. They were formerly connected with the Methodist Church in Webster. Conviction rests on the people. Bro. Cross has the respect of the [illegible] may bless him and sustain him in his labors of love.

CONFERENCE REPORT.

The Annual Session of the Connecticut A. C. Conference was held with the church in Waterbury, commencing at two o'clock P. M., Wednesday, Oct. 1st. The afternoon was spent in hearing reports from delegates, preachers and others present. Services opened with reading the Scriptures by the Vice President, Bro. Seth Woodruff, and prayer by Bro. B. St. John.

Delegates present: H. Davis, Stonington; M. Chandler, Prospect; J. Elliott, Campville. Preachers present: B. St. John, H. W. Perkins, A. Elliott, Seth Woodruff, Geo. A. Barker.

The reports were interesting, and a deep sense of consecration and walking in the light filled with the Holy Spirit, in complete readiness to meet the blessed Lord and to gather sinners into the garner of the Lord, seemed to rest upon all present. The churches represented nearly all show an increased membership, and the Sabbath Schools are receiving earnest attention and show a marked improvement, both in members and interest. Preaching in the evening by Bro. H. W. Perkins to a fair audience with good attention. The Spirit of the Lord was present, and it was good to be there.

Thursday morning, Oct. 2nd, nine A. M., prayer and conference meeting, which was blessed. At ten o'clock, the President B. Hitchcock in the chair, the regular business session of the Conference opened with prayer by Bro. J. C. St. John, and the minutes of the afternoon meeting read and accepted. Additional delegates, H. P. Bradley and Geo. C. Arms, Bristol; Thos. Fitzsimons, Waterbury. Preachers: Geo. L. White, Geo. L. Teeple. The usual committees were appointed. On motion, it was voted that Bro. Geo. A. Barker become a member of this Conference.

Officers elected for the ensuing year: B. Hitchcock, President; H. W. Perkins, Vice President; O. D. Woodruff, Secretary and Treasurer.

The ordination committee endorsed the recommendation of the church at Bristol that Bro. J. C. St. John be ordained as a minister of the gospel. The same committee also endorsed the recommendation of brethren and sisters from Thomaston that Bro. Geo. A. Barker be given a license to preach as a minister of the gospel. The Campmeeting Committee's report was read and accepted. It was voted that the Treasurer be instructed to pay the Campmeeting Committee. On motion, the President, Vice President, Secretary and Treasurer of the Conference were chosen Campmeeting Committee for the ensuing year.

It was voted, that the next Annual Session of the Conference be held on the campground during the Plainville Campmeeting next year.

Delegates chosen to the next National S. A. C. Association: H. W. Perkins, O. D. Woodruff. Bro. Seth Woodruff was appointed State Evangelist for the year ensuing, and $31.00 was given him by different brethren towards that work.

The following resolutions were adopted by a unanimous vote:

Resolved, That we recommend to the churches the importance of using unfermented wine at communion.

Resolved, That while intemperance reigns and thousands are going to destruction through that agency, we recommend the churches to labor earnestly in the cause of temperance, requesting the superintendents of Sunday Schools to substitute the subject of temperance for the review lesson in each Quarterly.

The Conference passed a vote of thanks to the brethren and sisters of Waterbury for their hospitality, and adjourned to the call of the Secretary.

At the close of the Conference business, Bro. J. C. St. John was ordained to the work of the ministry. Reading of the Scriptures by Bro. Perkins—2nd Tim. 2nd chapter; prayer by Bro. Hitchcock; charge by Bro. Davis; right hand of fellowship by Bro. Hitchcock. The Spirit of the Lord was specially manifest, rendering the ceremony indeed solemn and impressive.

In the evening Bro. Davis preached a profitable sermon on Christian fellowship, which was followed by exhortations from brethren and sisters. Two came forward for prayers. With this service the Conference closed its labors. The entire proceedings were characterized by a spirit of brotherly love and fellowship and deep spirituality, which we trust will prove a blessing to the church in Waterbury, as well as to those who came from abroad, and help to prepare a people for the coming of the Lord, who shall in turn be the means of gathering many sheaves for the kingdom of our God. It was the best Conference that has been held for years in this State. Should any like a Quarterly Session to labor for sinners and comfort and strengthen the church, either in January or April next, they can correspond with the President or Secretary of the Conference.

O. D. WOODRUFF, Sec'y and Treas.

CONFERENCE REPORT.

The Northern Indiana and Southern Michigan A. C. Conference, was held as per. announcement at Buchanan, Mich., commencing Oct. 1st, in the evening, by preaching conducted by Elder. D. R. Mansfield. Preaching Thursday and Friday afternoon and evening. Business meeting called to order by the President, Benjamin Finney, at nine o'clock Saturday morning. Owing to the President's illness, this session was very short. With the exception of Treasurer, the officers were all present. Minutes of previous meetings read and approved. The present officers of the Conference were re-elected for the ensuing year, viz.: Pres. Benj. Finney, Vice Pres. A. Richards, Secy. Geo. J. French, Treasurer, W. J. Winchel. The licenses of Bro. N. H. Geiselman, W. J. Winchel, and Geo. J. French, were renewed. Certificates of Ordination granted to Eld. Benj. Finney, Eld. D. R. Mansfield, and Mrs. E. S. Mansfield.

The following committee was appointed by the chair for revision of the constitution: D. R. Mansfield and George J. French. Sister E. S. Mansfield was afterwards added to the above committee. Some other matters of importance were considered, after which conference adjourned to the call of the chair. Ministers present: Brn. Finney, Mansfield and French. All were greatly disappointed on account of Sister Mansfield and others not being with us, also on account of Eld. Finney's increased illness, which prevented him from taking any part in the meetings. Places represented: Indiana, Union Mills, La Port, Olive Branch, Buchanan, Bainbridge, and Berrien Springs.

During the three weeks previous to our conference the United Brethren Evangelist, (Bro. Parrott) held a tent meeting in Buchanan, in which all the different churches in the place engaged with one accord. The meeting was a grand success. A goodly number was added to the membership of each church. The interest was so great during the few days of conference that Eld. Mansfield concluded we had better continue the meeting over another Sunday. In the meantime a goodly number of young men and women came to the Lord in tears and supplications, and found sweet peace and comfort by laying hold of the precious promises of Jesus by faith, and are now looking forward with great anticipation for the King in his glory. Twenty-seven were immersed, and twenty-nine were added to the church. Sister E. S. Mansfield came in time to cheer us up by three excellent discourses. Saturday evening, Sunday morning and evening, at which time the meeting closed. All were happy and rejoicing over the success in Jesus' name. GEO. J. FRENCH, Secretary.

Berrien Springs, Mich.

CONFERENCE REPORT.

The Northern Indiana and Michigan State Union Conference held its last session at Bangor, Michigan, Sept. 25th. Ministers present: Jas. Ferris, A. N. Seymour, John Carver, Lemuel Branch, Jas. Watkins.

Reports of ministers good. The brethren and sisters seemed to be inspired to more zeal in the blessed work to get themselves and others ready for translation into the kingdom of God. The next Conference will be held in the light of the moon in December; the place to be appointed by the Chair. A. N. SEYMOUR, Secretary.

CAMPMEETING REPORT.

The first session of the Maine Easterly Advent Campmeeting commenced in the Spirit. A large congregation was present, and interested to hear the word of the Lord as presented by Elds. G. W. Weeks, F. E. Blaisdell, M. M. Stevenson, J. R. Sturtevant, J. R. Hall, and others. The social meetings were stirring, producing an effect upon the people, so that a goodly number made a start for eternal life. It may truly be said that this meeting was a success for the cause of Christ. The grove is leased for ten years, with all the privileges we could ask for. A good well has been sunk and stoned since the meeting, and some other work done, and yet there is more that ought to be done this fall, as there will be but little time to get help another season, as the meeting will be held on the week of the Alton Bay meeting in August.

The grove is a very large and desirable one for a large meeting, which we believe it will be if time continues, and the leaders have grace and wisdom to direct them in arranging everything for future meetings. God grant it for Jesus' sake. There is money needed to pay for lumber, and some work yet to be done. May the Lord stir up those who are able to give money or work to help in doing more on the ground this fall. If there are those who can give some work, please let us hear from you at once, stating the time you can be on the ground to work one or more days; or if you can give cash instead of work, send it to either Eld. G. W. Weeks or Eld. J. Carr, Cooper's Mills, Me., who will use it to the best advantage on the ground.

Now, friends, remember that it is not by might or power, but by the Spirit of God, that the glorious work of God is to be accomplished. Remember this meeting, and pray that God may lead and direct in all things to his own glory, by producing harmony among the flock of God, and sounding out the glorious news of the return of the glorious Redeemer to give eternal life to all who love him, when sickness, sorrow, pain and death shall be felt and feared no more.

G. W. WEEKS, Chairman.
JER. CARR, Secretary.

CONFERENCE REPORT.

The fourth Quarterly Session of the North Western Penn. A. C. Conference met with the church at East Branch, Warren County, Oct. 3d, and continued its sessions until Saturday evening. The weather was for the most part favorable, and the brethren and sisters of that church took the utmost pains to entertain the Conference in a generous and hospitable manner.

Elds. Wood, Ongley, Jones and Niles assisted in the exercises and services. Reports came in from the several localities embraced in the limits of the Conference—some very gratifying and all evincing the advantage which has resulted spiritually from the establishment of the Conference. But the great reality that stood out with more prominence than any other was the need, in this field, of [illegible] and zealous workers, godly men, "living epistles, known and read of all men," who are willing to make sacrifices for the cause of Christ. "The harvest truly is plenteous, but the laborers are few. Pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest, that he will send forth laborers into his harvest."

[illegible]GING ELEMENTS.

I have [illegible] heard and read about terrible storms, [illegible] never had the experience of being in one on the night of July 4. A cloud of the [illegible]est blackness was stretched across the [illegible] which was kept continually illumined [illegible] brilliant play of electricity. "Just see [illegible] lightning!" was heard from the lips of [illegible] every one. Great streaks of lightning [illegible]ld shoot from one side of the heavens [illegible] the other, zigzaging in every direction, [illegible]n widening into sheets of regular flame [illegible] interspersed with this, balls of fire, appe[illegible] to be about 3 or 4 inches in diameter, [illegible]ld shoot out, something like shot from [illegible] gun. They would appear like great sk[illegible]kets that shoot up, and then burst into i[illegible]erable sparks or balls of fire. Our [illegible] had expended vast sums of money f[illegible] fireworks on that evening, but the Lord g[illegible]us an exhibition of fire that outstripped [illegible]thing in the power of man to do. [illegible] the storm burst upon us in all its [illegible]. The wind blew hard, and the [illegible] like the cataract of a large river [illegible] anything else to which I can compare. After the rain had somewhat passed [illegible] looked out, and underneath the black [illegible]uds, that hung very low, were great wh[illegible]louds that seemed to be rolling along al[illegible] on the ground. It is altogether beyond [illegible] power of the pen to describe the scene [illegible] was. Some have expressed since, that [illegible] thought the day of judgment was at hand.

Although the town in which our tent was pitched w[illegible] quite small, three buildings were [illegible] by lightning, and one horse killed. The wind did not do much damage [illegible]ght there but south and west of it, it was [illegible]ry destructive. We had nothing but the [illegible]ail walls of our tent to shield us from this [illegible]gry storm, but we cried unto our God, [illegible] he delivered us unharmed. We never [illegible] the need of his care as we did upon [illegible] occasion, and never in all our lives [illegible] we felt so much like trusting him as [illegible] have since he gave us such a marvelous deliverance from the storm.

Amid the storms and pestilences of these last [illegible] trying days, our only hope is in the sheltering power of God. And what a blessed hope it is! It is all we could desire. How precious in these times are the words of the Psalmist: "He that dwelleth in the secret place of the Most High shall abide under the shadow of the Almighty. Thou shalt not be afraid for the terror by night, nor for the arrow that flieth by day, nor for the pestilence that walketh in darkness, nor for the destruction that wasteth at noonday." Why is it that men will not avail themselves of these precious promises, and turn away from their sins to the true and living God?—Eld. A. O. Tait in Review and Herald.

DETECTIVES IN A BASKET.

Charles Cook has just returned from France, where he has been distributing the Word of God in the prisons, and tells the following story: "An Englishman arrived at the Lille station a few weeks ago, and was closely watched by two detectives, who followed him to an hotel and took rooms adjoining the one occupied by him. Early the next morning he hired a cab and drove at a sharp pace through Lille. The detectives, who had been awake all night, followed, but could not keep up with the vehicle; but they did not mind, as they knew where their man was bound for. Every morning a large van leaves the prison containing two good sized baskets of slippers and boots made by the prisoners. Shortly after ten on this particular morning, the detectives, with two of the secret police dressed as laborers, were waiting near the prison, when the doors opened, and the van containing the baskets, &c., came slowly out. It was stopped when it had got clear of the prison, the baskets cut open, and two English prisoners, with bundles of private clothes, false whiskers, and eye-glasses were found inside. They were at once taken back to the prison, and placed in close confinement, and soon after the van with the baskets again came out.

On reaching the end of the avenue of trees which leads to Lille, the stranger from the hotel rushed from the side of the road, stopped the vehicle, and cutting the strings of the baskets, cried out, 'You are saved, you are saved!' 'Ah! but you are not!' cried the detectives, who had themselves been secreted in the baskets, and who at once secured their prisoner; he in his turn was safely conveyed inside the jail. It need hardly be said that these men had confederates inside the prison, and but for one of them (whom I visited) they would have made good their escape."—Christian Herald.

GENERAL SKOBELEFF AND HIS JEW PRESERVER.—There are a great number of anecdotes about General Skobeleff which become legendary in the Russian army, and there are a greater number about the Russian Jews which circulate through all classes of Russian society. The following is of interest, both for the admirers of the "white general" and the haters of the Russian Jew. Skobeleff was working one evening in his tent near the Danube, when a Turkish bomb dropped at the threshold of the tent. The general had just time to see the sentinel outside stoop down and phlegmatically throw the shell into the water. Skobeleff approached the soldier, and said, "Do you know you have saved my life?" "I have done my best, general." "Very well; which would you have, the St. George's Cross, or 100 roubles?" The sentinel was a Jew, with a fine Semitic profile. He hesitated a moment, and then said, "What is the value of the St George's Cross, my general?" "What do you mean? The cross itself is no value. It may be worth five roubles, but it is an honor to possess it." "Well, my general," calmly said the soldier, "if it is like that, give me the ninety-five roubles and the Cross of St. George!" Whether the prayer of that child of Israel was granted or not history does not say.—Selected.

SKATING RINKS DENOUNCED.—As in many other places, the skating rink craze has taken strong hold of Binghamton, N. Y. The matter was on Sunday, October 5th, for the first time, noticed from the pulpit of Rev. O. W. Scott, of the Centenary Methodist Episcopal Church, denouncing scathingly all such places of amusement. The sermon was very severe and created a sensation, as in the course of his remarks the reverend gentleman said he knew of fourteen girls who had been ruined by these sinks of iniquity. He knew of many men who could not pay their honest debts because of money expended at the rinks. He knew of contracts for the purchase of homes which had been given up for the same reason. He knew of many families which had been broken up by the scandals started in these places. No true Christian would frequent such places. What makes the arraignment more startling is the fact that the first rink was built here by a prominent church deacon, who now runs it. The outcome of the fight thus started is looked for with much curiosity, as this is the first assault made upon one of the most popular amusements ever yet known in Binghamton or the surrounding country.—Ex.

A YOUNG LADY was frozen to death on the mountains in Colorado, U. S., recently. She resided in New York, but was visiting in Colorado for the sake of the mountain climbing, of which she was very fond. On September 23, she set out at six o'clock in the morning, accompanied by a young guide named Lamb, to ascend Long's Peak. They safely ascended the peak, but encountered a fierce snowstorm on their return, during which the lady became completely chilled. Young Lamb assisted her in the descent the best he could until nine o'clock at night, when her strength entirely failed. He then carried her for half a mile, when, finding his own strength failing, he told her the only chance of saving either of their lives was for him to leave her and go to his father's house, seven miles distant, for help. He left her at ten o'clock and returned with assistance at four o'clock the following morning, but found the lady frozen to death. If the facts are as stated, the guide probably took the wisest course in leaving the lady to go for help, though if he had a manly disposition it must have cost him a struggle to desert her. He who takes Christ as his guide has this assurance from him, "I will never leave thee nor forsake thee." That infallible Guide has already laid down His life for men (John 10. 11-28).—Selected.

Our true knowledge is to know our own ignorance. Our true strength is to know our own weakness. Our true dignity is to confess that we have no dignity, and are nobody and nothing in ourselves, and to cast ourselves down before the dignity of God, under the shadow of whose wings, and in the smile of whose countenance alone, is any created being safe. Let us cling to our Father in heaven, as a child walking in the night, clings to his father's hand.—Kingsley.

WE need of all things faith and energy; faith in ourselves, faith in humanity, above all, faith in God, and faith energizing, pushing us forward. Skepticism is barren, dreary, desolate, benumbing energy, contracting the heart. Faith alone is fruitful, leading to good works.

"COME OVER AND HELP US."

From o'er the mighty ocean,
From Burmah's distant shore,
From India's plains and mountains,
From China's opened door,
There comes a voice of wailing,
'Tis woman's bitter cry:
"O sisters, haste and help us,
Come hither ere we die!"

God's vineyard is not bounded
By ocean, sea or shore;
Go preach to every nation
The Christ whom you adore,
Go teach the heathen mother
The way of life and truth,
And sow the seeds of wisdom
In tender hearts of youth.

Our Master is our Leader
In every work of love;
We may not pause or falter,
He watches from above.
And oh, what joy will thrill us,
In those bright fields of light,
To meet the ransomed ones
From heathen lands of night.

TEMPERANCE.

SWITZERLAND'S CURSE AND SHAME.

O Switzerland, Switzerland! Mountain home of liberty, and land of glorious memories and heroic deeds! Shall the spirit of antichrist and the spirit of wine overcome and destroy thee in thy strongholds at last? Switzerland is drunk with liquor and blinded with folly. A commission was recently appointed by the government of that country to make official inquiry into the liquor traffic that is desolating the land, and presented to the Assembly the alarming report "that the consumption of alcohol in Switzerland is greater per head than in any other country of Europe; that the consumption of brandy among the Swiss is increasing and that parallel with this there is an increase of mental diseases, and increase of misery and want."

With these awful facts before their eyes, the Council not only refused to take any action toward restrictive legislation, but in official report they actually defended the ruinous practice of social drinking, in such words as these: "The practice of the social drinking of spirituous liquors brings cheerful temper into society, effaces traces of daily labor, opens the heart to other impressions, and is intimately associated with the development of public life. Public houses foster intellectual activity, and are a remedy against misanthrophy, egotism, vanity, narrowness of ideas, and extravagance of imagination."

Nothing could better show the terrible power of the spirit of wine over a people than such words and facts as the above. With this sad state of things in mind, we are not surprised to find that this ancient friend of liberty of conscience has turned persecutor. The action of the Swiss authorities in the case of the Salvation Army is entirely unwarranted and indefensible.

Our reader will gain some idea of the lengths to which Switzerland has gone in this direction, from the following facts given by the Congregationalist: "In Neauchasel, a village prefect lately, with his gendarmes, entered a private house where a few friends were taking tea together; and when they protested that they were not holding a 'Salvationists' meeting, he pointed in scornful triumph to a Bible on the table saying, 'There is proof that you are Salvationalists.' In a similar case the book was torn and trampled on. At Berne lately a house in which a few Swiss Christians were holding a peaceful service was more completely destroyed than if by fire; those present scarcely carrying their lives away. At Bienne—where the people, too, are mostly Protestants—a great cross was dragged through the streets, and it was shouted, 'Let Christ come here, and we will nail him to this!' The Berne government has not only expelled the Salvationists—who, by the way, have never there provoked opposition by processions and music, as elsewhere—and forbidden all meetings whatever of the character of those of the Salvationist, even in private circles; but have gone so far as to make it penal to say anything in their favor! The only explanation of such legislation is found in the fact that the Salvationists pitilessly attacked the vices of the people, high as well as low, and rich as well as the poor, and hence these atrocious proceedings, towards which the condemnation of the world ought to be turned.—Selected.

IN reply to a liquor dealer, who proclaimed with an air of professional triumph, that he "sold to decent people only, and that his business was highly respectable," a Quaker said: "Friend, that is the most damning part of the business. If thee would sell to drunkards and loafers, thee would help to kill the race, and society would be rid of them. But thee takes the young, the poor, the innocent, and the unsuspecting, and make drunkards and loafers of them; and when their character and money are gone, thee, kicks them out and turns them over to other shops to be finished off; and thee ensnares others, and sends them on the same road to ruin." Surely the good Quaker had the best of the argument, for he had facts on his side.—Ex.

SAYS an exchange: "Think of a church-member spending $145 for tobacco and sixty-six cents for church extension; and one of the same church, paying $191 for tobacco, and $100 for missions!" We remember no match to that, except a lady of whom a New England pastor told us, rustling her silks to reach her purse with her jewelled fingers, and daintily drawing out a quarter of a dollar for home missions. It is well for such folks that watching angels have no audible speech.

FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.

ENGLAND.

When I wrote last, I was at West Bromwich, Cheshire, Feb. 16th. I remained there two evenings more, speaking on the great Chart, showing them that Jesus is coming soon. Much interest was manifested, and a goodly number rejoiced to hear that our Saviour is soon coming. They were anxious to hear more on the subject. I left them in the hands of a good man, who loves the coming of the Son of man, and went next to Stourbridge, where we had meetings Friday, Saturday and over Sunday, in the skating-rink. A lively interest was manifested. Sunday afternoon and evening, I spoke on the Chart to very attentive and large audiences. In the evening the seats were all filled. An earnest request was made for some more similar meetings. All the live Christians love to hear about the return of our Saviour. This truth receives a more hearty welcome in England than America. In the States, most have decided one way or the other; and after they turn against the strong evidence presented, they usually become bitter opposers of this glorious truth, and refuse to hear any more on the subject.

While at Stourbridge, I visited a house in the suburbs, where John Wesley used to preach on his circuit, from 1740 to 1770. The house is situated on what is called Amble court Bank, and overlooks the country around. After awhile the room became too small to accommodate the people. The owner of the house, Mr. Skidmore, then put a trap-door overhead, so that persons could go upstairs and listen. Mr. Wesley was accustomed to stand in a chair a part of the time, and put his head up through the trap-door, and speak to the people in the upper room. The trap-door is still preserved.

From Stourbridge, I went to Brierley Hill, where I held meetings Monday and Tuesday evenings in what was once a theatre. A half-an-hour before meeting in the house, we had an open-air meeting in the heart of the town, by a lamp, on the principal street, when a crowd soon gathered, and listened attentively to what was said. In this way much larger audiences are secured [illegible] were not for these open-air meetings held a little while before we go into the houses. The audiences at Brierley Hill were large and attentive, while listening to a prophetic talk on the Mohammedan power and one on holiness. Rev. Silas Henn came over from Dudley on Tuesday, the second day, and remained in the evening. We had a very pleasant visit together, and a long talk about the prophecies relating to the future of Israel. He is a true Christian gentleman, possessed of a kind and generous spirit, like his divine Master. He has decided to go again to America in the spring.

The section of country occupied by West Bromwich, Stourbridge, and Brierley Hill, is noted for its coal mines and iron works. Because of these things, it is called the "Black Country." The ground is so honeycombed by coal mines, that many houses have sunken down so as to render them unsafe. I noticed the foundation for a nice business block, having a good foundation, as was supposed, and the walls partly built, which had to be abandoned on account of the sinking of the land. This country reminds one of the vast California mining regions.

Wednesday, Feb. 25th, I returned to London to preach that evening in the Iron Chapel, Clapham Road. By special arrangement I spoke on heart purity; or how to secure and keep a pure heart, as a necessary preparation for the coming of Christ.

Thursday, I came to this place and spoke in the Town Hall to a large, and very attentive audience, on the last two verses of the eleventh chapter of Daniel, and the first two in the twelfth, showing that we must be near the time of their accomplishment. I was here also Friday evening, Saturday and Sunday. I was at Northwich, six miles from Winsford, where we had the best meetings I have enjoyed since I arrived in England. I put up the great Chart, and showed the people that we are almost to the time when Jesus will come back to set up the kingdom of heaven. This caused many to rejoice. The hall is said to hold some eight hundred, and was crowded in the evening. Some new ones started in the service of the Lord. I found there some faithful workers under the direction of two devoted women, who are conducting the meetings of the "Blue Ribbon Gospel Army." The conference meetings were just like those we have in our campmeetings, after they get well aroused in the Lord's service.

Monday, March 2d, I returned to this place, where I am to remain over the next Lord's day. Monday afternoon, we had a good meeting for the promotion of holiness. At mid-day, yesterday, we had a short meeting for the girls in a large velvet manufactory, by the permission of the overseer. Before the evening meeting last evening, we had an open-air meeting, in the heart of the town. We begin with singing, then pray, talk and sing, thus reaching some who never go to meeting. This is a much better way to get them to meeting than by ringing a church bell, or even a chime of bells. Persons frequently testify in meetings, saying they were first reached by what was said in an open-air meeting. Much has been said in the churches of late about the best way to reach the non-church goers; "the best way to get them to meeting." The best way is to go where they are, and carry to their doors the gospel message. When I was a boy, those who wanted groceries had to go to the grocery store; but now the grocery man sends around his team to solicit orders, and then brings you what you desire. Shall we not take as much pains to get the truth before the people? Is not eternal life of more consequence than food and raiment?

It seems as though we are not half awake to the importance of the great salvation offered to fallen man. Every real Christian should be doing what he can to rescue the perishing. Only a few seem to be making any sacrifice to save others. It is not a subject of wonder that but few are converted in these last days when we see how lukewarm are the great body of church members; and how they are absorbed in the spirit and manners of the world. This is a natural result arising from the rejection of the evidences of the near coming of Christ. This grand truth is now needed to keep the Church in its proper position of waiting and readiness for his coming. The great event is at our doors. We should be ready every moment. Bless the Lord, for the bright light now shining on the prophetic page, showing us most clearly, that we have but a short time to wait, before we we shall see him in all his glory. M. G.

Winsford March 4th, 1885.

THE END OF PREACHING.

BY SILAS HENN.

Preaching, or the proclamation of the Christ, or the gospel, is the principal means ordained by God for the salvation of men. After declaring that "whosoever shall call upon the name of the Lord shall be saved," the apostle Paul asks these questions: "How then shall they call on him in whom they have not believed? and how shall they believe in him of whom they have not heard? and how shall they hear without a preacher? and how shall they preach except they be sent? Rom. 10: 13–15. He further says: "It was God's good pleasure through the foolishness of the preaching (or the thing preached, or the glad tidings made known), to save them that believe." 1 Cor. 1: 21. God, was pleased, by the proclamation of that which the world regards as folly, to bestow salvation on those who accept the message. For the preaching of Christ crucified was a stumbling block to the Jews, and by the Gentiles it was regarded as foolishness. [illegible] view in the ordination of preaching is clearly set forth. It is to save them that believe. Believing the gospel, it becomes the power of God unto their salvation.

The true end of preaching then, whatever may be the particular subject of our discourse, is the salvation of souls. We may expound the word, we may refute false doctrine, we may hold up neglected truths, we may exhort and persuade men, or we may make personal and pungent applications of the truth; still this end should be always kept in view. The end of preaching is not to gratify the intellect, but to feed the spiritual nature. It is not to help you simply to build up a theory, but to help you to build up a Christian character. It is not to give you merely right views of prophecy and of the Lord's second coming, but to help you to prepare for the event, and to be ready every moment. If this end is not gained, what is gained that is worth having?

But we never need look for this end to be accomplished by preachers who have not been called to the work. And it is not colleges or universities that can make true preachers out of men whom the Holy Spirit has not called. Almost any man may make doggerel, but only he who possesses the spirit of poetry can write good verses. Any man can make a noise on the piano-forte, can touch the keys and call forth sounds; but it is only the musician, the man who has an ear for music, who can play well upon the instrument, and produce harmony, and please and profit those who listen to him. Any man with a brush and paint can daub a piece of canvas; but it is only the man who is called to be a painter who can produce a picture that will win for him immortal fame. So any man may go into the pulpit and talk, but it is only the man called of God to the office, and qualified by the Spirit, who can truly preach the gospel, who can preach instructive and inspiring sermons, and lead men higher up in the moral scale. There must be natural as well as acquired fitness in the preacher for his work, or his work will never be well done. There must be a clear perception of the truth in the mind, and a saving knowledge of the truth in the heart, or he will fail to make that truth clear to the minds of men, and make it real to the hearts of men. There must be power in the soul, or there will be little in the sermon. There must be Holy-Ghost fire within, or no fire will be enkindled in the souls of others.

Preaching should be judged of by its fruits. Where fruit abounds, where conversions take place, where reformation follows, the preaching must be good—good in the estimation of Heaven, though it may not be learned or eloquent. A man in business, conversing with another respecting a sermon he had heard, said, "I do not remember the text, but when I got home I burnt up my scant half bushel." Preaching that effects no change in morals must be very deficient. But in the end of preaching—the saving of them that believe—there is included, not only their conversion to Christ, but the perfecting of their character, the development of their higher nature. That preaching, therefore, which most fully accomplishes this end, is the best preaching; and that which accomplishes this end in the least degree, is the worst preaching. And those plans employed in connection with preaching which most effectually aid in securing the same end, are the best plans; and those plans which are the least successful in furthering this end, are the worst plans. Impressed with the importance of these thoughts, our observations on this subject will be very practical, and our criticisms on the present-day methods of preaching will be very faithful.

AN IRRELIGIOUS GOVERNMENT.

BY FRANK BURR.

The doctrine of freedom in religious worship is at this time pressing itself upon the attention of the people of this country. Perhaps it is supposed by most people that the United States is a government that gives perfect toleration to religious sentiments and forms of worship, but a moment's reflection will show that this is not the case. There is great toleration, but not perfect toleration. The Roman Catholic cannot say mass in its public institutions, nor can a Jew teach against Jesus in a government hall of learning. A Mormon cannot teach his tenets in an almshouse, nor will a Free thinker be allowed to indoctrinate the minds of the inmates of a reform school.

This government has been hitherto considered a Protestant government. That is, whatever religious service it has allowed in its government institutions has been of the form called Protestant in the general sense of that word, as opposed to Romanism. Shall it continue thus?

A bill has been introduced in New York called the Freedom of Worship bill, proposing to do away with all lines of prohibition in religious teaching in such institutions as House of Refuge, States Prison, and the like, and give each inmate the privilege of having whatever service he may choose, whether it be Protestant, Romanist, or what not. This calls out considerable discussion. Prof. Felix Adler, said recently in Chickering Hall, New York:

"There is only a choice between two alternatives. Either find a common platform on which Jew, Protestant, Catholic, Turk, Infidel, can stand, which is impossible, or exclude religious teaching altogether. The State as such has no religion. State institutions have no right to teach any religion. The only true ground is to rule out all religion; teach these children the A. B. C. of morality; the Commandments; teach them morality by exhortations and by giving them biographies to read; teach them to work and give them trades, [illegible] play-ground. Let Catholics and Protestants vie with each other to raise funds for these purposes. That is my position in this controversy, and because I take this position, I protest against the passage of the Freedom of Worship bill, as it is called. I ask that a new bill be introduced which shall forever solve the difficulty by ruling out all sectarian teaching.

In this extract from Prof. Adler's speech the subject of an irreligious government is squarely presented. And the strife on free religion is tending to concentrate the battle to a direct combat between these two conditions; either freedom for all religions, or freedom for none, in state institutions.

Prof. Adler says, freedom for all is impossible. Very well. Is not his position also impossible? That is, would not the government that should adopt it thereby dig its own grave? The first is impossible because of its incoherency. May not the latter be likewise because of its incompatibility?

Just think of it! Senates and Legislatures, but no prayers. Thanksgivings and Fast Days for the people in which they are exhorted to religious service, but no religion in the Houses of Refuge, Reform School, or any other public institution under the control of the State. No public recognition of the Bible, of the God of Abraham, of the Lord Jesus Christ; perfect heathendom in all things pertaining to the government, while the people are left to have any religion, or none.

What an effect this would have upon society! Is not the government the head of all social conditions? Is not the thought of being among the rulers of the land the height of ambition? Does not the condition of the state speak the progress of the people? But no religion must be there, says Prof. Adler. You may have power of law, but no prayer—no power of God. You may have morals, but no Christ. You may have a definite president, but no definite God. Although "the powers that be are ordained of God," yet you must not recognize that God.

That is for State institutions. Then what among the people? There would be a mixture of elements that would be worse than nitro-glycerine and silica. A religious dynamite, that would blow up the foundation of society, would soon be let loose upon the people. You cannot mingle creeds and religions in the state, says Mr. Adler. No more can they be mingled among the people. What cannot be done in the legislative halls, cannot be safely done in social circles.

The tendency of the hour is to make this government irreligious! no religion in state institutions, and all religions in social companionship. And what then? Why, the foundation would be gone, and ruin would be inevitable. By Protestant worship, by the Bible in our schools, and by humble recognition of our Lord Jesus Christ, this government was established, built up, and preserved through its awful baptism of blood. On no other condition could it have been made what it now is in its prosperity. Shall this government become irreligious? Look at the history of France and take warning. Shall it deny Jesus? Look at the Hebrew nation, and learn a lesson. Shall it become Romanist? Look at Spain and the dark ages. Shall it be thoroughly Protestant? Every government of such a kind has prospered. When this government ceases entirely to recognize Protestantism in its state institutions, its woe is the third and last. Then cometh its end.

Some one may say, All this is no matter to those looking for the Lord soon to come. Shall things be left to satan, because Jesus is coming soon? How soon is Jesus coming? Who can tell us? If he tarry a few years longer, shall we not be applauded by him for seeking to keep his name in prominence in the halls of legislation? Will he call us his friends, if we let his name be trampled upon by rulers, and make no remonstrance? And if he come to-morrow, will he not regard lovingly every effort to continue his religion till he comes? Adventists are as [illegible] We pray "Thy kingdom come;" let us, as we pray, and do all we can to save men from irreligion and damnation.

A TIME OF DANGER.

This is a time of great danger to all; but especially to us as a people. Our position now is a critical one—more so than ever before. A number of things contribute to make it so. 1. The continuing of the dispensation beyond the apparent time for its close, thus lessening the confidence of many in all efforts to understand the prophetic periods. 2. A strong worldly influence of a varied character, irresistible without the Holy Spirit's presence and power in the heart. 3. The many direct temptations of the adversary, presented suddenly, and often with a blinding fascination. 4. The low type of religion, and absence of true, vital godliness almost everywhere. There are other things that might be mentioned, which, with the above mentioned render now our condition most critical and dangerous.

As a people we have been blessed with great light. But if we now call this light darkness, then a darkness will surely come over us, and we shall not know whither we go. We stand by our faith; but our faith if denied will become void and of no value. A faith to be saving must be continually declared and carried out in life. Testimony and work must go in company; both the offsprings of faith.

Pressing on to the end is the only assurance of salvation and reward. The traveler must keep in mind his place of destination, and pursue his journey until he arrives there. If he halts and goes not on, he had better not have begun the journey. He loses what he has expended in time and means, with all the joy of reaching the place he started for. Can we, after coming thus far, think of halting and returning to our starting point?

The dangers on the way back are many more and greater than those ahead, great as these are. Back to Egypt is slavery and death. On to Canaan, rough though be the way, is rest and life. To deny the fitness of the way we have come, is to say God has led us wrong. If our experience in looking and waiting for redemption has not been approved of in heaven, then we may say we know not why, for many sinners have repented by the preaching of this gospel of the kingdom, and looked for redemption also.

But there are many dangers now: The danger of falling from our steadfastness; danger of drawing back unto perdition; danger of despising the way in which God has led us; danger of denying that his hand has brought us hither; danger of planning contrary to the plan of God; danger of being directed by our own wisdom instead of the Holy Spirit; danger of building up ourselves instead of exalting the grace of God and Christ. There are all these dangers, and more. There is the danger of grudging one against another; the danger of despising one of Christ's little ones; the danger of speaking lightly of one another; the danger of loving distinction, and having an ambition that is not heavenly, and in which the glory of God is not sought; the danger of desiring the uppermost seats, which desire Jesus does not commend; the danger of depending upon our knowledge of the Bible for a preparation to meet the Lord; the danger of listening to other voices than that of Christ.

Dangers wherever we may go;
But they who have the faithful Guide
Are kept from snares on every side.

EXPECTATION.

BY E. L. C.

"It doth not yet appear what we shall be; but we know that, when he shall appear, we shall be like him; for we shall see him as he is." 1 John 3: 2. O who can fathom the depths of comfort and consolation contained in this precious two-fold assurance of the final end of the Christian's hope? Sweeter than the notes of an Æolian harp its entrancing melody falls upon the ear, and cheers the heart of the weary watcher who earnestly longs for the coming of the dear absent One. But this is only one of the many promises upon which we rest our hope of seeing him,

"Whom absent we love,
Whom not having seen we adore."

Our belief is confirmed from the beginning to the end of the Scriptures by the testimony of "holy men of God who spake as they were moved by the Holy Ghost," but is most emphatically declared by the Saviour himself, and upon his words more than all the rest we love to dwell. Just previous to his passion to his dear disciples he said, "And ye now therefore have sorrow, but I will see you again, and your heart shall rejoice, and your joy no man taketh from you." John 16: 22. O how our hearts leap for joy, and how firmly we settle down upon his inviolable word that he will return to us! How often when our friends are about to leave us for a long time they seek to comfort us by telling us they will see us again; yet we cling to them tenderly and sorrowfully until the last moment, refusing to be consoled so deeply are we impressed with the sense of the uncertainty of mortal things.

But when Jesus says, "I will see you again," we doubt it not, for we know that "heaven and earth shall pass away, but his words shall not pass away." Firm as the everlasting hills they stand, "I will see you again." Unbelief cannot refute them. Skepticism and infidelity can neither overthrow nor undermine them, and all the powers of darkness combined are unable to prevent their fulfillment. The mighty Conqueror will come, "in the glory of his Father, with the holy angels." Matt. 16: 27. And "we shall see him, and be like him."

We cannot draw aside the veil that hides the invisible, and see what awaits us when "the morning dawns, and the shadows flee away." We can but faintly conceive the rapture of the joy that we anticipate in our Father's kingdom, nor imagine the manner and magnitude of the change we shall experience "in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye," "for now we see as through a glass darkly." 1 Cor. 13: 12. "And it doth not yet appear what we shall be, but we know that when he shall appear we shall be like him for we shall see him as he is;" not as he was, the weary, homeless wanderer of Nazareth and Bethany; not as he was, the smitten sufferer of Gethsemane and Calvary; but as he is, the risen, glorified and glorious Lord, for "as is the heavenly such are they also that are heavenly; as we have borne the image of the earthy, we shall also bear the image of the heavenly." 1 Cor. 15: 48, 49.

"We shall be like him." No more tumult by the law of sin warring in our members against the law of God; no more tears stealing down over whitened cheeks; no more broken hearts, or hearts estranged by cruel distrust, for "The smile of love shall ever linger, and no look be cold;" no more cheeks furrowed deep with sorrow and grief; no more bent forms and crippled limbs; no more darkened eyes and dull ears; no more succumbing to the resistless power of the last enemy, for we shall be like him, and share with him the endless life. Glorious emancipation from the bondage and thraldom of sin! Wonderful redemption from the penalty of the curse; small wonder that such a "blessed hope" and precious faith" has led men to wander in deserts, and in mountains, and dens, and caves of the earth, in sheepskins and goatskins, destitute, afflicted, tormented, to suffer cruel mockings, scourgings, bonds and imprisonment; to be tortured, stoned, and sawn asunder, that they might share its consummation in the glorious hereafter. In quiet green valleys, in the depths of old ocean, upon Alpine mountains, under Arctic snows, and 'neath the shade of tropical verdure, lies the dust of a part of the "great company which no man could number," whose last consciousness was the triumphs of the blessed hope of a better resurrection. And we which are alive and remain shall not prevent them which are asleep. We shall be caught up together with them in the clouds, to meet the Lord in the air. "We shall see him, and be like him."

"The day is near—O, joyful thought
When we shall gain the prize.
This hope will then be turned to sight
Before our wondering eyes."

THE TIME OF THE HARVEST.

BY S. S. BREWER.

With a careful study of the Holy Scriptures, there cannot remain a doubt in the mind as it regards the very near proximity of the great day of God's wrath. It appears to me that the present is what the Lord called "the time of the harvest." Anciently God called Nebuchadnezzar his servant to accomplish a determined purpose in the punishment of a rebellious people. Jer. 25: 9, and 27: 6.

God, who spake unto that people by his prophets, "hath in these last days spoken unto us by his Son" concerning certain agencies that are to be employed in "the time of the harvest" in gathering together the tares. Matt. 13: 30—"Let both grow together until the harvest; and in the time of harvest I will say to the reapers, Gather ye together first the tares, and bind them in bundles to burn them; but gather the wheat into my barn."

There are now a number of secret orders among the kingdoms of the world that are fulfilling, so far as their mission is concerned, the prediction of Rev. 16: 13, 14, in binding the tares for the burning day. O how awful and overwhelming the consideration! The long drawn shadows of this world's eventful history are now visible to the eye of faith.

Earth's morn and noon are over and past,
Its evening shadows gather fast,
Gloomy portents round us lower;
Satan has come down in power;
His legions compass all about;
For blood and ruin bold they shout;
Full of vengeance, hate and strife,
Indifferent to law and life;
Sword, fire and dynamite,
In which they seem to take delight.
In secret they conceive and plan,
Disregarding God and man.

O God, thine aid to me afford;
Help me to love and keep thy word.
For safety I have fled to thee;
In mercy, Lord, my refuge be;
And when this dread suspense shall end,
And thou in judgment shalt descend
To end the conflict and all strife,
And give thy saints eternal life,
In mercy, Lord, O let me stand
Amid the just at thy right hand.

THE only real and truly Christian way of purity, is to live in the open world and not be of it, and keep the soul unspotted from it. There are no fires that will melt out our drossy and corrupt particles like God's refining fires of duty and trial, living as he leads us to live, in the open field of the world's sin and sorrows, its plausibilities and lies, its persecutions, animosities and fears, its eager delights and bitter wants.—Bushnell.

CHRIST is the Christian's exemplar; therefore, he should be studied closely and constantly.

WORK WITH THE LORD.

BY I. C. WELLCOME.

Except the Lord build the house, they labor in vain that build it: except the Lord keep the city, the watchman waketh but in vain. Ps. 127: 1, 2.

There are two grand central ideas in this text, the work of God and man united in construction and defence. A house is to be built, a city is to be watched over and defended. It is probable that Daivd wrote this Psalm under inspiration and in view of the fact that his son Solomon was to build "the house of the Lord" at Jerusalem, and make that a city of renown—the capital of the nation of Israel. It was a solemn warning to Solomon that although God had chosen him, and revealed the fact, to build him an house and found a city for the benefit of the family of David, yet all his works would be worthless, and go for nothing, unless he worked with the Lord and followed the Lord's directions. It was truly a grand and noble work for Solomon to do as a servant of God, to construct and bring to completion such a building as the house of the Lord at Jerusalem. Its equal in architecture, in magnificence, in beauty, has never been seen in this world. David had conceived it, planned it and gathered the material, chiefly, for that purpose. In prophetic vision he saw its foundation laid, and its completion. And although not permitted to build it, he was fully informed by the Lord that his son should complete the work. This was probably honor enough for him. And was not David inspired to conceive and to plan the work and prepare the means with which to build it? We cannot doubt it. Please read an account of it in 2 Sam., in Kings, and Chron. David had an experience which fully taught him that the Lord must be at the head of every good work. And the Lord intended Solomon should be informed of this fact, hence the text, "Except the Lord build the house, they labor in vain that build it: except the Lord keep the city, the watchman waketh but in vain." Solomon must have had a glad heart as he watched the progress and saw the completion of that wonderful structure. It was the work of David his father, and of Solomon; yet it was the work of God. Solomon believed it, and when, as king and priest, he dedicated it to the service of the Lord, and asked God's blessing upon himself and the people, the Lord confirmed his faith, and that of the people, by sending fire from heaven to consume the sacrifices they had laid upon the altar. It was a glorious day for Solomon, an high day indeed for all the tribes of Israel. But they forgot the fact that the Lord built the house, and kept the city.

For a time the Lord was worshiped and honored. They had some good kings, but more bad than good ones. They trusted in their forms and ceremonies, sacrifices and wealth. They forgot God and worshiped idols. They prayed to God, but turned their back upon his words, and despised and killed his prophets. The good government of good kings, and restraining influences and intercessions of godly prophets kept back divine wrath for a while. But judgment came at length. Their watchman awoke, and carefully guarded their city, but God was not with them, they did not watch in the fear and fellowship of God, their watching was "in vain." Their city was taken by the Chaldeans, its walls battered down, its treasures pillaged, and "Solomon's temple," the most grand of all buildings, burned with fire, while Israel was led into a strange land captive, where in sadness and grief they hung their harps upon the willows by the streams of Babylon, too much afflicted to sing their wonted "songs of Zion."

Passing over some six hundred years of sorrow and slavery, we notice a Jewish patriot, a prayerful servant of a king. His thoughts recall the history and greatness of his nation in former days. He considers the present condition of Jerusalem, in ruins, of the graves of his fathers, the slavery of the Jews. With sickness of heart, and deep grief marring his countenance, he performs his daily service in waiting upon the king. (See Neh. 2.) The king takes notice of his sadness, and asks the cause. Nehemiah is afraid, but lifts his prayer to God for wisdom and help, and tells the king, in a straightforward, honest manner, just the cause of his affliction. And, strangely, the king at once espouses his cause, yields to his requests for help to rebuild and restore Jerusalem. What an undertaking for a slave. How preposterous to ask permission, and then assistance, of a heathen king. It was faith in God which kindled a flame in his patriotic heart, and enlisted him to work with God. He, with the God of Israel, could do it. He acted his faith. But few indeed had courage to go with him to inspect the ruins of Jerusalem, and begin mission work. Nehemiah took a journey to the cite of ancient Jerusalem.

What is the object of this man's presence here? they who were there might query. He did not at once tell them. In the hours and solitude of night, when all were in slumber, he rode up and down, round about the foot paths, obstructed streets, and fallen walls of that once renowned city. He kept silence until he meditated and examined the situation and knew what must be done. He then made use of his enthusiasm to awaken and enlist his kindred, his countrymen. He told the rulers, the priests, the nobles and Jews, what was in his heart. "Ye see the distress that we are in, how Jerusalem lieth waste, and the gates thereof are burned with fire; come, and let us build up the wall of Jerusalem, that we be no more a reproach. Then I told them of the hand of my God which was upon me: as also the king's words which he had spoken unto me. And they said let us rise up and build. So they strengthened their hands for this good work." So the city was rebuilt, and the temple was rebuilt, amid the laughter, scorning, and threatenings of Sanballat, Tobiah, Geshem and company; "for the people had a mind to work," and to work with God.

The nation was restored, and very many of the prophecies and promises which God had given through his prophets, and which many are expecting to be fulfilled in the future, were fulfilled in the return and prosperity of Israel. But they forgot to watch with God, and forgot that the temple with its adornings and priestly service, their land and king and nationality were but typical of a greater temple—tabernacle, priesthood, land and nation; were but "a shadow of good things to come." Forgetting this they ceased to work with God in his appointed ordinances, and ceased to watch with God, and their building and watching became vain. They made the house a place of merchandise. Their city and temple were taken by their enemies, the "army of God," and destroyed, and their nation utterly ruined, as a nation, forever." "The chief cornerstone, chosen of God," on which to build his "Holy Temple," "Spiritual House," "Royal Priesthood," a "holy nation," was "rejected by those builders." They "fell upon that stone and were broken."

And now, my brethren, are we ever mindful of this fact, "Except the Lord build the house, they labor in vain that build it: except the Lord keep the city, the watchman waketh but in vain." We claim to be the Lord's workmen and watchmen, and to have accepted "the foundation of the apostles and prophets," and of "Jesus Christ, which is the chief corner-stone." Are we "the habitation of God, through the Spirit?" Are we "workers together with God"? It is God who builds and protects. But he has chosen us as his "builders," and his "watchmen." Paul was "a wise masterbuilder." We are not all masters, but we may all be builders. Are we united in heart to do what the Lord bids? Do we believe he will be with us, and build and watch with us? Do we give willingly and liberally of our treasures, as they did in the days of David, and of Nehemiah? Have we "all a mind to work," and say from the heart, "Let us rise up and build?" It is a noble position to be allowed to work with God. The time we have to work now is short. The means we have, above what we need till Jesus comes, can be used to great advantage in the work of saving men. Shall it be used? Have we the straightforwardness and patriotic faith of Nehemiah? Can we say to the Sanballat's, Tobiah's and Geshem's, "I am doing a great work, so that I cannot come down"? Thus, and thus only, can we say when fully working with God to prepare a people for Christ's coming kingdom.

HAS JOHN 17: 5 BEEN PROPERLY TRANSLATED?

BY WM. HOBBS.

This question can be decided by the meaning of the following Greek words: "eichon pro tou ton kosmon einai para soi," which are the final words of the original of this verse. Eichon means "had"; pro means "before"; tou is the genitive of the neuter article "to," and means "of the"; ton is the article in the masculine accusative, and means "the"; kosmon is of the same case as its article ton, and means "world"; einai is the infinitive mode, present tense of eimi, am, and means "to be", para, followed by a dative, means "with", soi is the dative of su, and means "to thee."

With these definitions one can understand the following extract of a criticism on this passage by one of the American revisers of the New Testament. Writing against making einai govern the final words para soi, he says, "Ton kosmon cannot be governed by pro, which governs only the genitive, but that it is the subject of einai, and that tou, the genitive of the neuter article 'to,' agrees with einai as a verbal noun. In such a connection the time expressed by einai depends on the principal verb of the sentence."—Ezra Abbot.

Now, since ton kosmon, "the world," is here declared to be the subject of einai, "to be," and tou, "of the," agrees with einai as a verbal noun, pro tou ton kosmon einai means "before of the, the world to be," and is so translated in the interlinear version of the Emphatic Diaglott. But the time expressed by einai is to be determined by the principal verb of the sentence. Well, the principal verb of this verse is doxason, "glorify": "And now glorify me, thou Father, with thyself." This request to be glorified includes an eternal future glory, and so the words that follow—"with the glory which had, before of the, the world to be, with thee"—relate to the future, instead of "before the world was."

The pronoun "I," ego, is not in the original, only as implied. But to emphasize this pronoun in connection with "had," and to change the tense of einai from the present to the past tense, "was," is overdoing it, to say the least. But it may be asked, how he had glory with the Father before of the world to be? This is to be determined somewhat by the personality of him who prayed. "He is the Son of man," and as such he was the Son of God; consequently he had an inherent and predestined right to that future glory for which he prayed, and together with his disciples had a foretaste of the glory of the world to be on the mount of transfiguration. Being a sinless being, and thus intimately associated with the Father, he shared in his glory "before of the world to be" all his lifetime upon earth, and more so when he arose immortal from the dead. But how could he have had glory with the Father before the world was, when his whole humanity is excluded therefrom?

WHEN God intends to fill a soul, he first makes it empty; when he intends to enrich a soul, he first makes it poor; when he intends to exalt a soul, he first makes it humble; when he intends to save a soul, he first makes it sensible of its own miseries, wants, and nothingness.

In Bro. Grant's article in the last Crisis he was made to say that he had been to France, and held meetings there. This was a mistake. Bro. Grant may visit France before he returns to this country, but as yet he has not left England. Where his article was made to read France, it should read Frome.—ED.

OUR PUBLICATIONS.

Of the Crisis it would not become the Editor to speak, further than to say that it is still our earnest purpose to make the paper as interesting, instructive and useful as we possibly can; and to maintain, as far as is consistent with the highest interests of the great cause to which it is devoted, unity and harmony among our great body of writers and readers.

If our correspondents, who sometimes feel hurt because their articles do not appear, could spend one week in the office with us and note the different views and arguments which come to our table, they would be convinced that the long established RULE of disallowing controversy in the Crisis is not only a wise, but also a necessary provision. But our writers are, with few exceptions, very patient and of a very considerate and kind spirit; manifestly desiring the good of the cause more than the prominence of their own peculiar views. They deserve and receive our sincere thanks.

But we desire especially to call attention to our Sunday School literature.

Not forgetting the success which has attended the Young Pilgrim in past years, we may safely say that the children's paper and the Blessed Hope Quarterly are at the present time giving especial satisfaction. The Blessed Hope Quarterly is a great favorite with our Sunday Schools and Bible classes. Bro. Burr, its Editor, is putting into it much care, study and ability. These publications are not only popular with our own people, but they are sought after, to some extent, by other denominations.

The Young Pilgrim and Blessed Hope Quarterly deserve a much more liberal patronage than they are receiving. They ought to be made self-sustaining, without delay.

The opening spring is an opportune time for increased zeal and activity in Sunday School work. We hope the many friends of this divinely originated institution will rally at once, and send to our publishing Agent a host of new subscribers for the Young Pilgrim and Blessed Hope Quarterly.

In the brief time allotted us for work, before the Master shall call us from labor to rest, let us do our uttermost to spread the voice and influence of all our publications. They are all needed. Each has its realm of usefulness—the Crisis, the Foreign Journal of Prophecy, the Blessed Hope Quarterly and the Young Pilgrim. Until the latest moment let us make the most of all our resources. While the great God is prophetically marching on towards the "great day of his wrath," let his people be incessant in their efforts to emphasize his word, and save lost men.

OUR FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.

We are sure that our readers will agree with us that our foreign correspondence is not only an added and fresh element in our family paper, but a very interesting feature.

Bro. Grant's weekly letters from London are decidedly readable and instructive, not only giving the details of his own work, but also containing much historic and current information. No one can afford to miss reading them. These letters may be weekly expected while Bro. Grant remains abroad.

Added to this Bro. Silas Henn has kindly encouraged us to expect frequent, we trust weekly, contributions from his able pen. Bro. Henn's productions have been often reprinted in the Crisis and read with special pleasure and profit, particularly by our ministers. We hope he will be a regular correspondent.

And our foreign missionary correspondence, furnished us by Bro. H. H. Tucker, corresponding Secretary of our Foreign Mission Board, and by Bro. I. C. Wellcome and others, is of great interest and importance. These foreign letters, directly from the dark lands, should be read and circulated as a grand inspiration to increased zeal in the sublime work of sending the gospel of the soon coming kingdom to foreign and heathen countries.

This new feature of foreign correspondence ought to induce our friends to make a special effort to increase the circulation of the Crisis. As God opens the way, let us not fail to send forth the light and the truth.

FROM MANY LANDS.

ENGLAND.

The eyes of the world are just now on the Queen's government. It is seldom that any nation is environed with so many serious difficulties at the same time as now threaten the English throne. Scarcely had Mr. Gladstone so narrowly escaped the proposed vote of censure on his Egyptian policy, when new and, perhaps, more troublesome complications arose out of Russia's menacing movement in Central Asia.

Russia's ambition is to absorb Afghanistan, which would furnish a needed outlet for her extended Asiatic possessions, and give her the coveted key to India. But England cannot afford to have Russia for a too near neighbor. The simple question in dispute is: Shall Russian territory be allowed to border on English territory in Central Asia?

Will England and Russia fight? is a question which time alone can determine. From present aspects we might look for an early and bloody encounter of these two great powers. But back of appearances lie many reasons why Russia may hesitate to precipitate an appeal to arms at the present time.

But the old maxim—"Whom the gods destroy they first make mad"—is not yet obsolete. And in these ends of the world, when the "nations are angry," all predictions of prudence may fail, and great governments may rush to arms suddenly, and on very slight pretexts.

One thing is certain: if England and Russia should appeal to the arbitrament of the sword, great European complications could not fail to follow.

The very latest advices are to the effect that England and Russia have come to an agreement as to the Afghan-Turkoman boundary, which ensures peace between those two countries for the present. So Christ's words come true: "There shall be wars and rumors of wars."

Meantime England is suffering still further defeat and humiliation in the Soudan. And another vote of censure is likely to be moved in Parliament.

But later reports say that the British have won a great victory over Osman Digna's forces in a five hours' battle near Hasheen. If this prove true it will change the current of feeling in London.

IRELAND

has smoothed her ruffled feathers and will receive the Prince and Princess of Wales at Limerick with, at least, official cordiality.

EL MAHDI

is reported in the London papers as rapidly losing power, several dervishes having denounced him as an impostor. But the latest news of the engagement at Hasheen will hardly bear out this report. We have no doubt that El Mahdi is ONE of the false Christs predicted in the Word of God. But we doubt if his career is likely to end just yet. He may be in the field at the head of his Arab hordes when the true Christ shall come to destroy all his enemies, and set up HIS universal kingdom of righteousness and peace.

And so the lines of prophecy in history converge. The focal point must soon be touched. The END must be near. Let us awake and watch, for we know not what a single day may bring forth. The night is far—very far—spent. The day is at hand.

"Then shall wars and tumults cease,
Then be banished grief and pain."

All hail the dawning of the endless day!

THE TABERNACLE WORSHIP.

The arrangement under the Levitical law was of divine appointment, and the apostle Paul pronounces it a "shadow of good things to come;" that is, the past arrangement foreshadowed a then future arrangement. That we may properly comprehend what is signified by the shadow, we shall do well to examine its fundamental features. God said to Moses concerning the erection of the tabernacle: "And let them make me a sanctuary, that I may dwell among them. According to all that I show thee, after the pattern of the tabernacle . . . even so shall ye make it." Ex. 25: 8, 9. Directions were then given to make two departments in the tabernacle, with a door of entrance on the east, the first department being called the Holy place, or sanctuary, this department containing the altar of incense, the altar of burnt offering, the candlestick with its lamps, and the table with its shew-bread; the second department being called the Most Holy place, containing the mercy seat, the ark of the covenant, with the Book of the law in the side of the ark (Deut. 31: 26), and the tables of the covenant within its interior, with the golden pot that had manna, Aaron's rod that budded, and the overshadowing cherubim. Between these two departments was a vail. From an outside standpoint there were two vails—one leading into the holy place, and one out of the holy place into the Most Holy; but from a stand point within the tabernacle, only one vail was counted—so that to be "without the vail" where the lamps were kept burning, was to be in the first department; but to be "within the vail" where the mercy seat was kept, was to be in the Most Holy place.

Paul thus speaks of this arrangement: "The first covenant had also ordinances of divine service, and a worldly sanctuary. For there was a tabernacle made, the first [part] wherein was the candlestick, and the table, and the shew-bread; which [first part] is called the sanctuary. And after the second vail, the [part of the] tabernacle which is called the holiest of all; which had the golden censer, and the ark of the covenant overlaid round about with gold, wherein was the golden pot that had manna, and Aaron's rod that budded, and the tables of the covenant; and over it the cherubim of glory shadowing the mercy seat . . . Now when these things were thus ordained, the [minor] priests went always into the first tabernacle, accomplishing the service of God. But into the second went the High Priest alone once every year, not without blood." Heb. 9: 1–7. The Lord said to Moses: "Thou shalt make a vail of blue. . . And thou shalt hang up the vail under the taches, that thou mayest bring in thither within the vail the ark of the testimony: and the vail shall divide unto you between the holy place and the most holy. And thou shalt put the mercy seat upon the ark of the testimony in the most holy place. And thou shalt set the table without the vail, and the candlestick over against the table." Ex. 26: 31–35. Here observe that "within the vail" means the most holy place, and "without" the vail the holy place, the blue vail separating the two places.

In the antitype Christ is our High Priest, giving us a hope that "entereth to that within the vail; whither the forerunner [the first to enter] is for us entered, even Jesus, made a High Priest." Heb. 6: 19, 20. Over 1800 years ago Jesus went within the vail" where the mercy seat is, which is the Holy of Holies. And now we "have boldness to enter into the holiest by the blood of Jesus." Heb. 10: 19. The "mercy seat" was never in the first department called the holy place, or the sanctuary; but always in the second department, or Holy of Holies, "within the vail;" and Christ went into the antitype of this very place at his ascension. The holy place to which he then went, instead of being the sanctuary, was rather that Holy place to which the High Priest was admitted once every year, as shown by the following testimony: "But Christ being come a High Priest of good things to come, by a greater and more perfect tabernacle, not made with hands, that is to say, not of this building; neither by the blood of goats and calves, but by his own blood he entered in once into the holy place. . . For Christ is not entered into the holy places made with hands, which are the figures of the true; but into heaven itself, now to appear in the presence of God for us; nor yet that he should offer himself often, as the High Priest entered into the holy place every year." Heb. 9: 11, 12, 24, 25. The particular holy place here mentioned is the one to which the High Priest went yearly in the type,—not the sanctuary, but the Holy of Holies, which is sometimes called the "holy place" both in the Old and New Testaments, as well as the most holy.

If "heaven itself," instead of one department of heaven, is the Holy of Holies, what is meant by the holy place called the sanctuary? If it does not typify one department of heaven, what is its antitype? That it cannot typify heaven is evident from various reasons: 1. This department contained the "altar" where the sacrifices were offered, and the victims were slain by its side "at the door of the tabernacle;" but Christ was not slain in heaven in the antitype. 2. This department was the place where the minor priests officiated daily; but no such priests officiate in heaven as an antitype.

3. This department contained the sevenfold "candlestick," and the table of shew-bread, which things find no antitype in heaven.

4. This department is said to be "without the vail," while Christ is expressly said to have gone "within the vail." Where, then, is the antitype of the sanctuary? It is certainly where the antitypical lamb was slain, and where antitypical minor priests can officiate daily. In the type it is expressly called a "worldly sanctuary;" so in the antitype, in some sense, we must look for an antitypical "worldly sanctuary"—not in the sense of being of the world, but in the world. Christ said to his disciples, "I have chosen you out of the world"—out of carnality—and yet they were still on earth; so, on this principle, it is possible to have an antitypical worldly sanctuary without having it carnal—a sanctuary in the world, but not of the world.

On earth, as well as in heaven, there is a holy place in gospel experience, where is applied "the blood of sprinkling;" and "we have an altar, whereof they have no right to eat which serve the (typical) tabernacle" (Heb. 13: 12), being "of the household of God, and are built upon the foundation of the apostles and prophets, Jesus Christ himself being the chief corner stone, in whom all the building fitly framed together, groweth unto a holy temple in the Lord; in whom ye also are builded together for a habitation of God through the spirit." Eph. 2: 20–22. In the same line of thought, Peter affirms that we "are built up a spiritual house, a holy priesthood, to offer up spiritual sacrifices, acceptable to God by Jesus Christ . . . a chosen generation, a royal priesthood." 1 Pet. 2: 5, 9. Here we have in the antitype a "spiritual house," "an altar," a "priesthood," and "spiritual sacrifices," all on earth," and not in heaven. In keeping with this thought Paul says: "By him therefore let us offer the sacrifice of praise to God continually, that is, the fruit of our lips, giving thanks to his name. But to do good and to communicate forget not: for with such sacrifices God is well pleased" (Heb. 13: 15, 16), and thus we "sit together in heavenly places," even on earth. We are the antitypical minor priests, offering up "spiritual sacrifices;" we "have an altar;" individually we are priests, but in the aggregate we are a "spiritual house" for this sacrificial worship—thus the gospel arrangement furnishes the antitype of the old tabernacle arrangement, with its two departments, a holy department on earth where the minor priests officiate, and a most holy department above where Jesus our High Priest officiates, the two departments being separated by the curtains of blue sky. The furniture of the "worldly sanctuary" typified nothing in heaven above, but foreshadowed events in the church on earth. The golden candlestick in seven branches, is thus explained by the Revelator: "The seven candlesticks which thou sawest are the seven churches." Rev. 1: 20. And surely there are not seven churches in one department of heaven to be typified. Nor can the table and shew-bread be a type of anything in heaven, but rather relates to the church on earth.

When the claim is made that the furniture of the Holy of Holies, including the "tables of the covenant," shows that there are real tables in heaven with the engraven commandment to keep the seventh day Sabbath, with other real articles described in the type, the type and the antitype is thereby confounded, by making each thing typify itself, instead of foreshadowing something else; but if this principle were allowed, it would as really take into heaven the Book of Moses that was placed in the side of the Ark, with its ceremonies and sacrifices, making too much proof. But the "sanctuary" which Daniel saw in vision, with its host of sacrificial worshippers, and against the Prince of which host he saw the Roman horn magnify itself, and finally take away "the daily sacrifice," and cast down the "place of his sanctuary" [the temple], was not the sanctuary of the antitype, but of the type. It was not the sanctuary of the antitype, for its "spiritual sacrifice" has never been taken away, nor can it be by human power; neither can the place of that sanctuary be cast down by force of arms. The legal arm cannot touch it. Shut the worshippers up in prison, and their spiritual sacrifice is being offered still. Persecution cannot even produce an abatement in true heart worship. Even if the antitypical sanctuary were meant, it would not place the treading down and cleansing work in heaven, as some have insisted, but rather on the earth, where the antitypical minor priests are offering up "spiritual sacrifices," in the very place of the candlesticks, or churches, which are not in heaven. The typical sacrifice which should have ended at the cross, did not end till the Roman prince came against Jerusalem with his army, and caused it to "cease" by military force; and since then, the sanctuary (being a component part of Jerusalem) has been "trodden down of the Gentiles," and will be till the cleansing day comes, and God shall "beautify the place of his sanctuary," and remove the curse from all the earth.

But what means the purification of "the heavenly things?" Under the law all inanimate things received purification simply as an act of dedication, and not in the sense of removing sin. Paul thus speaks: "Neither the first testament was dedicated [purified, margin] without blood . . . It was therefore necessary that the patterns of things in the heavens should be purified [dedicated] with these [sacrifices], but the heavenly things themselves with better sacrifices than these." Heb. 9: 18, 23. In the type, not only was the furniture of the sanctuary "sprinkled" with blood as an act of dedication, but likewise that of the Most Holy Place: "And he shall take of the blood of the bullock, and sprinkle it with his finger upon the mercy seat. . . . Then shall he kill the goat of the sin offering, that is for the people, and bring his blood within the vail, and do with that blood as he did with the blood of the bullock, and sprinkle it upon the mercy seat." Ex. 16: 14, 15.

The mercy seat was in the Most Holy Place, and not in the sanctuary, but received the sprinkling of blood. So Christ with his own blood entered heaven, and thus dedicated the "heavenly things" in the Holy of Holies, while the "blood of sprinkling" is also applied by faith in the department below, where the minor priests are offering up "spiritual sacrifices." This purification took place when Jesus entered heaven, "within the vail." There are no departments to heaven. Our High Priest will soon lift the blue vail, and come back to the then purified sanctuary, and to his immortalized people. W. S.

MISSIONARY DOCUMENTS.

We have now important reading matter that might be made more extensively to do missionary work outside of our own ranks, both in the periodical and tract line. A good work is already being thus accomplished, but it can be, and ought to be augmented. The Crisis might be made a more potent auxiliary. If we should once a month prepare a copy with special reference to making it a missionay document (by simply omitting in that number items of a local nature, and themes that we are not all agreed upon in our own ranks) it might fill a place that tracts do not reach; and I doubt not our Crisis officers would be glad to act upon this suggestion, provided large orders for extra copies should be timely sent in, the papers for this purpose being furnished to all distributors at low figures. I make this suggestion for your consideration. Perhaps it may be so well seconded as to warrant action in the line proposed.

One thing is certain, our literature ought to be more widely circulated among outsiders, including books, tracts, and papers. We have already inaugurated the incipient stage of a wide revolution in public thought, in spite of all efforts to conceal the fact; and we should be ashamed to get discouraged now, and begin to be lax in our efforts. Instead of this, it is about time to make a charge. Every man to his post all along the line. W. S.

NEVADA, OHIO.

Bro. Stockman:—The Advent Church at this place is now destitute of a pastor, Eld. Hobbs having left for Minneapolis, Minn. This church is the strongest one in the town, and has the best people of the town among its membership, in the opinion of some outsiders, as some of them told me when I was there last week. They have sustained a pastor for many years, some sixteen or more. Eld. E. McCulloch was then pastor some eleven or twelve years, I think; and for "a flying message" that is unusual. Eld McCulloch is very much beloved, as is also Eld. Hobbs. There seems to be a general desire among members of the church, and also those who are friendly to them, for Eld. McCulloch to return there, and stay till the Lord comes, which will not be very long, we hope.

They own a house with seating capacity of three or four hundred, a working church, and a good Sabbath School. The school has it regular session each Sabbath, when there is no preaching. I really hope that Eld. McCulloch, or some good capable pastor, will be secured before the enemy succeeds in scattering that precious flock of the Lord. C. P. WHITTEN.

REQUEST.

Bro. Stockman:—I wish through your paper to request prayers for my poor suffering husband; also, that you will have the church in Boston, which we love so much and have often met with in the past, make his case a specialty. We believe much in prayer, and he has faith that if some of the Elders would come to his house and anoint him in the name of the Lord, he would be raised up; otherwise we fear that the enemy death will claim him as his victim. He is a great sufferer, not being able to lie in bed. I do hope that some of the brethren will feel it a duty to visit him at his home very soon, that the work of the Lord may not be hindered. A SENSATIONAL SERMON.

CHICAGO, March 16.—The Rt. Rev. Bishop Samuel Fallows, of this city, preaching in the St. Paul's Reformed Episcopal Church here last night upon the "Signs of the Times," made some unusual statements. He said it was a remarkable fact that the great mass of intelligent, far-seeing business men, politicians and worldly-wise people generally, could not, or would not, read the signs of the times in their bearing upon that far more important matter, the second coming of Christ. A great many of the important events which have happened in modern times were foretold, the speaker thought, centuries ago, and were foreseen then by the students of the signs of the times. He believed the events of to-day were as pregnant of indications as those of 1,800 years ago. The present condition of Egypt was, to the preacher, a sign and an evidence of the coming fulfillment of the prophecy that Egypt would be ruled by the Jews. He considered the domination of England equivalent to that, as it would be a control in the interests of the Jewish bondholders. Earthquakes, pestilences and famines were prophesied as signs to be seen before the advent of Christ. The earthquakes in Italy, the approaching cholera pestilence and the famines which have prevailed in Asia were the signs to meet these prophecies. It had been prophesied that iniquity would abound, and the Bishop thought the full measure of this prophecy had been fulfilled.—Selected.

RESIGNATION.

About seven years ago we assisted in the organization of the Second Advent Christian Church in Boston, Mass., and from that time to this we have served them, more or less; and for the last two years we have had the pastoral charge of the church, and have preached for them constantly.

Our editorial work and responsibility constantly increasing, we are satisfied that it would be imprudent for us to longer continue the amount of labor and care now upon our hands; and so we have resigned the pastorate of the Boston church.

The church is united, strong, and in excellent spiritual condition. The membership numbers, we believe, about a hundred and twenty-five. A more important and interesting field for Advent preaching and pastoral labor is not within our knowledge. A better and more efficient company of workers we have never seen.

We part from them in confidence and love, and with thronging memories of the most tender, and sacred character, and in full assurance of looking into their faces and clasping their hands in the land of ceaseless song and deathless friendships.

May the blessing of God, and the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, abound unto the church and people of the Second Advent congregation in Boston.

NOTES.

We have received forty new subscribers for the Crisis this week. We call upon all that are interested in the truths published from week to week in the Crisis, to unite in an effort to increase our list one hundred or more per week. As a people we are not awake to the important work God has given us to accomplish through the press. Our efforts are often circumscribed to our locality or church, whereas we ought to send the message of "Life through Christ" to every family in the land, through missionaries, tracts, books and papers. Many are satisfied to simply supply their own wants as to reading matter, and many neglect even that for the want of interest. We need more interest in the work of publishing and sending the truth to the lost. A writer of some note in England writes that if the object of publishing the doctrines we hold was properly set before the people, a list of hundreds of thousands of subscribers for a paper could be obtained.

Each new subscriber added to our list adds to our means to increase our work. Say, beloved brethren and sisters, shall we make an aggressive move in this direction?

We have commenced to send out weekly about three hundred copies of the Crisis to those who do not take the paper, through our "Dime Mission Fund," trusting in the Lord and his stewards to supply the necessary means. We shall increase the number of papers according to means. We have the names of about twenty thousand persons to whom we intend to send sample copies of the Crisis and Quarterly Journal of Prophecy. Give us your prayers and means. H.

TRACTS AND BOOKS.

Our new books are appreciated by those who have secured copies, and highly spoken of by many clergymen of different denominations, to whom copies have been sent by some friend who desired to let them know what we believe, and why we are a separate people. The doctrine of immortality through Christ alone is gaining ground in the different denominations. We as a people, who bore the burden and heat of the day in the front ranks, ought not to slacken our hand now, just at the point of a glorious victory.

Formerly we accomplished much through our publications. The door is open for more of the same kind of work. We here give an extract from a private letter, showing what can be accomplished with one tract:

"I owe my present faith in God's Word, and the cheering hope of immortality and eternal life when the Lifegiver comes, to a TRACT thrown off a steamboat a number of years ago and picked up by father J. C. and companion, who were brought out into the light of the doctrine of the Bible, God's definition of soul, and the question of life and death as taught in his Holy Word, the coming of his Son from heaven, and kindred doctrines, resulting in the organization of a church in ——, amid much bitter persecution. A goodly number have seen and enjoyed the truth as they never realized before. Therefore I am interested in the tract cause." H.

HADES.

DEAR BRO.:—I have just finished reading "Hades." I consider it a very candid, able and scholarly production. I wish it might be read by every minister on this continent. I hope it may have a very wide circulation.

THE beauty of holiness is a beauty that never fades. There is no decay from time, no deformity from over-strain, and no loss of form or bloom from the burden and heat of the day. And it hath not yet attained, neither is already perfect. It doth not yet appear what it shall be. But it daily gravitates toward the great white light that is round the throne of God.—Sel.

ENGLAND AND RUSSIA.

Will the two great empires of England and Russia be thrown into war by the present causes of alarm? Human foresight and knowledge is too imperfect to answer the question. There is no particularly new question of strife between them. The originating cause of this difficulty is found in the "Eastern Question" the substance of which is this: Who shall take possession of the Sultan's dominions when he shall be dethroned at Constantinople?

When the Moslems took Constantinople in 1453, A. D., it was considered by all Christendom a wicked and unauthorized intrusion upon the territory and rights of Christianity. All Christian nations, from that day, felt that it would be a righteous act to hurl the intruder from his throne, and wrench from his bloody hands the conquered Christian countries.

Two hundred years after the desecration of the altar of St. Sophia, the Grand Turk agreed on a war of conquest with the Christian nations, until the battle of Vienna, when the great Polish general drove the Moslems to the wall, from which defeat they have never recovered. From that time the Turkish government commenced to decline, and the Christian nations began to contemplate driving the Moslems out of Europe and taking possession of their dominions.

When the Turks took Constantinople they slew every heir to the throne of the Greek Empire except Sophia, who was, in 1472, married to Ivan II. of Russia, thus, according to the law of "the divine right of kings" investing the Russian Court with the sovereignty of Constantinople and the great "water way." From that day to the present Russia has been seeking an opportunity to take possession of what she claims to be her legal inheritance.

When Peter the Great saw death approaching he made his memorable will, in which he virtually bequeathed to his successors in the imperial office the right and power to drive the Moslems out of Europe and take possession of their dominions. Russia has engaged since that time in at least seven bloody wars for the ostensible purpose of taking possession of Constantinople and opening to her fleets a free passage to the Mediterranean.

To this arrangement the other Christian nations have never given their consent. Out of this disagreement of the Great Powers have resulted directly or indirectly the principal wars of Europe for more than a century. The Christians have all agreed that it is not wise nor just that the Moslem religion should longer hold under the scepter of its tyranny the countries once devoted to the liberty and blessings of the gospel. But the great difficulty in settling this question has been that the nations will not consent to let any one nation come into possession of the dominions taken from the last Greek emperor.

Napoleon undertook, during the closing days of the eighteenth century to seat himself by the coveted waters of the "Golden Horn," but Russia and England assisted the Sultan in stopping his victorious march eastward, and he retired from that field. He afterward attempted to negotiate with the Czar, to divide the Sultan's possessions between them, but Alexander would not yield the claim that Peter had willed the nation.

Omitting several wars waged by Russia for the same purpose, we come to the Crimean war, where the same objects and difficulties were experienced. This time England and France disputed the right of Russia to the coveted spoils. After that came the last Russo-Turkish war, and as the Cossack was in the act of triumphantly entering the long-sought city, England said imperiously If you advance another step you shall be made to realize the deadly power of my navy. The Cossack then stood by the waters where the guns on those decks could reach him. He quailed, halted and retired. But a deadly hatred burned in his heart and in the heart of his mighty empire. The nation immediately arranged a new program, by which they were determined that in the next movement they would draw England to a place where she could not bring her naval guns to rain missiles of death upon the columns of her great army. Russia had relatively a small navy, which could not withstand the English navy, but she had an army much superior to the English army.

The new program was to construct a military road through Central Asia from the borders of the Russian empire to the borders of Victoria's Indian empire. By this plan the Czar knew that he could compel England to send a land force to meet his army in the field. Russia has for twenty years been quietly but steadily progressing in executing this expensive and masterly plan. She has prepared a water-way over rivers, lakes and seas, as far as practicable, and where she had no water to utilize, for that purpose she has built Rail Roads, and with these she has already reached the borders of Afghanistan, a government under the protectorate of England. This actually brings the Lion and Bear face to face, and at a point where, if they fight, it must be a land force against a land force, and where no naval power can decide the victory.

Since the commencement of England's embarrassment in Ireland and Egypt, Russia has hastened the completion of her road, its fortifications, the forwarding of military stores and the concentration of troops, with all possible haste. Mr. Villard, the late President of the Northern Pacific R. R., is now employed to push the Rail Road through from Merve to Herat, for the transportation of troops, with all possible speed. Russia has also ordered to be delivered immediately 200 of the heaviest Krupp guns, to be mounted on the fortifications of this road. Detachments of Russian troops are being taken from many military stations on this entire line, under order to hasten to the front near Herat. The advance column is now (March 13th) at Pal-i-Khatan.

England has for some time anticipated Russia's movements, and has challenged every advance, demanding an explanation of her ultimate designs. England has feared this movement, and has commenced the building of a Rail Road from Quettah to Herat, called "Quettah-Herat Road." It was designed as a military road, and is now being completed with the greatest possible dispatch. Neither England nor Russia are quite prepared, as far as these roads are concerned, for an immediate collision. Each desires a delay of the final war which they understand must come.

To suppose that this war-making Eastern Question can be permanently settled by a patched-up peace between two contending nations is as vain as to suppose that pouring a barrel of oil upon the Atlantic Ocean would prevent all future storms. Such a peace relating to that question has been established more than a score of times within the last two hundred years, and yet it is becoming more difficult to adjust at each recurring effort. The present winds may possibly be held a little longer, as they have been in the past, but there has never been a time when so many formidable circumstances were combined to forbid it. Many of these threatening events we cannot present in this article, but we hope to be able to give more of them in the future.

LETTER FROM BURMAH.

NOTE.—We here find fruits of tract distribution. We hope our friends will keep us supplied with funds to push this work into new fields. We are receiving encouraging reports from Belfast, Ireland, Sweden, Italy and India. J. H.

BRITISH BURMAH, FEB. 2, 1885.

Dear Brother:—Feeling sure that the readers of the Crisis would be pleased to hear how the truth of life only through Christ is penetrating this part of the world, I beg to give you an account of the circumstances which led me to see these truths clearly.

About a year and a half ago a correspondence on the subject of baptism and Christ's second coming sprang up between a faithful Christian brother and myself, this brother (I refer to Mr. J. Spence of Perambore, Madras,) sent me a selection of tracts and papers treating on the doctrine of conditional immortality, the reading of which so shocked me that I consigned the whole lot to the flames, honestly believing that the teaching was from satan himself. I had always been taught the doctrine of the immortality of the soul, and its necessary sequel eternal misery, etc., and I had never seen anything teaching different, although I confess I never could see either the justice or utility of it except as an instrument of terror in the hands of priests, preachers and teachers generally; still I believed it was taught in God's Word, and accepted and taught it myself. I wrote to Bro. Spence telling him that I believed the tracts he had sent me were of the devil, and the teaching devilish, informing him that I had burnt them, as I considered them unfit to be read. I also undertook to give him a bit of advice to mend his way, etc. Bro. Spence wrote kindly in reply, expressing his grief at my precipitancy; and at that, as a matter of course, our correspondence dropped.

But the seed of truth was sown. I soon began to reason thus: Eternal torment is true, or it is a horrible falsehood; which is it? I searched the Scriptures, if not daily, frequently, to see "whether these things were so," noting every passage referring to the future state. Months passed on, and I commenced to find that the burden of the Scriptures pointed as distinct as finger-posts to "death" on the one hand, signified under different terms, but still illustrating emphatically "death"; and on the other hand "life." The few passages which I had supposed to support the idea of endless pain as the punishment of the wicked now seemed most unsatisfactory, and almost without knowing it I became a believer in Conditional Immortality. My search for truth had extended over a year; light came gradually, and as the old mists of traditional teaching rolled away a sweet, trustful peace filled my soul, and now I can joyfully exclaim, "I know whom I have believed, and am persuaded that he is able to [and will] keep that which I have committed unto him against that day."

I scarcely need say that Bro. Spence's forgiveness for my uncourteous behavior was soon sought and obtained. He is now helping me with books, etc., which by God's grace I am enabled to scatter far and wide, and which have already been the means of leading several into the light, while others are looking at the words "life" and "death" in their natural light, and will in time understand that when God speaks he means what he says. Christians seem ripe to cast off traditional teaching and take to searching the Scriptures. Not very long ago in our meetings for prayer such expressions as "never-dying soul" and "immortal soul" were often openly used, but now they are carefully guarded against, showing that the old dogma is practically disbelieved.

A copy of Bro. Pettingell's work, "The Unspeakable Gift," with a number of tracts have gone into the hands of some young missionaries working among the wild Karen tribes on the frontiers of Upper and British Burmah, and will I believe be used of God in the faithful proclamation of life and light to the many thousands now "sitting in darkness and in the shadow of death."

Last, but not least, one to whom this truth has been presented has had his eyes opened and has fled "from the wrath to come" and laid hold of "the gift of God . . . eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord." In writing of his change of heart and opinions he says: "On the whole, Christianity appears to me now much more simple than it was formerly." I may remark here that the doctrines of life only in, and the advent of, Christ run together like water.

Toungoo, British Burmah. W. Wood.

REPORT OF CENTRAL ILL. A. C. CONFERENCE EVANGELIST.

Since Dec. 22, 1884, to March 5, 1885, have preached fifty-six times, as follows: McKeen and vicinity, twenty-three times; Spatts' school-house, Clark County, seven times; Marley, M. E. Church, seven times; Nevins, Baptist and Christian Churches, Edgar Co., ten times; Dennison, Clark Co., four times; Jewett, Cumberland Co., five times. Have baptized six, and fourteen have been added to the church. Have obtained four subscribers to the Crisis; sold six "Jubilee Harp"; six "Our Hope"; two "Hades"; three "Gospel in Song," and one "Life of Munger." Have distributed fifteen hundred pages of tracts, and thirty copies of Quarterly Journal of Prophecy. Have traveled some eight hundred miles, at an expense of $14.13, and received $20.75, leaving a balance in my favor of $6.62, for which I am thankful.

In connection with this report I wish to say that the great dispensational truths of the gospel have taken deep root in the hearts of the people, in the various places where preached, and nearly all have embraced it—many pracically, the others theoretically; so that other denominations have given them up to hardness of heart and blindness of mind. There are open doors for us in all directions in that section; and if the dear Master, through some of his beloved people, furnishes us sufficient aid, we shall continue our work in that section. The Lord direct in all things.

Marshall McCulloch, Conf. Evang.
North Henderson, Mercer Co., Ill.

DIME MISSION FUND.

☞ We purpose to send TWENTY THOUSAND COPIES of the World's Crisis and Quarterly Journal of Prophecy to the address of those who are favorable to the truths we advocate. This will involve quite an additional expense for publishing and postage. To meet this we open a DIME SUBSCRIPTION LIST, and invite the readers of the Crisis to send a dime each. We believe that much good may be accomplished in this way. We shall not object to more than one dime, but shall give credit in dimes. We wait for response. Just as soon as we receive funds, we shall commence sending out papers. Let us wake up to the work. Agent.

NEW BOOKS.

It is with pleasure we present to the Christian public our new publications, in which the reasons of our faith are presented in a candid and logical manner, and with such a vast amount of scriptural testimony that the books must command the respect of all candid thinkers and Bible students.

"OUR HOPE," OR, WHY ARE WE ADVENTISTS?

The large and increasing demand for this work is an expression of the high appreciation of its merits among our people, and we believe it will accomplish much good in removing unjust prejudice, and enlightening many minds upon the great subject of Christ's Second Advent, and the restitution of all things spoken by the prophets of olden times. We wish that a copy might be placed in the hands of every clergyman in the country. Price single, postpaid, 75 cts.; per dozen, by express, $7.20. Agent.

HADES, OR, THE INTERMEDIATE STATE OF MAN.

A companion volume to "OUR HOPE." By Rev. H. Constable, A. M., containing 367 pages, neatly bound in cloth, lettered in gold, making it ornamental and attractive. This is a reprint of the English edition, and the third edition of the work. The former price was $1.25 per copy. We are able to put them at 75 cts. per copy; $7.20 per dozen, by express. The large sale of this work in the old country is undoubted evidence of its great merit. It is the only work extant, with which we are acquainted, that fully presents an extensive historical and scriptural testimony on the state of man in death. The author treats the subject with candor and unanswerable argument, and dissipates that fallacious philosophy by which men are said to go to heaven as disembodied spirits before the final judgment. In this work the harmony of the Scriptures is clearly shown, and also the absolute necessity of the second coming of Christ to give eternal life to his people. We anticipate a large circulation of this work for those interested in letting the light shine among the people that are in darkness, and in danger of being deceived through the traditions of men. Send in your orders promptly, and let this book be read by your neighbors and friends. Agent.

DURATION AND NATURE OF FUTURE PUNISHMENT.

By Rev. H. Constable, A. M., late Prebendary of Cork, Ireland, and author of "HADES, OR THE INTERMEDIATE STATE OF MAN," etc. Neatly bound in cloth; 360 pages, price, 75 cts. single; $7.20 per dozen, by express.

This book has passed through five editions in England. We have the pleasure of presenting to the public the first AMERICAN EDITION at a low price. It is a companion volume to "OUR HOPE" and "HADES," and the three constitute a compendium of theology upon the subjects of the nature of man, intermediate state, future retribution, and life in Christ, that can scarcely be equalled outside of the Bible. In the Nature and Duration of Future Punishment the author has given the public a body of divinity upon the subject of future punishment, as presented in the Scriptures, clearly exposing the weakness of the heathen dogma of eternal torment. He unflinchingly meets the question with the sword of truth, sharpened with the spirit, and wielded by a sound mind, inspired with divine love, and strips off all traditional covering from the Word, so that "God is love" shines out through the word of truth, showing the perfect harmony of God's justice and mercy. These works should be in every clergyman's library, and especially our young men in the ministry should have a familiar acquaintance with these writings.

We will send the THREE volumes to Clergymen of any denomination for $1.75 postpaid. Please remember the above applies to Clergymen only. Address all orders to J. Hemenway, Box 5140, Boston, Mass.

A NEW TRACT. "WHY ARE WE A PEOPLE?"

This handsomely printed Tract of 22 pages is the Discourse preached by Eld. E. A. Stockman at the Special Convention in Worcester, Mass., and published by vote of the Convention. The Tract is eminently timely in its character, and should be scattered by thousands in every direction.

Orders for the Tract will be promptly filled, whether in large quantities or small. ... in every direction to take hold of the matter at once. Let the opening year witness the birth and growth of an increased zeal in scattering light. "Freely ye have received, freely give."

Price (post-paid), two copies for 5 cents; per dozen, 25 cents; per hundred, 75 cents. Agent.

ANOTHER NEW TRACT. THE END OF THE IMPENITENT. BY WM. H. MITCHELL.

This tract is the substance of a sermon preached by Bro. Mitchell at Biddeford, and published by the A. C. Publication Society, Boston, Mass. No one acquainted with Bro. Mitchell's pulpit and literary ability will need be told that this production is eminently worthy of careful reading and wide-spread circulation. The argument is unanswerable, the tract is pure and impressive, the spirit Christian and tender. Let this tract be ordered at once by thousands. Price, ...

The author is a deep thinker, and a thorough Bible student, one who has given particular attention to the study of Prophecy, and its fulfillment in the history of the Papacy.

For sale at the Crisis Office. Price 15 cts. single; seven copies for One Dollar, postpaid.

THE SONG OF DEATH.

BY EDWIN BURNHAM.

My dominion is vast,
  And my victories great,
My wide reign in the past
  Has been high in estate.
I, in future, shall reign
  In dominion as wide
As in the past, and gain
  More power to my side.
I challenge all monarchs,
  All warriors and hosts;
The strength of my bulwarks
  Defies mightiest boasts.
Who can break my firm line?
  Who can scatter my gloom?
Who, in ages of time,
  Can break gates of the tomb?
My dark prisons are full
  Of the millions of earth;
I haunt every soul
  From the moment of birth!
I feast on the wealthy,
  And the poor, and the good,
And the vile; the healthy
  And the sick are my food.
I spare not the lovely—
  Not the aged, or young.
All mankind must prove me;
  I will have all—each one.
I will crowd my dark prisons,
  As I "gather them in";
I will learn them sad lessons
  Of the evils of sin.
I will gloat over groans,
  And sighing; and mock fears
In my pride, and the moans
  Of the dying, and their tears.
I will make pale the face
  Of the strongest of men,
As I thin out the race,
  Multiplying the slain.
What sad partings I make!
  What sad breaking of ties!
I spare none for love's sake,
  All friendship I despise.
I will not be bribed
  With abundance of gold,
To free one captive led
  Unto my dark, strong hold.
But one thing do I fear:
  There is a strange report,
Which I daily do hear,
  Of a mighty effort
Of One stronger than all
  Living men, who declares
That he will me appall!
  And for this he prepares
His great name is "THE WORD,"
  The armies of heaven
Follow him as their Lord;
  Unto him is given
All power forever.
  He was once in my hands,
My chains he did sever,
  And broke all my bands.
I tremble before him!
  He scorns my victories,
He despises my sting,
  He may spoil my glories,
And himself be the King.
  Must my great dominion
Be all broken at last?
  Must I, a spoiled one,
In strong chains be held fast?
  Alas! for my power,
Alas! for my great pride.
  I dread the final hour
That my fate shall decide.

SANCTIFICATION.

BY C. H. SWEET.

Probably no subject has called forth more controversy among us as a people during the past few years than this one. Much has been said and written upon it by our ablest speakers and writers. And yet the subject has not been decided. Various opinions are still held as to what sanctification is, and as to when and by what means it is effected. So if all my readers are not brought to embrace my views of it I shall not be disappointed. However widely we may differ upon other points I think we can all agree in saying that sanctification is a Bible subject, and as such demands our most serious attention; and I hope that none of my readers will be so uncharitable as to accuse me of fighting sanctification simply because I may not be able to take the same view of the subject that they do. I say to you all criticise carefully every proposition that I make, and believe nothing but what I clearly prove by plain texts of Scripture; but do believe all that I quote from that Blessed Book. After carefully studying this book upon the subject, I have come to the following conclusions:

1. That all Christians sustain a sanctified relation to God. What stronger proof can be desired upon this point than the teaching of Paul in 1 Cor. 1: 30, where it is said that God has made Christ sanctification to all those that are in him? That every true Christian is "in Christ" no believer will question for a moment. This, the apostle gives us to understand, is their place or standing before God. Can there be any improvement in this standing? There certainly cannot be if Christ is its measure. How, then, are we to avoid the conclusion that the standing of Christians must always be complete, as much so for the young convert as for the older and more advanced Christian?

That the church of Christ as a whole is a sanctified church, is plainly taught in such Scripture texts as, Acts 20: 32, 26: 18, 1 Cor. 6: 11, Heb. 2: 11; 10: 10, 14, 29, and Jude 1.

2. That sanctification is also a matter of experience and practice, and as such is a progressive work. While it is true that every person who is in Christ is sanctified through him, it is also true that there is a difference in the piety and usefulness of such persons, and that they become more pious and useful as they advance in Christian experience. I can notice only a very few of the many passages of Scripture which bear upon this point. I will first call the reader's attention to Peter's testimony. In the fifth chapter of his first epistle he reminds Christians of the standing which grace has given them "in Christ Jesus," and then exhorts them to add certain attainments to their standing, or, in other words, to add to their faith such moral qualities as would make them "neither barren nor unfruitful in the knowledge of their Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ." He also says, "But grow in grace, and in the knowledge of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ." And the clearer our view of the standing which grace has given us with God, the more room we shall see for growth before we come unto the measure of the stature of the fulness of Christ. When we do attain to that then all our thoughts, our desires, and our acts will be as free from evil as the sunbeam is from darkness. This being true, whatever our present condition may be, I think that we, like Paul, should count not ourselves to have apprehended, but while thanking God for the grace hitherto given us, and for the victories we have already won, keep pressing forward and reaching forth to higher attainments, remembering the exhortation. "Having these promises, dearly beloved, let us cleanse ourselves from all filthiness of the flesh and spirit, perfecting holiness in the fear of God." 2 Cor. 7: 1.

How can those persons who fall back upon feelings or blessing or excitement, and affirm that they have not committed a single sin [illegible] years, and that they cannot get into any better condition or holier state; obey such injunctions as these?

Again, does not this theory of instantaneous experimental sanctification have a tendency to discourage conscientious, and naturally timid Christians, and to induce others to believe that they are rich and increased in goods, when they are really exceedingly weak and poor in Christian experience? I am fully convinced that it does, and this is one reason why I am now running the risk of offending some of my good brethren and sisters in Christ by writing this article.

Soon after the conversion of the Thessalonians we find the apostle Paul urging them to practical sanctification or living holiness. See 1 Thess. 5: 23. What he would have them seek was not a hidden and mysterious work shut up in the heart, and manifesting itself only in certain peculiar raptures, and much boasting, but a work which was to cleanse and fully set apart to God and his service such faculties of their minds as their attention, reflection, meditation, memory, imagination and will. Also such parts and faculties of their bodies as the five senses, the appetites, the working faculties, the tongue, etc., and to have their lives so sanctified as to be willing at any time to lay them down for God and his truth. Can it be possible that all this was to be the work of a moment?

Turning to Paul's epistle to the Colossians, we find him, in the first chapter first giving thanks for their standing, and then praying for their growth. He could not pray for any improvement in their standing for he says in the second chapter, "Ye are complete in him." But he could and does pray "That ye might walk worthy of the Lord unto all pleasing, being fruitful unto every good work, and increasing in the knowledge of God."

When writing to the Corinthians Paul exhorts them to put away evil, and yet says to them, "Ye are unleavened." How could this be when they were indulging in that which was wrong? I answer, in Christ they were unleavened, but practically they were not, and hence the apostle could say to them, "Purge out the old leaven, that ye may be a new lump, as ye are unleavened. For even Christ our passover is sacrificed for us. Therefore let us keep the feast, not with old leaven, neither with the leaven of malice and wickedness; but with the unleavened bread of sincerity and truth." 1 Cor. 5: 7, 8.

We have a good illustration of the gospel teaching upon this subject in the Old Testament account of the ceremonial cleansing of a leper. The very moment the blood was sprinkled by the priest, the person was pronounced clean; and yet he was told to go out and cleanse himself. Must we not conclude from this that when the blood was sprinkled he was cleansed before God, but when he had cleansed himself he was practically clean?

Thus I understand it to be with all true Christians; through Christ they "are washed," "sanctified," "justified," "accepted." This is their state and standing before God. Their sanctification takes place at the same time, and is just as complete as their justification, for Christ is the measure of both in God's sight. But what Christian, either young or old fully apprehends all this, and fully manifests it in his spirit or life? And is it not both reasonable and scriptural to conclude that as the blessed truth unfolds itself to their understanding they will advance in a life of purity and true holiness? This brings me to my last proposition, viz.:

3. That this practical sanctification is effected through the truth. Please take your Bibles and read Jno. 17: 17, 15: 3, 1 Pet. 1: 22. It is not grounded upon flights of feeling, but upon the immutable truths of God's word. It is the truth received through the mind, and practically carried out in the life. Of course those who thus receive and obey God's truth will not be destitute of good feeling. They have an inward satisfaction for well-doing, and God encourages and strengthens them by bestowing rich blessings upon them. These blessings are sometimes accepted as an evidence that the work of practical sanctification was completed in them. But inasmuch as our knowledge of God's truth is progressive, our sanctification through that truth must necessarily be progressive also.

In short practical sanctification is receiving with meekness the engrafted word and growing thereby, or growing in grace and in a knowledge of the truth, or growing up into Christ our living head, or being changed from glory to glory into the image of Christ. Does this view of the subject lower the standard of piety? Is it true that those who adopt it "do not believe in holiness?"

FROM W. J. CUSTAR.

Bro. Stockman:—I thought it might be of some benefit to those of like precious faith to know something about the Master's cause in this place, and also in West Va., through the instrumentality of father John Chambers and his devoted companion. He has since fallen asleep, but mother Chambers is still living, patiently waiting, faithfully watching, and joyfully expecting to see the King in his beauty. The doctrine of the Bible was introduced, a minister procured, and a church established of some twenty members about the year 1868, organized by Eld. S. P. Whitney, who has since gone into West Va., and by the help of God has succeeded in establishing an A. C. Conference, called the West Va. and Southern Ohio Conference. In the meantime the writer with his family moved to this place (Chambersburg), where, becoming acquainted with the membership of the Advent Church, thought their doctrine very strange indeed, and often wondered if such a doctrine could be true; but by careful reading and good instruction given by the kind friends who became interested in my behal, I soon found that I, like thousands of others, had been taught tradition in place of the pure word of eternal truth. Through the operation of the Spirit of God I was brought out into the marvelous light of the gospel of Jesus Christ.

My experience since that time has been mixed with joys and sorrows, successes and reverses, disappointments, afflictions and bereavements. Notwithstanding all this, I am yet with a little band here holding on, looking up, knowing that our redemption draweth nigh. I request all who know the worth of prayer to remember us, that the Lord may bless us with sustaining grace.

Eureka P. O., Gallia Co., Ohio.

Bro. Stockman:—I enclose for our family paper, the Crisis, the enclosed clipping from one of our county papers, which was written as a rejoinder to an article from the editor a week previous, and which appeared during the week of our late semi-annual Conference; and as many of our brethren desired a copy, I send it to you for publication, hoping it may be beneficial to the general readers of the Crisis. I am still trying to get the truth before this people through the columns of our county papers, three in number. I am accorded much liberty, which does seem to me, as the Lord's doings;" and I pray that I may be humble, and faithful, and so honor the dear Lord and his truth. D. O. HINK.

IMMORTALITY ELOQUENTLY AFFIRMED.

Many others beside the late Geo. D. Prentiss have given utterance to some remarkably eloquent and impressive passages, such as "we were born for a higher destiny than earth," and that "it cannot be that earth is man's only abiding-place," or that "there is a realm where the rainbow never fades, where the stars will be spread out before us, like the islands that slumber on the ocean, and where the beautified beings that pass before us like shadows will stay forever in our presence," and "it cannot be, that our life is a bubble cast upon the ocean of eternity, to float a moment upon its waves, and sink into nothingness," etc.

But are such eloquently-expressed thoughts true? and because true, right? are they true because eloquently expressed? or, because "these high and glorious aspirations, which leap like angels, from the temple of our hearts" declare, it must be so? Can it be, that we are left to determine the great question of man's destiny, by the "pithy utterances of a man, even though he is able "to condense his meaning in the fewest words," and to roll those words out with the grandest eloquence possible? assuredly not; else, the Scriptures are an enigma, and were given in vain. Is it true, that "we were born for a higher destiny than earth?" and that "there is a realm where the beautiful beings that pass before us like shadows, will forever remain in our presence?" If so, do "these high and glorious aspirations, which are said, to leap like angels from the temple of our hearts," give us any evidence of its truth? and is it true that, because men have aspirations for immortality, therefore they must be immortal, because men aspire for "a higher destiny than earth," and a "realm" of shadowy, ghostly existence, "where the beautiful beings that have passed on before us shall forever dwell in our presence," therefore, such a realm and destiny must and shall be obtained? If so, then it may just as truthfully be said, that because men have aspirations for wealth, honor, influence, position, and a thousand other desirable things, therefore they shall become wealthy, influential, occupying positions of honor, and all become kings and queens, presidents and senators; if not, why not? "shall these high and glorious aspirations, forever be mocking us with their unapproachable glory?" The old adage "if wishes were horses, then beggars might ride" has quite a fitting application even here.

The fact is—and facts are stubborn things—that there must be something more than the leaping forth of these angel aspirations from the temple of our hearts, in order to secure and obtain a "higher destiny," whether that destiny is wrought out on this earth, or in some far away distant realm, amid shadowy surroundings and equally shadowy beings, who will stay with us forever. The fact is—just what everybody knows—that whoever would realize the earnest desire and longing of his nature to become wealthy, or honored with positions of distinction and responsibility among men, must first be suitably qualified to undertake the realization of the inspiration that possesses him, and then there must be a corresponding effort commensurate with the object in view, else that man's inspiration and intense longing will prove a mere "will o' the wisp," "castles built in the air;" and this fact holds good in regard to man's destiny beyond the confines of his present earth life; and it is high time, that the illusion—for such it certainly is—should be dissipated, that "man is born for a higher destiny."

All the facts connected with man's existence go to show, that "man at his best state is altogether vanity;" and while it is true that man is endowed with powers and capabilities which may prompt him to earnest longings for "immortality" and a "higher destiny," yet, these earnest longings of man's nature will assuredly prove abortive, unless these powers and capabilities are first brought into active operation to qualify and prepare him for immortality and the enjoyment of the higher life; and, the fact is—if I rightly understand the matter—"that our life is a bubble cast upon the ocean of eternity to float upon its waves and sink into nothingness" or, be merged into the "Spiritual" or higher life which the Son of God came to impart to the children of men, upon the terms expressed in his blessed gospel,—hence, there will be "a survival of the fittest." Again, if the hypothesis of man's "natural immortality" and his being born for a higher destiny be correct, what is to become of the orthodox—so-called—notion, of a world of lost spirits, who are enduring the pains and torments of eternal conscious suffering, without any mitigating circumstances, or the faintest hope of release. Have they entered upon the "higher destiny" for which they were "born?" or, are we to conclude that orthodoxy is wrong, and that spiritualism is right, in its beautiful (?) theory of immortal spheres, where each one works out for himself, the higher destiny for which he was born, and thus, there is to be a perfect and universal enfranchisement of all, who have ever had a part in this present earth life? If the last be true, then, was it not worse than useless, for God to give his Son, "to be lifted up, that whosoever believeth upon him might not perish but have everlasting life?" and, did not John, the Baptist, utter a falsehood in declaring that, "he that believeth not the Son, shall not see life, but the wrath of God abideth upon him?" But if the first, or orthodox view, be correct, then it is not only out of harmony with man's natural birth-right to a higher destiny—as orthodoxy puts it—but it is also, a most unjust and severe reflection upon the divine character, whose dealings with mankind are equal, just and right.

Beautifully-expressed ideas may suit those who would build their house upon sand, but surely it is much wiser to follow the Great Teacher's instruction to "dig deep, and build upon the rock." Getting down to rock bottom is quite often more laborious than beautiful, and may not be so readily undertaken by the masses who are simply content with the tinsel and show of the mere superficial. Finally, Jesus Christ, the blessed Son of God, uttered no unmeaning words when he said, 'I am the way, the truth, and the life." If there is any "higher destiny" other than this present earth life, he it is that reveals the truth of it, he that has opened the way to it, and he it is that imparts the life to enter upon it. Thanks be to Jesus Christ.—D. O. H., in Maryville Times.

UNDER THE SHADOWS.

BY J. ALBERT LIBBY.

To Bro. and Sister Andrews, of Cumberland Mills, Me., and Bro. and Sr. Jordan, of North Windham; each family having had to lay away a dear son in death.

Under the shadows of a great affliction
  You sit and mourn because your boy you miss;
He hath passed out from under your protection—
  Beyond your tender claspings and your kiss.

But this is sweet to know, my sister, brother,
  These dear ones hidden in death's valley dim,
Are not beyond the notice of our Father—
  Death cannot snatch our loved away from him.

Our Jesus watches where the jewels slumber,
  And waits the time, as we wait too the day,
When he shall shout unto the countless number—
  Arise! from death and darkness come away.

And they shall come, each face with beauty beaming,
  And with unfailing life in every form;
Then we shall find, amid the myriads turning,
  The ones we laid away in sorrow's storm.

O how we haste through the brief time remaining,
  With faith, and hope, and love, toward that dear home;
And though we bear life's ills all uncomplaining,
  We cannot help but pray, "Thy kingdom come."

Look up, dear ones, your hearts half broke with sadness,
  Yet still look up, and trust earth's dearest friend;
He cometh bringing in eternal gladness,
  And earth's long night of grief shall have an end.

How the sore trials of a life-time's travel,
  And the deep mysteries that perplex the face,
The light of that clear day will then unravel,
  As we behold our lost ones face to face.

Obituaries.

WENTWORTH. In South Levant, Me., March 8, 1885, Ellen M. Wentworth, aged twenty-three years.

Stricken down in her youth and beauty, a terrible blow has fallen upon the bereaved relatives, almost crushing them to the earth. Upon the dear mother in her declining years it comes with overwhelming force. Unless the hand of God had been interposed to break the force of this sudden stroke, reason would have tottered on her throne; but the grace of God has sustained, and his promised succor has come in this hour of need. The absent husband too far distant to reach his home in season to obtain a last look upon the loved features of the dear companion, will be called upon to pass through a terrible ordeal of suffering. God alone can understand the anguish brought upon poor suffering humanity by the enemy death. Thank God the time is rapidly approaching when death shall be swallowed up in victory, then the ransomed of the Lord shall return to Zion, with songs and everlasting joy upon their heads, and sorrow and sighing shall flee away. Words of comfort from Rev. 21: 4. J. F. CLOTHEY.

DRAKE. Mrs. Lavina M. Drake, aged seventy-nine years, ten months and fourteen days, fell asleep in Jesus at the home of her son, Mr. B. F. Drake, Lake Village, N. H., Jan. 22nd, 1885.

Our mother to-day sleeps in Jesus. After much suffering she was relieved by the cold, icy hand of death. She embraced the Advent faith in 1844, and since that time she has ever lived a consistent Christian life. [illegible] many were the times when the servants of God were welcome in her household. In her death the church here loses one of its pillars, and all deeply feel and mourn her loss. She leaves one son, with whom she resided at her death, who provided for her every temporal want and necessity as long as life lingered, and now deeply feels the great loss. Mother only waits for the resurrection morning when the trumpet shall sound and the dead come forth, and she will "be recompensed at the resurrection of the just." Words of comfort were spoken by the writer from Mark 8: 11. A. J. W.

WHITTER. In Farmington, N. H., Aug. 11th, 1884, George Whitter, aged fifty years and four months.

Bro. Whitter was born in Dover, N. H. He sought and found the Lord about eighteen years ago and embraced the Advent faith. He lived and died in hope of soon seeing Jesus and being made like him. He leaves a Christian wife and daughter, and a large circle of friends. He is greatly missed at home and at the meetings, of which he was a constant attendant. He was always ready to help support the truth he loved so well. His home was free to all of the saints of God. He was a kind, indulgent husband and father, but his work is done and he is resting in hope of a better resurrection when life and immortality shall be given to all of God's dear saints. M. STEVENS.

BURGESS. In South Ashburnham, Mass., Feb. 23d, 1885, Bro. Joshua B. Burgess, in the eighty-fifth year of his age.

It was related to the writer, after the funeral services were over, that Bro. Burgess had lived so long in the place, and was so well known as an upright Christian man, that even persons who were in the habit of criticising professors of religion generally, and expressing doubt whether there were any real Christians, would invariably except Mr. Burgess, saying, "There is one Christian in the place, and that is Joshua Burgess." Bro. B. was a leader in the meetings of the Adventists in the place, and will be greatly missed. At the widow's request, hymn No. 333 of the New Jubilee Harp was sung. The leading text on the occasion [illegible] 14: 10. T. M. PREBLE.

BAILOR. Near Farmington, W. T., Feb. 17th, 1885, Edwin A., infant babe of John H. and Emma Bailor.

The enemy death in a mysterious form has entered our home again and caused us sore trials. But we sorrow not as those that have no hope. Our Father's will be done, not ours; and he that giveth taketh away. Blessed be his name!

Two little graves in a graveyard wide;
Two little babes lie side by side;
Two little brothers resting there;
All free from sorrow, pain or care.
They came to our home one by one;
We loved them dearly, but they are gone;
The enemy death, we so much dread,
Has entered our home, and they are dead.
One by one we have laid them away;
They will sleep in the dust till the judgment day;
Angels will watch their sweet repose
Till Christ shall come, and time shall close.
JOHN H. BAILOR.

HUSSEY. In Brewer, Maine, March 5th, 1885, Elizabeth C. Hussey, aged sixty-four years.

Amid the lamentations of many friends a loving mother, after a short illness, has gone down to the dark valley. A godly and consistent life has left its impress upon the hearts of the bereaved ones, and many fond memories of the dear departed one will linger with them. Christ was her solace, his coming again her hope. The message fell with sweetness on her ear, and it cheered and comforted in her last hours. We hope to greet her on the eternal shore. Making in all 96,183 churches, 76,752 ministers, 15,156,298 members; one minister to each 197 members.

More than one third of the population of these United States belongs to the so-called churches. If all these 96,183 churches were letting the light of Jesus shine, what a well-lighted nation this would be. If the 76,752 professed ministers of divine truth were the true ambassadors of Christ, what a [illegible] sinners would enter the ears of the Lord of Sabaoth; and if the 15,156,298 members were alive to Christ's cause, and were the true representatives of the Son of God, America would be something like the garden of God. To be sure evil would be present among the good, but the grand and majestic army of saints would march on to victory such as is now unknown. But, alas! more are engaged in pulling down than in building up the cause, I fear.

May the Lord awake and arouse the true church to the call of the hour. The eastern sky, the rumors of war among the nations, the cry of the laborers who have reaped down the fields of the rich, the disturbed forces of the heavens, the scattering of the power of the holy people, the Ethiopian holding out his hands, the iron and clay state of all peoples, the near accomplishment of the preaching of this gospel of the kingdom to all nations as a witness, the thickening of the mockers and scoffers, the "falling away," as Paul puts it, the departure from the faith, [illegible]

A MITE SONG.

Only a drop in the bucket,
  But every drop will tell;
The bucket would soon be empty
  Without the drops in the well.

Only a poor little penny,
  It was all I had to give;
But as pennies make the dollars,
  It may help some cause to live.

A few little bits of ribbon,
  And some toys; they were not new,
But they made the sick child happy,
  Which has made me happy too.

Only some outgrown garments—
  They were all I had to spare;
But they will help to clothe the needy,
  And the poor are everywhere.

God loveth the cheerful giver,
  Though the gift be poor and small;
What doth he think of his children
  When they never give at all?

CONFERENCE REPORT.

The fourth Quarterly Session of Bristol and Plymouth Counties A. C. Conference convened at New Bedford, Mass., Wednesday, Feb. 25–27, at 10.30 A. M., President G. F. Haines in the chair. After prayer by Benj. Gifford, voted that the chair appoint a committee of three to nominate officers for the year ensuing, and the following named brethren were thus appointed: A. Jenne, B. F. Shaw and E. B. Church. The committee reported for President, C. H. Sweet; Vice President, A. Jenne; Secretary, L. W. Smith; Treasurer, Benj. Irish. Exec. Committee, P. White, B. E. Horr, R. A. West. Voted, to consider these names singly, and they were elected.

We will state here that the President, Eld. G. F. Haines, had expressed a strong desire to withdraw from his position, as he expects to go away soon from the limits of this Conference; which desire was reluctantly granted by his co-laborers, with whom he has served so faithfully and well.

Report of Executive Committee was accepted by vote, followed by Missionary Report for the last quarter by Eld. C. H. Sweet, Conf. Evangelist, which was quite encouraging. Some have been converted to Christ, and others reclaimed from a Laodicean state of backsliding. Opposition was found in some places, but God's word went forward in victory.

Voted, to accept and adopt the report of Bro. Sweet.

Adjourned until 2 P. M., after which remarks were made by several brethren, and it was voted unanimously to appoint Elder C. H. Sweet as Conference Evangelist for the ensuing year; also voted to authorize the Executive Committee to appoint an assistant in the mission field, as Bro. Sweet may need and desire.

Voted, that the whole matter of financial measures be left to the Exec. Committee. Adjourned to call of Chair.

Thursday, 10 A. M. Conference called to order by the President, C. H. Sweet, and reports of ministers were called for. G. F. Haines reported for Fairhaven church, where he is pastor; also at Lynn, where he has held revival meetings with a large degree of interest. Eld. Geo. E. Pollen reported for Mattapoisett and vicinity, where he has labored with success. C. W. Rathbun, Attleboro Falls, reported favorably of his field of labor. Bro. G. W. Kent, of Attleboro, stated: We have banded together and endeavor to do the work of the Lord as best we may. God has greatly blest us thus far, and we intend to go on, trusting that the great Head of the church will still use us to his glory, and graciously preserve amid the corruptions and perils of these last days.

Eld. L. Boutelle gave an interesting account of his labors in various places. New Bedford church was reported by Bro. E. E. Church. Under many discouragements we have been led out by the hand of Providence thus far, and our prospect ahead seems much brighter. Eld. L. W. Smith is our pastor elect.

Bro. Gifford of Fairhaven stated: Three of our members died during the year, and several are sick, but the church is holding on to the faith of God as it is in Jesus. Bro. Haines has not shunned to declare the whole counsel of God.

Bro. Shaw, Srs. Robinson, Winslow and others made remarks also of an encouraging nature, with reference to the work. As only a part of the subjects used by the speakers were noted, we do not particularize, but will state that prayer and testimony meetings were held three times each day, and preaching every afternoon and evening. The services all throughout were deeply spiritual, and resulted as we trust in much good, in the strengthening and encouraging of believers.

Treasurer's report showed that $28.90 remain in treasury after all expenditures.

Adjourned. L. W. SMITH, Secretary.

☞ BIBLE DAISIES FROM THE PSALMS. [illegible]

BY C. H. WILLIAMS.

Rather a singular theme to introduce in a religious paper, says one. Well, yes, in one sense it is; but then there are some things in this line analogous to spiritual matters as they pertain to man? Let us see.

The entire human family are suffering more or less from physical ills which are in some way, either directly or indirectly, the outcome of moral ills. [illegible] remedies are administered. Reasoning upon the principle of cause and effect, it seems evident that the prime evil in man's case was a violation of moral law, which led to the transgression of physical laws, resulting in various forms of disease, greatly limiting temporal existence. [illegible] sought after by a loving heavenly Father whose commiseration is extended in the provision of a physician who has opened the pharmacy of heaven, and visited in person our dark domain of contagion and death, leaving with us at his departure a valuable household volume of directions for treatment; and in this precious Book we are assured that the panacea obtained of the divine pharmacist never fails to cure.

Sometimes the condition of the human organism is determined by an examination of the tongue: so we are instructed that the moral condition of man may be known somewhat by the use made of the tongue, and by which moral ills are developed: for we read "the tongue is a fire, a world of iniquity: so is the tongue among our members, that it defileth the whole body, and setteth on fire the course of nature: and it is set on fire of hell." But, thank God, the fire and poison of an unholy tongue can all be taken out with the spiritual antidote offered by our Physician. Then we can say with Paul, "the law of the spirit of life in Christ Jesus hath made me free from the law of sin and death.

We have heard it stated that according to tradition the Indian race are looking for a great personage from heaven, whom they call "the medicine man;" and when he appears they expect to receive great benefits. And we think in a spiritual sense the idea is correct, for Christ will soon come and administer the never-failing panacea of immortality. And while we wait for this complete cure we may avoid the augmentation of present ills, and by unwavering faith they may, in a degree, be mitigated by divine power; for the blessings promised to God's children are not all deferred to the future, as some of them are realized in this world. Therefore we read that "godliness is profitable unto all things, having promise of the life that now is, and of that which is to come."

Oh, that all would accept God's remedy and be healed morally and physically; for salvation can be obtained in no other way. Many nostrums are prepared by men, and few if any have the desired effect. But when our great Physician shall come from heaven, we shall receive a remedy that will rebuke disease and give everlasting release from corruption. Reader, will you be a recipient of this immortal remedy?

Marysville, N. Y.

The term "witnessing for Jesus" is so generally restricted to the declaration of what he has done for us, or the relation of our Christian experience, that we are apt to lose sight of the fact that some of the most important witnessing for him lies in other directions. When John the Baptist witnessed for him it was by declaring his true character and mission, and the direct effect of this testimony was to induce two of his own disciples, Andrew and John, the evangelist, to follow him. The most effective way in which we can witness for Christ is to exhibit such devotion for him in every day life, that all with whom we come in contact shall know and acknowledge that we are his disciples, and that our lives are purified and exalted thereby.—Domestic Journal.

TEMPERANCE.

A SHORT ARGUMENT.

Some years ago a lecturer visited Middleboro, Mass, and closed his address with the following:—

Doth rum give strength? Why then I'm sure
Your horse or oxen need it more;
They tug and toil with all their might,
From early morn till late at night,
To plough or drag the harrow
Across the fields of Middleboro.

Yet is there one within the town,
Who would think of pouring down
His horse a glass of sling, or toddy,
To give him speed or strength of body?
Would make a man roll in the furrow
To see such things in Middleboro.

Will it improve your reputation,
Or raise you to a higher station?
Perhaps it may; a score of fellows
Have been raised by it to the gallows—
Though never such a scene of horror
Was witnessed here in Middleboro.

Could I persuade you all this night
To embrace the truth, to choose the right,
For this great cause to take your stand
Till temperance pervade the land,
Rejoiced I'd leave you on the morrow,
And bid farewell to Middleboro.

INFLUENCE AND EXAMPLE.—At a large and well-known boarding-house a guest was asked at dinner if she would have some plum-pudding with brandy sauce. "I will have some of the plum-pudding, please, but none of the brandy sauce," was her reply. Her friends laughed at her, and insisted that she should take some; but she replied: "I decline upon principle; I take no alcohol in any form."

The conversation turned to other topics, but after dinner a young man whom she had noticed sitting opposite her at dinner approached her and, requesting a word with her, said: "I want to tell you how much good you did me to-day by your prompt rejection of the pudding sauce. I have been deliberating what I would do, being strongly tempted by the smell of it, which reached me. I think I should have yielded to my desire and the solicitations of my friends, who called my resolution a [illegible] if I had not heard your refusal. That gave me courage to resist the temptation. I have an inherited appetite for liquor, but by the grace of God I have been able to control it; but if I had got a taste of the spirit to-day I feel confident I should have fallen again."—Ex.

THE GRAVES OF SIX DRUNKARDS.—Mr. W. Forbes related the following at one of his recent meetings at Melton Mowbray: "In a village in the United States a public meeting had been called for the inhabitants to express their opinion as to what number of public-houses they wished to be kept open for the next year. The doctor, the minister, and saloon-keeper were present. After a brief conference a motion was proposed that things should remain as they had been. This proposal was just about to be carried, when a poorly-clad old woman rose, and addressing the doctor, said: 'I once had a good husband, and five fine sons, but you advised them to drink rum, and they did it.' Turning to the minister, she said, 'And you came and drank with them.' And now, addressing the saloon-keeper, she said, 'And you sold the rum to my husband and sons. You have now got what was our farm and all our estate. In yonder cemetery there are the graves of six drunkards—a father and his five sons. I now leave this meeting to return to the poor house—my only home on this side of the grave.' After this incident the [illegible] concluded that their village would be the better without any drink- [illegible]"—Ex.

FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.

LONDON.

BY MILES GRANT.

I have not found so much difference between English and American society as I expected; yet there are some things that attract the attention of an American, when in London, that he does not see in our large cities in the States. My conviction is that the London Police force is superior to that of any other city I have visited. They are tall, powerful, and noble-looking men, who command the respect of the people; and are trusty men, who carefully guard the public welfare. They honor their calling by commendable conduct, and are a terror to evil-doers. This cannot be said of the Roman Catholic policemen in American cities.

The cost of living in London is less than in Boston, New York, or Chicago. Some things are as high as in the States, but many are fifty, and even a hundred per cent. less. There are respectable eating-rooms where one can get a good meal for a sixpence, and twelve and a half cents. Clothes can be obtained for about half what it costs in America. As a rule, the people in London do not dress as extravagantly as they do in America. It could not be said here with the force it is often said in the States: "The tailor makes the man." There is much less display of vanity in English than in American society. The latter are copying after Paris rather than London. The London houses are not as showy in their exterior as the American. They are not as tasty and inviting in their appearance. Nice residences are often surrounded by high stone or brick walls, as though they wished to exclude all intercourse with the outside world. It is rare that an open wire or picket fence is seen, such as we have in the States. Their door-yards are entirely unseen [sic] only by the family and their special visitors. A bell-handle will be found in the outside wall, next the street, marked "Visitors," and another marked "Servants." No one knows what is behind the street wall till the gate is opened. A large number of the fashionable houses have some special name at the outside gateway, by which they are designated. It is some word connected with "Villa," or "Lodge," "Tree," or "Vine," or "Flower," "Cottage," or [illegible] names, of a romantic nature. They pay as much attention to these as to the naming of their children.

The expense of London traveling on railroads, omnibuses, cabs, and hansoms is only about half as much as in the States.

The streets of London are the best I have found in any city, except Washington, D. C. They are very smooth and kept exceedingly clean. On the great thoroughfares are boys kept constantly at work with a large dust-pan and coarse brush, cleaning up all the horse manure upon the streets, and depositing it in iron boxes, some five feet high, by the sidewalk. These boys show much dexterity in keeping from being run over by the constantly passing teams. Special watchfulness is required on their part. It would be a tremendous drill for a lazy boy. I have seen no workmen who earned their wages more faithfully than these street-cleaning boys. The pavements of the streets are largely wooden blocks, or concrete. The wooden is very nicely laid, and is an excellent pavement, much better than any of the kind I have seen in America. The streets are so smooth that the wheels make but very little noise. About all the noise heard is from the feet of the horses. There is a marked contrast between London and New York in this respect. The concrete is very smooth. When it is frosty, the streets are quite slippery, and horses often fall down. To remedy this, fine gravel is sprinkled like water upon the streets.

On account of the great amount of teams passing on the principal streets, it became quite dangerous for footmen to cross. If they escaped the teams going up, they might run into those coming down the street. A very good remedy has been provided against this special danger. In the middle of the street crossings is placed a lamp-post, surrounded by a platform, about eight inches high, some ten feet long and five feet wide, more or less, according to the amount of travel, and the room that may be appropriated for this purpose. Around this platform are set some four to ten stout stone posts or guards. All teams are required to "keep to the left" in passing these safety platforms. Now, when the footman wishes to cross one of these great thoroughfares, he has but one stream of teams to watch at a time. When he sees a chance to get through the current going up, he hastens to the centre platform, where he is safe, till he sees an opening in the down current of teams, when he darts over the remaining half of the street.

The sanitary arrangements in London are the best I have ever seen in any city. Cleanliness is a specialty. If it were not so, it would be very unhealthy, because of the immense population. The most unhealthy and disagreeable thing in London is the fog and smoke, which obscures the sunshine. These are very trying to weak lungs. As a security against the chilly, unwholesome winter atmosphere, many wear a "respirator." At a distance, they look like a piece of black cloth put over the mouth. When I saw the first ones, I took them to be coverings over cancers about the mouth; but I was surprised to meet so many having that terrible disease. On inquiry I found out my mistake.

CONVEYANCES.

London affords great and cheap accommodations for travel. The underground railroad makes a complete circuit around the city. It is like a large and continuous depot, and built at great expense, affording special accommodation to London travelers. These underground cars run about every five minutes, and take one quickly from one station to another. There is but very little smoke, or disagreeable atmosphere in these underground roads, which was contrary to my expectation. They are as free from these things as our best American depots. The railroad managers are much more watchful against accidents in England than America. Passengers are not allowed to walk across the railroad track from one side of the station to the other, but must go over the track on an elevated bridge. It is very rare that railroad tracks cross on a level, but one goes over the other.

Now no railroad company can secure a charter to build a road crossing another on a level. Some of the first roads were allowed this privilege; but not now. This adds much to the first cost of building the roads. The ticket office is called the "Booking Office." There are several immense stations in London, among the fourteen railroads that enter the city. Their width equals the length of the long ones in America. About 150,000 people enter and depart from London daily. The fare in the third-class cars is one penny, or two cents a mile. I have not bought a ticket on any other since I came to England. This is a little more than one-half what is paid for a seat in the first-class. The trains make good time, and run with great speed. Baggage is handled with great carefulness.

Horse cars are called "trams," and the road a "tramway." Most of them carry passengers on top. The omnibuses carry twelve inside and fourteen outside. In several cities the "tram cars" are run by steam power. In cabs and hansoms the fare is one shilling, or twenty-five cents, for any distance within two miles, and six pence, or twelve and a half cents, for every mile, or part of a mile not completed, beyond the two mile. Two persons are carried in cabs and hansoms for the same price as one; but if there are more than two, an extra twelve and a half cents is charged for each additional passenger. Two pence, or four cents, is charged for a trunk or each other piece of baggage carried outside of the cab or hansom. Only two can ride in the hansom, which is a two-wheeled vehicle having the driver on an elevated seat behind, with the reins passing over the top of the hansom. It is named after the inventor. They are convenient and much used. They are driven faster than any other horse conveyance. A double-tree door opens in front, which shuts in the passenger, but allows a fine outlook over the top of the doors. The bottom of the hansom is low, so that they are easily entered. They are much to be preferred to the American herdic. There are many thousands of them in London. There are some 9,000 omnibuses, and 16,000 horses connected with them.

London has but few electric lights in the streets or buildings; but the stores and shops are well lighted by lamps, many of which are unlike any I have seen in the States; being more brilliant, because of their peculiar construction. The people in London sit up late nights and lie in bed late in the morning, and this is true of all the cities where I have been. But little business is done before 10 o'clock in London. Grocery stores that would be opened at 6 in America, would not be opened till 8 o'clock in England. The hurry manifested in America is seldom seen in England. Their motto here seems to be "slow and sure." I am up in the morning some three or four hours before the families where I stop. My rising hour is about 4.30 A. M., in summer and winter.

There is not the extravagant display of dress in England that we see in the States. It could not be said here that "the tailor makes the man."

The people are not measured by their dress as in the States; but more by their real merit; excepting the titled nobility. The aristocracy of England is not honored as in earlier times. The common people feel towards them as do the laboring classes towards the rich in America. They are a threatened class, and are trembling for fear of the dynamite. Their situation is becoming more and more disagreeable and dangerous, as we approach the closing hours of Gentile dominion. A woe seems to hang over their heads, causing real alarm. They are perplexed over the state of things, and their riches and honors are becoming burdensome.

THE CHRISTIAN'S NEED OF DISCIPLINE.

BY SILAS HENN.

(Concluded.)

It is a sign of strong faith in God and his providence, and uncommon Christian simplicity, when we are so intent on doing his will, on rendering him a cheerful service, and seeking more of his light and love, that we are unmindful of ourselves, or of the opinions which men may form of us, or of the things which they may say of us. In seeking God, in being ever on the stretch after immortality, the things of this life recede and dwindle into insignificance. Things that must so soon perish have lost their former estimated value to us; we look now for what is durable, for what is eternal.

Acquiescence in God's order, allowing the divine discipline to work out its true design, will result in a deep flowing peace. The sweet tones of God's love and mercy will ring in our hearts if we are obedient to his will; in the midst of the trials of life we shall be lifted up high above them; yea, the afflictions and sorrows common to the present state shall discipline and train us and perfect us for the state beyond.

There is a tendency in us, when our feelings are excited, to live by our emotions and to take the measure of our feelings to be the measure of our religion; and when our feelings subside, or become low, to doubt the reality of our religion. These changes in our feelings are beyond our power to prevent, and should not weaken our faith. Our faith in God,—in his providence, in his government, and in his promises, should be constant and unchanging.

They are often the happiest who have had the most buffetings, the greatest trials, the fiercest temptations, the bitterest persecutions, and the fewest of this world's luxuries. These things have been overruled by divine providence and used as discipline to bring into the ascendency all that was divine, and great, and good, and lovely in their nature. Men have thought their life a burden, and counted them most miserable, when they have been daily drinking at the fountain-head of true happiness. Lightly esteemed by the world, heaven regards them as among God's noble sons and daughters. Their true manhood has unfolded the more fully because of the difficulties they have striven to overcome. They have learned to look on the bright and sunny side of things. Alphonse Karr says, "Some people are always finding fault with nature for putting thorns on roses; I always thank her for having put roses on thorns." In the same light and in the same spirit must Christians look at the daily events of providence. They must dwell not on the evils that are permitted, but on the blessings that are bestowed. There is no power that can harm us spiritually as long as we are in Christ. The assaults of the world and the devices of the devil are powerless by the power of Christ, which is ours in the time of need. And our power will become greater as our faith becomes stronger, because our faith will the better grasp the power of Christ. His power is ours in our weakness just as much as his wisdom is ours in our ignorance. When we are overcome, it is because we do not lay hold of his strength, but endeavor to meet our foes in our own strength.

The man who for Christ's sake submits to obloquy and scorn, to inconvenience, hardship, suffering, and want, and who loses his earthly all in his endeavors to save men, shall find his all in Christ. By divine grace, by the strength of Omnipotence, he has got that which is animal in him at the bottom, and that which is rational and spiritual and divine within him at the top. He has got his moral sensibilities fully vitalized, and under the guidance of eternal wisdom and under the support of Almighty power, he triumphs over the evil, treads the world under his feet, and rises higher and higher.

> "Teach me to live! my daily cross to bear,
> Nor murmur, though I bend beneath the load.
> Only be with me: let me feel Thee near,
> Thy smile sheds gladness on the darkest road.
> Teach me to live, to find my life in Thee,
> Let me not falter, but untiringly
> Press on, to gain new strength and power each day."

By observing the conduct of holy and eminent Christians under severe trials, we learn how to suffer for righteousness' sake. By watching the courage and bravery of others in the Christian warfare, we learn how to be faithful and courageous.

But it must be hard to carry heavy burdens with no Saviour to lighten them, to bear great troubles without the consolation of the Spirit, to suffer bereavement with hopes all withered and dead. They have to endure all in their own strength. Without faith in God and his providence their life is one of unhappiness. Discontent, fretfulness, misgiving, and complaining tincture their spirit and their conversation. They are under clouds with no hope of sunshine; almost overwhelmed with sorrow with no expectation that the morning will bring joy. They are dissatisfied with themselves, with the world, and with all around them.

TO-DAY.

BY J. A. GARDNER.

Our life is passed in days and hours, and they are bringing us to the great judgment day; but they pass one hour at a time, improved or misimproved. Time moves on. God has placed us here, and we are accountable to him for each moment. We are not here to live for ourselves, but every one has a duty to perform towards his brother to-day. If we neglect it, then it is gone forever. The work of to-day cannot be done to-morrow.

Each day has its cares and crosses, its duties and blessings. One little duty neglected to-day may bring years of sorrow and remorse. There is no time like the present; if we would have peace with God and joy in our hearts, we must do our work to-day. "To-day if you will hear his voice, harden not your heart."

God is speaking to us to-day, and we are obedient, or we are refusing to hear. Can we expect that he will speak to-morrow if we refuse his words to-day? Our duties may not be the same in character, but are they not duties just the same? You may be called upon to speak to some wanderer from the fold, and you may feel your weakness; but if God wants you to speak, he will give you strength and courage, and clothe the words with power. Is he not able to take the weak things to confound the mighty? Yes, bless his name! If we would have strength to perform our daily work, we must submit all to God each day. His will must be ours; but we think so much of to-morrow, we overlook the duties of to-day. Jesus said, "Take therefore no thought for the morrow, for the morrow shall take thought for the things of itself. Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof." We have all that we can do to-day. We must seek for help from God to be able to do each day's duties. How often we neglect our duties, and then try to bear the burdens of two days, or weeks, in one. So our lives become crowded and unsatisfactory to ourselves, and all with whom we come in contact.

There is a brighter side to life, and it is when God leads and we follow. Is religion a burden to you? Then you have neglected to-day's work. The Lord said, "Go work in my vineyard, and whatsoever is right I will give you." Can you not trust him, dear reader? Perhaps you would like to wait until to-morrow, but the Master will send another, and you will lose the blessing. If we would be always rejoicing we must be obedient to the Master's call. We must do our own work, be it great or small. As individuals we must stand before the bar of God, and answer for to-day's work.

We often lose sight of our work by looking at the duties or failings of others. Many would work if they could do some great thing; but the little things must be done to-day, and it requires just as skillful a hand to sow as it does to reap. Jesus said, "He that is faithful in that which is least, is faithful also in much." Will he not say, You have been faithful over a few things, I will make you ruler over many? There are many opportunities to work for Jesus to-day; there are little children to instruct, hungry saints to feed, thirsty souls to lead to the water of life, sorrowing hearts to comfort, naked ones to clothe, sinners to lead to the Saviour, and these must be done to-day. Dare we put it off for to-morrow? The trumpet may sound before the dawning of another morning. Oh, then the harvest will be past, and where are the sheaves?

Dear reader, are you doing to-day's work faithfully? Is it your will to do the will of God? Do not wait for a more convenient season, but begin to-day, finish each day's work, and make your calling and election sure, and make this world better by your being it it.

WHAT WE WERE, AND WHAT WE SHALL BE.

BY GEO. [illegible]

"That at that time ye were without Christ, being aliens from the commonwealth of Israel, and strangers from the covenants of promise, having no hope, and without God in the world." Eph. 2: 12.

In this text of Scripture man's normal state is clearly and impartially declared. Whatever man may claim to be as the result of his moral adventures, however high the flight of his imagination or the real altitude of his attainments, there is a moral certainty that he was born in sin and that he is an heir of death. "For the wages of sin is death." Man is represented everywhere in the Bible as a sinner by nature. By generation he descends from corruption, and in the language of the pious patriarch, "Who can bring a clean thing out of an unclean?" The answer is, "Not one."

The Bible declares that "all have sinned"; that "sin entered into the world, and death by sin; and so death passed upon all men, for that all have sinned." Ruined, depraved, demoralized, physically, morally and spiritually; no soundness in him, from the crown of the head to the sole of his foot; [illegible] God's description of man in the fall,—"Dust thou art, and unto dust shalt thou return." Man is not only declared to be a sinner, which is true, and in consequence of which he has forfeited his claim and right to life, but he is more than a sinner; he is an enemy—at enmity with God, his Creator and Friend. He is represented also as a rebel fighting against God; full of all wickedness and deceit. The Father, nevertheless, in love sends to the rebel a message of mercy, an invitation to return, and this is the message: "Come now, and let us reason together, saith the Lord: though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be as white as snow; though they be red like crimson, they shall be as wool." Isa. 1: 18. Again, man in his natural state is represented as an alien, a wanderer from home, estranged from the home of his nativity, "far off," having no rights and privileges as a citizen, without hope, and without God in the world. Thus as a sinner, an enemy, an alien, a stranger, a foreigner, a child of wrath, dead in trespasses and sins, Pollok in his "Course of Time" has pictured the natural man in the lines below.

> "That man—that every man of every clime
> And hue, of every age and every rank,
> Was bad—by nature and by practice bad;
> In understanding blind, in will perverse;
> In heart corrupt, in every thought and word,
> Imagination, passion and desire,
> Most utterly depraved throughout, and ill
> In sight of heaven, though less in sight of man;
> At enmity with God, his Maker, born,
> And by his very life an heir of death:
> That man—that every man was, farther, most
> Unable to redeem himself, or pay
> One mite of his vast debt to God—nay, more,
> Was most reluctant and averse to be > Redeemed, and sin's most voluntary slave."

Here men's utter ruin is described, and that ruin is final and eternal, unless a remedy is provided. Is there a remedy? Where? In the heart of Jehovah—in the bosom of God. He had given his only Son, the darling of his bosom, whom he freely gave as a ransom for all. "For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him might not perish, but have everlasting life." He tasted death for every man by the grace of God. It has been said that God was under no obligation to man either to pity his misery or repair his ruin. But what are the possibilities in his case? Why, that man may be saved from sin, yea, from all sin; and instead of his being under the dominion and condemnation of sin, he can be made free from sin. We use the term save or saved, when we speak of conversion, as it relates to man's spiritual condition, a change from death unto life. The term means that his sins are forgiven in consequence of his believing in the name and blood of Jesus, whose name and blood only can place man in a saved condition. It signifies that the sinner is pardoned, and in a state of justification before God.

The ground of the sinner's justification is faith in Christ, who gave himself a ransom for all. This includes every sin that man may commit. Man's utter ruin is met by an "uttermost" salvation. Wherefore Paul says, "He is able to save to the uttermost all that come unto God by him, seeing he ever liveth to make intercession for us." Thus all who are far off can be brought nigh by the blood of Christ. Rebels can become reconciled to God, and taught to ground the weapons of their rebellion, and then become the loyal subjects of a heavenly state. Strangers can be brought nigh, and form very intimate relations with the Father and the Son. Yea, it is possible for a true friendship to spring up and continue. Foreigners and aliens can return home, and become "fellow citizens with the saints and of the household of God." The prodigal can learn his wretched condition, and awake to the importance of returning to his Father's house; he can come, and the Father will pity and love him, put on him the best robe, "make merry and be glad." Hence sinners become saints, enemies become friends, foreigners become citizens, children of wrath become children of God. Men dead in trespasses and sins are quickened together with Christ, and become "living stones, built up a spiritual house."

Here we have the contrast illustrated in a very striking manner. We have man's helpless condition in his normal state represented throughout the Scriptures as ruined, and unwilling to be saved; capable of sinning and capable of dying; "having no hope, and without God in the world." "But God who is rich in mercy"—here is the spring of human redemption—"not that we loved him," but he first loved man. Christ, the only begotten Son, hath full atonement made. In his love and in his pity he paid the price which justice demanded. "To as many as received him gave he power to become the sons of God, even to them that believe on his name."

The gospel affords us much consolation. It does not leave the believer without hope. Hence the question, What we shall be? let the Bible answer. John says, "It doth not yet appear what we shall be, but we know that when he [Christ] shall appear, we shall be like him, for we shall see him as he is." Paul says, "We look for the Saviour, the Lord Jesus Christ, who shall change our vile body, that it may be fashioned like unto his glorious body." "For we shall all be changed, in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye." Jesus says, "Neither can they die any more; for they are equal unto the angels; and are the children of God, being the children of the resurrection." "This corruptible must put on incorruption, and this mortal must put on immortality." "Kings and priests unto God," "glorified together with him," "we shall reign on the earth." Thus ransomed, justified, sanctified, glorified, we shall be like him. Jesus says, "I give unto them eternal life"; "fellow citizens with the saints"; "equal unto the angels"; "heirs of God, and joint heirs with Christ." These will possess the heavenly kingdom forever and ever. Amen.

THE APPROACHING END OF THE AGE.—No. 5.

BY GEO. E. FULLEN.

In the fifth and sixth chapters of Revelation we have narrated at length the vision of a book sealed with seven seals. Events transpire under the sixth seal that bring us to the commencement of the day of God. Let us notice briefly, these events, and learn if possible our position on the stream of time.

The opening event of this seal is a great earthquake. On Nov. 1st, 1755, Europe was visited by an earthquake, the shock of which was felt all over the globe, and multitudes of people were killed in a few minutes. This is said by some to be the greatest earthquake recorded in history. Its effects were most keenly felt at Lisbon, Portugal, where 60,000 people perished in six minutes, and St. Ubes was swallowed up in the sea.

The next event is thus described by the Revelator: "The sun became black as sackcloth of hair." May 19th, 1780, from 10 A. M. till evening was the most memorable dark day recorded in history. It came at just the right time to fulfill the prophecy. The sun before disappearing presented a black and smoky appearance. The inspired seer continues: "The moon became as blood." The night succeeding the dark day was as unusually dark as the day, and toward morning the moon assumed the color of blood. In 1822 the same phenomena was witnessed in the old world. Mr. Beadle, missionary at Aleppo, says, "The moon appeared as red as blood. This greatly alarmed the inhabitants, who were continually crying out that the day of judgment had come."

Next in the divine order comes the falling of the stars, by which we are not to understand the fixed stars, but what are commonly called shooting stars, or meteors. This event is thus described: "And the stars of heaven fell unto the earth, even as a fig-tree casteth her untimely figs when she is shaken of a mighty wind." In these few words is described what actually transpired on the night of Nov. 13, 1833. For five and a half hours appeared the grandest display of celestial fireworks ever seen, at least within the annals covered by history. The darkness of the night was illuminated by millions of dazzling meteors. To use the words of an eye-witness, "the heavens appeared to rain fire."

Thus far the prophecy has been fulfilled to the letter. What is said to follow next? "The heavens departed as a scroll when it is rolled together." Stupendous thought! Are we standing where we can expect soon to see the opening heavens reveal the majestic form of the Son of man descending to earth accompanied by bright angelic hosts? How can we escape this conclusion without denying the veracity of the sure, prophetic Word?

What shall the wicked of the earth do when he appears? We turn to the record and read: "The kings of the earth, and the great men, and the rich men, and the chief captains, and the mighty men, and every bond man, and every free man, hid themselves in the dens, and in the rocks of the mountains." Here we see all classes of wicked men involved in the same awful calamity, all subject to the same awful doom. Consternation seizes upon all, and in mortal terror they attempt to hide themselves from the vast, the awful form that has so suddenly appeared. They hope, but in vain, to find refuge among the rocks and mountains from the terrible presence of the Judge. In despair they cry out to the mountains and rocks, "Fall on us, and hide us from the face of him that sitteth on the throne, and from the wrath of the Lamb: for the great day of his wrath is come; and who shall be able to stand?"

The prophet Isaiah has described the same event in these words: "And they shall go into the holes of the rocks, and into the caves of the earth, for fear of the Lord, and for the glory of his majesty, when he ariseth to shake terribly the earth." Isa. 2: 19. The question, Who shall be able to stand? is one we cannot afford to pass by. It is evident that none of the ungodly shall stand; only the pure in heart can stand in that great and trying day. Let us strive to be of that number.

Mattapoisett, Mass.

WHICH GENERATION?

BY S. HALL.

In our Lord's great prophecy, as narrated by his apostles, a series of events were given that should transpire during the long period of his absence that would serve as guides to his tried and persecuted followers. For as they saw the fulfillment of these events, one after another, they would know they were drawing so much nearer the time of his return, and their own reward. And in our day we can clearly see the almost complete fulfillment of all things he foretold in answering the disciple's question in regard to his coming and end of the world.

In the last of the series Christ gave some signs which as he said would show to his people when his advent was specially nigh. But just here I was for a long time not a little perplexed. In further considering the subject, however, no difficulty seems to exist; all appears clear and plain, and I know not but it does to many others.

After the signs had been witnessed, Jesus said that events of great magnitude, including his own coming, would be near. He proposed to them also this comparison: Consider the fig tree and the other trees. When ye observe them shooting forth, ye know that the summer is nigh. In like manner when ye shall see these things happen, know that he is near, even at the door.

But when these things begin to come to pass, then look up, and lift up your heads, for your redemption approacheth. And the church has done this to a considerable extent. It is said that when the sun was darkened hundreds of ministers were moved to proclaim that it was a sign of the Lord's coming. But this was fifty-three years before the falling of the stars, and his coming is not said to be nigh at hand until ye shall see all these things transpire; and then its nearness is measured by the generation. And it does not appear that any other than these celestial signs were ever given by our Lord to indicate his near coming. The record of his discourse, as given by Mark, agrees with that of Matthew, that following these signs would be the shaking of the powers of heaven; and this with the sign and coming of the Son of man are the events to which the signs point; and according to Luke, Jesus, after saying "There shall be signs in the sun, and in the moon, and in the stars," expressly declares that a time of great consternation and fearful foreboding will come upon the nations, not from seeing these signs, but gives this as the reason: "For the powers of heaven shall be shaken." Heb. 12: 26. He elsewhere foretold the characteristics of the last times (Luke 17), as do the apostles in their letters, but these were not designed to aid in computing the time of the advent very definitely.

In the prophecy the signs and the events which they portend are given connectedly. We will not confound the one with the other, if we heed the parable. The budding trees were not referred to as showing summer to be already here. They do not show it, they only show it to be near. Thus it appears an unavoidable conclusion that the present is the last generation, and that thousands of those who when young witnessed that wonderful phenomena in 1833, and have a vivid recollection of it, will also see the ushering in of the day of the Lord. And that this will be the case, is also made, I think, indubitably clear by other prophecies.

THE MIDNIGHT OF THE CHURCH THE WORLD'S NOONDAY.

BY PHILO HITCHCOCK.

Earth has its night time. It has been a long one, a dark one. It shall not be an eternal one. Night began on earth when sin entered. So great was the change, and so terrible the effect, that the birds of paradise ceased their singing, the animals became beasts of prey, and the garden that God's own hand had planted assumed the livery of death. From that day to this the groaning creation has throbbed with the destroying curse.

It is still night on earth, God being the judge. He decides its character by its moral quality. Not by its number of railroads, newspapers, arts or sciences. He does not pronounce a thing grand and beautiful unless it is pure and holy. It is very evident that the masses love earth's night much better than the glories of coming day. Beasts of prey love the darkness of night. They roam in search of victims who are innocent of all danger. The peaceable lamb retires in silence during the night hours, and leaps for joy at the approach of day.

The church of God are passing through the latest hours of her midnight journey. Satan and his vile companions are having a jubilee. A thousand bacchanalian feasts, like Belshazzar's feast of old, are in active operation. They are in the church and out of it. Pleasure parties are in full blast, and the prayer meeting cries for help. Church members, sick or well, will travel long miles to a worldly festival, while a mild dew will keep them from the house of God. This is the condition of earth to-day. But upon the walls of these feast chambers God's hand writing is being seen. Soon Jehovah's announcement will be heard: "Weighed in the balances and found wanting."

CHRIST'S SECOND COMING.

BY MRS. S. B. HAWLEY.

Jesus' personal mission on earth being accomplished, he gathered his apostles around him on the Mount of Olivet, and gave them his farewell message. He had given his life a ransom for the sins of a guilty world, that those who believe in him might have everlasting life. Stern justice had been satisfied, and now he was about to return to his Father. We are told that he led them out as far as to Bethany, and lifted up his hands and blessed them; and while he blessed them he was parted from them and carried up into heaven. What must have been the feelings of those disciples as they saw their once crucified but risen Saviour ascending from their view, watching him until the clouds received him out of their sight! But while they stood thus gazing up into heaven, behold two men stood by them in white apparel, which also said, "Ye men of Galilee, why stand ye gazing up into heaven? This same Jesus, which is taken up from you into heaven, shall so come in like manner as ye have seen him go into heaven."

He had left his disciples, but left them a promise that he would come again. But when will this promise be fulfilled? Do not the signs of the times all point to his speedy return? Has not the gospel been preached to nearly all the world? Are there not wars and rumors of wars? Have not earthquakes prevailed to a greater extent than usual? Do not men hate one another, and are not some without natural affection? Are not the prophecies nearly all fulfilled? And although Jesus said, "but of that day and hour knoweth no man," yet he has also shown by the parable of the fig tree that when we shall see all these things come to pass, we may know that it is near, even at the doors. Was not Noah warned of the approach of the flood, and ordered to build an ark for the saving of himself and household?

We are told that as it was in the days of Noah, so shall it be in the end of the world. The wicked would not believe that the flood was coming to destroy them. And are there not many now scoffing at those who are looking for the soon coming of Jesus, watching for the Bridegroom when he shall come to claim his bride. But the question with us is, are we ready to meet him when he comes? Will he find us watching for his return? Shall we be able to say, "This is our God, we have waited for him? Shall we hear the welcome plaudit, "Well done, good and faithful servant, enter thou into the joy of thy Lord, to go no more out forever? Will he hide us until the indignation be overpast, until the earth shall be burned up, with all the works that are therein, until the new earth in its Eden beauty shall appear?

I have often thought as I have looked upon the earth, especially at this season of the year, when the trees give promise of the coming fruit, and the ground is covered with grass, dotted here and there with wild flowers that delight the eye, that if this earth under the curse of the broken law is so beautiful, what beauties and pleasures will await us on the new earth, when we shall be permitted to meet dear friends who have slept in Jesus, and with them partake of the tree of life, where separation will be no more feared, where no one shall say I am sick, where there will be no more graves. For the curse will be removed, and nothing will harm or make afraid.

But what will be the doom of those who slight God's invitations of mercy so freely offered? What will they do when they see Jesus coming in the clouds of heaven? We are told that every eye shall see him, and they also that pierced him. Although some will call on rocks and mountains to fall on them and hide them, yet rocks and mountains will not obey; they must be brought to judgment to receive their sentence, which will be, "depart, ye cursed, into everlasting fire, prepared for the devil and his angels." And from the sentence there will be no reprieve; it will be too late to seek for pardon. But now there is a way of escape, there is an open door. Flee for thy life, sinner; look not behind thee until thou art safe within the fold! Accept of offered pardon on gospel terms, and thou art safe.

> "Safe in the arms of Jesus,
> Safe on his gentle breast;
> There, by his love o'ershaded,
> Sweetly thy soul shall rest."

May God grant that in that day we may be able to find rest within the fold.

PREACH THE WORD.—No fanciful exegesis, no evasive, conciliatory glosses. The word—the word from Sinai, spoken on earth; the word from Calvary; the word given on the day of Pentecost. "The soul that sinneth, it shall die." "Except ye repent, ye shall all likewise perish." "He that believeth shall be saved." "There is no other name given under heaven among men whereby we must be saved." These and the like are the testimonies of the gospel. The uncompromising demand for conviction, repentance, justification, regeneration, and a holy life, is the only thing that will satisfy the requirements of the day. True morality is impossible without these, and the highest measure of manhood and life are to be attained in no other way. They offer the only antidote to the inwrought, abiding and destructive depravity of the people of all classes, from the highest to the lowest.—Bishop Wilson.

OUR ANNUAL GATHERINGS.

It seems but yesterday that our great camps at Amboy, Springfield and Alton Bay broke up. Looking forward then another year stretched away like a long, toilsome journey beset with thronging dangers; looking back now it seems as the rush of a fevered dream. A little more hard toil; a few more sharp contests; here and there another brave hand palsied, another heroic voice silenced, another manly form gone down in the struggle; a few more volleys of truth, all along the line, poured into the confused ranks of error—and here we are face to face again with our great annual encampments—a kind of grand and solemn review; a reunion of comrades in arms.

There is a deep tinge of the pathetic in these great meetings. Some who went forth to the battle last year, arm in arm with strong and trusted companions, return singly and alone; and many voices which helped to swell the great songs of tented worship are hushed in the stillness of the death slumber—silent, not forever, but until, at the great Master's call, they shall "awake and sing." In the mighty volumes of praise that will fill the leafy amphitheatres this year, there will be strains of sadness, touching many an aching heart.

But these annual meetings have, also, an atmosphere of gladness. It is indeed a pleasure for the thousands of toilers to meet in these great convocations, look into each other's faces, and feel the throbbings of a multitude of hearts, all swayed by the same grand impulse, fired by the same divine inspiration, and allied by the power of the same "blessed hope." There can be no harm in the hearty greetings of thousands of our people who are privileged to see each other's faces but once a year.

But Campmeetings should be lifted far above mere occasions of pleasure—specially Advent Campmeetings. They should be devoted to the most effective work for God and souls. They offer unequalled opportunities for proclaiming the great message of the coming kingdom. They afford rare occasion for preaching and promoting real personal holiness. There are many who hear but little preaching during the intervening months, who depend largely upon the Campmeetings for instruction and comfort. The spiritual needs of this class should be faithfully met. And many come to these meetings in a state of partial or total backsliding. They should be aroused, startled, shocked, by the most solemn and persistent appeal. And multitudes of sinners will come of every grade, from the convinced moralist to the confirmed infidel. These should not be allowed to escape the thunders of the Holy Word. Day by day, service after service, they should be warned of approaching wrath, and hard pressed by the terrible truth of final judgment at hand. Within the precincts of the camp-grounds the gospel has full right of way: and sinners who choose to appear there should not be let off lightly. They should be charged—always in tenderness and love—at the very point of the bayonet. They should be skillfully hunted out of all their false defences, and captured for God. Many conversions should be expected.

The Campmeeting is a critical ordeal for preachers. Satan is a regular attendant at these annual convocations. He is at the preacher's stand early and late, armed with peculiar temptations. The preachers are to be listened to by people from all parts of the country, representatives of many churches. It is a golden opportunity for the manufacture of ministerial reputation. Many a pastor has been chosen on the impression made by a Campmeeting sermon—usually followed by sad disappointment. Half unconsciously, perhaps, the preacher wishes to appear at his best, and selects some favorite theme. The Holy Spirit does not sanction the effort. The speaker becomes declamatory, there is little or no feeling among the people, the effort is a failure, the preacher is chagrined, a grand opportunity is lost—worse than lost.

If there is a place on earth where the preacher needs special help of God it is at Campmeeting. If there is a time in mortal life when it is spiritual treason for the preacher to present himself instead of the gospel, it is at the Campmeeting.

If the preachers will prayerfully select and prepare subjects with reference to the real demands of the occasion, and in humility seek aid of God, they will be likely to have freedom in delivery, and will rarely fail to preach in demonstration of the Spirit and with power.

In the selection of preachers for the Stand the Committee need the guidance of divine wisdom. When great congregations are present, made up largely of people who are not acquainted with our views, the demand for able, attractive preaching is thought to be imperative. There is some force in this, but it should not be carried too far. A plain, common-sense, homely sermon, surcharged with the fire and power of the Spirit, aflame with direct communication with the Throne, is far better for the truth, for souls and for God, than the most entrancing rhetoric—which is only rhetoric.

At the zenith of Robert Hall's great pulpit power and popularity, a young man fresh from Oxford preached one day in his pulpit. The discourse was fine, finished, faultless. As the young man sat down and looked wistfully to the great preacher for some word or glance of commendation, Hall clasped his hands, closed his eyes, and in great earnestness cried, "Lord, set fire to it! Lord, set fire to it!"

Let us hope that the Campmeetings this year will surpass in power and success any heretofore experienced. That would, indeed, be expecting great things. But there is no good reason why it may not be realized. The possibilities of faith and prayer and earnest work are immense. The motives for supreme effort were never before so grand and inspiring.

PROPHECY OF ZECHARIAH.
Chapters 12, 13, and 14.

CHAPTER 14.

Verses 1, 2. "Behold, the day of the Lord cometh, and thy spoil shall be divided in the midst of thee. For I will gather all nations against thee to battle, and the city shall be taken, and the houses rifled, and the women ravished; and half of the city shall go forth into captivity, and the residue of the people shall not be cut off from the city."

The day of the Lord's temporal "wrath on this people," instead of the final day of judgment, is here introduced. After the ravages of the Roman war (the armies being composed of all nationalities) half of the people remaining were taken into captivity, while a broken spirited remnant were left in the land of Judea, poverty stricken and helpless, to suffer. The chastisement was terrible. the Roman forces, composed of various nationalities, being used as the scourge, in the hand of the Lord, to produce this national calamity, in fulfillment of the prediction of the Saviour: "For the days shall come upon thee, that thine enemies shall cast a trench about thee, and compass thee round, and keep thee in on every side, and shall lay thee even with the ground, and thy children within thee; and they shall not leave within thee one stone upon another; because thou knewest not the time of thy visitation." Luke 19: 43. Again: "And they shall fall by the edge of the sword, and they shall be led away captive into all nations: and Jerusalem shall be trodden down of the Gentiles, until the times of the Gentiles be fulfilled." Luke 21: 24. So this captivity was to span "the times of the Gentiles," before the next feature of the prophecy should be due. But after this long captivity is over, covering so many centuries, what next is foretold by the prophet? Answer:

Verse 3. "Then shall the Lord go forth, and fight against those nations, as when he fought in the day of battle." When? Not at the capture of the city, as some have supposed, but next in order after the predicted captivity, which lasts till the close of Gentile times, or till the end of this dispensation: then, and not till then, comes the "battle of the great day." Then, at the coming of the Lord, he shall conquer all the nations of earth.

Verses 4–11. "And his feet shall stand in that day upon the Mount of Olives which is before Jerusalem on the east, and the Mount of Olives shall cleave in the midst thereof toward the east and toward the west, and there shall be a very great valley: and half of the mountain shall remove toward the north, and half of it toward the south. And ye shall flee to the valley of the mountains; for the valley of the mountains shall reach unto Azal: yea, ye shall flee, like as ye fled from before the earthquake in the days of Uzziah king of Judah: and the Lord my God shall come, and all the saints with thee. And it shall come to pass in that day, that the light shall not be clear, nor dark [or "shall not be clear in some places, and dark in other places of the world." Margin:] but it shall be one [continual] day which shall be known to the Lord, not day, nor night: but it shall come to pass, that at evening time it shall be light [instead of growing dark.] And it shall be in that day, that living waters shall go forth from Jerusalem; half of them toward the former sea, and half of them toward the hinder sea: in summer and in winter shall it be. And the Lord shall be king over all the earth: and in that day there shall be one Lord, and his name one. All the land shall be turned as a plain from Geba to Rimmon south of Jerusalem: and it shall be lifted up, and inhabited in her place, from Benjamin's gate unto the place of the first gate, unto the corner gate, and from the tower of Hannaeel unto the king's winepresses. And men shall dwell in it, and there shall be no more utter destruction; but Jerusalem shall be safely inhabited."

Here we have a glowing description of the coming of the Lord, the gathering of the saints, the restitution, and the final reign of Christ "over all the earth," after which "there shall be no more utter destruction; but Jerusalem shall be safely inhabited:" so what follows in this chapter cannot be in consecutive order—cannot be fulfilled subsequent to this graphic picture—but must revert back to an earlier point in Jerusalem's history. With this thought in mind, we proceed.

Verses 12–21. "And this shall be the plague wherewith the Lord will smite all the people that have fought against Jerusalem; their flesh shall consume away while they stand upon their feet, and their eyes shall consume away in their holes, and their tongue shall consume away in their mouth. And it shall come to pass in that day, that a great tumult from the Lord shall be among them: and they shall lay hold every one on the hand of his neighbor, and his hand shall rise up against the hand of his neighbor. And Judah also shall fight at Jerusalem; and the wealth also of the heathen round about shall be gathered together, gold, and silver, and apparel, in great abundance. And so shall be the plague of the horse, of the mule, of the camel, and of the ass, and of all of the beasts that shall be in these tents, as this plague. And it shall come to pass that every one that is left of all the nations which came against Jerusalem, shall even go up from year to year to worship the King, the Lord of hosts, and to keep the feast of tabernacles. And it shall be that whoso will not come up of all the families of the earth unto Jerusalem to worship the king, the Lord of hosts, even upon them shall be no rain. And if the family of Egypt go not up, and come not, that have no rain; there shall be the plague, wherewith the heathen that come not up to keep the feast of tabernacles. This shall be the punishment of Egypt, and the punishment of all nations that come not up to keep the feast of tabernacles. In that day there shall be upon the bells of the horses, holiness unto the Lord; and the pots in the Lord's house shall be like the bowls before the altar. Yea, every pot in Jerusalem and in Judah shall be holiness unto the Lord of hosts: and all they that sacrifice shall come and take of them and see the [boil] therein: and in that day there shall be no more the Canaanite in the house of the Lord of hosts."

Here, the prophet instead of continuing consecutively after having reached the end of his chain, simply reverts back to the beginning of the prophecy in the 12th chapter, where he alluded to making Jerusalem "a cup of trembling," and a "burdensome stone for all people," that should be hostile to Jerusalem: and pictures the national greatness to which they were entitled by obedience, and the curses that should fall upon their foes; but, alas, these conditions not having been complied with, specified in the Divine contract, their claim to national grandeur, and miraculous displays of wrath against their foes, was forfeited. If they had fully obeyed the Lord, they would have been exalted as a nation above their foes after Nehemiah had reorganized them into a nation with a fortified capital; and the Lord would have interposed miraculously to have overthrown their foes, and have made them subservient and tributary to the Jews, and have compelled them to visit the Jewish capital annually under pain of punishment in the line of the stipulated curses; and holiness in the Jewish nation would have been the order of the day, being inscribed upon the bells and pots throughout the nation; and the work of offering sacrifices, and the celebration of the feast of tabernacles would have been respected by all the people far and near.

It will avail nothing to say that Zachariah did not say, in uttering this national prophecy, that its fulfillment depended upon a compliance with conditions, since God himself connects conditions with every national prophecy, whether relating to temporal elevation, or to temporal degradation: "At what instant I speak concerning a nation, and concerning a kingdom, to pluck up, and to pull down, and to destroy it; if that nation against whom I have pronounced, turn from their evil, I will repent of the evil that I thought to do unto them. And at what instant I speak concerning a nation, and concerning a kingdom to build, and to plant it; if it do evil in my sight, that it obey not my voice, then I will repent of the good, wherewith I said I would benefit them." Jer. 18: 7–10. Nothing can be plainer than this rule which underlies all national predictions, whether always repeated, or not; and it is certain that the Jews, in the light of this rule, forfeited all claim to the national elevation portrayed by Zechariah, and remained a diminutive people, tributary to their enemies.

When this prediction, so full of "sacrifices," and "feasts of tabernacles," is taken out of the age to which these ceremonies belonged, and is placed in an age subsequent to their abrogation, a great mistake is made, and confusion is thrown in where all is otherwise harmony. And all this arises from overlooking the fact that the prophet had reached the end of his prophetic chain at the close of the eleventh verse of the 14th chapter, and then, instead of continuing on beyond the end of his chain, he merely recapitulates, and enlarges upon the first part of his prophecy, which related to the sacrificial age—specifying plagues and punishments to fall upon those who should make war on the Jewish nation, and portraying the elevation to which the Jewish kingdom was entitled to rise, towering high above other nations, being the "head," and not the "tail" of earthly nations; but at the very beginning of their history the information was given them that this national greatness was contingent on stipulated conditions, and that if they did not meet these conditions fully, this national greatness and glory should never be enjoyed by them. Many other glowing promises of national exaltation have failed, and ever will fail of a fulfillment, because the conditions have been disregarded. When God says, If you will not keep your part of the contract, I will not fulfill on my part, he will surely keep his word with every nation. W. S.

TWO RESURRECTIONS.

"Thou shalt be recompensed at the resurrection of the just." Luke 14: 14. The Saviour had been telling how to make a feast. He said: "When you makest a feast, call the poor, the maimed, the lame, the blind, and thou shalt be blessed; for they cannot recompense thee; for thou shalt be recompensed at the resurrection of the just." Provided all are to be raised at the same time, why did the Saviour say they should "be recompensed at the resurrection of the just?" Why did he not say "at the resurrection?" If he had said "at the resurrection," then we could reasonably conclude that either all will be raised at the same time, or that the wicked will not be raised at all. One may be considered as standing on very safe ground, who says, if all rise at once, when Jesus comes, then all will be saved, or else the wicked will not be raised. But if there are to be two resurrections, the first of the just, and the second of the unjust, with a period of time between; then it would be quite proper to say, "Thou shalt be recompensed at the resurrection of the just."

Are the unjust to be raised? The only correct answer must come from the Bible. What is the testimony of the inspired on this subject? There shall be a resurrection of the dead, BOTH of the just and unjust." Acts. 24: 15. The fact that all will be raised could not be more clearly expressed than in this passage just quoted. Jesus also says: "All that are in the graves shall hear his voice, and shall come forth: they that have done good unto the resurrection of life; and they that have done evil, unto the resurrection of damnation." John 5: 28-29. This plain declaration of our Saviour should satisfy every one, that all the dead will be raised. He knows. From his testimony there can be no appeal. So, before Christ came, the prophet Daniel was inspired to say, when speaking of those who "sleep in the dust of earth," that they "shall awake, some to everlasting life, and some to shame and everlasting contempt." Dan. 12: 2. Thus we find Paul, Christ and Daniel all declaring the great truth that all will be raised from the dead, "both of the just and unjust." If the testimony of these inspired witnesses is disputed, it would be useless to bring more.

As it is settled by Divine testimony that "both . . . the just and unjust" shall rise from the dead, and that the righteous shall "be recompensed at the resurrection of the just;" the next question to be settled is, will they all rise at the same time, when Christ comes to gather his saints; or will the unjust remain in their graves for a period after the just have been raised? We turn to the last revelation from God, and read: "But the rest of the dead lived not again until the thousand years were finished." Rev. 20: 5. Here is a plain statement, that there is to be a "thousand years" between the two resurrections. We then read: "Blessed and holy is he that hath part in the first resurrection; on such the second death hath no power, but they shall be priests of God and of his Christ, and shall reign with him a thousand years." Rev. 20: 6. We find these thousand specified six times and they are fixed between the resurrection of the saints and those who die the "second death." Now all is plain, and in harmony with the saying of Jesus, in Luke 14: 14, that his disciples will "be recompensed at the resurrection of the just." But if all are to rise at the same time, why does the Lord say: "Blessed and holy is he that hath part in the first resurrection?" There is no meaning to the word "first" in this connection, if there is not to be a second. But all questioning and reasoning are put to silence by the positive statement: "But the rest of the dead lived not again until the thousand years were finished." Let us believe the Lord, if it spoils all our theories. M. G.

FOR SUNDAY SCHOOL WORKERS.

BY [illegible] BURR.

The interest in Sunday School work still continues, although the methods employed to keep it up are mostly of a local character. It seems to me it would be a grand thing if our Campmeeting Committees could be induced to give one half day service on the camp grounds to the topic of Sunday School work. Why not? A great proportion of the converts who have joined our churches the last year were from the Sunday Schools. It is very strange that any should feel inclined to neglect the youth, or to leave them to find their religious associations elsewhere than where the parents do. A good Sunday School indicates a working church.

The Blessed Hope Quarterly for the third quarter is now ready for delivery. Its circulation is on the increase, and we hope it is of much use in assisting our Sunday School workers in teaching the truth. Those who make the most thorough use of the Quarterly like it the best. A school is greatly benefitted by having proper and interesting introductory and closing exercises. The superintendents should see to this. A ten minutes' general talk with the school before it closes, is a good way to promote interest. Study up the topic of the lesson, and get something to tell, or to ask about it.

We are going to study the lives of Elijah and Elisha in the lessons the rest of this year. The lessons are full of points of interest. Children like to hear about these old prophets. You will find interesting things about them in the notes of the Quarterly. You who do not go to Sunday School will find much information and thought which you can read and study at home, if you get a Quarterly and follow the lessons in it. Try it, and see. Six cents will get a copy, and it will give you the lessons for three months.

FROM B. FORESTER.

Dear Editor:—The Master's cause is flourishing here. I have three regular appointments. Hazel Grove, Highland, and East Nodaway. At the first named place we have a very earnest church. It is only a little over a year old, but they are laborers. It is a "feast of fat things" to me to meet with them in the prayer and social circles. They are now conducting a splendid Sunday School. May the Good Shepherd teach them how to feed the lambs, and to lead them out into the light and love of God.

Activity is necessary to life, as well as usefulness. Inactivity is the mother of uselessness, stagnation and death. Christian work is co-operative. "We are laborers together with God." Nor will God do our part. We can no more reap a spiritual harvest where we have not sown, than we can mow where we have not planted.

"When we have finished with time, 'twill be known
How we have gathered and how we have sown."

May God grant that the dear ones at Hazel Grove may continue their "labor of love" until Jesus shall say, Enough.

I told you last winter of my meeting at Highland. I have been preaching there once in two weeks ever since. June 20th we have appointed to set in order a church there. This is one of the oldest and principal M. E. neighborhoods in this section. On that account we felt reluctant about organizing another church (for we can truly say we have no disposition to rejoice over the adversity of any one); but if there is anything in truth that they will not accept which hurts them, I cannot help them, for I do not feel that I dare put my "light under a bushel."

There has been no little stir at this place. The Presiding Elder and two other ministers have tried to stay the change of public opinion, but all to no purpose. We hope to see a church built up there that will "adorn the doctrine of God in all things."

At East Nodaway we have no church organized. This is the home of our much esteemed brother, P. S. Buck. His daily walk has won him many friends, and done much to remove the stain left by those who "hold the truth in unrighteousness." When a storm threatens, some people leave "their light burning." Would it not be well if in these times when "darkness covers the land and gross darkness the people," more lights were left burning throughout the week? We have found very earnest help and sympathy in Bro. and Sr. I. M. Tomlinson, who now live at Nodaway. May God bless them. I hope to be able to "preach the word" in its purity to this people, for it is "the power of God unto salvation."

I hope we shall have a glorious rally at our Campmeeting this year. Brethren, let us get ready.

THE CO-OPERATIVE ASSOCIATION

Is legally and thoroughly organized under the corporate name of "The Christian Burden Bearers' Association." The application blanks are in the press (June 13), and will be forwarded to such who have expressed a desire to join, and any others sending a stamp with their address will also be supplied. The blanks now ready will give all needful information. We cannot reasonably expect our excellent editorial committee would permit an article upon this subject to appear in the Crisis very often, for important as this temporal matter is, matters of eternal interest should not give place to it; so if you do not see this subject mentioned in these columns do not think it dead, for I fully believe the Lord is in the work, and we shall push it in his name, and by his divine favor. We are all ready to receive members. Address your brother in Christ, C. R. CROSSETT, Portsmouth, N. H.

NOTE. Under the complications which attach to this matter, we feel that it is due to Bro. Crossett to publish this brief notice, although we do not intend to open the paper to this kind of business matter.—AGENT.

CHURCH NEWS.

G. W. BAILEY, Worcester, Mass., writes:—"The little church in Rutland enjoyed a rich treat last Sunday, June 14th. We had a most blessed meeting in the Lord. About thirty went up from Worcester in an omnibus and private teams, some sixteen miles, starting in the early morning and getting there in season for the morning meeting. We had an excellent social meeting in which nearly all took part. The Spirit of the Lord was there to bless. At the noon hour we repaired to the water near by and had the privilege to witness, at the hands of Bro. Wm. O. Hale of Worcester, the baptism of five into the likeness of Christ's burial and resurrection; and a most blessed season it was. In the afternoon we had the privilege of listening to Bro. Hale from Rom. 6: 17. After the discourse we had the Lord's supper. At half past five we had the closing meeting of the day, and an excellent meeting it was, nearly all testifying to the goodness of the Lord. It will be a day long to be remembered by the little church at R."

MR. GLADSTONE'S RETIREMENT.

The downfall of the Gladstone ministry partakes more of the character of a victory than a defeat. The Conservatives could hardly come into power under more untoward circumstances, and seldom has a ministry had less promise of permanency than that of Lord Salisbury. It is really Mr. Gladstone who is master of the situation; and it would seem that nothing short of a miracle could prevent an overwhelming Liberal victory in the general elections which must soon take place.

The defeat of the Government came suddenly and unexpectedly. It was not the result of a long and desperate party struggle over a vital question of public policy, such as the Sudan and Afghan disputes have presented several times, nor of a determined effort of the Conservatives to regain ascendency. More than once they tried, when the public mind seemed ripe for a change, to break down the Government's support in Parliament, and come into power on a wave of popular favor; but they only succeeded in reducing the Liberal majority. The feeling of indignation toward the Government for its vacillating course in the Sudan, and for its neglect of Gordon was strong and deep, and if the Conservatives had had leaders of ability and tact, they might have forced it to resign. Such a leader as Beaconsfield would certainly have used an opportunity like this, or like that which arose when the Russians marched against the Afghans, to reinstate his party in power. But the Conservatives, conscious of their lack of an able and judicious statesman, seemed to prefer to let matters take their natural course, and rely on chance or the faint hope of success in the coming elections. It certainly was not their design or choice that the transfer of government responsibility should be made at this juncture. But they have decided to accept the duty so suddenly forced upon them, though with reluctance.

The question on which the ministry suffered defeat was a ridiculously small one, compared with issues involving the honor, integrity and prestige of British rule, such as the foreign policy of the Government has given rise to in the past two years. But the Briton's conscience and courage are roused to the highest pitch when his personal possessions and privileges are threatened; and while he might suffer Russia to march her victorious army to the borders of India, and even condone the neglect which sacrificed the hero Gordon to the barbarous vengeance of the False Prophet, he hurls a ministry from power the moment it proposes to increase the tax on alcoholic liquors. It is indeed a strange and unedifying spectacle—British statesmen resisting to the utmost an additional tax on whisky for the purpose of revenue, and defeating a ministry because it would not levy instead an extra duty on tea or sugar. Mr. Gladstone might well warn the Conservatives that the vote was one of life or death, and they must accept the consequences. But, of course, the difference on this question does not tell the whole story of the defeat. There was a serious, if not irreconcilable, division in the ministry on the Irish Coercion measure. The minority would not consent even to a modified bill. The Act had expired by limitation, and the necessity for it had ceased, and Mr. Chamberlain and some of his ministerial colleagues thought the pacification of Ireland would be hindered rather than helped by reviving, even in mild form, the obnoxious measure. The Irish Liberals voted with the Conservatives, not because they wanted a Conservative government, but to express their feeling against Mr. Gladstone's coercion policy. The defeat was the result of a combination of circumstances, against which Mr. Gladstone might easily have prevailed, if he had cared to do so. It is quite evident that he is glad to retire from a position which had become difficult and harassing, and allow the Conservatives to assume control, under great disadvantage.

How the Marquis of Salisbury, who is not noted for great political wisdom and prudence, will be able to conduct a Conservative Government in the next six months so as to accomplish anything but disaster for his party, it is hard to see. Parliament cannot be immediately prorogued nor dissolved, because public business has not yet been reached. Such business as a Tory Ministry may bring forward must be transacted by a Liberal Parliament. A Premier who comes into power at a critical moment, with a Parliament politically opposed to him, and a discontented party behind him, has anything but a happy outlook. If the Marquis succeeds in distributing the coveted positions so as to placate the clamorous Churchill faction, he must frame a policy that will provide for the extra revenue needed, without disturbing any industry or branch of business. He seems to have an impossible task before him, while Mr. Gladstone, the greatest statesman and most skillful political adversary in England, if not in Europe, freed from the responsibility of government, will see that the Liberals lose no opportunity to strengthen themselves for the elections. This is the second great surprise the "grand old man" has given those who credit him with little political strategy. The vote of credit by a reluctant and suspicious Parliament was a tribute to his genius as a maneuverer, and the dilemma his retirement has forced on the Conservatives proves him to be a leader of remarkable sagacity.—The Independent.

FROM MANY LANDS.

FOREIGN.

LONDON, June 19. Great crowds of people throng all the streets in the neighborhood of the Parliament House. The outpouring of the people to-day is greater by far than at any time since the beginning of the present crisis in public affairs. The police have great difficulty in keeping the entrances to the houses of Parliament clear that members may have easy access. There is an unusually full attendance of members to-day. Liberals and Conservatives are occupying their usual seats.

In the House of Lords to-day the Marquis of Salisbury rose amid cheers and asked Lord Granville to consent to an adjournment of the House until Tuesday next. He said the conferences of Liberals and the Conservatives had not yet reached a stage to enable either side to make a statement. Therefore, it would be more convenient for all to postpone any discussion until Tuesday next, as he had suggested. He wished, however, to make just one observation. It was in respect to a very important order on the paper. He was aware of the importance of pushing the Redistribution of Seats bill to a conclusion, but a very serious question had unfortunately arisen in connection with the measure. It had become known that the Redistribution of Seats bill had destroyed one set of constituencies. The Marquis of Salisbury further objected to the Redistribution of Seats bill, because, when passed in its present form, it would prevent, even in case of necessity, an appeal to the country before November. The motion of the Marquis of Salisbury to adjourn until Tuesday next the consideration of Redistribution of Seats bill was then adopted by a vote of 124 ayes to 56 nays.

In the House of Commons this afternoon Mr. Labouchere asked if it was true that the Marquis of Salisbury was prevented from taking office by his failure to obtain assurances of assistance from the retiring Government. Mr. Labouchere added that he himself and many other Radicals strongly objected to any assurance being given the Conservatives in the event of their taking office.

Mr. Gladstone, in reply to the question of Labouchere, said that when he was last asked a similar question he stated that he had not at that time had any conference with the Marquis of Salisbury. Since then, however, he had received overtures from the Marquis of Salisbury. Should there be any result of any correspondence between the Marquis and himself, it would be made public. There would be no secret understanding whatever. In that the Marquis of Salisbury himself concurred. The House then, on motion of Mr. Gladstone, adjourned until Tuesday next.

ST. PETERSBURG, June 19. The Novoski publishes the following statement: "The Ameer of Cabul has massed nearly all his troops in Afghan Turkestan under his own command. One detachment of the Ameer's troops is armed with 3000 breech-loading guns and 15 field guns, which were presented by the Indian government. This action threatens communications between the Russian troops and their advanced outposts, and endangers the Russian troops should they move towards the Oxus river.

DUBLIN, June 19. Midnight. Earl Spencer's farewell levee and almost royal method of departure, as per official programme in all yesterday's papers, has just been countermanded, and he remains in the castle for the present. This is considered by politicians of both parties as decided evidence of the correctness of the rumors rife all the evening in political circles "that Lord Salisbury will give over the attempt to form a government, and that Lord Hartington will be summoned by the Queen to rearrange the Liberal ministry."

BERLIN, June 19. A serious strike of stonemasons is in progress in this city. The efforts of strikers to prevent other masons from working in buildings in process of erection have led to riots, and many arrests have been made.

DOMESTIC.

LEMARS, IA., June 17. As the reports from outlying districts come in, it becomes evident that the tornado which swept over Plymouth and Cherokee counties was attended with great loss of life. The killed so far reported are: Mrs. William Galo and child, at Marcus, 20 miles east on the Illinois Central road; Nick Mackel, aged 65 years; W. Goechle, aged 26, found in a lake; he was struck over the heart with a plank and instantly killed. Sixteen are reported killed in Cherokee county. Those fatally injured are: Daniel Hayes, Nick Goedert, Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Lane, Mr. Kennedy of Remson, Mr. Moeske, aged 50, Lizzie Moeske and Adam Goechle. Those severely wounded are: John Swain, Mrs. Cramer, Mrs. D. Hayes, and two other ladies in the house; John Gatchle, his wife and two children; John Beaucaire and Mrs. Silas Forbes. The duration of the storm at Lemars was about an hour and a half. The damage in Cherokee county will amount to $20,000; in Woodbury county, $100,000; in Plymouth county, $100,000; in Monona county, $50,000; Ida county, $50,000. There are also reports of damage in Buena Vista, Sac, Pocahontas, Calhoun and Webster counties, but not enough to form an estimate of the loss. At Bavard and Fort Dodge the storm was in the form of wind and rain, having spent its fury.—Ex.

NEW BOOKS.

It is with pleasure we present to the Christian public our new publications, in which the reasons of our faith are presented in a candid and logical manner, and with such a vast amount of scriptural testimony that the books must command the respect of all candid thinkers and Bible students.

"OUR HOPE," OR, WHY ARE WE ADVENTISTS?

The large and increasing demand for this work is an expression of the high appreciation of its merits among our people, and we believe it will accomplish much good in removing unjust prejudice, and enlightening many minds upon the great subject of Christ's Second Advent, and the restitution of all things spoken by the prophets of olden times. We wish that a copy might be placed in the hands of every clergyman in the country. Price single, postpaid, 60 cts.; per dozen, by express, $6.00. AGENT.

HADES, OR THE INTERMEDIATE STATE OF MAN.

A companion volume to "OUR HOPE." By Rev. H. Constable, A. M., containing 367 pages, neatly bound in cloth, lettered in gold, making it ornamental and attractive. This is a reprint of the English edition, and the third edition of the work. The former price was $1.25 per copy. We are able to put them at 60 cts. per copy, $6.00 per dozen, by express. The large sale of this work in the old country is undoubted evidence of its great merit. It is the only work extant, with which we are acquainted, that fully presents an extensive historical and scriptural testimony on the state of man in death. AGENT.

DURATION AND NATURE OF FUTURE PUNISHMENT.

By Rev. H. Constable, A. M., late Prebendary of Cork, Ireland, and author of "HADES, OR THE INTERMEDIATE STATE OF MAN," etc. Neatly bound in cloth; 360 pages, price, 60 cts. single; $6.00 per dozen, by express.

This book has passed through five editions in England. We have the pleasure of presenting to the public the first AMERICAN EDITION at a low price. It is a companion volume to "OUR HOPE" and "HADES," and the three constitute a compendium of theology upon the subjects of the nature of man, intermediate state, future retribution, and life in Christ, that can scarcely be equalled outside of the Bible.

We will send the THREE volumes to Clergymen of any denomination for $1.75 postpaid. Please remember the above applies to Clergymen only. Address all orders to
J. HEMENWAY, Box 5140, Boston, Mass.

A NEW TRACT.
"WHY ARE WE A PEOPLE?"

This handsomely printed Tract of 22 pages is the Discourse preached by ELD. E. A. STOCKMAN at the Special Convention in Worcester, Mass., and published by vote of the Convention. The Tract is eminently timely in its character, and should be scattered by thousands in every direction.

Price (postpaid), two copies for 5 cents, per dozen, 25 cents, per pound, 75 cents. AGENT.

ANOTHER NEW TRACT.
THE END OF THE IMPENITENT.

BY WM. H. MITCHELL.

This tract is the substance of a sermon preached by Bro. Mitchell at Biddeford, and published by the A. C. Publication Society, Boston, Mass. No one acquainted with Bro. Mitchell's pulpit and literary ability will need to be told that this production is eminently worthy of careful reading and wide-spread circulation. The argument is unanswerable, the rhetoric is pure and impressive, the spirit Christian and tender. Let this tract be ordered at once by thousands. Price, two for 5 cts, 20 cts. per dozen. AGENT.

A NEW TRACT.
THE SABBATH ABROGATED.

By Mrs. C. C. Stewart.

A Tract of 16 pages. It is logical and concise, and meets the demand for something that shows up the fallacious claims of the advocates of the Seventh day theory. The Seventh-day people are flooding some sections of the country with Sabbath literature that is calculated to mislead many and bind the yoke of the law upon the people. Give this tract a large circulation. Two for 5 cts., 20 cts. per dozen. AGENT.

NEW PAMPHLET.

THE SABBATH.

"IS IT THE DUTY OF A CHRISTIAN TO OBSERVE THE SEVENTH DAY?" We have received a small lot of tracts on the above question, setting forth the subject in a clear light. AGENT.

LIGHT.

BY EDWIN BURNHAM.

Light "let there be"! Jehovah said.
Light "was"—at his command.
Light "out of darkness" quickly sped.
Light spread on sea and land.
Light shined through the heavens vast.
Light streamed from the sun.
Light on the opaque moon was cast.
Light on all nature shone.
Light gleamed from the starry host.
Light brought earth's beauties forth.
Light shined to the uttermost.
Light gave man's years their birth.
Light blesses the wide world of man.
Light blesses beasts and birds.
Light brings new joys, and ever can.
Light highest good affords.

Light, perfect "light," that light "is life"!
Light, "true," shines from "the Son."
Light cometh not by human strife.
Light is for all—each one.
Light shineth everlastingly.
Light shineth from God's throne.
Light shineth both by night and day.
Light shines to guide man home!
Light will shine clearer at the last.
Light will illume the tomb.
Light will shine clear when "night" is past.
Light will destroy death's gloom.
Light will adorn God's "city" fair.
Light will shine on earth "new."
Light will garnish the heavens there.
Light all "the pure" shall view.
Light will burnish the saintly crowns,
Light will shine on robes white.
Light shall shine where true joy abounds.
Light shall the good delight!

THE GRAVY OF THE GOSPEL.

BY H. MUNGER.

Bro. Stockman:—On reading the first Crisis in June, this illustration came to mind. Bro. Stockman has selected out of his articles of spiritual food a good, suitable variety for one meal; and all that have good appetites can find something to eat. Bro. Couch's article on the prophetic state of the nations was like corned beef, salted and good, and well cooked; just the thing for strong stomachs. Bro. Collier's article would need stronger digestive powers than many have; but the strong will work at it. Bro. Grant's account of sights seen and work done was another variety which made good sauce for the table; but it was across the table and had to be passed, as all could not reach it; and it was baked a month ago, but it made a good variety. When we got to the two editorials, these were like the two kinds of bread which are expected at every meal; but neither was raised with the leaven of the Pharisees, for Christ's coming and the object of his coming are the main pillars of the editorials.

But with all this good solid food we need gravy, which the Editor has furnished by devoting a column to correspondence from warm Christian hearts on experience, in the different localities. Without these little letters from little writers, the Crisis would be like a good dinner without gravy. Some, who are fond of a good paper and a good meeting, withhold little testimonies for Jesus, and thus deprive the dinner of the gravy. I never knew God to work among the people without the weaker members being called into action. God commands us to bestow more abundant honor upon the weaker members. 1 Cor. 12: 22-26. Ever so good logical, prophetical or historical steady preaching will fail to feed a large class of people. Sometimes a little tearful testimony will cut down a hard sinner that nothing else will touch. This is what the colored people call "the gravy of the gospel." When, at one of their Campmeetings, a preacher more learned than the rest preached a logical sermon, one brother cried out, "Give us more gravy, brother, to soften up the dry, hard junks."

A religious paper needs some gravy articles to soften up the dry sophistries of some of its matter. We have had gravy, as the colored people call it, in most of our papers of late, with the solid meat of Bible truth. There is more gravy in short, pithy articles, than in long arguments drawn out of a little capital stock. Articles could be condensed one half, which would give more space for little pithy, experimental articles. Those who write the longest and dryest articles feel the worst if they are not published; and this tries the patience of the Editor. An Editor showed me a pigeon hole of some fifty or one hundred articles that he could not publish in six months.

But the brethren are doing better about long obituary notices and Conference reports. Give the gravy of the Conference, and thus help the Editor and benefit the readers of the Crisis.

The gravy of a Campmeeting is the stirring testimonies of past and present blessings, and the hope we cherish through grace of future good. All parts of the meeting are necessary, if well managed and not too long. I hope there will be an effort this year to get the church to work instead of so many great sermons and so much visiting and fine dressing. Those who go in for show do but little praying. The Lord is soon coming, and there is too little labor among the members. If all go to work, there will soon be reports for the Crisis that will furnish gravy for some of the food that is dry.

DEATH'S EXPERIENCE.

BY C. F. DOW.

Death is described as the "bourne from which no traveler returns." Death has its secrets, and will tell them to no one. All who journey to the vale of death, the land of silence, will most certainly come back at the time appointed; and the secrets of death's experience will be better known. Those recovered from drowning can reveal as much of death's experience as those who actually and finally die and remain dead. Those nearing death's dark portals—"the living," who "know that they must die," or may die, while the actually "dead know not anything," can get some of death's real experience, or a knowledge of it; and all the facts thus gleaned, from whatever field of research, do but the more confirm and explain Bible testimony. Hanging, or death by strangulation, and the sudden arrest of circulation and of life's processes, thus tell of dying sensations.

Take some recorded examples, as a question has arisen which very few living persons are in a condition to answer; viz., What are the sensations experienced during hanging? Some of the few who have been able to give any account of their consciousness at so critical a moment, say that, after an instant of pain, the chief sensation is that of a mass of brilliant colors filling the eyeballs.

The Quarterly Review, vol. 85, treating on this matter, says: "An acquaintance of Lord Bacon, who meant to hang himself partially, lost his footing, and was cut down at the last extremity, having dearly paid for his curiosity with the risk of his life. He said he felt no pain, and his only sensations were of fire before his eyes, which changed first to black, and then to sky blue. These colors were even a source of pleasure."

A Captain Montague, who was executed in France during the religious wars, but was rescued at the gibbet through the intercession of Marshal Turrenne, complained that, having lost all pain, in an instant he had been taken from a light which defied all description.

Another criminal, who escaped through the breaking of the halter, said that, after a second or two of suffering, a light appeared, and across it a most beautiful avenue of trees. All agree the uneasiness is quite momentary; that a pleasurable feeling immediately succeeds; that colors of various hues start up before the eyes, and that these having been gazed at for a limited space, the rest is oblivion. The mind, averted from the reality of the situation, is engaged in scenes the most remote from that which fills the eye of the spectator.

Two remarkable examples are on record of persons who allowed themselves to be hung for the entertainment of an audience. An account of one of them is in the Lancet of April 17th, 1847. The man's real name was John Harnshaw, but he performed throughout England under the high sounding profession title of Monsieur Gouffe. He was an athlete, and among other feats it was customary with him to exhibit the process of hanging. In this he relied for security on the strength of the muscles of the neck and throat. He had a rope with a fixed knot, which could not slip, and passed both ends of the loop up behind one ear. The whole act was so adroitly managed that he prevented any pressure of the rope on the windpipe or the jugular veins, and could even sustain a weight of one hundred and fifty pounds in addition to that of his own body. On three separate occasions Harnshaw mismanaged the rope and became unconscious, being luckily rescued each time. Dr. Chowne, who writes the account, says very truly: "It can not be doubted that, as far as sensation and consciousness are concerned, Harnshaw passed through the whole ordeal of dying; and had he been permitted to remain hanging until actually dead, he would have passed out of existence without further consciousness."

Now this man stated, not with particular reference to either accident, but as common to all, that "he could hardly recollect anything that happened to him; that he lost his senses all at once, the instant the rope got in the wrong place he felt as if he could not get his breath—as if some great weight were at his feet; could not move only to draw himself up; felt as if he wanted to loosen himself, but never thought of his hands." And he added: "You cannot move your arms or your legs to save yourself; you cannot think." He did not see sparks or light, but had in his ears a rattling sound.

CAMPMEETINGS.

BY EMMA L. COLT.

In looking over the last Crisis I see that the time for the commencement of many of the annual gatherings in tented groves has already been fixed; and as I read of future purposes there comes to me "o'er memory's breezes stealing" sweet recollections of like convocations in the past; and my heart throbs and pulsates with emotions that no human tongue or pen can adequately describe, as I review the happy seasons of the sacred associations that cannot be, as I often wish they might, "lived over again." The songs of praise, sung in strains so enrapturing that their music has seemed to blend with the harmonies of the unseen choir in the heavenly world; the rehearsal of the story of redeeming grace that has awakened in the hearts of believers such responsive strains that the happy shouts of "Amen!" and "Glory to God!" that have swelled spontaneously up from their depths have re-echoed in the far-off recesses of the leafy wood; the fervent prayers whose importunity must have hastened the angel messengers who bore them to the mediatorial throne; the oft-witnessed tears that spoke of penitent hearts, the joyful meetings of long separated friends; the forming of new ties so strong that death alone can sever; and the sad farewells and parting scenes; these are memories that will abide till Jesus comes.

Following the retrospect of the past there looms up the prospective view of the renewal of these scenes in the near future, and I cannot refrain from urging all who are expecting to attend these meetings to consider the importance of preparing for them more carefully and prayerfully than ever before. The possibility is that before another year shall roll around, the "day of God" shall be ushered in, and all opportunities for doing good forever ended. Should it not be thus, the solemn probability and even certainty is, that many dear sinners will go to these meetings to hear for the last time the words of life and salvation; to listen for the last time to the Spirit's gentle pleadings; that many Christians will implore for the last time Heaven's mercy upon the lost; that many unsaved ones will for the last time cross their pathway and give them a last chance to snatch them from the jaws of death and win them as jewels for the Master's crown. These thoughts should inspire in every faithful heart a deep desire to prepare by entire consecration and a seeking for Holy Ghost power for the awful responsibilities they incur.

The enemy is, through his agents, making a great effort to pervert the original purpose of Campmeetings, as well as of all other religious institutions, and turn them into mammoth picnics and dress parades, whose apology shall be a form of godliness without the power; and he is altogether too successful, even among those who profess to be looking for the immediate coming of the Lord. Of course, the ungodly will frequent such places, to have, as they term it, a jolly time and see the fun; but they should find there serious, candid men and women, both young and old, filled with the Spirit and its blessed fruits, from whose powerful influence they can hardly turn away without being almost if not quite persuaded to become Christians.

Dear brethren and sisters, I do not write this from sour censoriousness, but in love and kindness, and I trust some of you at least will not think me guilty of exaggeration when I say, I have often turned away heartsick from the scenes I have witnessed on and around our camp-ground, of which Christians have formed no small part, and especially young Christians, for it is these unwary ones for whom satan delights to spread his fatal snares. Oh, if they would only persuade their young friends who are out of Christ to go with them always to the prayer circle, where they would be safe, instead of allowing them or coaxing them away to places of amusement outside of the grounds, where they are both often led into the company of persons of questionable character, whose baneful influence counteracts all the good influences that God's people attempt to throw around them.

May God arouse every one of us to a thrilling sense of our respective duties, and in the room of wasting the precious hours of service in unprofitable conversation, and spending the intervals between in mingling unnecessarily with the giddy crowds at the depots and wharves, thus destroying our spirituality, let us repair to our tents and there seek by communion with God the strength that shall enable us to "come up to the help of the Lord against the mighty." Let us make a determined raid on the enemy's forces, and roll back from the encampments the hosts of sin, resisting to the death any efforts to compromise, and the results of the Campmeetings of '85 will be grand and glorious.

THE PATIENCE OF HOPE.

The farmer scatters in the ready furrows
The tiny grain,
That by and by will yield abundant harvest
In tenfold gain.

He waits serenely through the long cold winter,
Secure in faith
That waving summer fields will surely follow
Apparent death.

He does not murmur that beneath the snowdrift
The blades lie hid,
He knows the growth that slowly is maturing
The flakes amid.

He rests upon the word of God, unshaken,
Though doubt assail,
He trusts the promise old, "Seed time and harvest
Shall never fail."

So shall the Christian, going forth with weeping
To scatter seed,
Wait in serenity the time of harvest,
By God decreed.

The promises are sure to one who soweth,
And still believes,
That man shall doubtless come at even, bearing Abundant sheaves. —Selected.

KEZAR FALLS, ME.

Reluctantly we bid adieu for a while to the little band of loyal believers at Kezar Falls, and took the cars for Bridgton Me., where, in response to earnest invitation, we go to labor for a few days with the faithful few of Adventual believers there, who are bravely and earnestly contending for "the faith once delivered to the saints," of which you will hear more in our next.

We soon perceived on arriving here at Kezar Falls that it was too late in the season to carry forward and sustain the interest that we were necessarily compelled to leave a few weeks before. Farming was very late, and everybody busy, and felt obliged to work hard and late, so if they came at all they were late and tired. But we did all that we could under the circumstances to build up God's cause among them, and to secure the results of our labors there.

We visited Porter, Me, two miles away, two evenings, preaching to interested gatherings, who evidently enjoyed the warm practical truths we gave them. There are some solid, whole-hearted Adventists here. Being invited up the river, three miles away, to Freedom Bridge, we went and discoursed to a hungry assembly upon "Christ our Refuge." But while there seemed to be more points to the mosquitoes, than to our remarks, yet apparently they were glad we came, and did the best we could under the somewhat trying circumstances. Though they have a good little chapel of their own, yet they have but little preaching there of any kind, as there are but a few of them left. Some have died, others have moved away, and the few that remain are too poor to feel able to sustain regular preaching now. But we were glad to find some who were just beginning to see the light of life as it is in Jesus; that in him only inheres our life to come.

Returning to Kezar Falls, in association with Bro. A. G. Davis on Sunday, June 7th, amidst a driving rainstorm, we immersed four happy disciples of our Lord in the pure waters of the great Ossipee river. One of them, Sister Illingworth, formerly of Sabbatisville, Me., came out of her gospel water-grave with a face all radiant with victory, over a cross she had shrank from for many years. We all felt they had indeed left all to follow Jesus in the narrow, world-despised way to life eternal. May the blessing of God continue to rest upon them each, and may they never be ashamed of God's truth. Establishing for them a weekly prayer meeting in addition to their regular Sabbath services, we left them for Bridgeton, Maine, bidding all "God-speed" in the good way till next we may be permitted to meet them. Our next will be from Bridgeton. R. F. EMERSON.

"CHRIST THE NEEDED ONE."

BY A. J. WHEELER.

"Without me ye can do nothing." The Lord can do without man, but man cannot do without the Lord. It is just as impossible for us to do anything without the presence of him, as it is for the branch to bear fruit without being connected with the vine. We may put forth every available effort to accomplish good and to see fruits from our labors, yet they are all in vain if left to ourselves.

One of the most precious promises in the word of God is: "Lo I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world." Christ's presence is indispensably necessary for the christian ministry, to instruct and to save. What darkness enshrouds us without him. How gloomy the aspect within unless Christ be there "the hope of glory." But what light beams forth in beauteous splendor as we have him within our souls "the way, the truth, and the life."

The simple sentence with Christ in it can accomplish more for the good of mankind, than a thousand of the most eloquent and powerful sermons delivered alone by man. So barren is the soil of men's hearts that the seed will die unless it be fructified by the spirit of Christ. We have truth enough: we need more of Christ and his power. Power means strength; and strength implies victory; and victory is what all need. Seek not therefore for honors, they are but few and cost much. Seek not for riches, they are uncertain and fleeting. But seek ye for the needed one, Christ Jesus our Lord. In him you can find peace and joy in this life, and the promise of that life which is very soon to come.

A MAN INSIDE.

BY C. H. COPP.

In the manufacture of steam boilers the red-hot rivets are put through by a man inside, and held there until a man on the outside heads them down. This makes sure, solid, durable work.

There are many hard-headed and harder-hearted skeptics that it is useless to hammer on the outside with arguments; there must be somebody inside with the red-hot Word piercing through this armor that invests them. "It is not by might, nor by power, but by my Spirit, saith the Lord." The Spirit of God will produce in a man an experience that nothing else will. "He will reprove (margin, convince) the world of sin, and of righteousness, and of judgment. John 16: 18.

There is nothing like experiencing a thing to be convinced of it. Man may reach the mind through the eye and ear; but God speaks to the heart. The work of God must be felt there or faith is not properly kindled. There are things that are difficult to describe with rules and compasses, cube root and evolution—language itself. There are "those who have tasted of the heavenly gift, and were made partakers of the Holy Ghost"—"tasted the good word of God and the powers of the world to come"—"tasted that the Lord is gracious." They know about these things; but there are others who never can have that knowledge hammered into them from the outside by arguments.

A man might cipher and argue till doom's-day how sweet honey was, but one never knows till he has tasted for himself. The honey touches his palate and the argument his brains that is the difference. It is easy enough for the adversary to turn folks away from these things who have never had this experience; but those who have tasted do not turn away so easily. And those who turn away having tasted are never satisfied, but are miserable all their lives till they return to Father's house—especially so when some same circumstance brings the old experience back to their memory.

Personal testimony goes far toward convincing the unsaved. Those who know about these things, and feel accordingly, seldom fail in the hearty recital of them to move others. But the heart must be appealed to and reached. The emotional nature of man must be satisfied with divine things. Converted brains is not enough. When a man or woman has to go to the theatre to be moved with emotional fiction, it is pretty good evidence that God's emotional truth has not yet touched their hearts as it ought. They have simply a little head religion; they worship Christ "with their lips, while their hearts are far off" after the world. "Son, give me thine heart, and let thine eyes observe my ways," saith the Lord. The very thing he wants above all others you withhold.

The writer in his sceptical younger days had much hammering from the outside, and [illegible] but after a while there was somebody got at work on the inside, and then it was easy work to clinch the work. Their are many things that have never got through his head yet, but he knows that wherein he was once blind he now sees; that his Redeemer liveth. He has not found out yet just how Joshua made the sun stand still; but he knows how the Lord made his tongue stand still which used to profane his name. There are others who might know these things if they would. They will join secret societies that they know nothing about till they are initiated—and likely as not then wish they did not know, but why not dwell "in the secret place of the Most High, and abide under the shadow of the Almighty?" Ps. 91: 1. Who ever wanted to get out when once fairly in there? "O taste and see that the Lord is good."

GOOD NEWS.---No. 66.

FROM INDIA.

Our brethren and sisters who are waiting for the Lord, and working out their faith in publishing this gospel of the kingdom of God, will gladly read the good news of the progress of truth in Bangalone, India. So we give below some portions of another letter just received. I. C. WELLCOME.

"Bangalone, India, May 5, 1885.—Dear Bro. I. C. Wellcome:—I most gladly address you, as I have good news to tell you, viz., that the truth is spreading fast in this city, so famed for Orthodoxy. Long have I besought the Lord to open the way by which his word and work might be more fully made known in Bangalone. I struggled hard some years ago, and spent a good deal of money on books which I sold and gave away. But I was suddenly and unexpectedly placed in circumstances which prevented my continuing the work. But since finding Bro. Spence, and he finding me, hundreds of tracts have been scattered which are beginning to bear fruit. There is a 'shaking among the dry bones,' especially among the W—— church. Rev. Mr. —— called on one of his oldest church members, an official member, the other day, and said to him, "Your wife and daughter are circulating those tracts. Do you think it right for them to do so?' He replied, 'Yes, I do, for I think they contain the truth.' The minister said, 'Then you must give up all offices connected with our church.' The man replied, "All right, sir, I am quite prepared to do so.' The minister said, "My church is becoming quite unsettled, and if you do not stop those tracts, you must leave it.' There the matter rests at present.

"Never was there such a spirit of inquiry at Bangalone as at the present time. Something more must be done now. We have gone too far to draw back. The old creeds have been undermined, and are tottering amongst a great many. They have dubbed me 'the little pope.'

"This is I suppose the largest military station in the Madras Presidency. We have in Bangalone twenty churches. All have ordained ministers excepting our own dear little church, over which we have 'a great High Priest' who is watering the seed sown with the dews of heaven. There is a great work to be done here. We need the means to advertise our faith to make ourselves known. . . . I want books and tracts tracts for the unconverted. Also anti-infidel tracts, temperance tracts, and tracts to send to the soldiers. We have four soldiers in the H. M. 43rd R., who will distribute them among the troops. One Church of England minister is reading 'The Unspeakable Gift.' I send you by mail a copy of Dialogue No. 1 on the 'Nature of Man.' This is read with avidity by the educated natives, who, notwithstanding their education, are very simple in religious matters, simple as children, but very quick to see the difference between our teaching and that of the other teachers. I am, dear brother, yours in the patient waiting for Christ. C——."

THE SPARROW'S VOICE.

I am only a little sparrow,
A bird of low degree;
My life is of little value,
But the dear Lord careth for me.

He gave me a coat of feathers,
It is very plain, I know,
With never a speck of crimson,
For it was not made for show.

But it keeps me warm in winter,
And it shields me from the rain;
Were it bordered in gold and purple,
Perhaps it would make me vain.

I have no barn or store-house;
I neither sow nor reap;
God gives me a sparrow's fortune,
But never a seed to keep.

If my meal is sometimes scanty,
Close picking makes it sweet;
I have always enough to keep me,
And "life is more than meat."

I know there are many sparrows;
All over the world we are found—
But our heavenly Father knoweth
When one of us falls to the ground.

Though small, we are never forgotten;
Though weak, we are never afraid,
For we know that our dear Lord keepeth
The life of the creatures he made.

I fly through the thickest forest;
I light on many a spray;
I have no chart or compass,
But I never lose my way.

And I fold my wings at twilight,
Wherever I happen to be;
For the Father is always watching,
And no harm can come to me.

I am only a little sparrow,
A bird of low degree;
But I know the Father loves me—
Have you less faith than me?

TEMPERANCE.

TELL THE BOYS.

In a sermon delivered by Dr. T. De Witt Talmage he gave the following account of Sabbath desecration, which ended in a tragedy: "In the front door of this church, summer before last, this scene occurred: Sabbath morning a young man was entering here for divine worship. A friend passing along the street said: 'Joe, come along with me; I am going down to Coney Island, and we'll have a gay Sunday.' 'No,' replied Joe; 'I have started to go here to church, and I am going to attend service here.' 'O Joe!' his friend said, 'you can go to church any time! The day is bright, and we'll go to Coney Island, and we'll have a splendid time.' The temptation was too great, and the twain went to the beach and spent the day in drunkenness and riot. The evening train started up from Brighton. The young men were on it. Joe, in his intoxication, when the train was in full speed, tried to pass around from one seat to another, and fell and was crushed. Under the [illegible] his life away on the grass, he said to his comrade: 'John, that was a bad business, your taking me away from church; it was a very bad business. You ought not to have done that, John. I want you to tell the boys to-morrow when you see them that rum and Sabbath-breaking did this for me. And, John, while you are telling them, I will be in hell, and it will be your fault.'

"Is it not time for me to pull out from the great organ of God's Word, with many banks of keys, the tremolo stop? 'Look not upon the wine when it is red, when it moveth itself aright in the cup, for at the last it biteth like a serpent and stingeth like an adder.'"—Selected.

A TIMELY WARNING.

When I was at Chicago some years ago I remember seeing on some house a notice: "Small-pox is here." I thought it was a very good notice to put up, so that those who had business or those whose friendship led them there might go, but that others might not carelessly go where there was small-pox. But, young men, there is something worse than small-pox in every drinking-shop—drunkenness, ruin, death! There is "Death" over the door of every public-house. You need not go to the public-house to find it. It is to be found in the social circle, it may be found in polite society. There are those to whom a little indulgence may prove fatal. But suppose you say: "Well, it will not be fatal to me; I know there is no danger; I am perfectly certain I shall never fall." You cannot be quite certain. Very few people ever began to drink saying: "I will be a drunkard." They began to take a drink for pleasure, thinking a little in moderation would do no harm; and thus they were led on unconsciously. Should we not think of other people? Suppose I am absolutely safe from falling myself, can I do anything by my example to make it easier for the drunkard to abstain?—Rev. Newman Hall.

LIQUOR AND LIFE INSURANCE.

The well-known facts, says the Journal of Inebriety, that life insurance companies find excessive mortality in their risks in certain sections of the South and Southwest, has been the subject of some interest lately. Several of the Hartford companies who have examined the facts have found that this mortality came from inebriety, and was due to the liberal interpretation of the agents, who did not realize that any risk of inebriety was perilous unless the insured had suffered from delirium tremens many times. No use of alcohol, either moderate or occasionally immoderate, was thought to be dangerous. The agents and examiners had no clear conception of the danger of alcohol, and treated the companies' views as extreme.

The result was that special examiners were sent from the home office to cancel all the risks of ten thousand and upward, where the insured were using alcohol to excess. Finally some of the companies withdrew their agents altogether, and do not solicit business in certain sections. In one case twenty-eight deaths were all traced to the excessive use of alcohol, and were all paid simply because it was cheaper to settle than to contest.

At a recent meeting of the Tennessee State Board of Health, the secretary reported that a Hartford life insurance company has ordered its agents not to issue any policies in six counties in the state, owing to the excessive mortality of the policy-holders. The question came up as to the cause of this mortality; as no reports indicated any special disease in this section, a letter was addressed to the secretary of the company to know the reason. The answer was that from the amount of insured lives in these counties, the average loss to the company should be about $68,000, when in fact it was over $150,000—more than double the loss of any other section, and that without any special cause or epidemic disease. The real explanation was the want of care in taking risks, and the number of inebriates who had been taken as proper cases. It is the same old blunder of supposing drinking to be a mere vice at the control of the victim, and in no way periling life unless used to great extremes.—Christian.

CHURCH NEWS.

Bro. Stockman:—On May 13th Elder C. W. Stephens and family arrived at Oil City, and on May 17 he was duly installed as pastor of the Advent Church in this city. Bro. S. was with us last fall two weeks, and since that time the church has given him a call, and he has accepted, and is now located in South Oil City. Bro. Stephens has been well received, not only by the church but by all who have heard him. We all feel to rejoice that we have some one to break the bread of life, and tell men what they will have to do to be saved.

Since Bro. S. has arrived here an open door is found some seven miles south of Oil City, where the people have never heard an Advent sermon. They have a Union Church Building, and this has been opened, and Bro. Stephens goes out to-day to preach to them, and next Friday, June 19th, Bro. S. goes to Sutton Mills, forty miles southeast of Oil City, to hold meetings at a school-house which has been opened. So you see the good work goes on. Our church will grant Bro. Stephens one half his time for preaching in new places as doors are opened, and assist in spreading this last message among the unsaved.

Yours in hope, R. G. WORDEN.

J. G. BURNHAM writes:—"Yesterday (Sunday, June 14th) was a good day with the church in Lynn. At our social meeting in the morning the Holy Spirit was with us in much power, and hearts were melted, and tears flowed. At its close we repaired to the beautiful waters of Flax Pond, where Bro. G. F. Haines buried eleven happy souls in baptism in presence of a large company of witnesses. It was a scene that will never be forgotten by many.

At the close of a very interesting and instructive sermon by Bro. Haines in the afternoon, the candidates received the right hand of fellowship, and then eighty lovers of Jesus sat down to the communion of the Lord's supper. Bro. Haines' labors have been crowned with marked success among us, and we sincerely regret that he is called to distant fields to labor. May the blessing of God attend him."

OLDEST CITY IN THE WORLD.

Damascus is the oldest city in the world. Tyre and Sidon have crumbled on the shore, Baalbec is a ruin; Palmyra is buried in a desert; Nineveh and Babylon have disappeared from the Tigris and the Euphrates. Damascus remains what it was before the days of Abraham—a center of trade and travel—an island of verdure in the desert; "a presidal capital," with martial and sacred associations extending through thirty centuries. It was near Damascus that Saul of Tarsus saw the light above the brightness of the sun; the street which is called Straight, in which it was said he prayed, still runs through the city. The caravan comes and goes as it did a thousand years ago; there is still the sheik, the ass and the water-wheel; the merchants of the Euphrates and the Mediterranean still "occupy" these "with the multitudes of their wares." The city which Mohammed surveyed from a neighboring height, and was afraid to enter "because he was to have but one paradise, and for his part he was resolved not to have it in this world," is to-day what Julian called "the eye of the East," as it was in the time of Isaiah, "the head of Syria." It is still a city of flowers; the streams of Lebanon and the "silk of gold still murmur and sparkle in the wilderness of the Syrian gardens."—Selected.

SPECIAL ANSWERS TO PRAYER.

☞ WE SOLICIT BRIEF, WELL AUTHENTICATED STATEMENTS OF SPECIAL ANSWERS TO PRAYER, IN THE HEALING OF DISEASES, OR OTHER REMARKABLE DELIVERANCES.

The Promise Fulfilled.

"And if they drink any deadly thing, it shall not hurt them." Mark 16: 18.

Dear Brother:—In reply to yours of recent date, inquiring about my being healed from the effects of deadly poison, in answer to prayer, I must begin by saying that about one and a half years since, myself and wife, through the preaching of the Word and the convictions of the Spirit, were brought to see ourselves as sinners against God, and to accept salvation through the blood of the crucified one. Our conversion was very clear, and we had the witness in our souls that we were born of God. But for nearly a year our Christian lives were very unsatisfactory. There were times when, through the neglect of duty and of watchfulness, we lost the witness of the Spirit, and wandered in darkness and doubt. Last New Year, through the drawings of the Spirit, my wife was led to consecrate herself entirely and for all time to the service of the Lord, and received the assurance that the Holy Spirit had wrought in her soul the work of entire sanctification, and my own soul was greatly quickened.

One day in the month of July, not being very well, I did not go to my work, and about nine o'clock in the morning I went to the drug store and bought two grains of strychnine with which to poison rats. When I returned home I put it into a water glass, and placed it on the upper shelf in the cupboard. At about eleven o'clock my wife reminded me that I ought to take some quinine, which she said was in a glass in the cupboard. Not thinking about the strychnine, I took a powder that was in a glass. About an hour later, while lying on the lounge, my wife called me to dinner, but on attempting to rise I found I was unable to do so, and just then I had a slight convulsion. Then I thought about the strychnine, and asked my wife to go and see if the quinine was where she had left it. The examination showed that I had taken the strychnine, and my wife at once gave me some strong coffee, and her brother at the same time went for the doctor, but before he came I had a hard convulsion. Feeling sure that my time had come, I wondered what would become of my poor wife and little children. But the Lord enabled me to commit them to his care. After the convulsion was over the doctor gave a powerful emetic, but without any favorable results. I then asked one of the doctors (there were two) what would be the result? He replied that one more such convulsion would land my spirit in eternity, and at the same time I heard the other doctor express himself in a similar manner to my wife.

My sufferings were excruciating during the first convulsion, but during the second and third convulsions my mind had rested down on the Lord Jesus, and I am sure that at that point he sanctified my soul, and I did not suffer in the least. Between the second and third convulsions I bade my family good-bye, and begged them all to meet me in heaven. When the third convulsion came on, I heard the doctor say, "He is going now, nothing can save him." My skin was turning blue, my limbs were rigid, and my tongue was still in my mouth, and although I could hear every word that was spoken in the room, I could not answer or move a muscle. When my wife heard the doctor say that I was dying, she said to her brother, "My husband shall not die; let us take him to the Lord in prayer." So they all joined in prayer, my wife going amongst the shrubbery in the garden, her brother in the cellar, and the children, one in a wagon, and the others in a bedroom, all praying that the Lord would restore me. Soon after, my wife came into the room, and seeing me raised on the lounge, asked me how I felt? I replied, "Praise the Lord, I am not going to die, but I shall live," and slipping down on my knees I asked all present to join with me in praising God for my restoration. That was about three o'clock, and in the evening a good many holiness people came in and praised God with us. In the evening the doctor returned, and was surprised to find me alive. He said that I could not go out for a month, but I went on Monday morning two miles to do some business. I am now about well, giving God all the glory for my restoration. Your brother in Christ, HENRY WHOLLER.

ONLY A WORD.

Only a word for the Master,
Lovingly, quietly said;
Only a word,
Yet the Master heard,
And some fainting hearts were fed.

Only a look of remonstrance,
Sorrowful, gentle, and deep;
Only a look,
Yet the strong man shook,
And he went alone to weep.

Only some act of devotion,
Willingly, joyfully done;
"Surely 'twas naught"
(So the proud world thought),
But yet souls to Christ are won.

RECEIVING THE NEW PREACHER.—How? The Church Record admonishes the people to receive their preachers as the servants of the Lord. "Receive them gladly for their work's sake. Co-operate with them at once, and heartily, in all their efforts to save souls and to advance the interests of the church. Don't hang back and criticise until your preacher proves his worthiness of your love and esteem. Assume that much until he shall prove the contrary. Provide at once for his temporal wants. Ask for some definite, personal work in the church. Don't be a drone nor a dead-head. The harvest is plenteous, the laborers are few."—Evangelical Messenger.

THE blessed founder of our faith, to his command to render to all their dues, added the force of his own example in the payment of tribute to the Roman ruler. An old writer quaintly remarked: "Even when Christ borrowed Peter's boat to preach a sermon out of it, he paid him for the same by a great draught of fishes."—Sel.

CHRISTIAN obligation cannot be made to accord with a law of expediency. The Christian maxims are: "Do right, though the heavens fall." "Do right, because you are bound to do right." There is a world of difference between "you had better," and "you are bound to."—F. L. Patton.

A TREE will not only lie as it falls, but will fall as it leans. And the great question every one should bring home to himself, is this: "What is the inclination of my soul? Does it, with all its affections, lean toward God, or away from him?"

WISE SAYINGS.

To die well, one must first live well.

THE greatest of faults is to be conscious of none.

WHERE there is no hope, there can be no endeavor.

PERSEVERANCE is the foundation of the success of every undertaking.

IT is great wisdom to know when to speak and when to be silent.

THOSE who watch for the Lord, shall know of his loving kindness.

WISDOM is oftimes nearer when we stoop than when we soar.

A TRULY noble nature recognizes a friend be-more he needs help.

IF you want a short definition of the Christian life, take this: Likeness to Christ.

THOSE who scatter the "Word of God" ought never to despair of results.

KEEP thy heart, and then it will be easy for thee to keep thy tongue.

SIMPLICITY of character is the natural result of profound thought.

DO not allow idleness to deceive you; for while you give him to-day, he steals to-morrow from you.

BOOKS are good friends or evil companions, according to the choice we make of them.

NOTHING greater can be said of faith than it is the only thing which can bid defiance to the accusation of conscience.

MOST people affect to dislike ceremony; yet they are quick to resent any little omission of respect due to themselves.

ALL men may not be great men, as the world counts greatness, but all may be faithful.

THE path of obedience may seem steep and difficult; yet it is the only path to peace and glory.

IF we truly believe in Jesus, our faith makes us rich in an inheritance that shall be ours forever, though now unseen.

REPORT OF THE TWENTY-SIXTH ANNUAL MEETING OF THE SECOND ADVENT CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION OF AMERICA.

The Twenty Sixth Annual Meeting of the S. A. C. Association of America was held at Chelsea, Mass., in the Heard St. Chapel, commencing on Tuesday, Aug. 18th, 1885, at 2 o'clock P. M., pursuant to the call of the Board of Managers. Eld. E. A. Stockman, President, and Eld. Wm. Sheldon, Vice President, presided over the meeting.

The opening was by religious services of song, reading of 90th Palm by Eld. A. F. Moore, of Vt., and prayer by Elds. C. W. Smith, of Ill., and Jere. Hill, of Maine.

The President gave an opening off hand address, in which he spoke of reasons for gratitude to God for our continued life and strength. It is grand to live just now. Our present status as a people, and in Bible doctrine, is the most unique of any in this dispensation. You had no idea of being a sect in the outset. You expected translation right away. But the disappointment came. Why did not this uproot the whole movement? Because there was God in it. The world—the pulpit—scoffed. How could the movement survive? The truth always survives. A great people has been called out, and they are increasing. We are a denomination. But others also receive the Word. There are many among other people who believe in Jesus' soon coming, and conditional immortality. The Juggernaut of eternal torment is greatly disturbed. Adventism, so-called, is preached in ten foreign tongues. Our literature is largely read at home. Our papers are flourishing. We are seeing the signs fulfilling in our times. Our Lord is at the door. Common men, with the Word, can meet the most scholastic anywhere. That is because we have the truth. This is the hour for united action. No time for division, nor diversion. We should strike with power, near and far. We need to push out all along the line. We must remember the brethren in the West, and help them to spread the truth. We need to regard the distribution of our offices among the people. We must keep near the people. We need to take good care of our young men. They cannot feel as the older ones; we cannot expect them to, for their experience is not the same; but we expect loyalty and fealty to our interests, and we believe they feel thus. No meridian between the young and old. No rivalry, nor jealousy. All we are brethren. The great burden of our work is, the certainty of the near coming of Jesus. This should be the resolute cry, while holiness—clean hands, hearts and behavior—should become us all. There is an awful grandeur in this work. How dark would the world be without this truth! We stem the tide of infernal deceits. The Lord is at the door.

"Praise God, from whom all blessings flow!"

REPORT

For the year ending August 18, 1885.

The first meeting of the A. C. P. Society for the year ending August 18, 1885, was held in Boston, Mass., at its office, 144 Hanover St., Oct. 24th, 1884. Members present: J. Couch, A. W. Sibley, M. Grant, Z. Boody, W. H. Mitchell, L. Boutelle, S. G. Mathewson, J. Hemenway, F. Burr, and also E. A. Stockman, Editor of World's Crisis.

Meeting was called to order by J. Couch, President. Prayer by S. G. Mathewson.

The subject of meeting the stockholders of the Bible Banner Association was brought before the Society by Eld. M. Grant, he being one of a committee appointed by the S. A. C. Association at Amboy, Ill., in September, said committee having been appointed to confer with the B. B. Association in regard to consolidating the publishing work of the two Associations. Eld. Grant said that the S. A. C. A. committee could do nothing without the approval of the A. C. P. Society, and therefore he wished the Society to take action in the matter. It was therefore voted, that a committee of five be appointed from the A. C. P. Society to meet the stockholders of the B. B. Association, and confer with them in regard to matters proposed by the S. A. C. Association, in reference to consolidating the two publishing interests. Voted, that the Chair appoint said committee. The following were appointed: Elds. E. A. Stockman, F. Burr, S. G. Mathewson, J. Hemenway, and A. W. Sibley.

Voted, that the Editor of the World's Crisis be invited to a seat in this body the ensuing year.

It was voted to pay the Editorial Committee of last year the sum of seventy-five dollars for their services. It was voted to pay the Secretaries of the Society and Association the sum of twenty dollars each for services last year.

The recommendation of the S. A. C. Association to adopt the Blessed Hope Quarterly was then considered. It was voted, that, in accordance with said recommendation, this Society do accept the B. H. Q., with all its appurtenances, etc., from the S. A. C. S. S. Union, and adopt the publication as our own, if the said "Union" be so disposed.

J. Hemenway proposed the subject of purchasing the plates of H. Constable's two books, "Hades" and "Future Punishment," said plates being the property of Eld. Wm. Kellaway. It was voted to purchase said plates at a price of $210.

Voted, that we favor judicious advertising of our publications, by our Business Agent, in other papers of proper circulation.

Voted, that the matter of the putting up office signs on the outside of this building be left to the discretion of the Business Agent.

Voted, that the A. A. Mission Society be invited to occupy the rooms of the A. C. P. Society for its business, the same as last year.

Voted, that twenty five copies of "Our Hope" be put in the hands of Eld. M. Grant, for free distribution, at his discretion, on his contemplated tour in Europe next month. Voted, that twenty five dollars be appropriated in tracts for Bro. Grant to distribute in Europe. Voted, that this Society give Bro. Grant an open letter of recommendation, signed by the President and Secretary of this Society.

Voted, that the Secretary ascertain if the Business Agent's bonds be good for another year; if not, that they be renewed.

A vote of thanks was passed to Bro. C. H. Woodman for his faithful services as clerk the past year.

Voted, that the members of this Society be paid two dollars per day and expenses for actual service the ensuing year.

Voted, that we approve the Bus. Agent's inquiring for feasible rents on the ground floor, and reporting to this Society if he finds what seems to him satisfactory room and price for book-store and office combined.

Voted, to adjourn to call of Chair.

The second meeting of the Society was held, by the call of its President, in Worcester, Mass., Nov. 7th, 1884. Present—Elds. Couch, Hemenway, Grant, Boutelle, Burr, Mathewson and Stockman. Prayer by Eld. S. G. Mathewson.

Voted, that the sum of $200 be appropriated to pay to special writers to the World's Crisis, at the discretion of the Editor and President.

Voted, that W. H. Mitchell and L. Boutelle be the Auditors of this Society for the present fiscal year.

The committee appointed at the last meeting to meet the Bible Banner Association reported as follows:

Your committee met certain stockholders and representatives of the Bible Banner Association at Worcester, Mass., Nov. 6, 1884, at 8 A. M. Of your committee, all were present except S. G. Mathewson. For the B. B. A. there were present, J. D. Brown, A. M. Higgins, A. C. Taylor, V. P. Simmons and E. J. Wood. Eld. Stockman was chosen Chairman of the joint committee meeting. Eld. J. D. Brown read a document from a committee of the S. A. C. Association, but as nothing could be done by the joint committee, upon that document as a basis, an inquiry was therefore instituted, to learn if the representatives of the B. B. Association present at this meeting thought that the consolidation of the two Publishing interests represented by the joint committees was desirable and expedient. The B. B. A. committee generally expressed themselves as opposed to said consolidation. Several reasons were given therefor, among which were, prominently, a desire for independent journalism, censorship, and so-called free speech. Upon this, without farther consultation, the joint committee arose.

E. A. STOCKMAN,
A. W. SIBLEY,
J. HEMENWAY,
S. G. MATHEWSON,
F. BURR, } Committee.

The above report was accepted, and ordered to be referred to the S. A. C. Association Committee upon the same matter.

Voted, to choose a committee of three, our President being one, to prepare a statement for publication in the Crisis, calling attention to the proposition for a Western Branch office of the Society, and soliciting funds therefor. Elders J. Couch, E. A. Stockman and J. Hemenway were appointed said committee.

Voted, that in order to increase the subscription list of the World's Crisis, we favor the proposition made by the Bus. Agent, of offering suitable gifts to new subscribers.

Adjourned to call of the Chair.

The last meeting of the Society for this year was held in the office of the World's Crisis, Boston, Mass., Aug. 17th, 1885, at 11 A. M. Members present—J. Couch, J. Hemenway, A. W. Sibley, W. H. Mitchell, Z. Boody, L. Boutelle, F. Burr, and the Editor, E. A. Stockman. Prayer by Eld. L. Boutelle.

The Secretary's report for the year was read, adopted, and ordered read before the S. A. C. Association at its annual meeting. The reports of the Treasurer and Business Agent were also read, adopted, and ordered to be read at the next annual meeting of the S. A. C. Association.

Voted, that the A. C. P. Society assume the loss of funds in Postal Notes, to the amount of Sixty Two dollars and nine cents, so reported by the Business Agent.

Adjourned sine die.

FRANK BURR,
Secretary of A. C. P. Society.

The Committee on Resolutions then offered the following, which were adopted:

Whereas, the year past has been one of much importance in the fulfillment of the prophetic word relating to the experience of nations and of religious bodies, in the things pertaining to the time and events just preceding the coming of our Lord; and Whereas, we are still enabled by divine grace to continue to proclaim that word to the world at large, by our publications and mission efforts, and the movement in this direction is still onward; therefore,

Resolved, That we express our feelings of gratitude for the success of our publication and mission work the past year, and that we take new courage to push on our work in the case of warning sinners of the near coming of our Lord Jesus Christ, and do call upon all interested in this glorious cause to devote themselves and their substance wholly to the Lord's work, as we feel that time is short, and the work is great.

Resolved, That the work accomplished in the past is but a tithe of what should be done in the year before us, if Jesus still tarry, and we trust that all will see the necessity of helping to increase the missionary, publication and Sunday School work, so that it may be said of us at last, "Well done, good and faithful servants."

Resolved, In response to the letter of the Philadelphia church to this Association, we express our gratitude to our Lord for his manifold grace to them and their pastor, and we strongly desire and pray for their continued prosperity.

Resolved, That we recommend all Christian people to assist in a gospel way all efforts to promote the cause of temperance and good morals in our land.

Resolved, That the Sunday School, when properly conducted, is a means of many conversions to Christ, and therefore there should be an active and increased interest in Sunday School work among our churches.

Resolved, That we highly approve of the course of Eld. Miles Grant in his mission work in England, during the past year, especially that relating to his chart expositions of the signs of the times, and refutations of probation to sinners in an age-to-come. We trust any further efforts he may make in the same work may be blessed of the Lord to the enlightenment and conversion of many.

Resolved, That the thanks of this Association are due, and hereby given, to the Chelsea Church for their kind entertainment during the session of this Association.

*Any body of believers in Christ who habitually associate for divine worship may be considered a church.

J. Couch, F. Burr and S. G. Mathewson were chosen said Com. for the East, and J. Bower of Mich., W. J. Hobbs of Minn., and Wm. McCulloch of Iowa for the West.

Bro. J. Couch, at the request of the Association, made statement of the action of a committee of the A. C. P. S., of which he was chairman, in regard to establishing a Western Branch Office of the World's Crisis, by saying that notice had been given in the Crisis, and a request for funds to accomplish the work; but as no response had been made to the call, they had no report of progress to make at present.

A vote of thanks was tendered to the Executive officers of the Association in recognition of their acceptable service during its session.

Voted, to instruct the A. C. P. Society to constitute a General Committee to arrange for constituting a fund to be used for the support of poor ministers.

At 2 P. M. the business of the Association was concluded, and after a few appropriate closing remarks, on motion of adjournment, the President pronounced the benediction. Adjourned sine die. FRANK BURR,

Secretary of S. A. C. Association.

THE OFFICE AND MISSION OF THE HOLY SPIRIT.

AN ADDRESS delivered by SILAS HEWS before the Second Annual Convention of "The Young Minister's Christian Union," in Providence, R. I., August 7th, 1885.

PUBLISHED BY REQUEST.

"And I will pray the Father, and he shall give you another Comforter, that he may be with you forever."—John 14: 16.

"Howbeit when he, the Spirit of truth, is come, he shall guide you into all truth."—John 16: 13.

"But ye shall receive power, when the Holy Ghost is come upon you."—Acts 1: 8.

Again, it is the mission of the Spirit to impart power to the words and the endeavors of Christians in the various fields of usefulness. With the gift of the Spirit there is always a measure of power, though that measure is varied according to the spiritual capacity and according to the faith of the receiver. It is important to understand, as far as possible, the nature of that power and the manner of its operation. "The baptism of the Holy Ghost," says a certain writer, "is a supernatural power from God himself imparted to the human soul. It is such a power as God only can give, and is a direct emination from him. It is the Holy Spirit taking control of our willing powers. The intellect, will, and heart, are at God's disposal." From this explanation you will see how full, how entire and unreserved our consecration must be, and how great and unhesitating our faith must be, ere God can thus take possession of us and use us as He will for His own glory.

But how may we know when God has full possession of us? We may know in the following way. If our souls are filled with thoughts of Jesus, and our desire to be more like Jesus is strong and constant, and our continual endeavor is to do his will, we must be filled with the Holy Spirit; it is evidence that the soul is not occupied by any opposing principle; that evil is wholly exterminated, and that satan is a conquered enemy. But we have no reason to think that we are filled with the Spirit if our desires are not constantly God-ward, and our temper is not sweet and loving, and our discourse is not seasoned with grace, and our daily walk is not in the truth.

Now the power of the Holy Ghost is a sainted power for which there is no substitute. There is nothing that can fill its place, that can answer the same end, or accomplish the same object. Learning cannot fill its place. Talent cannot fill its place. Violent gesticulation, vehemence of manner, or loud shouting cannot fill its place. Natural tenderness, natural earnestness, and natural eloquence cannot supply its place. Whatever qualification men may possess, or whatever qualification they may feign, if they have not the Spirit of God within them, it will be discovered by the spiritually minded. A man who is filled with the Spirit can generally discern the same gift when it is possessed by others, and he can generally detect the want of it when it is not possessed. No power in the outward man can supply the lack of power in the inward man. If the Holy Ghost fire is not in the soul, if the word is not accompanied with unction, whether spoken in the prayer meeting, the class-meeting, or the social circle, the effect produced only by that invisible agency will be lacking, and no other cause will be found adequate to produce the same effect.

We may remark here that the blessing of heart purity and the Holy Spirit's baptism the baptism of power as the highest qualification for usefulness, we mean,—are, in a sense, distinct. This baptism is never given where the heart is not pure; sometimes the baptism may be imparted with purity, but the heart may be cleansed when the believer does not receive this mighty endowment of power. In receiving purity, he receives the Spirit, and the Spirit abides in him forever. But he may not have received this baptism of fire and power for successful Christian work.

To be filled with the Spirit, to have this holy anointing, is a blessing past human utterance. "Justification is great," says William Bramwell, "to be cleansed is great; but what is justification or the being cleansed, when compared with the being taken into Himself? The world, the noise of self,—all is gone; and the mind bears the full stamp of God's image. Here you talk, and walk and live,—doing all in him and to him. Continual prayer, and turning all into Christ in every house, in every company,—all things by him, from him, and to him!" Oh, if Christians had this baptism of power, they would move quicker in works of benevolence, and run faster for eternal life; they would burn with greater heat, and shine with greater brightness, and their usefulness would be increased a hundred fold. A soul filled with the Holy Ghost does not need urging to work for Jesus: he is glad of every opportunity of doing good.

Persons who have this baptism of the Holy Ghost are led to think much about it; the indwelling of the Spirit with power is the theme they most delight to dwell upon; they are never so happy as when they are preaching a full salvation, and are urging believers to be holy, and to be filled with the fullness of God. And they have a wonderful love for, and drawing towards all, pure and holy souls. And they have a constant hungering and thirsting after a richer unction, a more gracious anointing, a more complete taking up into God.

But we remark further, that though baptised with the Holy Ghost, there may be times when, through various temptations and afflictions, your emotions may not be stirred, and you may not have any sensible evidence of the Spirit's operations. But if you are kept from sin, and your will is still one with God's will, you must still regard him as abiding with you. If we do not grieve the Spirit, the Spirit will never forsake us. He does not come for a period, but to abide with us forever. And he is present with us not only when we have joyous feelings, but when those feelings subside. If we do not sin, but make obedience to God in all things our choice and aim, our heart will be the constant abode of the Holy One. (To be continued.)

HEART-MELODY.

The apostle, writing to the Christians of Ephesus, exhorts them to "be filled with the Spirit," that they might speak to themselves "in psalms, and hymns, and spiritual songs, singing and making melody in their hearts to the Lord." (Eph. 5: 19.) Many of God's dear saints who are unable to make melody with the lips, know something of the music here spoken of, and down deep in their hearts are praising the Lord. The Psalmist, speaking of what the Lord had done for him, says: "He brought me up out of a horrible pit, out of the miry clay, and set my feet upon a rock, and established my goings; and he hath put a new song in my mouth; even praise unto our God." (Psa. 40: 2, 3). And if all who have experienced this wonderful change spoken of which we call conversion) cannot with the lips sing this song, they can sing it in the heart. For if any one can sing out of a glad heart it is the Christian.

The service of song has always occupied a large place in Christian worship; and we wonder sometimes if the sweet songs we sing on earth will not be sung in heaven. Will the songs of angels much excel ours when our hearts are full, and our lips are moved by the Spirit's power to sing? We are very sure that one of the sweetest themes of which we sing, the glad story of redemption, the angels have never learned.

Nature too sings, but her songs are all pitched in the minor key. The sighing of the breeze in the tree-tops, the moaning of the waves as they break upon the shore, the sound of the far-off waterfall, and the muttering of the distant thunder and the earthquake, all come to us in the minor strains, proclaiming the presence of the curse that rests upon the groaning creation, and her sighing for redemption. And so nature as well as the Christian sings in hope of deliverance, and of that glad morning when the curse shall be lifted and the shadows shall flee away.

A short time ago, in the far west, a sainted old woman lay dying. She had lived to the remarkable age of one hundred and sixteen years, but had never been able to sing; but just before passing away she sweetly sang the praises of God! It has been a source of deep regret to many of God's saints that they cannot with the voice join in the singing of his praises here. But it is a comforting thought that we shall all be able to sing then. In the glad chorus of the redeemed we shall all have a part, and join in singing the glad new song unto him: "Thou art worthy to take the book and to open the seals thereof; for thou was slain and hast redeemed us to God by thy blood, out of every kindred, and tongue, and people, and nation; and hast made us unto our God kings and priests: and we shall reign on the earth." (Rev. 5: 9, 10). Oh, what a glorious morning that will be, when the sighs and groans of this present time, shall give place to the glad song of the new creation! Hallelujah, for such a prospect!—C. H. WYER in Messiah's Herald.

MERCY.—After Queen Victoria had been crowned—after giving her nineteen or twenty years of age—Wellington handed her a death warrant for her signature. It was to take the life of a soldier in the army. She said to Wellington: "Can there nothing good be said of this man?" He said: "No; he is a bad soldier, and deserves to die." She took up the death-warrant, and trembled in her hand as she again asked: "Does no one know anything good of this man?" Wellington said: "I have heard that at his trial one said that he was a good son to his mother." "Then let his life be spared," said the Queen, and she ordered his sentence commuted.

Christ is on a throne of grace. Our case is brought before him. ... "Is there any good thing that can be said of this man?" Justice says: "None." Our ... says: "None." Nevertheless Christ bends over our pardon and asks us to live. Oh the height and depth, length and breadth of his mercy.—Ex.

THE RECENT SESSION OF THE ASSOCIATION.

The Second Advent Christian Association is the denominational body. It represents all our people, in the United States and Canada. It elects, annually, its own officers, the officers of the Advent Christian Publication Society, and the Editors of the World's Crisis, Young Pilgrim and Blessed Hope Quarterly. The Editor of the American Quarterly Journal of Prophecy is elected by the Mission Society. The Business Agent and Treasurer of the A. C. P. S. makes his report annually to the Association, and is elected by that body.

The recent session held at Chelsea was in several respects quite remarkable, and deserves notice.

During the five or six years that we have served as President of that body, we can truly say that the late session was emphatically the most harmonious we have ever attended. There was not a ripple of ill feeling discernible from the beginning to the end. And as a consequence the business was transacted in less than half the usual time. An atmosphere of kindness and mutual consideration was noticeable.

There was an unusual proportion of young preachers in the body this year, and Christian affection and respect between the younger and elder members was manifestly reciprocal. And it was a source of comfort and encouragement that the old hands, the pioneers, the leaders of this great people, most of whom are quite advanced in years, are so wonderfully preserved in strength and vigor, being still able to guide and serve the body in efficiency and wisdom. There was a limited but strong representation from the Western and Middle States, who seemed as interested in the progress of our cause and work in the East as in their own section. Indeed, no sign of sectional feeling was manifested during the session

It was the unanimous sentiment of the body that we have reached the prophetical period when our Lord's return must be "nigh, even at the doors" in the most emphatic and solemn sense; but that while the day of mercy lingers, we must employ every agency within our reach to broaden and press our efforts to spread the glad tidings, and save the benighted and thoughtless from impending destruction. Earnest discussion was had of ways and means for increased circulation of our papers and periodicals; and our publishing and business Agent will doubtless have something important to say to our people before long.

If any have feared or prophesied that the Advent body is disintegrating and liable to fall to pieces, had they attended our recent Annual Meeting their minds would have been set at rest. We are sure that our brethren, of the East and of the West, separated in renewed confidence, faith and love.

We hardly need add that the Chelsea church fully maintained its high reputation for hospitality and skill in entertaining the delegates and visitors. May they find rich reward in the land of rest and bliss.

THE FALSE PROPHET.

There is no longer any doubt that El Mahdi is dead. As we have frequently said in these columns, the Mahdi has appeared to us from the beginning to the end of his career, as nothing more than one of the predicted false prophets of these last days. But that the failure of his aimless undertaking will be followed by tranquillity in the dark lands is not to be expected. A succession of false prophets may be looked for until our great Priest-King shall reveal himself in universal power and empire. The following is interesting:

A RELIGIOUS UPRISING.

The report which the American consul at Sierre Leone has sent to the state department concerning the uprising of the Mohammedans in the centre of Africa supports the assertion made some time ago by Mr. Winfred Blunt, to the effect that the Mohammedan religion was undergoing a strange and momentous fermentation of reform. This movement has shown itself in certain almost unmarked incidents in Arabia, in evidences of strong religious feeling in Morocco, in the crusade inaugurated by the Mahdi, and again by these warlike operations on the part of the colored Mohammedan Samulus. This is nothing less than a revival of that old spirit of religious fervor which, more than ten centuries ago, gave to the Moslems political ascendency in Africa and western Asia, which gained for them the kingdom of Spain, and which at one time threatened the extinction of the Christian religion throughout Europe. At that time the Christian and the Mussulman fought upon a common basis. In the matter of weapons and in the art of war it is possible that the Mohammedans were in some degree superior to their adversaries, and if, in the interval of centuries, both races had made equal progress in scientific research, we should now have good cause for alarm in reading of these military operations on the continent of Africa. As it is, it requires considerable force of the imagination to realize that the time once existed when what is termed Christian civilization was constantly in danger of destruction in consequence of the vigor and prowess of those whom we now look upon as inferior races of men. The effect of this uprising in Africa will, of course, be closely confined to the interior of that continent, since it would be impossible for the leader of the movement to successfully attack the European colonies that have been established at various points on the African coast. To us his success in the interior of the continent means the establishment of a better and higher type of government, which may in time permit of the building up of trade relations, which would be an almost impossible work so long as the inhabitants of this little known country were broken up into tribes of hostile savages.

ALTON BAY CAMP.

We had arranged to go to Alton Bay Thursday morning, but our plan was interrupted by sudden illness, and we did not reach the camp till Saturday at noon, and was obliged to return that night. The number in attendance on that day, and, as we were informed, throughout the meeting, was large; the order was noticeably excellent, and the meetings of worship were reported to be of a high spiritual tone, resulting in a goodly number of conversions.

Our Campmeetings make part of the religious life of our people, and are inwrought into some of the richest personal experiences. Alton Bay, Springfield, etc., etc., will be joyfully remembered in the better land.

PETER'S PENTICOST SERMON.

Peter's sermon on the day of Penticost, being the first one preached after the outpouring of the Holy Spirit, may be regarded as a model sermon, and its theology must be recognized as correct. It was not prearranged, but was given under the influence of inspiration. The outpouring of the Spirit had produced such a strange result among the disciples, that some said they were intoxicated, and Peter arose to correct this charge; and after showing them that it was rather the result of the Spirit's power, he proceeded to preach a thrilling sermon, containing the cardinal doctrines of the gospel, to which we refer:

The death of Christ not a farce, but a reality." Jesus of Nazareth. . . . ye have taken, and by wicked hands have crucified and slain." Acts 2; 22, 23. All knew that these words of Peter were not figurative, but related to the literal death of Christ, without any allusion to a disembodied state. Here was a good opportunity for Peter to have informed them that death did not kill him, if such a theory were tenable; but he leaves no other thought upon the mind than that he was really "slain"—as really as the "lamb" was that typified his death; thus furnishing an appropriate sacrifice.

2. A physical resurrection, instead of a spirit elimination. "Whom God raised up, having loosed the pains of death: because it was not possible that he should be holden of it. . . . David speaketh concerning him, I foresaw the Lord always before my face; for he is on my right hand, that I should not be moved; therefore did my heart rejoice, and my tongue was glad; moreover also my flesh shall rest in hope: because thou wilt not leave my soul in hades, neither wilt thou suffer thine holy One to see corruption. Verses 24, 28. As surely as the body of Christ, instead of his spirit, was raised from the dead, so surely the resurrection due the saints hereafter is of the same nature, his being the "first fruits" of the resurrection harvest; and it is also certain that a resurrection from a literal death must be as literal as the death from which the resurrection is a release. If in the case of Christ the resurrection reanimated the "flesh," so it will do with the sleeping million's of saints."

3. Death does not convey saints to heaven. "Men and brethren, let me freely speak unto you of the patriarch David, that he is both dead and buried, and his sepulchre is with us unto this day, . . . For David is not ascended into the heavens." Verses 29, 34. This sounds quite unlike the present theory of soul emigration to heaven. And if death did not send David to heaven neither does it send other saints there.

4. Christ an heir to David's throne. "Therefore [David] being a prophet, and knowing that God had sworn with an oath to him, that of the fruit of his loins, according to the flesh, he would raise up Christ to sit on his throne; he, seeing this before, spake of the resurrection of Christ." Verse 29. Thus Christ "according to the flesh," in his resurrected state, is destined to occupy the throne of David, if Peter's Pentecost sermon contains correct theology. And the oath of Jehovah to place an heir of David on David's throne, relates to Christ; he is David's great heir, and must have the throne. But instead of being on David's throne, he is in a foreign realm, on a foreign throne; for the Father said to him: "Sit thou on my right hand, until I make thy foes thy footstool;" and it is affirmed in Scripture that he is "expecting from henceforth till his foes be made his footstool." He is "expecting" something in the future—even the subjugation of his enemies; then he will be seated upon the throne that he is heir to—the throne of David. Preparatory to this, he must leave heaven and come back to earth, when the "kingdoms of this world shall have become the kingdoms of our Lord and of his Christ, and he shall reign forever and ever." Rev. 11: 15. Though Christ is now in heaven, he is there not to remain perpetually, but simply till his enemies are given over to destruction; then the Father shall again "send Jesus Christ" to execute his plan.

5. Jesus is now both Lord and Christ—that is, a divine personality and a prospective king. "Therefore let all the house of Israel know assuredly, that God hath made that same Jesus, whom ye have crucified, both Lord and Christ." Verse 36. As a Saviour. he has now all power in heaven and earth—being our Lord—and at the same time he is the Christ, or Anointed One; anointed to be our future king, destined to begin his reign when he returns from heaven; for Jesus said: "When the Son of man shall come in his glory, and all the holy angels with him, then shall he sit upon the throne of his glory." Then, and not till then, will begin his glorious reign on earth in person.

6. Peter's sermon began with the claim that the "last days" had already come, in some sense, even 1800 years ago—evidently in a comparative sense—then where are we now, but in the last part of the last days?

These facts, clearly presented, produced conviction: "Now when they heard this, they were pricked in their hearts, and said unto Peter and to the rest of the apostles, "Men and brethren, what shall we do?" Peter informed them that repentance and obedience were necessary to salvation; and 3000 souls made haste to accept the terms.

This sermon was not a sensational speech to stir the emotional element of human nature, producing a mere surface work, but it was a sermon of solid gospel facts to be believed—facts that reach the judgment and understanding of men; facts that recognized a literal resurrection in the person of Jesus, and a resurrection just as literal for his saints hereafter, that allow that dead saints are previously in their graves, instead of being in heaven; recognizing Christ as an heir to David's throne who is now waiting in heaven till the time arrives for the subjugation of his foes on earth, coupled with the fact that we are living in the last days of time. Such gospel facts, however unpopular now among men, were proclaimed by Peter on the day of Pentecost, and believed by the people; and this belief led men to accept Christ as a present Saviour and a future king. Subsequently "they continued steadfastly in the apostle's doctrine and fellowship, and in breaking of bread, and in prayers"—this being a religion of correct doctrine, true obedience and fellowship, coupled with devotion. W. S.

ECCLESIASTICAL DOCTORS.

Sick men often need doctor's, and perhaps sick theology ditto: but why should we try to doctor the truth? Literary merits are not to be depreciated by any means, but rather to be prized as an important appendage: but high sounding titles aid but little in fitting ministers for their great work of saving the lost. The Christian Witness makes the following sensible remarks: "From the multiplication of theological doctors among us, one might judge that our theology was getting to be a little sickly. D. D.'s in great numbers are dropping down all around us. Some are bestowed by institutions of honorable standing; others by schools which would scarcely equal a first-class grammar-school. What such titles can amount to, we are utterly unable to divine. If they added to the ability or success of the recipients, it would be well; but observation convinces us that they do neither. The whole matter of doctorates, as now bestowed, is becoming a perfect burlesque. If there is to be no discrimination in the bestowment of these honors, the sooner they are entirely abolished the better. There are ministers who are justly entitled to such honors, if, indeed, they are ever proper, of which there is great doubt. Men who have distinguished themselves in authorship, or are at the head of our theological schools and universities; editors of our leading church periodicals, and old men, as a mark of recognition for long and valuable services in the pastorate—may very properly receive this honor. But to bestow such honors upon men who have never done anything to merit them; who have neither culture nor usefulness to commend them—to have a D. D. appended to their names, is, we repeat, a burlesque, and for the credit of the church and the honor of our institutions of learning, the practice should be abandoned."

To the above we say, Amen. W. S.

SHILOH.

In Gen. 49: 10, we read: "The sceptre shall not depart from Judah, nor a lawgiver from between his feet, until Shiloh come; and unto him shall the gathering of the people be." This passage has been supposed to refer to Christ. In the authorized version this is the only passage where the word Shiloh refers to a person. In Dr Smith's Dictionary of the Bible, this is said to be "a very difficult passage." The writer goes on to say "There are three objections to this translation, which, taken collectively, seem fatal to it. (1) The word Shiloh occurs nowhere else in Hebrew as the name . . . of a person. (2) The only other Hebrew word, apparently, of the same form, is Giloh (Josh. 15: 51; 2 Sam. 15: 12;) and this is the name of a city, and not a person. (3) By translating the word as it is translated everywhere else in the Bible, namely, as the name of the city in Ephraim, where the ark of the covenant remained during such a long period, a sufficiently good meaning is given to the passage without any violence to the Hebrew language."

The simple translation is, "The sceptre shall not depart from Judah, nor the ruler's staff from between his feet, till he shall go to Shiloh." It is further remarked, that this view is favored by "numerous learned men belonging to various schools of theology." The translation . . . . of Shiloh as the name of a city is to be regarded as the soundest."

Whatever interpretation of the present reading may be adopted, the one which must be pronounced entitled to the least consideration is that which supposes the prophecy relates to the birth of Christ.

CHURCH NEWS.

Eld. Geo. R. Kramer, writing on business, adds:—"We have a beautiful church building now in this city (Brooklyn), where the Church of the Blessed Hope now worship. We baptize this evening a minister and his wife—Rev. Mr. Fuller; he has been laboring among the Congregationalists, but has been convinced of the truth, and to-night he will give his reasons for the step, and then I am to baptize him and his companion. Last Sunday we baptized an old gentleman near seventy or over."

Bro. John Jeffrey writes from Putnam, Ct., Aug. 25th:—"We have some encouraging news to send you from the Putnam church. I am still laboring with this people. Have had some additions, and for the grand and awful times in which we live the interest is very good. Last Sunday, Aug. 23d, two more on profession of their faith in the Lord Jesus Christ went with us to the Quinnebough River, and there received the ordinance of baptism. Our daughter Annie being one of the candidates, gave us much encouragement, and interest to the occasion. Two more have given up the ways of sin, cried for mercy, and found peace in believing. So we hope soon to send you more good news."

A young pastor once asked Dr. Lyman Beecher how a cold and lifeless church could be revived. He replied: "Get your own heart warm first by reading, meditation, and prayer. Then warm another heart, then a third, and when you have seven, you have a revival.—Ex.

SPRINGFIELD CAMP.

BY MRS. A. E. BENNETT.

Our late Feast of Tabernacles at Camp-Springfield was a time of great refreshing from the presence of the Lord. As the congregation of Israel began to assemble there, individual hearts breathed out an inwrought prayer for a manifestation of God, to the end that souls might be saved.

At 8 o'clock A. M. each day the ministers all met with one accord and in one place—the Massachusetts tent, and continued in prayer and supplication that God would overshadow the leafy temple with his presence, and at the same time were little groups gathered in upper rooms, etc., sending up on the wings of faith and prayer the same petition, till there arose from the whole encampment, like incense, the prayers of the saints, till "Heaven came down our souls to greet,

And glory crowned the mercy seat."

Much of the preaching seemed like special messages direct from God to the people. Our altar services were seasons of deep solemnity, happily blended with the songs of the redeemed. Our early morning meetings in the Tabernacle seemed a little nearer heaven than anything of the kind the writer has ever known. Our conversational meetings were also a very fruitful means of grace to many. For in these times of perfecting the Bride of Christ, there are many advanced Christians who have walked in clear experiences till God, in taking them on to a higher plane, had to take them by a way they knew not; so new and strange did it seem to them, that some of them had become confused thereby, and almost cast away their confidence. Many such gave testimony to being greatly helped. To God be all the glory.

The children's meetings, the nursery of the stronger holds of Zion, were not only blest to the children and young people at the time, but teachings received and lessons learned there will tell on and on like little wavelets on the lake's surface, long after the aperture is closed up where dropped the pebble. For is not "the child father to the man?"

And last, though not least, came the holy sacrament of the Lord's supper. To one who had been absent eleven years from that sacred spot and those loved disciples, that was a most precious season. The heart kept saying, "with desire have I desired to eat this passover with you." Thus ended the "week of Sabbaths," the best ever known by the writer.

SHARING "THE GOOD WINE OF THE FEAST."

BY MRS. M. A. TIBBETS.

With the beloved disciple, I feel "in the Spirit on [this] the Lord's day." The early morning was given to prayer and reading the blessed Word, and then our dear Crisis, eagerly perusing the Springfield Campmeeting, to hear from the brethren and sisters, and of the "feast of fat things" enjoyed so many days together. Every day's work was very interesting; the various meetings, the subjects discussed, and the earnest, loving zeal of the ministers, feasted my heart, and made me more than ever long for a glorious immortality, when I hope to be with them in the enjoyment of the marriage feast of the Lamb. The children's meeting, made so interesting by dear "Aunt Abbie," brought joy to my heart to know that they were so early in life taught to love Jesus, and were so willing to give testimony of their love for his precious name. May God bless and preserve them unto his heavenly kingdom.

We, too, have a blessed child in our midst, eight years old, who every Sunday morning stands up and in a loud, cheerful voice repeats one whole chapter, and sometimes more. This morning it was the 33d chapter of Isaiah. His delight is to search the Word of God, and he is now getting up a lecture on "The Children of the Bible," commencing with Cain and Abel, which he will speak at a Union Sunday School in our neighborhood. He is the little son of our deacon, Henry Porter, and has been well trained by his father in the Scriptures of divine truth. O that parents in general would early commence to instruct their children in Bible truth, that they might the sooner be prepared for positions of usefulness in the church.

Bro. Stockman's subject, "The name of Jesus," thrilled through my heart with delight, for shut up as I am from the outward privileges of the gospel (save here at home), the blessed Bible, the name of Jesus, and the throne of grace are my sources of comfort in the trials of life through which I am called to endure, in common with other pilgrims, while waiting for the glorious appearing of our coming King.

And now, dear brethren and sisters, you who have been so spiritually refreshed in nature's grove, singing the praises of the Lord, fill the columns of our good paper for months to come with letters of your rich experience, that others may share your abundant joys, and be encouraged to press forward in their heavenly journey.

FANCIFUL PREACHING.

BY EDWIN BURNHAM.

Some preachers seem wonderfully devoted to fancy in their preaching of what they call "God's Word." What is God's Word? Our crude, wild, vain, fanciful notions are not to be taken for God's Word. The Word of God is that clear revelation which he has given us of himself, his Son, and his will, in the exact sense of his own expression. If we put our own sense, or nonsense on to it, that is another matter. God does not allow us to play fancy with his Word. We are to "tremble at his Word." Men do not tremble when at play. "No prophecy of the Scripture is of any private interpretation." So no part of the Scriptures is to be interpreted according to any private, or fanciful, or special standard of our own. The Scriptures are one continuous chain of inter-connected truth. One part of God's Word belongs with all other parts of it. We are to "preach the Word" in the exact meaning of the "holy men" who spake and wrote. We are to find out what they did mean before we preach about it. This requires effort, study, patience, prayer, and sound common sense! We must regard referring David's shepherd's "rod and staff" to "Aaron's rod" of old, "laid up before the Lord," as wonderfully fanciful. Pride and vanity sometimes appear in an effort to create a sensation by preaching queer, strange, odd, wonderful sermons, that will make unstable people and "fools" wonder, stare, and praise. The Bible refers, approvingly, to words of soberness.

CORRESPONDENCE.

FROM A. N. SEYMOUR.

Bro. Stockman:—For over four months past I have been traveling about most of the time among our friends and brethren in the southern part of Michigan, our former field of Christian labor, and have done some preaching. I have visited between seventy-five and one hundred families, all of which have expressed much sympathy for me in my bereaved situation. All seemed to be much pleased to see me once more, although some never expected to see my face in the flesh again, and were surprised to see me able to be about. I was overjoyed in meeting and greeting so many of the dear saints who had been led to see and believe in the "faith once delivered to the saints" through our labors in days and years gone by. It was really comforting and heart-cheering. I exceedingly enjoy such welcome greetings. It was truly an oasis wherever I went. All seemed to spare no pains in making me welcome and providing for my necessary wants.

Notwithstanding I witnessed so much love, kindness and generosity, there was one very serious drawback to my enjoyment, and that was the absence of my noble and earnest Christian companion, who has faithfully stood by me for over forty years in trying to do good to our fellow beings. Could she have been present to have enjoyed these Christian salutations, my happiness would have been complete. But she has gone from me to quietly rest beneath the ground that covers her, in the precious assurance of reaping an incorruptible and immortal crown upon the sure return of our divine Nobleman, when he comes to gather up his scattered and sanctified jewels, over which death has gained a victory for only a limited space of time. I long for the dear Life-giver to place his face through the firmament, and come in all his power and glory, and gather his white-robed bride into his blessed and glorious residence, no more to suffer by disease or death.

By the abundant grace of God aiding me, I am doing my best in overcoming the wickedness of this world, and living in constant discharge of all the responsible duties of life, so that I can finally be admitted into that far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory soon to dawn upon this dark world, when our Deliverer shall come to restore all things spoken of by the holy prophets. I desire the sincere and effectual prayers of all the true and good that my future may be a life of usefulness, and a blessing to all with whom I may associate. Yours in hope of life eternal.

Coldwater, Mich, Aug. 23d.

FROM F. K. RANGER.

Bro. Stockman:—I have often been much interested as well as encouraged by reading the letters in the Crisis from those who are with me traveling the pilgrimage journey to the better land. As they tell of their experiences along the way, and recount some of their labors in the Master's vineyard, so I thought it might cheer some brother or sister as they journey on to hear from me.

I am pressing toward the mark, and though the race course is beset on every side with trials and temptations, yet the way never looked brighter, or the prospect more glorious than at present. Truly, the "path of the just is as a shining light, which shineth more and more unto the perfect day," and he that hearkeneth to the "commandments of the Lord," his peace is like a river, and his "righteousness like the waves of the sea." I left my home in Lowell, Mass., the first of last April, and came to Way's Mills, P. Q., where I found a very pleasant tarrying place with Bro. and Sister H. W. Davis. In the providence of God I have been permitted to attend nearly all the weekly prayer meetings of the little band of believers of like precious faith, which were held at the residence of Sr. Batchelder. The meetings have all been interesting, and some of them soul-stirring and heart-searching. I have not been negligent in attending the preaching services, having been permitted to listen to Bro. H. D. Selby, who is pastor of the church, a very earnest and godly man. Also to Brn. Moses Hastings, John Magoon, G. E. Brown, D. W. Sornberger, H. W. Davis, and others. It has also been my privilege to speak to the people on the Word of God. The Beebe Plain Campmeeting was one of the best meetings I ever attended.

One week ago I was permitted to attend the District meeting for the Hatley District. Those who were enabled to attend all through the meeting report it a very profitable season. The Tent meeting at Ayer's Flat, under the supervision of Bro. Magoon, aided by Brn. H. C. Holt, Roberts, Gordon, Geo. E. Brown, and others, was a success. Some souls were saved, and many quickened and strengthened. Praise the Lord for these services in the desert wilderness!

Brethren and sisters, we are almost home. The battle waxes hot, but forward must be the watchword. Through Christ we shall conquer. We must abide in him, and keep unspotted from the world. I have no definite plans for the future, only to follow as the Master leads the way. If I stay long in Waterville, hope to be of some service in the work of the Master. The Lord has blessed me thus far, and I trust that through the agency of the Holy Spirit the people have been benefitted, and the Master's cause advanced. Pray that the Lord may direct all my ways, and even keep me in a patient waiting for his Son from heaven. If any of my friends wish to write to me, they may direct to Way's Mills, P. Q.

FROM HATTIE NEWBERRY.

To all who love Jesus:—I have the privilege of reading the Crisis through Mother N's kindness. I have been a member of the Christian church since I was eleven years of age. I knew very little then except to love Jesus, and obey him as well as I could, but I never regret starting so soon. Do not hinder the children; but when they have been immersed, help them to "grow in grace and in the knowledge of the truth." During the four years of my married life I have had the truths of "Christ's coming kingdom" and "destruction of the wicked" brought before me, and have accepted them. My father and brother, both preachers, have tried to convince me of error, but to no purpose.

There are no Adventists here but one family, one woman, my husband and myself. I would love to help spread the glad tidings, but our means are very limited. I never heard an Adventist preach. If any of the brethren come this way, hope they will stop and give the people a little Bible truth. I am tired of such doctors of divinity as we have here. We are trying to do what we can in a union Lord's day school; but some are so easily offended, that they will not hear anything different from the ideas in the lesson leaves. We speak the truth, regardless of consequences, at every opportunity.

Aurora, Neb.

FROM JULIA FINTON.

Dear Brn. and Srs.:—I have been desirous for sometime to write a few lines for the Crisis, having been a constant reader of the paper for the past five years. How I love it for its blessed truths, and the assuring comforts it contains. I am eagerly watching and waiting for the coming of our dear Saviour. I am weak and wavering many times, but we have a tender Father, who has promised to be our friend. I often wonder why people cling with such tenacity to this wicked and sinful world, when our Father hath said we do not begin to know the pleasures here that we shall know providing we believe and obey him. The Crisis, and the loving pieces I read, cheers me on my way. To do all we can is but a small portion for our blessed Father.

We have an Advent preacher (Bro. Carmen) who walks eight miles every alternate Sunday to preach to a congregation who appreciate his goodness. I enjoy these meetings, and wish we could have more of them; but there are so few who believe in the soon coming of Christ, that they do not want to hear anything about it. God help us and save us, is the prayer of your hopeful sister.

FROM MANY LANDS.

FOREIGN.

Madrid, Aug. 31. The statistics of cholera in Spain for the past week show roughly that there was a daily average decrease of 300 new cases and 140 deaths. In Granada and Saragona this decrease was most notable, while in Madrid and Barcelona there was no change. In Valencia, Toledo and Zamora there was an increase in the number of new cases and deaths.

A dispatch from Gibraltar says: One death from cholera occurred here to-day, making the 10th fatal case within Gibraltar since the outbreak of the disease in Spain. Six new cases of cholera and two deaths from the disease occurred within the Spanish lines at this point yesterday.

Dublin, Sept. 1. A banquet was given by the Lord Mayor at the Mansion House this evening in honor of Parnell and his Irish colleagues in the House of Commons. There were 300 guests present, exclusive of the members of Parliament. In a speech, Mr. Parnell said that if home rule were refused the Irish they would make it impossible for the English to legislate. England could either grant the Irish the right to rule themselves or make the country a crown colony.

Dublin, Sept. 1. During a torchlight procession at Galway last night in honor of Mr. Timothy O'Connor, a number of the processionists attacked a detachment of Yorkshire soldiers on garrison duty there. The noise of the disturbance attracted the attention of the latter's comrades and they issued from the barracks in force and joined in the melee. For four hours the fight waged fiercely, clubs and stones being freely used by both sides. A large number of windows were smashed and many persons injured. Finally the police, who had in the meantime been reinforced, with the aid of the military not engaged in the riot, quelled the disturbance.

Toulon, Sept. 1. Thirteen persons died here from cholera to-day. There is no apparent increase in the daily average of new cases. The temperature has fallen, and the weather has become much more favorable. At the St. Mandirer Hospital to-day 9 patients were admitted, 3 died, 2 were discharged and 99 remain under treatment. At other hospitals 3 patients were admitted, 1 has died and 35 remain under treatment. The Government has sent four surgeons from Paris to assist in caring for the sufferers. The exodus of to-day exceeds that of any previous day. Many shops are closed. One death from cholera is reported at Montagnac.

Berlin, Sept. 1. The Germania says that one hundred and forty Prussians have just been expelled from Warsaw. They were arrested and chained together and compelled to march, the women following the men and sleeping in the prisons. [illegible] wealthy Poles who have been expelled from Prussia.

Brussels, Aug. 31. The Independent Belge states that the Afghan question is settled. The Ameer of Afghanistan, it says, retains Zulfikar and Russia Maruchak.

BIOGRAPHY OF MRS. L. E. FASSETT.

By her Husband, Eld. O. R. Fassett.

Printed on heavy paper, and bound in cloth; 168 pages; price 50 cts. For sale at the Crisis Office, 144 Hanover Street, Boston, Mass.

The subject of this Memoir was well known to a wide circle of friends, among whom for many years she lived and moved as an angel of love, carrying the gospel of Jesus, and by true devotion, womanly modesty and Christian principle, setting an example worthy of imitation by women everywhere. No wonder that she won the affections of hundreds, who ask now she is dead, to have some record of so exemplary a life. Her husband—certainly best qualified to perform the task—has in this beautiful book endeavored to meet the desire of friends. Tenderly has he written, and the tender-hearted will here and there drop a tear while reading passages in the book. The Biography is a work that will sell from its own recommendation. Agent.

A TRACT FOR THE TIMES.

THE RECURRENCE OF DOCTRINE.

By Pastor A. J. Gordon.

This is a reprint of a very striking address, recently delivered by the author before the Alumni of the Newton Theological Seminary. It is not stale reading by any means, but is luscious fruit from the tree of life. It shows how the great truths of inspiration continually recur in the history of the church. By this recurrence the Doctor claims that great revivals and reformations spring up, and perennial freshness is secured to truth. The Eucharist for the people—Salvation by the objective work and word of Christ,—and Last Eschatology, or the doctrine of last things, among the latter, "The Lord Cometh"—are apostolically pressed upon the attention of the Alumni. Good! The doctrine, the precious truth of Jesus' coming, is voiced by the Clarendon Street Baptist pulpit, without misgivings or mysticism.

This is a twenty page tract; price 3 cts. each; twelve for 25 cts. For sale at the Crisis Office, 144 Hanover St., Boston, Mass.

Note.—One brother has ordered one thousand copies for free distribution. Let everybody do something towards scattering this tract in the different churches and among the people throughout the land. Agent.

AN EXPOSITION OF THE 20TH CHAPTER OF REV.

By Wm. F. Collier.

This is a tastily printed pamphlet of thirty-two pages, with tinted cover. It gives the author's position upon this chapter, upon which there has been much discussion, and various opinions. The author claims that in the book of Revelation the literal truth is given by symbols. He therefore regards the thousand years as in the past, and thinks it inconsistent with Christ's words to place the resurrection of the just and unjust a thousand years apart; as Christ says, "The hour is coming in the which all that are in their graves shall hear his voice and come forth." But get the pamphlet and examine for yourself.

Price 10 cts.; for sale at the Crisis Office, 144 Hanover Street, Boston.. Agent.

"The Christian's Secret of a Happy Life."

The new edition. We are now ready to fill orders. It is neatly bound in cloth. Price postpaid, 75 cts. AGENT.

NEW BOOKS.

It is with pleasure we present to the Christian public our new publications, in which the reasons of our faith are presented in a candid and logical manner, and with such a vast amount of scriptural testimony that the books must command the respect of all candid thinkers and Bible students.

"OUR HOPE," OR, WHY ARE WE ADVENTISTS?

The large and increasing demand for this work is an expression of the high appreciation of its merits among our people, and we believe it will accomplish much good in removing unjust prejudice, and enlightening many minds upon the great subject of Christ's Second Advent, and the restitution of all things spoken by the prophets of olden times. We wish that a copy might be placed in the hands of every clergyman in the country. Price single, postpaid, 60 cts.; per dozen, by express, $6.00. AGENT.

HADES, OR THE INTERMEDIATE STATE OF MAN.

A companion volume to "OUR HOPE." By Rev. H. Constable, A. M., containing 367 pages, neatly bound in cloth, lettered in gold, making it ornamental and attractive. This is a reprint of the English edition, and the third edition of the work. The former price was $1.25 per copy. We are able to put them at 60 cts. per copy; $6.00 per dozen, by express. The large sale of this work in the old country is undoubted evidence of its great merit. It is the only work extant, with which we are acquainted, that fully presents an extensive historical and scriptural testimony on the state of man in death. AGENT.

DURATION AND NATURE OF FUTURE PUNISHMENT.

By Rev. H. Constable, A. M., late Prebendary of Cork, Ireland, and author of "HADES, OR THE INTERMEDIATE STATE OF MAN," etc. Neatly bound in cloth; 360 pages; price, 60 cts. single; $6.00 per dozen, by express.

This book has passed through five editions in England. We have the pleasure of presenting to the public the first AMERICAN EDITION at a low price. It is a companion volume to "OUR HOPE" and "HADES," and the three constitute a compendium of theology upon the subjects of the nature of man, intermediate stage, future retribution, and life in Christ, that can scarcely be equalled outside of the Bible.

We will send the THREE volumes to Clergymen of any denomination for $1.75 postpaid. Please remember the above applies to Clergymen only. Address all orders to

J. HEMENWAY, Box 5140, Boston, Mass.

A NEW TRACT. "WHY ARE WE A PEOPLE?"

This handsomely printed Tract of 22 pages is the Discourse preached by ELD. E. A. STOCKMAN at the Special Convention in Worcester, Mass., and published by vote of the Convention. The Tract is eminently timely in its character, and should be scattered by thousands in every direction.

Price (post-paid), two copies for 5 cents, per dozen, 25 cents, per pound, 75 cents. AGENT.

ANOTHER NEW TRACT. THE END OF THE IMPENITENT.
BY WM. H. MITCHELL.

This tract is the substance of a sermon preached by Bro. Mitchell at Biddeford, and published by the A. C. Publication Society, Boston, Mass. No one acquainted with Bro. Mitchell's pulpit and literary ability will need be told that this production is eminently worthy of careful reading and wide-spread circulation. The argument is unanswerable; the rhetoric is pure and impressive, the spirit Christian and tender. Let this tract be ordered at once by thousands. Price, two for 5 cts. 20 cts. per dozen. AGENT.

A NEW TRACT. THE SABBATH ABROGATED.
By Mrs. C. C. Stewart.

A Tract of 16 pages. It is logical and concise, and meets the demand for something that shows up the fallacious claims of the advocates of the Seventh-day theory. The Seventh-day people are flooding some sections of the country with Sabbath literature that is calculated to mislead many, and bind the yoke of the law upon the people. Give this tract a large circulation. Two for 5 cts., 20 cts. per dozen. AGENT.

NEW PAMPHLET.
BY A. ROSS.
TOKENS OF THE HOUR: The Last Phases of the Papacy marked in Prophecy.

For sale at the Crisis Office. Price 15 cts. single; seven copies for One Dollar, postpaid.

THE SABBATH.

"IS IT THE DUTY OF A CHRISTIAN TO OBSERVE THE SEVENTH DAY?" We have received a small lot of tracts on the above question, setting forth the subject in a clear light. AGENT.

"GOOD BYE, TILL THE MORNING."*

BY LUCY D. HARRINGTON.

Good bye until the coming dawn,
When shadows flee away—
Until the resurrection morn
Shall herald endless day.
Though now we part, we soon shall meet
No more to grieve or die;
Good bye until the morning dawn,
Good bye, dear ones, good bye!

Fourscore and seven pilgrim years
I've trod life's desert way,
Through sun and storm, through light and shade,
Cheered by hope's beaming ray;
But now I've reached the evening time'
And lay me down to die:—
Good bye until the morning dawn,
Good bye, dear ones, good bye!

I've met with you in tented grove,
And joined in song and prayer;
My heart is knit to yours in love—
O, will you miss me there?
I'll sing with you the glad new song
When comes the Bridegroom's cry;
Good bye until the morning dawn,
Good bye, dear ones, good bye!

I've reached the Jordan's chilling wave,
But yet no fear I know;
By faith I view the other side,
And wait the call to go.
My heart is filled with trustful hope—
The promise draweth nigh:
Good bye until the morning dawn,
Good bye, dear ones, good bye!

*Old Bro. Allen, familiarly known as "Father Allen," died at Chicopee Falls, Lord's day, Aug. 23d, one week after camp. He died a happy Christian death, his last words being, "Tell the brethren good bye till the morning."

To the Editor of Messiah's Herald. Dear Sir:—I do not often see the Messiah's Herald., but I am happy to think I am in full accord with you on the question of the second advent; and I could wish that I might say the same with regard to the question of eternal life through Christ: for I am unable to understand how you can favor the one and oppose the other. They seem to me to be logically connected, and to rest on the same literal interpretation of God's Word. I cannot but think that a better understanding of the doctrine of life as we hold it, and of the grounds of our belief, would bring you into closer sympathy with us. At any rate I am reluctant to suppose that you would willingly misrepresent Christian brethren with whom you have so much in common, or suffer your paper to be made the medium of such misrepresentation, and then refuse them the scant justice of setting themselves right before your readers.

Several articles—I know not how many—entitled "Is that so?" purporting to have been written by a lady, have been given to the public during the past few months through your paper, which you have highly commended to your patrons. I have seen only numbers I, II, and IX. What is said in the other numbers I know not. But the object of these three seems to be to show that Canon Constable and myself have "dishonestly" quoted the Fathers on this question; have wrested their words as well as the words of the Lord," and "perverted their language;" and, in short, have stated what is "false concerning them, not accidentally, but intentionally "for the sake of sustaining our theories;" thinking to do all this with impunity because so very "few of our readers are able to examine the Fathers for themselves." All this (and much more of the same sort) is asserted in so many words, or by direct implication in these articles.

Nothing has astonished and perplexed me more in this discussion than to see the recklessness and abandon with which our opponents hurl false and injurious charges against us personally, and against our writings—unless it be the eagerness with which the editors of reputable religious papers publish and scatter them abroad, and their unwillingness to have these erroneous statements corrected in their columns. My correspondents in Europe have often assured me that they have always found their most unscrupulous and bitter assailants among women. They may perhaps hope for impunity because of their sex; for no sober man desires any controversy, especially in public, with a woman.

My friends have repeatedly urged me to make some reply to these articles in your paper; but I have steadily refused, not only on this account, but because it has seemed to me that they could do no harm among those who take interest enough in this matter to inquire for themselves: and as for others the game would hardly be worth the shot; and still further, my experience with other papers has given me no encouragement that I would be allowed to correct any of these misstatements in the columns of the Messiah's Herald, and it would be of little use to try to correct them elsewhere. But they tell me that the cause of truth, to say nothing of my own personal reputation, requires that I should take some notice of this long series of papers, and that you, as a fair Christian man, could not deny me the opportunity of saying at least a few words in reply to some of these grosser charges in your paper. In deference to their suggestion then, and with no idea of entering into any argument on the main question, or of replying to any rider you may put upon this letter, or to any response which your correspondent may make, by way of self-justification, I beg to say:

1. I am not a "materialist" in any true sense of the word. I do not hold that the mind is the result or effect of organization, though I do hold that its processes are carried on through an organization, and for aught that we know to the contrary some organization is required for its operations. But I have never given any ground for the charge that your correspondent makes when she says, "The doctrines inculcated by Mr. Pettingell, and those who hold with him that man is wholly material." The charge is false, as she must have known if she had taken the trouble to inform herself,—if not, she is still more culpable for adding the pretense of knowledge to her false accusation. I will not take up your space by quotations from my own works, nor by defending my position on this matter any further than to say, that while I do not agree with those who are called "spiritualists," nor with those who aid and abet them by spiritualizing away the plain literal words of Scripture, I do believe that the soul of man has an entitative existence of its own,—but this does not constitute it immortal. It becomes immortal only by the impartation to it of a divine life.

2. The writer has no excuse for associating me with Canon Constable as she does on this question of the nature of man. It is true I agree with him on the main question of eternal life only in Christ, as I do with you on the question of the Second Advent; but I do not agree with him, as he well knows and as others well know who are acquainted with my writings, and as my critic ought to have known before publicly assailing me in this way—with respect to the nature and constitution of men. Indeed I have opposed his so-called "materialistic views" in my writings.

But though I do not accept his psychology, I have the highest respect for his piety and learning, and especially for his thorough acquaintance with Patristic literature, as one who has made it the study of a long life, and who can read the Fathers in their original language. His deliberate and public statement of their opinions is entitled to the fullest confidence, as not only honestly made, but made by one who knows what he is saying. It is not by any hasty skimming of these two volumes of English translations—on the possession of which his accuser so congratulates herself—that she is going to show him up as an ignoramus and a fraud! But leaving this gentleman to take care of himself, which he is abundantly able to do, I have to say for myself:

3. That my assailant has altogether misrepresented my position in respect to the Fathers, and my object in referring to them. It may be inferred from the way in which she has magnified the matter, that something of importance really depended on their opinions, and that I have rested my argument, in part at least, on what they thought; but just the reverse of this is true. I refer to them in the course of a general survey of the history of opinions, in order to give some completeness to the discussion; but what may have been their opinions as individuals is of no consequence to me, nor of any more real importance on this question than the opinions of so many other men, excepting as it can be shown that they were derived directly from our Lord himself, or his immediate followers. Indeed it is my chief object to show how very soon they departed from "the faith once delivered to the saints," through the corrupting influence of the Platonic philosophy. Heretics of various sorts began to spring up even in the time of the apostles; and after the first century and a half this heresy of the natural immortality of the human soul, which the disciples of this heathen philosopher had been insidiously sowing in the Christian church, began to bear its legitimate fruit in the doctrines of endless torment on the one hand, or of universal restoration on the other. I show that Justin, who flourished at about the middle of the second century, seemed to stand at the fork of the road, and to look both ways; and while the earlier Fathers who had been associated with the apostles, or had immediately succeeded them, gave no countenance to this doctrine, so far as appears in any genuine fragments of their writings that remain—which indeed are very few—Justin, who had been a teacher of Plato's philosophy before his conversion, brought this philosophy with him into the church and taught it there; and that while with one hand he scattered the seeds of truth according to the gospel of Christ, with the other he scattered the seeds of error according to Plato. Hence, conflicting statements of doctrine are to be found in his writings; and he may be quoted on either side of this question.

Happening to see the name of Justin in one of my books, this zealous accusor, without stopping to read what I had said of him, jumped at once to the conclusion, that I had put him forward as an advocate of my own views; and hastens to brand me publicly through your paper as guilty of "wresting his words," and "perverting his language to suit my theory." The accusation was so recklessly false that, after being remonstrated with by a private letter, she felt constrained to make a quasi-apology under the plea that she had not read what I had said about him!

4. But this first misadventure seems not to have cooled her ardor, nor to have taught her caution as "an accuser of the brethren"; for I find in article IX, which is the only other one of the series I have seen, much more of the same sort of wanton misrepresentation. This is devoted to Irenaeus. She begins by saying he falls within the early period of which I had spoken, when in fact he flourished more than a whole generation after Justin, and died in the third century. But let that pass. She proceeds to quote what I have written concerning him; from which it appears, if language means anything, that he most explicitly teaches that immortality is not the natural endowment of man, but that it is only conferred as a supernatural gift of grace by a new birth from above; and that the wicked are "most justly deprived of length of days forever and ever." Then she devotes some three columns to extracts and quotations from his writings, so strangely mixed with her own observations that it is quite impossible to tell which is which—most of them entirely irrelevant, and others relating evidently to the immortality of the righteous—for the purpose of showing that he did not believe what he had said concerning the destruction of the wicked. And yet even from her own citations it is evident that he believed and taught that the wicked eventually suffered the "loss of that life which is eternal and never-ending," even if it should please God "to extend their existence into a long series of ages." I cannot perceive that he contradicts himself even in these citations. Certainly my assailant fails to show that I have misrepresented him by those that I had made—which she is ostensibly trying to do.

But I am not concerned to indicate the consistency of this man, nor of any of the Fathers. It is well known that they have suffered greatly at the hands of transcribers, and thus their writings have been sadly corrupted by those who would use their honored names in support of their own heresies, and that many spurious writings have been attributed to them; that such of the writings of the earliest Fathers are very few and fragmentary; and it requires a very accurate scholarship and a nice discrimination to determine what is genuine and what is false in those that bear their names.

But I need not go further. I think it will be evident to the candid reader that this lady, whatever else she may have shown by these articles, has utterly failed to make good her rash charges against Canon Constable or myself, and that she is more likely to cut off her own head than to "take off the heads of giants" with the broad sword which your delighted "brother in California" is so glad she is swinging for the purpose.

I have been told that she writes some pretty things about flowers. I can well believe it. I am sure she is better fitted by nature for this sort of literature than for theologizing, and more likely to shine in that line of things than in antagonizing her husband and his friends.

THE NATURAL LAW IN THE SPIRITUAL WORLD.

BY ARTHUR F. MOORE, M. D.

This book is the truest exposition and explanation of Christian experience it has been our lot to read, except the Bible. The chapter on Biogenesis, or Life—beginnings, teaches that we cannot make ourselves good, or enter ourselves unaided into spiritual life. "Except a man be born of water and of the Spirit, he cannot enter the kingdom of God." As the dirt and mineral cannot become vegetable except a vegetable take it up, and in its labratory make it such, and also vegetable cannot become animal unless made such by the chemistry of the animal system, so the carnal nature cannot become spiritual except through the operation of the Spirit of God. The higher nature must lift the lower to its own plane, and the lower can never lift itself there. God must convert us if we are converted. There is no growing into it, though there is growing in it, and there is no training ourselves into it. It is of God. Such is the lesson of the chapter on Biogenesis.

The chapter on Degeneration shows the tendency of cultivated varieties of animals, when left to themselves for several generations to revert to the original type from which they were cultivated, which it uses as an illustration of the tendency from grace to nature, from religious cultivation and spirituality to backsliding—from any state or grade of comparative goodness to a worse one. "How shall we escape" this tendency and its consequences, "if we neglect so great salvation," which salvation comes through conversion as illustrated in the chapter on Biogenesis.

This may be thought to involve the idea that Adam was of a low type when God pronounced him very good. But the fall was what we must look to for the low type. Man fell from his first estate, and his nature is now fallen, his "righteousnesses are as filthy rags," and there is no soundness in him. His nature is depraved, and continually tends to return to depravity unless restrained, for he is no more a son of God, but a child of the devil unless he becomes converted into a child of God. "For out of the heart proceed evil thoughts, murders, adulteries, fornications, thefts, false witnesses, blasphemies: these are the things that defile a man." Matt. 15: 19.

Growth. The Christian's progress is by growth. "Consider the lilies how they grow," says Christ. They do not toil and sweat and agonize to grow, but stay continually where God places them, and cannot help growing as long as they stay there. Sunshine and air and earth will make them grow, and they cannot stop it only by getting out of it. And the Christian cannot help growing if he will be contented about it, and feed on the Word and let God's Spirit operate on him like the sunshine on the lily.

Death. "To be carnally minded is death," but to be spiritually minded is life, because the carnal mind is enmity against God." Life is scientifically a correspondence with environment, or surroundings. The carnal mind is out of correspondence with God; does not feed on him or his Word, but feeds on fleshly lusts, which poison instead of nourish. So the spiritual nature dies, and the man is dead and dumb to all that is good—"dead in trespasses and sins," for this is a scriptural phrase. Indeed, this is said to be the condition of every sinner. Eph. 2: 1. Eternal death as a punishment is another thing in the Scriptures.

Eternal life—"To know God." John 17: 3. To be in correspondence with him, so that we correspond with his arrangements. If we do this we shall exist forever. The forever is not so much by analogy perhaps as by promise. The lily, as long as it is in correspondence with God's arrangement, lives until it has fulfilled its mission; but the promise is to us forever, and our mission will last as long as the promise. Those who do not know God will not live forever. Conformity to type—children like parents. As the son is like the father in physical and mental characteristics, so a child of God is like God who begat him (1 Pet. 1: 3), and Christ is formed in us the hope of glory.

The lesson in the chapter on Parasitism is that as certain animals by becoming parasites, and living on the juices of other animals, lose more or less of their ability to get their own living independently, and the more completely they become parasites, the more is their essential character changed, and they even lose the very organs necessary to an independent life, and become completely attached to the animal from whom they draw sustenance, and dwindle to nothing but mouth and stomach; so the religious parasite, who always gets his creed and knowledge of the Bible second hand, instead of by his own searching as the Bereans did, loses finally the power to find truth for himself. His powers become dwarfed and wasted, and he cannot think for himself, but must get it second hand. Are not the churches full of such, who know nothing except what the minister tells them? and it seems impossible to make them know anything else.

This is all that's valuable except the author's "Classifications" with regard to the spiritual world. 1st, the mineral kingdom. 2nd, the organic kingdom. 3d, the spiritual kingdom.

The organic kingdom consists of once born organisms, and the spiritual kingdom of twice born organisms,—begotten now we think, and to be born at the resurrection. Luke 20: 36 "That which is born of the flesh is flesh, and that which is born of the Spirit is spirit." John 3: 6.

All this is so true to nature we thought it good to translate, so to speak, the ideas and conclusions for the benefit of the unscientific. There is food for many a sermon in the book when compared with Scripture.

BIBLE promises are like the beams of the sun, which shine as freely in at the windows of a poor man's cottage as the rich man's palace.

FAITHFUL INFIDELITY.

The following I cut from a secular paper, The Delano Eagle, Minnesota. It is so much needed as a reproof against a growing evil among a certain "class of youth," and as a warning to those likely to be effected by their influence—for "evil communications corrupt good manners"—I cannot forbear sending it for publication in the Crisis. Coming as it does from the secular press, it is the more valuable, and will have greater influence among those who look with contempt upon a religious paper. Such faithfulness in guarding the morality of our youth, and endeavors to save them from the pitfall of infidelity by editors of the political and secular press, is most commendable. Let us endeavor to save the youth from being "loathsome blasphemers" of God, and of our Saviour Jesus Christ the Lord. Let us earnestly warn them to "Shun evil companions,

Bad language disdain;
God's name hold in rev'rence,
Nor take it in vain.
Be thoughtful and earnest,
Kind-hearted and true;
Look ever to Jesus,
He'll carry you through."

O. R. FASSETT.

"A disease which is becoming disgustingly prevalent among modern free-thinkers and free-talkers is a sort of puerile infidelity, cropping out in that class of youth who are given to argumentation. They are gifted, or rather more properly, cursed, with a natural talent for debate, and on every possible occasion they make use of the gift when an antagonist or audience can be found. If these discussions were confined to things earthly, no fault could be found other than the probability that the orators might degenerate into bores; but, unhappily, these disciples of the modern school do not so circumscribe their field, and think that if they do not have a fling at Christianity, ape atheism in their own puerile fashion, they are not going far enough in their course. Among the enlightened millions of the nineteenth century, the atheists and infidels are so few that they can be easily counted. Among the educated, thinking men of to-day, those who do not believe in Christianity have become conspicuous solely on account of their unbelief, or their opposition to the majority. Witness our Ingersoll, who, although a man so gifted naturally that he could never have fallen into mediocrity, would still never have become so noted or notorious, so famous nor so infamous, had he not chosen, business-like, to segregate himself from the crowd of men equally as brilliant, and make his name conspicuous as one who opposed the majority and refused to believe in their God. With Ingersoll it was solely a question of notoriety, which he mistook for fame; with our pot-house Ingersolls it is much the same thing, only diluted. We can swallow, though with a bad grace, the eloquent blasphemy of Ingersoll, but we must turn away disgusted from the rantings of his less gifted followers.

It is no credit to anybody to be an infidel. In the first place, because it argues a gigantic presumption in a pigmy intellect; besides this, it shows lack of taste in a man of intelligence, to thus hold up to ridicule a Being whom we have all been taught to revere as a God. Blasphemy cannot take on a more loathsome form than when contained in such words as these, not unfrequently employed by our young men of to-day: "Jesus Christ was a smart man for his time; he pulled the wool over the eyes of a few Jews, but he could not have so fooled us of the nineteenth century.' This may sound grandiose in the speakers' own ears, but it enters those of his hearers with the reluctance always attendant on loathsome, disgusting blasphemy. No man would ever make use of such language could he really for a moment know how it sounded to his audience, and the feeling of repugnance it creates. He, poor deluded fool, actually thinks that in thus directing his feeble shaft against heaven, he is really accomplishing something grand, and raising himself in his hearer's estimation; but the contrary is the case. He only lowers himself, and seems to shorten the shadow that he really does cast upon the plain. The old pagans in their blind idolatry could have rebuked and taught him a lesson in their belief 'that no man ever yet waged a successful war against the gods—the fight is too unequal.'"

CURRENT HISTORY COROBORATING PROPHECY.

In recounting the signs which were to precede his second advent, our Lord utters the following significant words: "And upon the earth distress of nations, with perplexity; . . . men's hearts failing them for fear and for looking after those things which are coming on the earth." To us, the present attitude of our world furnishes a remarkable fulfilment of this inspired prediction; one which merits the most serious consideration of every Christian man.

But we are most profoundly convinced that the general features of our time, the aggregate of the startling events of our present history, taken in connection with the unmistakable fulfilment of the prophetic word, furnish overwhelming evidence that the end of human history is at hand. A mere glance at the political, social, and moral status of the great nations of modern civilization of which men are so proud, is sufficient to convince the most sceptical of the serious state into which the affairs of the world have fallen.

The "great powers," as we call them, maintain toward each other the attitude of most profound distrust, each watching with a jealous eye the advancement of its own peculiar ambition, and aggrandizement of its power and authority. In the accomplishment of these objects, the only rule of action seems to be the measure of power with which each may support and enforce its individual claim. The most sacred friendships and alliances, the most sacred rights of others even, are unhesitatingly sacrificed on the altar of national ambition. The maintenance of peace demands the providing of enormous preparations for war, the expenditures for which are exhausting the resources of the people and burdening them with a weight of debt and taxation well-nigh unsupportable. The ministers of war and finance, if they may find time from their herculean task of providing for these enormous budgets to consider the future, can but ask themselves the question, Where will all this end?

And our most astute politicians and statesmen have before them, in the light of the history of the past quarter of a century, the alarming and unheard of spectacle of a bankrupt world. The continuance of the present regime can result in nothing short of this, and it is useless to deny that the prospect occasions the gravest apprehensions in the minds of the most candid, and impartial and discerning men.

The social and moral aspect is not more encouraging. The Nihilists of Russia, with their frequent attempts on the life of the highest dignitaries of the government; the Fenians of Great Britain, with their startling dynamite outrages involving immense destruction of property and endangering the lives of the innocent equally with that of the class against whom they would manifest their vengeful spite; the Socialists in Germany, making decided progress in spite of the efforts of the government for their suppression; the host of unemployed workmen, in France, Spain, England, and elsewhere, who from their unfortunate situation of actual want and distress, make through the representatives of their organizations most piteous appeals to their respective governments for some measure of relief from their sufferings,—all these deplorable conditions which exist in our society of to-day, present the social question in a manner well calculated to arouse the well-defined feeling of distrust so manifest on the part of all those who occupy themselves with thoughts of the future.

And what of the morals of our times? Crimes of the most unheard-of malignity abound on every hand. Intemperance, always on the increase despite the many noble efforts for its suppression, sweeps the earth with a destruction of life and happiness more frightful than war itself, and strewing its path with thousands of victims. Licentious immorality abounds everywhere, especially in our large cities, where this flood of evil is so great as to cause one to wonder what must have been the sins of the ancient cities of the plains, to have brought upon them such a fearful retribution, while our modern Sodoms stand unvisited. Licentious literature abounds, corrupting the morals of the young, and degrading all who come under the influence of its loathsome contamination. Suicides multiply, and the evidence of the existence of a flood of evil in all its multitudinous details is not wanting.

Good men stand aghast at the terrible picture they see before them, and inquire with anxious concern, "Is this the best that our boasted nineteenth century civilization and progress can give us?" And we ask ourselves the question, What is lacking to complete the fulfilment of the predictions of the Word of God concerning the last days? Why will not men heed what God has spoken, and prepare for the day of wrath which is fast approaching? As said the Lord to the incredulous Jews of his day, so might he say to the men of our time, "ye can discern the face of the sky, but can ye not discern the signs of the times?"—Rev. T. J. Malyon, in Christian Herald.

I WILL SING UNTO THE LORD FOREVER.

BY M. F. ORR.

These were the words of the inspired Psalmist, and we have no doubt that his heart was often lifted to God in praise and thanksgiving, through the spirit of song. It is also evident, from all his writings, that both vocal and instrumental music was considered a very important service in their worship of the Most High God. As he comes before the people we hear him exclaiming, "O come, and sing unto the Lord. Let us make a joyful noise to the rock of our salvation. Let us come before his presence with thanksgiving, and make a joyful noise unto him with psalms. Sing unto him with psaltry and harp. Serve the Lord with gladness." This too is in accordance with the teachings of the apostle Paul, where he exhorts his Ephesian brethren in this wise, "Speaking to yourselves in psalms and hymns, and spiritual songs, singing and making melody in your heart to the Lord."

Who has not at sometime felt the influence of sacred song? Just now, how vividly comes to mind the spiritual influence of one of Watt's hymns, sung by a congregation of worshipers in my childhood days, in the M. E. Chapel, in the beautiful village of Leroy, N. Y., my native home. The stanza that impressed me most was this:

"And must I be to judgment brought,
And answer in that day
For every vain and idle thought,
And every word I say?"

Although too young at that time to realize that the sentiment expressed in song was in harmony with the Saviour's words, "For every idle word that men shall speak they shall give account thereof in the day of judgment," yet never while memory lasts shall we forget the mingled feelings of fear and awe that thrilled my young heart.

Again, when later in life, and in obedience to the requirements of the gospel, what joy and rapture came to our troubled heart when we came up from the baptismal waters as the waiting assembly sang, "O, how happy are they who their Saviour obey;" and during all the early years of my Christian experience could sing with the spirit and understanding, "Jesus all the day long is my joy and my song."

The years came and went, with their trials and conflicts, yet when the toils of the day were ended, and in the gathering shades of evening loved ones would join in singing that old familiar hymn, "Thus far the Lord hath led me on," we would catch new inspiration, and in imagination could feel the gentle touch of the dear Heavenly Father's hand leading us on to the haven of rest. And now, as we feel that we are nearing our promised haven of rest, our heart goes out in praise and thanksgiving in the beautiful lines,

"There's a land that is fairer than day,
And by faith we can see it afar;
For the Father waits over the way,
To prepare us a dwelling-place there."

Reading, Mich.

ENDEAVOR to be always patient of the faults and imperfections of others; for thou hast many faults and imperfections of thy own that require a reciprocation of forbearance. If thou art not able to make thyself that which thou wishest to be, how canst thou expect to mold another in conformity to thy will?

LIFE'S evening, we may rest assured, will take its character from the day which has preceded it; and if we would close our career in the comfort of religious hope, we must prepare for it by early and continuous religious habit.

MARRED ON THE WHEEL.

"Arise and go down to the potter's house, and there I will cause thee to hear my words. Then I went down to the potter's house, and, behold, he wrought a work on the wheels. And the vessel that he made of clay was marred in the hand of the potter; so he made it again another vessel as it seemed good to the potter to make it." Jer. 18: 2-4. Suppose, dear reader, that you and I go down to the house of the potter to-day and listen to a voice from the Lord. The busy wheels are turning, turning, and your life and mine are taking form in the hands of the great Potter, and very much concerning the vessels that are making depends on the condition of the clay; and who really knows the love of God, but feels an intense desire to be "a vessel unto honor, sanctified and meet for the Master's use, and prepared unto every good work." 2 Tim. 2: 21. With gracious design and matchless skill the potter turned a piece of work on the wheels; but, alas! alas! it was marred in his blessed hands. From the marginal reading of Jer. 18: 4, it would seem as if he laid it aside for a time, and "returned again, and made it another vessel."

Do you remember a day when the dear Lord seemed to show you a picture of the vessel he wanted to make of you—when he called you to holiness, and spoke unto your heart of the blessed possibility of being all emptied of sin and self, and then filled, and kept full of his perfect love, with his law written right inside, and the image of Jesus reflected all around, and the Spirit's seal engraven thereon unto the day of redemption? Do you remember a time of testing, a turning point, a place where the Potter's further design was shown unto thee, and your place and work in his great house seemed revealed? But the clay was not ready for the mould, and got marred on the wheel. Perhaps this very hour, while you are reading these lines, the Potter is returning in mercy to try the little crooked lump of clay again, bidding you to be pliable, and soft and tender and yielding, and thus test his wondrous power, by simply letting him have his blessed way with you.

The making of the vessel is the Lord's part. The condition of the clay is our part. Dear child, be still and passive in his hands. Say, "yes, Lord," to all he tells thee, and just keep real quiet before him, and let him have his own sweet will with thy soul, and soon shalt thou prove his skill, and be moulded and ready for his use.—P. SPECIAL ANSWERS TO PRAYER.

☞ WE SOLICIT BRIEF, WELL AUTHENTICATED STATEMENTS OF SPECIAL ANSWERS TO PRAYER, IN THE HEALING OF DISEASES, OR OTHER REMARKABLE DELIVERANCES.

Faith Healing.

The Bethshan meetings being now resumed, the usual Wednesday afternoon meeting was held at 10, Drayton-park, Holloway-road on July 29, at 3 o'clock. The Rev. W. E. Boardman presided. Several brethren and sisters having engaged in prayer, the Chairman opened the meeting with some appropriate remarks upon our Lord's willingness to bless, founded upon his interview and discourse with the Samaritan woman at the Well of Sychar. Upon the call for testimony, Miss L. Lake said: "This precious gospel of healing is all of grace;" and then proceeded to narrate the recovery of one afflicted with severe sore throat, simply in answer to prayer.

A sister then told how a member of her family had been restored to a sound mind, and delivered from an asylum as soon as the case was unreservedly committed to the Lord as the Healer, also the great spiritual blessing that had come into the family through this divine interposition.

Mr. Wright said: "I was spiritually enlightened upon the Lord's power and willingness to heal the body about twelve months ago. A little daughter of mine had been a great sufferer from bronchitis, caused through teething. The cutting of every tooth was accompanied with a fresh and alarming attack of suffering in the bronchial tubes, and the doctor could offer no hope of improvement until after complete dentition. Her illness caused me considerable expense; but when I knew that the Lord would heal, I took her to Mr. Barnes, of Kentucky, during one of the attacks, and she was healed there and then. Since then she has had several attacks, and I have myself anointed her in the name of the Lord, and she has immediately recoved. I have myself experienced the Lord's healing, having been restored by him soon after I have knelt down and asked for health.

The Rev. R. Turner Sole narrated an instance of gradual strength, referring to a deranged intellect, and which he believes will shortly terminate in full restoration, in answer to definite prayer recently offered.

A sister who had undergone a surgical operation for tumor, said "the doctor did all in his power, but could only remove one-half of the tumor. The intense agony left by the operation was removed entirely in answer to prayer, and the Lord had strengthened her sufficiently to come here for anointing in order that he may succeed where surgical means have failed.

Other testimonies to the great spiritual blessing received at these meetings followed.

ALMS AT THE TEMPLE GATE.

Robert Ingersoll asked his hearers the other evening, whether a poor wretch, arriving in town without a dollar in his pocket, would inquire the way to a Presbyterian deacon's house, and they greeted the sally with immense applause. He was trying to get off a smart satire on the meanness of orthodox Christians, as contrasted with the generosity of infidels, but he missed his aim. Everybody knows that ministers, and other well-known Christian people, are the first to be besieged by beggars. I have frequently said to these persons, Why do you come here? Why do you always go to ministers' houses. The invariable answer is, that they think they will be more likely to receive sympathy and help there than elsewhere.

We might retort the question of the jolly lecturer, and ask whether a poor stranger was ever known to inquire where the infidels of the town lived, or whether a person in any sorrow was ever known to seek out an infidel to afford him comfort. Will the man who goes about ridiculing Christianity tell his audience the next time he lectures where they can find an infidel hospital, or refuge of any kind for poverty and distress, or any society composed of infidels which seeks out and relieves the suffering, in this country or in any other on the face of the earth?—Christian Intelligencer.

FROM ELLEN M. BRIGGS.

To the Dear Readers of the Crisis:—I want to add my testimony to the many that are being given in our beloved paper, to the goodness of our blessed covenant keeping God. There are some of you to whom I am known, and I doubt not you will be glad to know that he is still my "strength and stay." "A very present help in time of need." I am taking care of the sick, and have constant employment, and he enables me to give entire satisfaction to doctor and patient. Also has enabled me in several instances to be of great service to the "sick unto death," in helping them to be reconciled to God's will, and to see the need of holiness as a preparation to meet the Lord at his soon coming and kingdom.

At present am caring for a lady apparently near her end, and who has longed for Christian counsel and sympathy, and is able to believe it an evidence that the Lord cares for her in his sending me to her. Pray for me, dearly beloved, that I may be very faithful, and bring no reproach upon the cause we all love so much. I do love the Lord, and am trying to grow in grace and knowledge of the truth. I am looking forward with bright anticipation to the coming of Jesus. I love to think of meeting you all where partings never will come, and where we shall "Behold the King in his beauty," and be free from sin and sorrow forever. Until that time let us all be faithful, and keep on the wedding garment.

TEMPERANCE.

THE MINISTRY AND TOBACCO.

Rev. Dr. T. De Witt Talmage, in a recent stirring and able sermon on "Tobacco and Opium," said: "One reason why there are so many the victims of this habit is because there are so many ministers of religion who smoke and chew. They smoke until they get the bronchitis, and the dear people have to pay their expenses to Europe. They smoke until the nervous system breaks down. They smoke themselves to death. I could name three eminent clergymen who died of cancer in the mouth, and in every case the physician said it was tobacco. There has been many a clergyman whose tombstone was all covered up with eulogy which ought to have the honest epitaph: 'Killed by too much Cavendish.' Some of them smoke until the room is blue, and their spirits are blue, and the world is blue, and everything is blue. Time was when God passed by such sins, but it becomes now the duty of the American clergy who indulge in this narcotic to repent. How can a man preach temperance to the people when he is himself indulging in an appetite like that? I have seen a cuspidor in a pulpit, where the minister should drop his quid before he gets up to read, 'Blessed are the pure in heart,' and to read about 'rolling sin as a sweet morsel under the tongue,' and in Leviticus to read about the unclean animals that chew the cud. I have known Presbyteries, and General Assemblies, and General Synods where there was a room set apart for the ministers to smoke. Oh! it is a sorry spectacle—a consecrated man, a holy man of God, looking around for something which you take to be looking for a larger field of usefulness. He is not looking for that at all. He is only looking for some place where he can discharge a mouthful of tobacco-juice. I am glad the Methodist church of the United States, in nearly all their conferences, have passed resolutions against this habit, and it is time we had an anti-tobacco reform in the Presbyterian church, and the Episcopal church, and the Baptist church, and the Congregational church.

About sixty years ago a young man graduated from Andover Theological Seminary into the ministry. He went straight to the front. He had an eloquence and personal magnetism before which nothing could stand; but he was soon thrown into the insane asylum for twenty years, and the doctor said it was tobacco that sent him there. According to the custom then in vogue he was allowed a small portion of tobacco every day. After he had been there nearly twenty years, walking the floor one day, he had a sudden return of reason, and he realized what was the matter. He threw the plug of tobacco through the iron gates and said: 'What brought me here? What keeps me here? Why am I here! Tobacco! Tobacco! O God, help! Help, and I'll never use it again.' He was restored. He was brought forth. For ten years he successfully preached the gospel of Jesus Christ.

There are ministers of religion to-day indulging in narcotics, dying by inches, and they do not know what is the matter with them. I might in a word give my own experience. It took ten cigars to make a sermon. I got very nervous. One day I awakened to the outrage I was inflicting upon myself. I was about to change settlements, and a generous wholesale tobacconist in Philadelphia said if I would only come to Philadelphia, he would all the rest of my life provide me with cigars free of charge. I said to myself: If in these war times, when cigars are so costly, and my salary is so small, I smoke more than I ought to, what would I do if I had gratuitous and illimitable supply? And then and there, twenty-four years ago, I quit once and forever. It made a new man of me, and, though I have since then done as much hard work as any one, I think I have had the best health God ever blessed a man with. A minister of religion cannot afford to smoke. Put into my hand the money wasted in tobacco in Brooklyn, and I will support three orphan asylums as grand and as beautiful as those already established. Put into my hand the moneys wasted in tobacco in the United States of America, and I will clothe, feed, and shelter all the suffering poor on this continent. The American Church gives $1,000,000 a year for the evangelization of the heathen, American Christians spend $5,000,000 in tobacco."

IF intemperance should break out among horses and cattle, there would be an extra session of Congress called to stay the evil. But its only men that get drunk.

THE largest factor in making hard times in the United States is the $900,000,000 spent annually for intoxicating liquors.

ADVENT.

In the clouds, in power and glory,
In the "twinkling of an eye,"
Comes the King and mighty Saviour,
From his Father's throne on high.

As the lightning's flash, that shineth
From the east unto the west,
He comes—the Judge Majestic,
With all might and power possessed.

Every eye beholds his visage!
Many hearts with dread and fear,
But his own with joy and gladness,
Knowing that "the Lord is near."

When the trump shall sound, awaking
The dead in Christ arise,
And those who are alive, caught up
To meet him in the skies.

Mindful of the solemn warning,
The Master's earnest word
To be ever watching, praying,
"Even so—come quickly, Lord."

THE RESURRECTION OF CHRIST.

BY SILAS HENN.

The resurrection of Jesus, of that very person whom those Jewish rulers crucified, is a fact, a glorious fact. The evidence of it is as clear and abundant as any honest mind can wish. Thousands of historical facts are universally believed on evidence far inferior. The identity of the risen Christ was unmistakable; the proofs were every thing that could be desired; and the witnesses were exceedingly numerous. Christ was seen is his resurrected body; he was seen by those who had often seen him, and who were familiar with his form, his walk, and his features. And they not only saw him, but heard him speak, and they knew his voice; they knew the tone, the accent. They knew its thundering ring as it denounced injustice and wrong; they knew its calm, manly tones as it imparted instruction; they knew its kind and sympathetic tones as it spoke words of comfort to the suffering. It was the same voice; they had heard it too frequently to be mistaken. And some of them were permitted to touch him, to touch the very parts of his body which had been bruised and marred by his being nailed to the cross. More or better evidence of his resurrection could not be desired by candid and reasonable men. Nothing can be brought against the witnesses to impeach their testimony. It cannot be proved that they were any thing but simple, upright, straightforward men. They were men of common sense, and though not learned, had average mental abilities. And they were as far removed from fanaticism as could be. Nor were they fast to believe any thing new, or strange, or startling, but the very opposite. They were exceedingly slow in receiving some of the Saviour's teachings, because those teachings crossed their early prejudices. They were among the most unlikely persons to receive, or credit, any important event, without the fullest evidence of its truth. Indeed, they were just such men whose testimony would be taken in any court of justice.

All the disciples at first were more or less doubtful of the fact. They were very dull, were not at all quick to understand their own prophets, that Christ must needs suffer for the sins of men. They were expecting to realize in him a temporal Deliverer while he was then among them. When he was put to death their expectations were cut off. Their hopes forsook them and fled. They were cast down with grief, and sadness, and misgivings, and were on the very borders of despair. They had, therefore, to be convinced themselves by the proofs of the resurrection, before they became witnesses of the glorious fact. This greatly increases the value of their testimony.

The following interview which they had with their risen Lord, recorded in Luke 24: 36–40, and during which he gave them the most positive demonstration that he was really the very One who had been crucified, is enough to satisfy any sincere inquirer on this momentous subject, and we strongly doubt the moral honesty of the man who refuses such evidence. "And as they spake these things, he himself stood in the midst of them, and saith unto them, Peace be unto you. But they were terrified and affrighted, and supposed that they beheld a spirit. And he said unto them, Why are ye troubled? and wherefore do reasonings arise in your heart? See my hands and my feet, that it is I myself: handle me, and see; for a spirit hath not flesh and bones, as ye behold me having. And when he had said this, he showed them his hands and his feet."

But cautious as the disciples were how they gave credence to any thing which was out of the ordinary course of things, and which was contrary to their preconceived opinions, there was one of their number who was the most unbelieving of all. We mean Thomas. The other disciples might assure him of the fact that the Lord had risen from the dead, and that they had seen him for themselves. But that was of no avail. He could not receive any one's testimony; he must see for himself, and hear for himself, and feel for himself. This refusal to accept such testimony was unreasonable, and his unbelief was sinful. "And after eight days again his disciples were within, and Thomas with them. Jesus cometh, the doors being shut, and stood in the midst, and said, Peace be unto you. Then saith he to Thomas, Reach hither thy finger, and see my hands; and reach hither thy hand, and put it into my side; and be not faithless, but believing. Thomas answered and said unto him, My Lord and my God." John 20: 26–28. How great and how unreasonable the unbelief of those who deny our Lord's resurrection in the face of such evidence.

Then, in order that no possible room for doubt should exist, the proofs of this important event were multiplied. A number of instances are recorded in which Christ appeared first to one of his disciples, then to another and another; on one occasion to ten, on another occasion to eleven; and once, more than five hundred of the disciples all saw the risen Saviour. In Acts 1: 3, it is recorded that Jesus "showed himself alive after his passion by many proofs, appearing unto them by the space of forty days, and speaking the things concerning the kingdom of God." And during those weeks—nearly six—there were doubtless other instances not recorded; for John plainly intimates that he omitted the relation in his gospel of many of the things which Jesus did.

Excepting Saul, the persecutor, to whom Christ appeared when he was on one of his cruel missions against the disciples, Christ never manifested himself to any but his followers. We never find him appearing to the scribes and pharisees, or to any who opposed his claims to be the Messiah. They had witnessed his miracles, his wonderful power to heal the sick, and to raise the dead, but they had hardened their hearts; and any further miracle, even the miracle of his own resurrection, he doubtless saw would be of no use. They had already resisted the clearest evidence. And it seems more fitting that this appearance, in his risen and spiritual body, should be made only to his disciples.

For men of sound reason and judgment, for men unbiased by prejudice, for men willing to know the truth, more or clearer evidences are not needed to inspire faith in the glorious fact of the resurrection. "Ransack all history," observes one writer, "and you cannot find a single event more satisfactorily and clearly proved than the resurrection of Christ from the dead." "Whatever else may be doubted," observes Volkmar, a German skeptic, "of one thing there is no doubt, and that is, that the apostles believed they saw their Master alive after his death." It is only this belief that affords a satisfactory explanation of what they said and did. They who can read these evidences and still doubt, would doubt if the things were more numerous. The proofs, as Luke declares, were many; and he, therefore, who requires more, evinces hardness, stubbornness, blindness, and shows no disposition to believe. And this class of minds are very numerous. They resist the plainest evidence that they can possibly have of any event which took place nearly nineteen centuries ago; while they accept the evidence of other events, not so reliable, which are said to have taken place about the same period, or in ages still more remote. We are sorry to observe from recent issues of "The Christian Life," a weekly Unitarian paper, that some of the Unitarian ministers have given up the supernatural in religion, and are throwing discredit on the resurrection of Christ. To us it seems awful, and lamentable beyond all utterance, that any professed teachers of the gospel, and guides of the people, should endeavor to inspire in their hearers misgivings of this momentous event. To persons unacquainted with the progress of skepticism, it would seem almost incredible, yet this very thing was done lately in the Unitarian pulpit of our own town. But it shows we are nearing the end of the age when unbelief, or divergence from the truth, is to be wide-spread. Let those who retain their faith, and hold fast the truth, sound the alarm. If we give up our belief in the Saviour's resurrection, we give up at the same time all hope of our own resurrection. And without that hope, how dark, how cheerless, how mournful is the grave! And all expectation is at once cut off of seeing the beautiful forms again of those we once loved, but who have been laid away beneath the dust of the earth.

(To be concluded in our next.)

WELL SAID.

The following excellent thoughts on the resurrection of the dead are from George F. Pentecost, D. D. Pass them along. M. O.

"IF A MAN DIE, SHALL HE LIVE AGAIN?"

My friends, that is a question that profoundly interests me. I want to know if that dark hole out in Greenwood contains the last of my mother. I want to know if it contains the last of my children. Oh, how I do hate the grave with a perfect hatred. It is a most awful thing to me to look down into the grave; and if I could not get my eyes up from the grave, and put the telescope of God's promise to my eye, and look away up to heaven, I would be the most miserable man on this footstool. I have got too many precious bodies there. My father lies there, who loved me with a love that was only second to the love of God; my mother lies there, whose hand has been laid upon my head in benediction when I was a wild wayward boy; that mother, who loved me, and prayed for me, and hoped for me when no one else hoped for me,—who rejoiced over my conversion, and was glad when she saw that God had called me into his service—she lies there. My sisters lies there; my brothers lie there, whom God gave me to love, and whom I have lost awhile. Every day, almost, in the week, I bend over the coffin of some friend or acquaintance that must be laid there; and before I speak to you another time I may be —God knows—I may be laid there. I am profoundly interested in the question of death, and in the after-question: "If a man die, shall he live again?" Who can answer it? Not the philosopher. Not the scientist. Not the culturist. Who can answer it?

I affirm that there is but one book under the broad expanse of heaven that can answer that question, and it is this Book, that sets before us a life so beautiful, so transcendent, that nineteen centuries have bowed at his feet, that even his enemies take off their shoes when they come to speak of him. This Jesus whom we preach unto you, whom God sent forth into this world to tell us of himself, to blot out our sins and regenerate our characters, and bring us back from our broken obligations unto newness of life in him; this Jesus, whom the Jews murdered upon the tree, and whom you unbelievers are rejecting to-day, even though he bore your sins; this Jesus, whom they laid away in Joseph's tomb, but who rose again from the dead, and showed himself alive by many infallible proofs, and in a human body, with hands which have been pierced with cruel nails, and feet which had been broken by the crushing spikes, whose side was riven by a Roman spear, whose head was crowned and pierced and torn by the wreath of thorns; this Jesus, who after his body, in which he bore your sins and mine, had tasted death, stood before his disciples, ate with them, drank with them, challenged them to put the fingers right in there, and the hand right in there;—this same Jesus, in a cloud of glory, before the astonished vision of men (who have laid their lives down in attestation of the truth of the sight) ascended into heaven, leaving this word, that he had gone to prepare a place for us, and that he should come again and receive us to himself; and though ages might roll by, not one loved body that has been laid away in the grave, having fallen asleep in Jesus, should be left, "for the Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trump of God; and the dead in Christ shall rise first. Then we which are alive and remain"—what a blessed experience it would be!—"shall be caught up together with them in the clouds, to meet the Lord in the air." You ask how? The Bible says, "According to the working whereby he is able to subdue all things unto himself"—according to the ability of him who builds the earth upon solid pillars of nothing, and holds it up by the word of his power.

"AND THEY WHICH PIERCED HIM." Rev. 1: 7.

BY F. W. CLOUGH

The above passage tells us that they which have pierced Jesus shall see him come again in the clouds of heaven; and as it were to avoid the possibility of that event being at all in a secret manner, the unlimited statement is made therein that "every eye shall see him." How many are "every eye" in the text? I have heard of theories which have made several propositions which limit said "every eye" to a class of some sort; but no such limit appears in or about the text. I have heard it argued that "every eye" would be only those who should perchance be alive when the event occurs, but the question with us should be, Did the author intend so to be understood? If he knew that such limit was to be included in the statement, would he not have said so in just so many words, or at least intimated the intention if that were the case? I do believe he would. But to sustain said assertion, the plea is put in that the language, "and they also which pierced him," indicates that a separate class from "every eye" is shown in addition to them, also being a word used to that intention.

The reader will observe in the first place that also is a supplied word, added to make proper sense, as was supposed by the translators, but in our opinion never was needed. In the next place observe that frequently occurrences of this sort are found, whereas in this case the especially mentioned ones are a part of the general statement; for instance, when Mark records the fact that (Mark 1: 5) all Judea and they of Jerusalem went out to John's baptism, did he intend us to understand that Jerusalem was not a part of Judea? He did not.

Again, when the angel informs the women (Mark 16: 7) of the resurrection of Christ, and told them to go and tell his disciples and Peter, did he intend to be understood that Peter was not one of the disciples? He did not. What then? Why, that Peter was an especial one of the disciples; so also in this case, "They which pierced him" are an especial part of "every eye" who will witness the coming of Christ.

Again, if "every eye" was limited to simply those who would be living when Jesus comes, the statement that those who pierced him would involve of itself alone the resurrection of two classes of them—those who repented and obtained pardon, and those who did not; indeed, I know of no one rash enough to claim that all of those who pierced him repented and believed. The text says that those who pierced him (not a part of them) will see him come again.

The question arises, who are those which pierced him? My answer is that there are six distinct classes in this matter of piercing Christ.

1st. The Roman soldier, who committed that act when Jesus was upon the cross. John 19: 34–37.

2d. We are informed in Acts 3: 13 and Acts 4: 25, that Herod, Pilate, the Gentiles, and Israel, were guilty of crucifying the Lord of glory.

3d. Christ was crucified in the great persecution from the fifth to the nineteenth century. In Rev. 11: 8 we are told that the two witnesses lay dead three and one-half days (years) in the street of the great city, which spiritually is called Sodom and Egypt, where (during the persecution) also our Lord was crucified. Now this prophecy is generally accepted to have been fulfilled in France during the dreaded inquisition, terminated by the notorious French revolution of 1792.

4th. The man or woman who partakes of the Lord's supper, and is unworthy to do so, is guilty of the body and blood of the Lord. See 1 Cor. 11: 27.

5th. Christ is pierced or wounded in neglect of his representatives since the persecution; they are the Bible, the Holy Spirit, and the least of the saints. See Matt. 25: 31–46.

6th. Christ is crucified afresh in the case of every one who, after he has been wrought upon by the Holy Spirit, and has tasted the good word of God, and the powers of the world to come, when they deliberately and willfully turn away from him. This is the worst class of all, and to them there never comes the blessed boon of forgiveness, either in this world or the world to come, but a fearful looking for of judgment and fiery indignation.

Of the preceding classes we know not how many sought pardon, but we are sure that some who have pierced our Lord did (and some did not) repent before death. Well, they all will see him come. The text says so. Whether the Roman soldier, after the succeeding darkness of the sun and the earthquake acknowledged Christ, is unknown, though we are told that the centurion did so; possibly he and his companions were converted then, or at Pentecost, and returned to Rome and carried the gospel there. One thing is certain, if he ever did repent, the dying and risen Saviour forgave him. How many of Israel, the Gentiles, Herod and Pilate, repented ere they died, it is impossible to say; yet we are safe in saying that only a portion of them turned to the Lord.

How many of the Roman inquisitors repented of their inhuman and fiendish acts we know not; probably but a small portion ever did; and in honor and justice to the poor Piedmontese, who, rather than renounce his faith in Christ, suffered untold miseries at the hand of cruel persecutors, they (the persecutors) must witness their triumph at last when their Vindicator comes again.

"They which pierced him" will be composed of two classes when he comes again; some who love him, and some who will hate him—the former his best of friends, and the latter the worst of his enemies—and will include a countless throng alive from the dead.

The text is a grand Second Advent passage of Scripture teaching the personal, visible coming of Christ—teaching a general resurrection of the dead, consisting of two classes, some of them for the eternal life, and some for the eternal death.

May the dear Lord help us, that we may gain the first. What important issues hang upon the decisions of the present hour!

HOW LONG?

BY L. BOUTELLE.

It is a matter of interest to find out what the Bible teaches relative to the disposal of the unregenerate—those that die rebels to his government—those that neglect this great salvation, and will not come to him (Christ) that they might have life. Christ and the apostle harmonize in declaring that every man shall be rewarded according to his works. Rev. 22: 12—"And, behold, I come quickly; and my reward is with me, to give every man according as his work shall be." Rom. 2: 6—"Who will render to every man according to his deeds." In Rom. 6: 23, the apostle defines and draws the contrast, by saying, "The wages of sin is death; but the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord." So it is certain that the wages are secure, and the pay day will come. Rom. 2: 8, 9—"But unto them that are contentious, and do not obey the truth, but obey unrighteousness, indignation and wrath, tribulation and anguish, upon every soul of man that doeth evil." Here is the doom of the evil doers plainly brought to view. Paul says in 2 Thess. 1: 9—"Who shall be punished with everlasting destruction from the presence of the Lord, and from the glory of his power." Here is the reception of the terrific doom of evil doers, the wages of sin. No possibility of losing them, never mitigated; death is the penalty, the wages of sin. Matt. 3: 12—"But he will burn up the chaff with unquenchable fire." So says Jesus—John 15: 6—"If a man abide not in me, he is cast forth as a branch, and is withered; and men gather them, and cast them into the fire, and they are burned."

I might quote more Bible upon this solemn subject of the destruction of the unbelieving, but all the rest is in keeping with what I have adduced to prove it. The unbelieving are all represented symbolically under these names: the goats, the tares, the chaff; and all must have the "everlasting punishment"—the "wages of sin"—and that is "death," the cessation of all the animal functions of life. The unholy haters of Christ and his word must perish in the lake of fire, which is the second death.

Now if the wicked had immortal souls, they could never receive the wages of sin, because they could never die; so the penalty is for mortal souls. "The soul that sinneth, it [the soul] shall die." But how long will be this punishment? How long will be the time of inflicting this punishment on these mortal sinners? Is it eternal misery? It would certainly be if they were immortal sinners. But they are not. So now we inquire of the Bible as to how they get their wages, and when? In Mal. 4: 1 we read, "Behold the day cometh that shall burn as an oven: and all the proud, yea, and all that do wickedly, shall be stubble: and the day that cometh shall burn them up, saith the Lord of hosts, that it shall leave them neither root nor branch."

This coming day of God is a day of indignation and wrath, tribulation and anguish, and here is where is found the wages of sin. This is Peter's day of perdition of ungodly men. This is also Isaiah's day of wrath, when the land is made desolate, and sinners destroyed out of it. This is Christ's time for casting all the workers of iniquity into a furnace of fire, and all become like the chaff of the summer threshing floor, and the wind driveth them away, and no place is found for them. Their end has come—their dreadful end! They are cut off. So the wicked must get their doom in "the day of the Lord." They cannot and do not exist anywhere under the heavens after this.

The thirty-seventh Psalm tenth verse has had its fulfillment—"For yet a little while, and the wicked shall not be; yea, thou shalt diligently consider his place, and it shall not be." The work of the day of the Lord is accomplished. The meek are all that can be seen. John in vision now sees "every creature which is in heaven, and on the earth, and under the earth, and such as are in the sea, and all that are in them, heard I saying, Blessing, and honor, and glory, and power, be unto Him that sitteth upon the throne, and unto the Lamb forever and ever." The four beasts respond, So may it be. The wicked have found their end—their dreadful end! The indignation is past, and no rebels are to be found. They have received their wages—everlasting death!

NEED OF A DIVINE REVELATION.

BY EDWIN BURNHAM.

Man, by the wisdom and goodness of God, is blessed, in this world, with seven kinds of light. 1. The light of intuition. 2. The light of nature. 3. The light of reason. 4. The light of tradition and history. 5. The light of the Holy Spirit, in direct action. 6. The light of special divine movement—divine providential light. 7. The light of direct divine revelation. Can man be safe in the absence of any one of these lights? A more impressive question is, can man be safe in the absence of the light of direct divine revelation? even though possessing all of the other lights named. The Scriptures answer negatively; and so do facts, history, and experience answer negatively.

Man needs, and must have a direct divine revelation, for the following reasons: 1. Some of the essential, most important, and sublime of all truths can only be known to us by a direct revelation from God. "Such, for example, as the peculiar mode of divine existence", the manner in which God is to be worshiped; the origin and nature of sin; the sacrificial atonement for sin by Jesus Christ; the mission of the Holy Spirit; the second coming of our Lord to judge and reign; the resurrection of the dead; and the final redemption of our mundane world.

2. We need a direct revelation from God to make clear and impressive several—many important truths intimated to us outside of the direct divine revelation; which we should not properly notice only in the clear light of God's Word; such as the happiness of a pure, consistent, temperate life; the great value of social benevolence; the gain of moral honesty; the need of care and prudence in all of our life movements; that good ever follows good; that evil must ever result in evil; that it is always safe to do right; and that joy is ever found in the way of duty.

3. Man needs a direct revelation from God to furnish adequate motive power for the performance of duty. Is not love the highest motive power of human action? If we are fully assured of being loved by a worthy party, then action, in and for the interests of that party, is, so to speak, lovingly compelled. "For the love of Christ constraineth us." Divine revelation, in the most positive manner, manifests to us that God loves us—loves us exceedingly; and a consciousness of being thus loved by him creates, more or less, a responsive love to him, which is illustrated in submissive action. "We love him because he first loved us."

All real Christian life, service, and obedience spring from the confidence of being divinely loved, and not from legal must. Gospel liberty is, Jesus loves me—I love him—I can, I may, I will do his will, because he loves me, and I love him!

4. Man needs a direct revelation from God, that he may be objectively induced to move in the direction of Christian cross-bearing, and a life of self-denial and sacrifice. God operates on our poor human nature as it is, and not as it was originally, or ought to be. In this he certainly acts as a most loving Father. Because of this gracious divine disposition, we have, in his Word, wonderful prophetical pictures of future blessedness to be enjoyed by his people; precious promises of "robes", and "crowns", and "rest", and "glory", and "life", and "joy", and "inheritance", and "pleasures", and "all things." If these objective inducements were not needed by us, to stimulate us to action and endurance, they would not have been revealed to us, for God does nothing in vain.

Is there not deep meaning, in this direction, in this text? "If in this life only we have hope in Christ, we are of all men most miserable." "We are saved by hope." But hope refers to future objects promised. It may be said, that we now "have peace in believing," and blessedness in righteousness. True, and that because we believe "in the world to come", and foretaste it in this world!

"AGREEABLE AND USEFUL."

BY C. PIKE.

A person once said to Martin Luther, "Point me out some writing to translate, but one that will give general satisfaction, and at the same time be useful." "Agreeable and useful," replied Luther; "that is beyond my skill. The better things are, the less they please. What is more salutary than Christ? and yet he is to most a savor of death. You will say that what you intend is to be useful to those who love Christ; then cause them to hear his voice. You will thus be agreeable and useful—never doubt it—but to a small number, for the sheep are but rare in the dreary region of wolves."

Our days are not very different from those of Martin Luther's. "Agreeable and useful," or something to please, and that will not offend, is the prevailing spirit among those who are proclaiming God's message to a dying world. He who studies to be agreeable, will fail to be useful. Those who have been the most useful in the world, have been the least agreeable to the world. The world needs a Zwingle, a Melancthon, a Luther, and most of all it needs a Christ. Would it be agreeable if he should come?

It is a good deal easier to criticise a sermon than to preach a better one.

EDUCATED AND CONSECRATED.

BY L. C. MCKINSTRY.

Said Bishop Foss, while addressing the candidates for Deacons' Orders, at Springfield, Mass., last week: "A learned and consecrated ministry is an imperative demand of the present time. The ministry must aim at soul saving." This utterance of Bishop Foss is an important truism. Learning and consecration are both important to the qualified ministry. With some it is enough that a minister be consecrated. He is supposed to need nothing more than consecration. It is claimed that "God will qualify the minister for his work if he yields himself wholly to the divine influences." But the idea is fallacious and misleading. There is an air of sanctity about it which seems to forbid any question of its wisdom and correctness. But it is not correct. Consecration brings spiritual power; it fills the whole being with warmth and animates energy, stirs up every latent power of the soul, and brings out into exercise mental powers, which show their innate force and scope of ability; and more than that, it so allies to God the great source of power that it is like connecting a magazine of dynamite with a battery—a pulley with the mainshaft, and it produces a mighty effect.

Power is given to preaching the gospel by such means. There is a grasp, a power, by which one lays hold of the heart and conscience of the sinner, as is only within the reach of a consecrated soul. But consecration never makes one understand even the letter of the gospel. In fact, this must be understood before even consecration itself can be made; and although consecration cannot be understood as to its nature until it is made, still the methods of it, the process by which it comes, and how to do it, must be understood intellectually, to be made properly. If man were all feeling, all emotion, he would be but an animal; but he is moral and intellectual, and so is above a mere sentient, animal nature, and he must therefore do understandingly whatever he does, to do that thing right. Much is done in ignorance, and what is thus done is done wrongly in proportion to the degree of ignorance—aright only in proportion to knowledge and understanding. Education is therefore essential, as ignorance is the primary condition of humanity. We are born ignorant, and learn by the slow process of education. It is not therefore of little account whether one learns or not—whether he is gnostic or agnostic. Ignorance is not "bliss." Wisdom is not folly unless it is ignorance "of sin," and "knowledge" as to how to do evil, which, alas! is not the "ignorance" and "knowledge" generally noted most among men.

It is an absolute fact that the more one knows intellectually and morally of God and his Word, the better Christian he can be, and the better minister of the Word he will be. Right knowledge is always an aid to Christian work, and the minister who objects to learning had best stop preaching rather than to go on in ignorance of the Word he is handling. It is not a small thing to take the Word of God in one's hands and assume to teach it. It is enough to make one tremble to have a sense of ignorance, and not to be able to "rightly divide the word of truth." To be obliged to read a text, and then at haphazard to flounder about in the vain endeavor to bring something out of it, when it is not known what is in it, is to be in a sad predicament, and one which is exceedingly undesirable.

It is true, therefore, that the more of real knowledge one has the better, and instead of crying out against learning, as though it were an awful bugbear, a horror to be dreaded and avoided, there should be an earnest seeking after knowledge, which will fit the possessor of it to understand the meaning of the Word of God in the best possible manner. Somebody must be learned, somebody has been learned, or we should never have had our English Bible; and somebody must be learned, or we shall not have intelligent preachers of the Word, nor have the Word properly preached.

But knowledge without consecration is like a wood-pile; without fire it is cold formality. Perhaps it is because there is sometimes exhibited instances of barren, dry knowledge, without spiritual power, that there is objection to it; but there is dry, barren ignorance as well, and the lack of the divine energy, the fire of God's power to glow and melt and subdue, is not against the knowledge which is destitute of it, but against the powerless soul which does not possess the proper spiritual power. If it were impossible to possess the power of God with knowledge, because knowledge were an absolute bar to it, then it were wrong to know; but it is not a barrier, but rather an aid, for it is more to consecrate abilities and knowledge to God, than it is mere negative ignorance; just as it is more to set on fire hard-wood logs than it is pine shavings. One should therefore get together all the knowledge he can, and set it on fire with the consecrating power of God. Let there be then no opposition to knowledge, but a studying to show one's self "approved unto God."

There must be attention to this matter, or there is a failure to properly instruct people; and a waiting, expecting audience of intelligent people is more to be dreaded by an empty preacher, who does not know any more than his audience (if he does as much) than an army of armed foes. "It is enough to make an empty man tremble" to see before him an array of people whom he cannot instruct and lead into truth. To save men, their whole minds must be enlisted in the truth; they should be "rooted and grounded" in it, and so not only feel, but know in whom they believe.

It is not enough that a preacher to save souls understands a few doctrines, which he iterates and reiterates all the while. He becomes stale in such things after awhile, and if he minister statedly to a people, will find his audiences thinning when they have heard all he knows, and find they are beginning to hear it over again, about as they heard it harangued before; and certainly if a man travels, he should be able to bring out "things new" as well as old, for he will get rusty and musty and crusty if he goes everywhere with his same old one text, which, however good, he cannot profit in, nor profit others by it, unless he is wonderfully studious and prayerful over it, for it is harder to preach always from one text than many, unless there is constant study over it.

Knowledge and consecration are therefore essential co-adjuncts to the efficiency of the Christian ministry, as Bishop Foss well taught his conference candidates to full orders. Our Lord cometh! therefore should we be thoroughly prepared to proclaim the greatest of all truths in the most effective manner.

PERFECTION.

BY A. J. WHEELER.

We are often asked the question, Do you believe in perfection? "Certainly. Why not? It has been commanded, "Be ye therefore perfect," by our Saviour; and were perfection unattainable, it never would have been required. The great question for settlement is not, "Can we be perfect?" But what is the meaning of being perfect? We learn by investigation that in God's law perfection was required always. Under the old covenant the sacrifices which were offered must be "without spot or blemish," and under the "better covenant" we are required to present our "bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God," and in return for this sacrifice we receive perfect salvation. "The law of the Lord is perfect in converting the soul," therefore the person who is converted is perfect in the sight of the law of the Lord.

A perfect person is one who possesses all that is requisite to his nature, and if we have within us the attributes of the "new nature," which, being only obtained by the birth of the Spirit, we are perfect in our new life. It was the desire of the apostle Paul that we may present every man perfect in Christ Jesus." Such perfection does not often stand the tests of modern theological critics and fault-finding sceptics. "Noah was a just man and perfect in his generations," although his life is criticised severely by many.

Can we be fully saved from sin in this world? Why not? A perfect sacrifice has been offered, and through the atonement of that One "who gave himself for us," we receive perfect cleansing. Not only is sin taken out of us, but we are taken out of sin, and by the imputed righteousness of our Lord Jesus Christ we stand free from condemnation in him. Perfection was aimed at in creation, and will be accomplished at the restitution. "When that which is perfect is come, that which is in part shall be done away." Perfection in the gospel may be gained in this world through its author, and physical perfection shall be attained to "at the resurrection of the just." It should be the earnest desire of all to so live here that we may stand perfect before him in "the day of the Lord."

CONFESSING OUR FAULTS.

"Confess your faults one to another." It is best not to have any faults to confess. "But we all have our faults," has become a proverb, because true. It is better to confess our faults, than to deny or defend them. Confessions need to be true. No "buts" in them. No "ifs." They need to come from a consciousness of a faulty constitution or habit. They must come from a heart humble enough to acknowledge itself in the wrong when wrong. And this is manly as well as useful. It is childish to beguile one's self with a delusion. It is manly to exercise mature sense, and discover what is wrong in ourselves. It is just as manly to confess it.

It is best not to have any faults; but, having them, confess them one to another. To do this, we must first confess them to ourselves. He that never acknowledges himself in the wrong, is rarely right. Furthermore, he never improves. And he who never improves, is always wrong. Therefore, he who never owns his wrong, is always wrong.

The traveler who has lost his way, will never retrace his steps, until he sees and owns his mistake. He will never reach home unless he does. He will never improve on his way, until he finds he is in the wrong way. Fellow-travelers, will we?

Bring home the facts to ourselves, and when we find ourselves, proud, envious, revengeful, harsh, false, intemperate in speech and disposition, don't palliate with excuses. Do not temper or attenuate with "buts," "ifs," and notwithstandings. Take the cold, naked truth home to the soul, and then there will be a chance for improvement. Do not blame others for your faults. It may be they have been wrong too. But two wrongs make no right. Others doing wrong do not justify us in doing wrong.

A true Christian manliness consists in love, humility, good-will, a forgiving disposition, gentleness, kindness, truth, love of right, temperance in all things. To labor for the attainment and appropriation of such virtues, we must first confess to ourselves that we are partly or wholly without them.

Confess our faults to others, especially where others have suffered from our wrongs. It is a sin not to do it. It is the opposite of the law of love, and the love of right.

To refuse confession of our faults, means hypocrisy. It is expecting others to take us for more than we are. It is living a pretence and a lie. No lover of truth and right will be willing to walk in a false light. Therefore, let us not be too proud to confess our faults.—Evangelical Messenger.

PRICE REDUCED—SPECIAL INDUCEMENTS.

There has been a growing desire among our people that the Crisis should be published, if practicable, at a less price. Not that Two Dollars a year is exorbitant for such a paper; but as the World's Crisis was not started nor is it published for the purpose of making money, nor of building a sect into popularity and power, but simply and exclusively for the proclamation of the grand and solemn message of Christ's personal and near return, and the preparation of a people to receive him with befitting gladness, the general feeling is that the paper should be furnished to the people at the very lowest self-sustaining price.

And with this feeling we most sincerely and earnestly sympathize. There should be in our treasury not a cent more than is actually necessary for the advantageous prosecution of our publishing interests. There should be no amassed wealth in the hands of Adventists when the trump of God shall sound. Every spare dollar should be used to publish the glad tidings.

And there is no unneeded surplus of funds in the treasury now. But the Publication Society, desirous of spreading abroad the glorious truths of the Bible—so dear and blessed to us—to the utmost possible extent, have decided to furnish the Crisis hereafter to all subscribers who will pay in advance at the low price of One dollar and fifty cents per year. And in doing this the Publishing Agent relies upon the prompt and vigorous efforts of all hands to increase, at once, the subscription list sufficiently to make the paper self-sustaining at the reduced price.

Now, what we need and all we need is that every one of the friends of the Crisis shall commence without delay to obtain the largest possible number of new subscribers to the "dear old family paper." We feel sure that with earnest effort our preachers can secure an average of fifty new subscribers each, in three months. What a lift that would be! We do believe that our dear brethren in the ministry will now take hold of this matter in earnest.

Besides the reduction of price, there are other very special inducements for making a grand effort to increase our list of subscribers just now.

In addition to our usual contributors we expect frequent articles from the pens of several of our able writers from whom we have hitherto heard but little; also some new contributors who have never written for our paper. And last, but not least, Bro. Grant, our Foreign Missionary, has promised us weekly letters for our columns, which, coming from the far away lands, and giving weekly reports of his mission work, will constitute a new and very especial interest for all our readers.

And now, dear brethren and sisters, in what other way is it possible for you to do so much to advance our cause, to spread Bible truth, to enlighten those who are in spiritual confusion and darkness, to cheer the weary and heavy laden with the comforts of the "blessed hope," to warn perishing sinners of coming judgment, and to glorify Christ, as you can, by extending the circulation of the World's Crisis, which makes its weekly visits to all parts of our own land, and, to some extent, to other portions of the globe; freighted with the joyful news of our Lord's speedy coming and kingdom?

And all this without the expenditure of one cent of money. All this good to others, all these grand results, simply by a little earnest personal effort with your friends and neighbors, who will call you blessed in the resurrection morning for your interest in their behalf. Should we refuse this simple and easy service for the Master, how could we ask him to bless us? But you will not refuse; you will nobly respond, and God will greatly reward you, both now and in the glorious coming kingdom.

THE ROUMELIAN PROBLEM.

The situation has not materially changed since our last issue. The trend of sentiment and circumstances strongly indicates that Turkey will have to submit to this loss of another important slice of her territory, and that no serious disturbance of the peace of Europe will follow. The following are the latest rumors:

Constantinople, Oct. 1. The Ambassadors met to-day to consider the Roumelian question at the residence of Count Korti, the Italian Ambassador, but adjourned without transacting any business of an important nature, several of the Ambassadors having not yet received formal instructions from their respective Governments.

The Porte has sent a circular to the Powers protesting against the recent action of Prince Alexander in disarming the Mussulman inhabitants of Roumelia. The Porte, as a precautionary measure to prevent the reduction of supplies in the event of a war with Bulgaria, has issued an order prohibiting the exportation of cereals.

Prince Alexander is actively engaged in pushing forward measures for defence. Bulgarian troops from Sofia are taking the places of the volunteers who have gone to the frontier. All the strategic positions and passes are being rapidly fortified, and military posts throughout the Rhodope Mountains are being greatly strengthened. The postal telegraph tariff of Eastern Roumelia has been assimilated with that of North Bulgaria.

London, Oct. 1. The Times correspondent at Constantinople thus summarizes Turkey's position: "Turkey has no army ready to march, no stores, no money in the treasury, no administrative energy. She must submit to the inevitable."

The Powers have resolved to compensate Servia if the Porte accepts the union between Bulgaria and Roumelia.

St. Petersburg, Oct. 1. The Russian journals express the opinion that the conference of the Ambassadors at Constantinople on the Roumelian question will be resultless.

London, Sept. 30. A dispatch from Constantinople received this afternoon says: Considerable consternation prevails in official circles over an important discovery just made by Alib Sahib Pasha, the new Minister of War. Immediately on being installed in his new position, Alib Sahib Pasha ordered all the various department commanders to report the strength of their respective commands and their present condition, and detailed several officers to inspect the various posts. Their reports have been received, and show that under Ghazi Osman Pasha, the late Minister of War, who was dismissed on Sept. 25, the army was almost entirely neglected, and the large sums of money voted for military purposes were used in other ways than those for which they were designated. The inquiry revealed that the Adrianople army, which was supposed to be 15,000 strong, contains not half that number of men. The soldiers have no uniforms and are shoeless. The cavalry is unable to march, owing to a lack of horses and the necessary accoutrements. Four hundred horses and two thousand men who have been fully equipped are under orders to march at an hour's notice. Four ironclads are actively preparing for sea, but there are only six hundred tons of coal available, and their departure may possibly be delayed on that account.

Brussels, Oct. 2. Dispatches just received here from the Congo bring further details of the discoveries made by Lieut. Wissmann, who found the banks of the Kasai river down to its junction with the Congo more thickly populated than any other portion of Africa. For twenty-four hours Lieut. Wissmann had to navigate between crowds of ferocious cannibals belonging to the Bakoutous tribe. Men and women gathered in thousands on the river banks, yelling and gesticulating furiously. The women were more ferocious than the men, and finally the Bakoutous attacked the expedition in fleets of canoes, the women beating their breasts and throwing spears. Lieut. Wissmann and his men repulsed them after a hard fought battle, which lasted six hours, killing hundreds of men and women. The entire region traversed was found to be very rich in ivory and covered with vast forests of india rubber trees. In shooting a cataract, one of Wissmann's canoes was wrecked and a dozen of his blacks were drowned. The Kasai is a noble river, being in some places ten thousand yards wide. In many parts navigation was blocked by the thousands of hippopotami bathing in the river bed. Wissmann determined astronomically that the point where the Kasai flows into the Congo is nearly four hundred miles below the point indicated on the maps of Mr. Stanley and other explorers.

THE PROMISED INHERITANCE.

As truly as God has made a promise to his people of an inheritance and a crown, in some particular locality, and at some special time, so truly the verification will be in strict keeping with the promise, instead of being realized in a human substitute, involving some different locality, and some other time of fulfillment. But tradition has so subverted the plan of God, and so fixed the mind upon a substitute, that honest Christians are extensively beclouded, and consequently are honestly and sincerely looking for God to fulfill what he has never promised, and something out of harmony with what he has promised—a fair sample of which may be seen in the following newspaper item:

"With a yearning heart the child of God looks from the mount of faith for his promised inheritance. An heir of God, and a joint heir with Christ, he feels that his reward is sure, his name is registered in the Lamb's book of life. He is only waiting for the summons from his divine Master to go up and possess the thrones and crowns, the robes and harps of eternity."

God has promised an inheritance, but it is "the kingdom prepared from the foundation of the world", after the great renovation, in which refined state it will be the "new earth", or "world to come"; and then "the saints of the Most High shall take the kingdom, and possess the kingdom forever, even forever and ever", which the angel said was "the kingdom under the whole heaven." Instead of going up to a spirit land to get the inheritance, we are waiting for Christ to come down and drive out all usurpers, and cleanse the land from its present defilement; then, and not till then, will the divine promise be fulfilled. If we get crowns at all, we will get them on God's time, and not on our own time: "When the Chief Shepherd shall appear, then shall ye receive a crown of glory that fadeth not away." How much better it would be to learn God's plan, and to shape our faith in harmony therewith, than to be chasing after human imaginations in conflict therewith. "Let God be true," and let our faith respect him. W. S.

SUITING SCRIPTURE TO THEOLOGY.

Many honest theologians unwittingly pervert Scripture while quoting it, by having their minds previously so turned into a theological rut which they deem correct, that they think Scripture ought to corroborate it, and they so quote it; for instance, one minister thus quoted 1 John 3: 2: "But we know that when we die we shall be like him." After meeting, a sister said to him: "You made a mistake in quoting that text; it does not read when we die, but when he shall appear." Said he, "I think you are mistaken; I guess the word appear is not in the text." Whereupon the sister opened to the text, and said to him, "Read it for yourself." He had honestly but incorrectly quoted it in harmony with his theory; but a correct quotation would not agree with it; so either the theory, or the text must be incorrect. We prefer to follow the text.

On another occasion, a minister in publicly reading Matt. 5, came to the following verse: "Blessed are the meek, for they shall inherit the earth," when he paused and said, "That is the poorest text in the Bible." Another minister affirmed, "It reads earth, but it means heaven." It does not read in harmony with current theology, and in order to make harmony, either the reading or the theory must be changed. Which shall be changed—man's theology, or God's Bible? "Let God be true, and every man a liar"—that is, every man found in conflict with God. We are not wise enough to teach God how to talk, nor to tell what he means, unless he means what he says, except when he employs figures, symbols, etc., to illustrate his meaning.

One minister, who supposed the appearing of Christ was due at the death of saints, publicly affirmed, "All this talk about the second appearing of Christ is unscriptural, for there is not a text in the Bible that affirms his second appearing." A sister quoted to him Heb. 9: 28: "Unto them that look for him shall he appear the second time without sin unto salvation." His theory did not need that text, so it was out of mind, and out of harmony with his theory. Was the text wrong, or the theory at fault—which? Shall we harmonize the text with our theory, or our theory with the text? The two are in conflict—which shall we prefer?

One brother affirmed that in quoting Scripture, some ministers would quote the first end of a text, and leave off the last end, while others would quote the last end, and leave off the first end; but in quoting John 14: 3, they would quote both ends and leave out the middle: "If I go and prepare a place for you, I will receive you unto myself"—leaving out, "I will come again." Why leave it out? Because their theory does not need it; but God's theory does need it, so he put it in. Which of these two theories shall we favor—the one that can do without the coming of Christ, or the one that needs it? Instead of suiting Scripture to theology, we should adjust our theology to Scripture testimony. W. S.

PLATONISM.

Prominent among the views of the noted Plato, who ranked high among heathen philosophers, was the theory of a disembodied existence of the human soul subsequent to the death of the body. Platonists, however, differ among themselves somewhat as to the home of the soul after its exit from the body—some giving it an underground residence, and some a home in the skies. One branch of these philosophers encountered Paul when he proclaimed the doctrine of the resurrection; and well they might, for the theory of a coming resurrection cannot be made to harmonize with the claim that the man proper is still alive, having simply thrown off a cumbrous shell to emerge into liberty.

With much propriety did Tyndale, the translator, in his reply to that Platonist, Thomas More, remark: "And ye, in putting them [souls] in heaven, hell, and purgatory, destroy the arguments wherewith Christ and Paul prove the resurrection. . . If the souls be in heaven, tell me why they be not in as good case as the angels be? And then what cause is there of the resurrection?" Very sensible question. If death can elevate us to an equality with angels, and even transport us to their celestial home, what more could a resurrection do? Would it not bring us out of heaven—thus producing an adjournment in glory—without enhancing our felicity? Indeed, if death really liberates the man proper from a prison, would not the resurrection be a detriment in re-imprisoning the soul, and immortalizing the prison?

In the light of these considerations, it is not surprising that Justin Martyr, who had once been a Platonist, could utter these words: "If you meet with some who are called Christians, who dare . . . culminate the God of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, and who say that there is no resurrection of the dead, but that at death their souls are received up into heaven, do not regard them as Christians." Although he is referring to the Gnostics in this language, it as really negates modern notions.

Platonism blended with Christianity is no improvement to the latter, but a positive detriment. Plato taught eternal life without Christ, but the gospel offers eternal life through Christ. Plato taught eternal life without conditions, but the gospel offers it on stipulated conditions. Plato taught eternal life for the mere ghost of man, but the gospel offers it to the man himself: "Neither can they die any more", when "this mortal shall put on immortality." W. S.

"THE SULTAN'S PERPLEXITY."

The New York Herald, Oct. 1st, 1885, has an editorial under the above heading, in which it is said: "It is clear that the Sultan of Turkey is the most unhappy man in Europe. He has worn the thumbscrew for a good while, but fate has lately given it an extra twist, and he is crying out in agony."

"Now, in the pinch of fortune, when Bulgaria and Roumelia are found arm in arm, clandestinely married; when Servia bristles all over with bayonets; when Bosnia and Herzegovina are buckling on their belts, and when Greece is planning to add to her territory, the Sultan commands his soldiers to fall into line, and then learns to his horror that he has nothing but a ragged set of beggars to depend upon. The cavalry would be glad to go into battle, but they have no accoutrements, and, what is worse, no horses. The infantry are barefooted, and their uniforms are threadbare and patched. It will not add to his serenity of mind to learn that the general opinion is that the Powers will be very polite and dignified, but will find it inconvenient to assist him in any way except, perhaps, with the advice to bear the affliction with the grace of a true follower of Mohammed."

The movements in the East indicate that great changes are not far in the distance. It must be true that our dear Saviour is soon coming back to this earth to begin the millennium. Welcome, dear Lord. M. G.

FROM AUSTRALIA.

Some time last winter I sent a few tracts on a venture to a believer in Australia. I have not yet heard from him, but I think they struck good ground. Here is a short letter which shows that the faith is there, and more gospel seed is wanted. So we sent sixteen pounds in reply to this call. Australia is one part of "all the world."

I. C. Wellcome.

"King George's Sound, Australia, June 28, 1885.—Dear Bro. Wellcome:—Please send me the 'The Unspeakable Gift,' and a good quantity of tracts suitable to put into the hands of saints and sinners. A few of your Pamphlet on 'Baptism,' also some on 'The Millennium.' A few in foreign languages, also. We wish you God speed in your noble work of publishing 'this gospel of the kingdom' in so many parts of the world, and in so many languages. Please send us a good variety of tracts. Your Brother in hope of eternal life through our Lord Jesus Christ. R. B. M——."

☞ SPECIAL CALL. WHO WILL HELP?

Please read "A Golden Opportunity," by Bro. Couch, in the Crisis of Sept. 12th. Friends of mission work, you expect your Mission Board to look after the interests of the work at home and abroad. Shall we have the funds to carry on the work? Let every church solicit a monthly collection for the purpose. Let every steward respond in the name of the Lord. Send in your tens and hundreds, that our treasury may be replenished, and the work go forward. If each subscriber of the Crisis will contribute fifty cents, the necessary funds will be supplied. Some are not able to give that much, but others can give enough to make it up. Dear Brethren, do not wait, but let us hear from you immediately.

J. Hemenway, Treasurer.

Note.—The following letter was not intended for publication, but knowing the many friends of our dear Brother would be pleased to hear from him, we venture to insert it in the Crisis. Will our Bro. pardon us for the liberty we have taken with a personal letter? Agent.

HENRY, DAKOTA.

Dear Bro. J. Hemenway:—I will take my pen again to tell you that I am yet numbered with the living, and my health is some better than it was when I wrote you before, except I have a scrofula on my left limb, which is quite disagreeable; but I do not feel as though I had any right to complain. I am still looking for and am strong in the faith of our Lord and Saviour's soon return to this earth again, to raise his dear saints from their cold and silent bed of clay to a new life, immortal, incorruptible, and that fadeth not away. I am still trying to live for that great day when our Lord will come and change our mortal bodies, and give us immortality.

Well, dear brother in Christ, I shall have to pass on for this time, hoping these few lines will find you well, and rejoicing in the blessed hope. I am here in a land of wickedness and unbelief, alone with the exception of the dear old Crisis. O, that blessed old comforter! It always comes loaded with the blessed truths of the Bible doctrine, which I ground my whole hope upon. As I said, I am here alone, but I am talking and explaining our good and glorious doctrine of the soon coming of our blessed Lord and Master, and that immortality is only found in him, etc. Brother and Sr. Westcott belong to the United Brethren in Christ. I have been talking with them, and they begin to be fully in the belief of the Advent faith. But I need a little help from some able writer in the way of tracts or small books, to help me.

I have a United Brethren minister living with me this year, but he is fully in the faith that man has an immortal soul that never dies, that goes right to heaven at death, and is with God and the angels. I told him and their presiding elder that if they would find me just one word betwixt the lids of the Bible that said or taught in any way that man never dies, or goes to heaven at death, or that man has an immortal soul that never dies, I would give them a good warrantee deed of my place, and join their church. Almost one year has rolled away, and they have not found it yet, and they are very learned men, and the best they have; while I have a limited education, but I can read the Bible. I write this, dear brother, to show you that I need some help to convince a wicked world of superstition and unbelief.

Sept. 14, 1885. Wm. E. Farrell.

ADVENTUAL TRUTH.

Bro. Stockman:—I am heartily glad you made the request found in your editorial of Sept. 23d. I believe there has never been a time when duty demanded a clearer presentation of the great doctrinal truths of the nature of man, the coming of the Lord, the resurrection of the dead, and the establishment of the everlasting kingdom, than there is at the present time. Consequently I have on every Sunday presented some of these themes in connection with a vitalizing, practical Christianity. I have been grieved that so many have in a great measure dropped these doctrinal truths for other gospel themes; and however good and truthful they may be, they can never take the place of these grand truths which have made us a distinctive people. Brethren, let us proclaim these great Adventual truths. Keep them before the people until the King shall come, and we hear it said, "Well done."

Bridgeport, Conn. E. M'Culloch.

REQUEST FOR PRAYERS.

Dear brethren and sisters of like faith:—I am sick, and the doctors say that they cannot cure me so that I will be made comfortable while I do live. I believe the prayers of God's children avail much, and I ask that all who have faith in prevailing prayer will send a petition to Heaven that I may be made whole in body and soul for Jesus' sake. Mrs. Phebe H. Nelson.

GOSPEL TRACT SERIES.

We are about to issue a weekly edition of Four Thousand Eight Page Tracts.

A NEW TRACT EACH EDITION.

These tracts are intended for general distribution in the prisons and asylums for the unfortunate, and poor and afflicted everywhere. We have undertaken this work believing it is of the Lord, and trusting that funds will be provided. We invite all who are interested in saving men to co-operate with us, according to your means and ability. We want reliable parties in all our large cities to visit the prisons and asylums, and distribute tracts, and place them where they will do good. We will send packages of ONE HUNDRED weekly to all our churches who may order, with or without price. Let each church have a box in their house of worship in some conspicuous place, marked Contributions for Gospel Tract Series.

Twenty-five cents per week will give you one hundred short sermons to distribute among those who attend your meetings. For one dime we will mail FORTY eight page tracts to any address in the United States. For twenty-five cts. we will mail ONE HUNDRED, etc. etc. We appeal to the stewards of the Lord to donate funds to meet the expense of supplying prisons, asylums, and for the poor and unfortunate everywhere. We shall open a column in the Crisis for DR. and CR. with GOSPEL TRACT SERIES FUND, so that all may be informed as to the financial condition of the work.

Now, dear brethren and sisters, and all who are interested in the spread of Gospel truth, let us all take hold of this work in earnest. The world is in earnest—the devil is in earnest. Let us meet the flood of evil that is coming in upon the church and world with a united effort, and scatter the truth everywhere. Send in your DIMES and DOLLARS for free distribution of tracts, and let us have a colporter in every town and city. The tracts will be mailed on a stated day each week. Address

Gospel Tract Series, Box 5140, Boston, Mass.

ADVENTISM.

Bro. Stockman:—By your request I will say a few things about Adventism as far as I know. It is advancing. No doubt in some places it is on the wane. I am an old man, in my eighty-fourth year, and do not drive round much; but in June my wife and I started out to see our friends. We went to Lewiston, Portland and Colebrook, N. H., and into Canada. In every place we found the brethren strong in the faith, and the cause advancing. We believe it is the best of anything there is. We are strong in the faith, looking for Jesus to come soon and give us immortality and eternal life.

I have been in the ministry some fifty years. I belonged to the Christian Church. No doubt many who read this will remember me. I am in the Advent ranks. My wife and I intend to let our light shine in public and private, and let the world know that we are looking for Jesus.

THE MEETING AT GOSHEN.

If the Lord will, I purpose to be at Goshen, Mass., Sunday, Oct. 18th, and remain during the week, and also Sunday the 25th. I wish to see a good work done at this Conference. Come, my brethren and sisters, let us make one more effort. Come out the first Sunday. Consecrate yourselves and all to the Lord, so that when the Conference commences on the 20th you will be ready for work. Let the whole region be awake, and may the blessing of the Lord crown the meeting with success. (See notice.) Geo. L. Teeple.

FROM M. R. MILES.

Bro. Stockman:—I believe you have struck the key-note in your editorial of last week—"What we need as a People." Let us keep the doctrine of the Advent prominent. It is the light God's people need in this time of peril in which we live. It is the meat due the church; and shall we who have received the message withhold it, and let our light become darkness? We need more of the divine Spirit as ministers, that our word may be clothed with power from on high. Let us pray for it, and be not satisfied until we obtain it.

May all Advent believers in the land remember the responsibility that rests upon them for the light they have received, how they live it out, and what they are willing to do to send it through the world. O, let us who have this light, both preachers and laity, consecrate ourselves anew to the service of the Lord, and charge upon the enemy's ranks with God's Word and the Holy Spirit. What we do must be done quickly. The Master is at the door. Can we not rescue a few more before he comes? We can with the help of the Lord.

We pitched our tent at Spring Lake Sept. 23d. People come from five to ten miles to hear the message. We have a large stove in our tent, so we keep it comfortable for the people, and we are having fine weather now for a tent meeting. We have up to this time preached six sermons. The interest is good. Two men who never have professed Christ propose to build a hall for Advent meetings. One of them never heard these great themes until we came here with the tent. We expect Bro. B. P. Stevens to help us some this week. We ask the prayers of our brethren and sisters, that the Lord will give us much of his Spirit, and that we may have power to preach his Word.

FROM J. F. ADAIR.

Bro. Stockman:—In the Crisis of Sept. 23d, you express a desire to hear from all the watchmen in regard to the present status of our work as a people. In obedience to your request, and for the encouragement of the lovers of present truth, I write a few lines. I have been associated with the Advent people since 1868, and since that time I have never seen the day that our people and the cause they love and advocate had so propitious an outlook as at the present hour. In my opinion, the influence of the Advent people, and the cause they represent, was never felt so forcibly by the world as at the present time; and those prognosticators who are and have been for years predicting the early death of Adventists and Adventism, I have invariably found to be a class of narrow-minded sectarians, and many of them I have found to be ignoramuses of the first water. Their predictions are perfectly harmless, and will soon vanish, like Shakespeare's ghost, into thin air.

We are most fully convinced that Adventism is from Heaven, and not of men. To the waiting ones the outlook is cheering and glorious. Awake, O bride of Christ, and newly trim thy lamps. To the watchmen the present hour is an opportune one for successful work on the line of present truth. O, ambassadors of our coming King, if not already, let us move out immediately on the aggressive line of work in the name and strength of our great Captain.

"No time to lose,
World's are changing, Heaven beholding;
Thou hast but an hour to fight.
Now, the blazoned cross unfolding,
On! right onward for the right.
On! let all the soul within thee
For the truth's sake go abroad;
Strike! let every nerve and sinew
Tell on ages—tell for God."

Auburn, Ill.

A SUGGESTION.

Would it not be well for those who have the charge of supplying the desk in our churches, to try and make arrangements as much in advance of the time as possible, that the preachers may have time to arrange? Often they could save expense by having time. To all interested I would say I am engaged through the month of October. Let those who desire my labors in November write early. Geo. L. Teeple.

FALL OF A METEOR.

Pittsburg, Sept. 28. It now appears that the shock felt within a radius of thirty miles of this city on Saturday afternoon was not produced by an earthquake, but by the fall of a gigantic meteor. Its course was from northeast to southwest. It passed directly over Sewickley toward Mansfield and Chartiers Valley. The explosion was heard at McKeesport, Braddock, and Swissvale, in the opposite direction, and at numerous other places within that circle. Those who heard it thought that some terrible explosion of natural gas had taken place somewhere, or that the boilers in some extensive mill in this city had let go. At McKeesport it was thought that there had been an explosion at the Edgar Thomson Steel works. At Canonsburg, Bridgeville and other places, the people flocked to the depots to learn the cause of the strange occurrence. On the Pan Handle road the train men heard the rumbling, and describe it as resembling the rattling of heavy artillery over a solid road bed. People rushed out of their houses, and hearing the strange thunder looked in bewilderment at the clear blue of the cloudless sky. Some said it was an explosion of gas, others that it came from the quarries where the workmen were blasting. Farmers at work in the fields looked about them in astonishment, but not a sign of anything was to be seen. The office of the Mansfield Coal and Coke Company was shaken. The type in the cases of a local newspaper office was disturbed.

A farmer near Sewickley saw the meteor pass through the air at great speed, and disappear southward. He described it as being "large as a barn door." At Middletown, Penn., it was reported to be the size of a tin cup. In passing over the town it burst and detached pieces fell to the ground. It is reported from McKeesport, fourteen miles southwest of this city, that a piece of the meteor, still hot, was discovered in a clearing in the woods. An Allegheny man while walking across a field at McKee's Rocks, just outside the city, and in a southwest direction, stumbled against a fragment of the meteor, which was also hot. It was sent to Professor Zingley, professor of geology at Allegheny College, Meadville.

It is believed that the mass of the meteor struck the earth in the neighborhood of Mansfield, eighteen miles southwest of here. A Robinson township farmer was in the field ploughing at the time it fell. A loud rumbling was heard which seemed to be coming from about one hundred feet over his head. His team, trembling with fright stopped in their tracks. Suddenly there was a report and the horses sprang forward, breaking their trace chains. He kept them from running away only by the hardest efforts. He thought a thunderbolt had struck beside him, but he saw nothing but what appeared to be a low cloud passing away in front of him. The earth did not shake.—Ex.

FROM MANY LANDS.

FOREIGN.

Rome, Oct. 2. There were 198 new cases of cholera, and 80 deaths from the disease reported yesterday throughout Italy. The disease has spread to Genoa, where two cases and one death have been reported.

In Spain, yesterday, there were 490 new cases of cholera, and 176 deaths from the disease.

Montreal, Sept. 30. Only two small disturbances occurred last night, one at the Grey Nunnery and the other, later, on the Champ de Mars. The police had received information that a mob would assemble at the latter place, and a strong force was on hand. On becoming unruly the crowd was quickly dispersed after three arrests had been made. Everything is quiet this morning. The large force of militia called out has evidently had a good effect. No serious trouble is anticipated. Public feeling is completely aroused by the conduct of the rioters, and the authorities are resolved to carry out the health laws vigorously and will take whatever steps are necessary for that purpose.

Seattle, W. T., Sept. 30. The Chinese in the various coal mines in this vicinity have all been discharged. Many of the mills are also replacing the Chinese in their employ by white laborers. Serious trouble has been avoided at the New England mine by the Chinese taking alarm and leaving the mines, as requested by the white miners.

DOMESTIC.

Portland, Oregon, Sept. 30. Four carloads of the Chinese, who were run out of the mines around Seattle, arrived here yesterday. The Oregonian, in an article on the proceedings against the Chinese at Seattle, says: "The situation is so grave as to make it necessary for the President of the United States to act." It says he ought to send the Fourteenth Infantry, now at Fort Vancouver, to Puget Sound at once to preserve the peace, protect the Chinese and see that the menace of a general massacre is not carried out.

Mr. Moody at Newton.—The two day's Christian Workers' Convention, to be conducted by Dwight L. Moody, the evangelist, opened at 10 o'clock on Thursday in the Eliot Congregational Church, Newton, with a large attendance, there being a large number present from places outside of the city. A short praise service was first held, the singing being by a chorus choir under the leadership of L. E. Chase of Newton. Prayers were offered by Rev. D. L. Furber, D. D., Rev. T. J. Holmes and Rev. A. B. Earle, the evangelist. Rev. H. F. Titus, pastor of the Newton Baptist Church, opened the topic for discussion, it being, "How to Study the Bible." A gospel hymn was rendered by Mr. and Mrs. Lamb of Lowell, the gospel singers. The discussion of the above topic was continued by Mr. Moody.—Ex.

It is a great thing to say of a man that he is characterized by integrity and truthfulness, and is incapable of knowing or doing injustice to another; it is a greater thing to affirm of one that he is distinguished for amiability and benevolence, and goes through the world seeking to make others happy; but I hold it to be the grandest thing you can declare of any one when you allege that he is holy, for that is to affirm that he "walks with God," and that he holds himself and all that he has to be not his own, but the property of the King of kings.—Ex.

BIOGRAPHY OF MRS. L. E. FASSETT. By her Husband, Eld. O. R. Fassett.

Printed on heavy paper, and bound in cloth; 168 pages; price 50 cts. For sale at the Crisis Office, 144 Hanover Street, Boston, Mass.

The subject of this Memoir was well known to a wide circle of friends, among whom for many years she lived and moved as an angel of love, carrying the gospel of Jesus, and by true devotion, womanly modesty and Christian principle, setting an example worthy of imitation by women everywhere. No wonder that she won the affections of hundreds, who ask now she is dead, to have some record of so exemplary a life. Her husband—certainly best qualified to perform the task—has in this beautiful book endeavored to meet the desire of friends. Tenderly has he written, and the tender-hearted will here and there drop a tear while reading passages in the book. The Biography is a work that will sell from its own recommendation. Agent.

A TRACT FOR THE TIMES. THE RECURRENCE OF DOCTRINE. By Pastor A. J. Gordon.

This is a reprint of a very striking address, recently delivered by the author before the Alumni of the Newton Theological Seminary. It is not stale reading by any means, but is luscious fruit from the tree of life. It shows how the great truths of inspiration continually recur in the history of the church. By this recurrence the Doctor claims that great revivals and reformations spring up, and perennial freshness is secured to truth. The Eucharist for the people—Salvation by the objective work and word of Christ,—and Last Eschatology, or the doctrine of last things, among the latter, "The Lord Cometh"—are apostolically pressed upon the attention of the Alumni. Good! The doctrine, the precious truth of Jesus' coming, is voiced by the Clarendon Street Baptist pulpit, without misgivings or mysticism.

This is a twenty page tract; price 3 cts. each; twelve for 25 cts. For sale at the Crisis Office, 144 Hanover St., Boston, Mass.

AN EXPOSITION OF THE 20TH CHAPTER OF REV. By Wm. F. Collier.

This is a tastily printed pamphlet of thirty-two pages, with tinted cover. It gives the author's position upon this chapter, upon which there has been much discussion, and various opinions. The author claims that in the book of Revelation the literal truth is given by symbols. He therefore regards the thousand years as in the past, and thinks it inconsistent with Christ's words to place the resurrection of the just and unjust a thousand years apart; as Christ says, "The hour is coming in the which all that are in their graves shall hear his voice and come forth." But get the pamphlet and examine for yourself.

Price 10 cts.; for sale at the Crisis Office, 144 Hanover Street, Boston. Agent.

CONFERENCE REPORT.

The Kennebec County Advent Quarterly Conference met with the brethren at South Smithfield, Me., City school-house, according to notice, Thursday evening, Sept. 17th. This part of the country is quite thinly settled, and those of like precious faith are considerably scattered. But the good Spirit of the Lord and a love for the truth brought together a goodly number of earnest workers and candid listeners. The social meetings were all very good. The preaching was earnest, timely, and instructive. The tone and spirit of the meeting was to rescue the perishing. Two sisters started anew for the kingdom, and we do hope and trust those earnest prayers and faithful warnings will prove a savor of life unto life to many that were there. Preachers present: Levi Eldridge, H. B. Sevey, F. E. Blaisdell, A. H. Blaisdell, W. A. Lovejoy, and J. R. Sturtevant.

F. E. Blaisdell, President.
J. R. Sturtevant, Sec'y.

Conference Notice.

The Annual Session of the Maine State A. C. Conference will be held at Bridgeton, Me., commencing Wednesday evening, Oct. 14th, at seven o'clock, and holding over the following Sunday. This place is somewhat out of the way for some, but the hand of the Lord seemed to point it out as the place to hold the meeting, and we trust an extra effort will be made by all the churches and societies to send delegates, and also that all the preachers will endeavor to be there, that the good brethren and sisters of Bridgeton may not be disappointed in their desire for a good full meeting. Strangers will inquire for Brn. Hanson, Fields, N. A. Staples, Geo. E. Ham, and S. F. Kilborn, who will see that homes are provided for all.

Art. 3, Sec. 2 of Constitution reads: "Each church or society shall be allowed one delegate, and one additional delegate for every twenty actual members, to be elected by the church or society which they represent, and to be provided with a certificate of election attested by the recording officer of the same. The recording officer shall also with the certificate of election certify to the actual membership of the church or society. These delegates shall hold their membership till the next annual session of Conference." We would also remind preachers who belong to the Conference that the Constitution makes it their duty to be present, and if unable, to send a written report.

The M. C. R. R. will sell round trip tickets to Portland at one fare. At Portland or transfer stations, buy tickets via. Portland and Ogdensburg R. R. to Bridgeton, at one fare for round trip. Those on the line of Bridgeton and Saco River R. R. can also buy round trip tickets at one fare for round trip. All should ask for tickets on account of Advent State Conference at Bridgeton. PHOTOGRAPHS.

We have obtained the photographs of some of our leading preachers, to sell for the benefit of the Tract Fund. They are cabinet size, and taken by one of the best artists in the city. We have the following:

E. A. STOCKMAN, Editor of the World's Crisis.
J. COUCH, Editor of the Quarterly Journal of Prophecy.
F. BURR, Editor of the Young Pilgrim and Blessed Hope Quarterly.
J. HEMENWAY, Business Agent and Treasurer of the A. C. P. Society.
A. W. SIBLEY, Secretary of the A. A. Mission Society.
MILES GRANT, L. BOUTELLE, S. G. MATHEWSON, H. MUNGER, C. GOODRICH.

We have also the photograph of WM. MILLER, taken from an old picture.

The above are for sale at the Crisis Office. Price postpaid, 35 cts. each. AGENT.

NEW BOOKS.

It is with pleasure we present to the Christian public our new publications, in which the reasons of our faith are presented in a candid and logical manner, and with such a vast amount of scriptural testimony that the books must command the respect of all candid thinkers and Bible students.

"OUR HOPE," OR, WHY ARE WE ADVENTISTS?

The large and increasing demand for this work is an expression of the high appreciation of its merits among our people, and we believe it will accomplish much good in removing unjust prejudice, and enlightening many minds upon the great subject of Christ's Second Advent, and the restitution of all things spoken by the prophets of olden times. We wish that a copy might be placed in the hands of every clergyman in the country. Price single, postpaid, 60 cts.; per dozen, by express, $6.00. AGENT.

HADES, OR THE INTERMEDIATE STATE OF MAN.

A companion volume to "OUR HOPE." By Rev. H. Constable, A. M., containing 367 pages, neatly bound in cloth, lettered in gold, making it ornamental and attractive. This is a reprint of the English edition, and the third edition of the work. The former price was $1.25 per copy. We are able to put them at 60 cts. per copy; $6.00 per dozen, by express. The large sale of this work in the old country is undoubted evidence of its great merit. It is the only work extant, with which we are acquainted, that fully presents an extensive historical and scriptural testimony on the state of man in death. AGENT.

DURATION AND NATURE OF FUTURE PUNISHMENT.

By Rev. H. Constable, A. M., late Prebendary of Cork, Ireland, and author of "HADES, OR THE INTERMEDIATE STATE OF MAN," etc. Neatly bound in cloth; 368 pages; price, 60 cts. single; $6.00 per dozen, by express.

This book has passed through five editions in England. We have the pleasure of presenting to the public the first AMERICAN EDITION at a low price. It is a companion volume to "OUR HOPE" and "HADES," and the three constitute a compendium of theology upon the subjects of the nature of man, intermediate state, future retribution, and the life in Christ, that can scarcely be equalled outside of the Bible.

We will send the THREE volumes to Clergymen of any denomination for $1.75 postpaid. Please remember the above applies to Clergymen only. Address all orders to

J. HEMENWAY, Box 5140, Boston, Mass.

A NEW TRACT.
"WHY ARE WE A PEOPLE?"

This handsomely printed Tract of 22 pages is the Discourse preached by ELD. E. A. STOCKMAN at the Special Convention in Worcester, Mass., and published by vote of the Convention. The Tract is eminently timely in its character, and should be scattered by thousands in every direction.

Price (post-paid), two copies for 5 cents; per dozen, 25 cents; per pound, 75 cents. AGENT.

ANOTHER NEW TRACT.
THE END OF THE IMPENITENT.
BY WM. H. MITCHELL.

This tract is the substance of a sermon preached by Bro. Mitchell at Biddeford, and published by the A. C. Publication Society, Boston, Mass. No one acquainted with Bro. Mitchell's pulpit and literary ability will need be told that this production is eminently worthy of careful reading and wide-spread circulation. The argument is unanswerable; the rhetoric is pure and impressive; the spirit Christian and tender. Let this tract be ordered at once by thousands. Price, two for 5 cts., 20 cts. per dozen. AGENT.

A NEW TRACT.
THE SABBATH ABROGATED.
By Mrs. C. C. Stewart.

A Tract of 16 pages. It is logical and concise, and meets the demand for something that shows up the fallacious claims of the advocates of the Seventh-day theory. The Seventh-day people are flooding some sections of the country with Sabbath literature that is calculated to mislead many, and bind the yoke of the law upon the people. Give this tract a large circulation. Two for 5 cts., 20 cts. per dozen. AGENT.

NEW PAMPHLET.
BY A. ROSS.
TOKENS OF THE HOUR:
The Last Phases of the Papacy marked in Prophecy.

The author is a deep thinker, and a thorough Bible student; one who has given particular attention to the study of Prophecy, and its fulfillment in the history of the Papacy.

For sale at the Crisis Office. Price 15 cts. single; seven copies for One Dollar, postpaid.

PREPARING THE WAY.

Speeding forth the warning message,
Flashing light to darkened lands!
Ne'er was such a solemn mission
Placed within poor human hands.
Christ is coming, signs proclaim it,
Read it in the furnace gleam;
Hark, the flying wheels repeat it!
List, the voices of the steam!
Hear the chorus of the presses,
Hear the throbbing engine say,
"Christ is coming! haste thee, haste thee!
He is near! make no delay!"

Hither, thither glide the workers,—
Anxious faces, here and there;
Busy hands prepare the message,
Earnest lips now breathe a prayer.
Belts and pulleys join the anthem,—
Hear the busy folder ring!
Hark! the valves now click in chorus,
Telling of the coming King!
Hear the chorus of the presses,
Hear the throbbing engine say,
"Christ is coming! haste thee, haste thee!
He is near! make no delay!"

As they scoffed when righteous Noah
Sought to build the safety ark,
So to-day they spurn the warning;
Still the world is in the dark.
Hark the cry! 'tis "peace and safety!"
Where the watchmen, are they dumb?
Can they read the signs unfurling?
Do they warn of wrath to come?
Hear the chorus of the presses,
Hear the throbbing engine say,
"Christ is coming! haste thee, haste thee!
He is near! make no delay!"

We must man our every life-boat,
Stem the downward rushing tide,
Throw some rope of earnest effort,
Help to rescue, cheer and guide.
Souls are sinking,—must they perish?
Let us lend a prayerful oar;
We may save by strong endeavor,—
We may help them reach the shore!
Hear the chorus of the presses,
Hear the throbbing engine say,
"Christ is coming! haste thee, haste thee!
He is near! make no delay!"

NOTES BY THE WAY.

BY H. MUNGER.

This is my first trip out in three years. I have been liberated from business by the prophetic hard times; and being well, it seemed duty to visit the battle fields of former years, and review the fortifications of forty year's standing against the enemy, also some of more recent construction.

First place visited was Worcester, Mass. This church has stood the bombardment of the devil for forty years, and have never thought of striking colors. They have suffered from some traitors and fanatics in the camp; but they are doing well, and are a strong church. I had a good old-fashioned meeting with them.

Next to Lawrence, Mass. This is another old fortification. It was once nearly destroyed by fanaticism and traitors in camp, but there was enough of the old stock left to repair damages, and hoist the colors again. They have Bro. Couch for their pastor, who knows all the attacks which have been made on them for forty-five years, and they never stood better than now. I have known this church thirty-five years. I had a good meeting with them. They are well united in effort and love.

Next to Haverhill. This is an old fort that has been badly shattered a number of times. It has had an element in the camp that has been more inclined to dictate and find fault than to take right hold and help in the prayer meetings, and the general support of the church, unless things went to suit them, which is seldom the case. Nearly all churches suffer more or less from this element. This is what Paul calls the somewhat whatsoever class, that was good for nothing in Conference. But Bro. Sibley has managed to put things in order, and they are doing well.

Next to Exeter, N. H. Another old field, where many battles have been fought, and many wounded, some killed, and a few deserted; but there is a little garrison there which the devil will not kill out.

Next to Portsmouth, N. H. Here the government have a navy yard, well furnished with war material, and the Advent Church is much like it in defending the gospel of the kingdom. They are doing well under the charge of Bro. Crossett. We had full houses on Sunday of all classes. Many Spiritualists were out. They are the children of the immortal-soul churches; and the sermon from the Scripture standpoint put them all into the same bag with the old "mother of harlots," whose daughters believe in the consciousness of the dead, and communication with them, as the old lady does. I photographed them as well as possible in forty-five minutes, and the reason why the picture looked so bad, was that the original was so homely. But God blessed me and the church, and I left in peace.

Next to Dover, N. H. This church has been nearly destroyed a number of times by fanaticism and the imprudence of preachers; but they have rallied, and built a good house of worship. They are well organized, and with Bro. Phelps, their pastor, are doing well.

Next to Biddeford, Me. When I first commenced meetings here, some twenty years ago, we met in Bro. Libby's dwelling house, with four Advent believers, and about the same number of outsiders. The seed caught and grew until the place was too small. A hall was soon filled, and from the hall they went into a large chapel, which God enabled them to build, and thus things went on smoothly. But the devil hated them, and nearly succeeded in destroying them by the injudicious course of a preacher who, like many others, refused to submit to a church trial to settle things. But he professed to be more holy than he acted out by trying to widen the breach, which terminated in a rupture, and scattered some of the lighter material off into the Salvation Army. The more solid material remains, and are building up under the labors of Elds. Mitchell, Gay, and Emery. We had three times as many out as was expected, and some that had left the meeting and are with the Salvation army; but if they have got the Advent doctrine down deep, they will soon starve out in the Salvation Army, where immortal-soulism is preached, which destroys faith in salvation through Christ. I have attended their meetings, and it is surprising work to me, as not one of them can tell what salvation is, or will be, from a Bible standpoint. Their power seems to be a mixture of mesmerism and enthusiasm operated by a great bodily exercise "which profiteth little." They may do some little good to a class of weak minds, that only need a light anchor, but they certainly have nothing that would hold much of a ship in a storm at sea.

Next to Old Orchard, Me. This is a new fort built in a summer resort, where people from the cities spend the hot season for pleasure and health. Of course there has been some effort made to kill this fort out, but they have been placed there to stay. They built a nice chapel, and have good meetings. The night I was there we had nearly two hundred out to hear on the Bible doctrine of restoration. Immortal-soulism got no quarter. Some came eight miles, and brought small children. The good testimonies after the sermon showed the healthy state of the church. Some ministers preach so long that there is no chance for testimonies, but I like the old-fashion of short sermons, followed by testimonies from the church.

Next to Bridgeton, Me. This was to me a new place. I did not know a person in town, but one man picked me out of the crowd by what he had heard of me by report in a paper—the Bridgeton News. It seemed that everybody was looking for a strange looking creature by their staring, whispering, and pointing, and I was glad when the team come to carry me out of sight. I was left at Bro. Kilborn's, whose wife is a preacher. She requested Bro. Johnson to take me to her house, so she could see me before she left for her appointment, sixty miles away; but I was yet on exhibition, for others come in to look at me for the first time. I never was in such a fix before in all my experience, but Sr. Kilborn had pity on me, and gave me a private room, and I hid away till meeting time. Some came five miles to the meeting, and among them a man who had seen me twenty years before in Cartharge, Me. I was glad to see him. I arrived at seven o'clock, as the meeting was appointed early, and I found myself on exhibition in earnest. I overheard remarks like this: "He don't look half as bad as I expected, by what I have heard of him." Probably their ideas of me were formed somewhat by the following articles which appeared in the papers before my arrival.

"Elder Hiram Munger, a quaint and very interesting speaker, is to preach this (Friday) evening in the Second Advent church. Mr. Munger is a powerful muscular Christian, and when younger was not averse to 'training' the sons of Belial who came to his meetings to disturb public worship. On one occasion, when announced to preach in the city of Providence, a noted bully headed a gang of roughs who had determined to hinder the services. When the preacher entered the pulpit he noticed the gang, and at once took in the situation. He politely requested all to be seated before he commenced the services. He repeated his request three times, saying they must be seated before he began, and he was going to have service. The huge bully and his companions paid no attention to his request, but continued to stand, talking and laughing unconcernedly. Elder Munger then left his desk, walked deliberately up to the bully, put his left hand on the back of his neck, gave a quick jerk that turned his face toward the door, to which he ran him rapidly, opened it, grasped the seat of his pantaloons, and with a swing motion pitched the fellow into the middle of the street. He returned to the pulpit without any appearance of excitement, and preached to a very quiet audience, and was never again disturbed. He is, nevertheless, a godly man, full of love and gentleness of spirit.—Putnam, Ct., Patriot.

"Rev. Hiram Munger, of Chicopee, Mass., who is coming to hold a series of meetings at Advent chapel (see notice elsewhere) has had a noteworthy career. He has conducted between one hundred and two hundred campmeetings, and has been an earnest worker in his Master's cause. He was born in Monson, Mass., in 1806, and is therefore in his seventy-ninth year. He has been very powerful physically—a modern combination of Hercules and Sampson and whenever rowdies attempted to break up his campmeeting, he would pitch into them, knocking them down right and left, or taking them by the coat-collar and seat of the pants and throwing them over the fence, then pray for their conversion. He is a veteran in the work of religion and temperance, and has a reputation similar to Campmeeting John Allen. His 'Life and Religious Experience,' a book of 186 closely-printed pages, published several years ago in Boston, has run through several editions. During his stay in Bridgeton Mr. Munger will quite likely draw large audiences."—Bridgeton News.

Some came six to eight miles to evening meetings, and twenty-six miles on Sunday. God blessed the truth, and some acknowledged themselves benefited by the light of truth. The church was strengthened, and immortal-soulism was weakened, but I never want to be on exhibition like that again.

Next to Cape Elizabeth for a meeting on Monday evening, by a pressing invitation. But on the way we found the railroad running across a swamp had settled about six feet, and I did not get through until the next day. This would be a good reason for reasonable men; but the same thing happened ten or twelve years ago, when I had an appointment at Hollis Centre, Me., and one man was so angry because I did not arrive, that he has never spoken to me since. We have a few just such mules among us, and they always want to govern the church. The settling of that grade across the swamp reminded me of the necessity of a better foundation for the hope of the church than pagan philosophy, upon which immortal-soulists build.

I was well cared for by Bro. George C. Lombard, of East Hiram, Me., who come fifteen miles to the meetings at Bridgeton, and invited me to call on him, which I declined for lack of time; but the settling of the road compelled me to accept his invitation, and I staid all night, as he lives near the railroad at that point, while others had to go on foot to a public house. The favor I received here was only one of the advantages of Christ's arrangement of homes for his ministers who go into the world to proclaim his truth. Bro. Lombard wishes ministers who are passing through Hiram to call on him, and preach to them, as they can get out quite a congregation.

Next to Rochester, N. H., on my way home, and had a good time with Bro. Morrel's church. I took up my Nashua appointment, as I learned that the Salvation Army had captured most of the church, which speaks poorly for them. It is hardly worth while to preach to Adventists who will surrender to such a body of people, and to such doctrine as they preach.

After riding two hundred and ten miles, I arrived at home, having preached eighteen sermons, which in some cases destroyed faith in immortal-soulism, and in many cases inoculated the patients with the truth. Yours as ever, with the "war coat" on.

IN MEMORIAM.

Bro. Stockman:—I trust you and the readers of the Crisis will not look upon me as assuming undue privileges in begging leave to record the death of the late Mercy Cousens, and her only son Byron, of Fairfield, Me., to occupy a space beyond what is assigned an ordinary obituary notice.

Sister Cousens died, after a brief illness, Jan. 4th, 1885, aged seventy-four; and her son, after a life of sickness, May following, at the age of fifty. My association in the first years of my public labor with her father—Archy Harding—a veteran man of God, and afterwards with her husband, Capt. Willard Cousens, who was killed on a homebound voyage from the West Indies by a wave which broke over the stern of his vessel, and crushed the house in which he had taken shelter, makes me feel in writing this more like a mourner than anything else.

From early life Sister Cousens trod the path the father's trod, and though never woman carried in her breast a more sympathetic and kindlier heart, yet such was her strict integrity for the right, she was never known to flinch from responsibility or cater to the wrong. "Her yea was yea, and her nay, nay."

In the early days of the Advent movement, with her husband she embraced the blessed hope of seeing Jesus, and being made like him at his coming, and many a weary head and fainting heart has found rest and refreshment beneath her roof. It was in 1854, when many hearts beat high with hope, I led Byron (who now sleeps in Jesus) and Christana, the only survivor of the family, down the banks of the Penobscot, and buried them "in the likeness of His death," in the likeness of whose resurrection they, together with the whole Israel of God, will all share soon, when the sea—the international cemetery of the world—will yield to life again its millions, and the ransomed hosts "will return and come to Zion with songs and everlasting joy upon their heads." Then friends will meet again who have loved.

In view of a life-long acquaintance with this beloved Christian family, whose doors ever opened to me with a welcome in hours of weariness and want, may I not say—

"Many friends who traveled with me
Reached the valley long ago
One by one they left me toiling
With a dark and crafty foe
Yes, their pilgrimage was shorter,
And their journey sooner done
O, how lovingly they'll greet me
When the victory shall be won!"

O, happy morning, which shall dispel the death-scenes of this world of disaster and sorrow, when there will be no more going out with dread and fear, leaving the members of the household to put on the habiliments of widowed sadness because the enemy has captured our loved ones, and they will come back to us no more! A. Ross.

SPECIAL ANSWERS TO PRAYER.

☞ WE SOLICIT BRIEF, WELL AUTHENTICATED STATEMENTS OF SPECIAL ANSWERS TO PRAYER, IN THE HEALING OF DISEASES, OR OTHER REMARKABLE DELIVERANCES.

A Case of Healing.

Dear Crisis:—I have some blessed news that I want you to carry to all of your readers, that they may rejoice with me. The Lord has again set his seal upon me, which has caused me to praise him with notes loud and shrill. For I can say with the Psalmist David, "Bless the Lord, O my soul; and all that is within me, bless his holy name. Bless the Lord, O my soul, and forget not all his benefits: who forgiveth all thine iniquities, who healeth all thy diseases." Yes, he has done it. Praise his name forever! Do you wonder I want to tell it through the press, over land and ocean? That same Jesus, who when on earth went about doing good, has now condescended to do much for me.

Some over nineteen years since I had my ankle broken badly, which was not set right, and thus has been so lame and painful for years that I have not been to one of my neighbors on foot. But now I can walk as well as when in my youthful days, and in the language of the prophet Habakkuk I can say, "The Lord God is my strength, and he will make my feet like hinds' feet, and he will make me to walk upon mine high places." And I do most wonderfully appreciate it.

No one can understand the joy and peace of my soul any more than they could the language of Paul, when he was caught up into paradise, and heard unspeakable words, which it is not lawful for a man to utter. He did not seem to know whether he was in the body or out of the body. But as he said "God knoweth," so say I. He knoweth all things, and he is my shepherd, and I shall not want. "He maketh me to lie down in green pastures, he leadeth me beside the still waters," and thus my cup runneth over. Hallelujah to his dear name! I can never praise him enough for what he has done for me. The thought of his taking my feet from the horrible pit of miry clay, and putting a new song in my mouth many years ago was most blessed. But now that he has taken away my lameness, and caused me to leap as an hart, and to walk here and there, has astonished many. And those who remember seeing me on the Plainsville campmeeting no doubt will rejoice at my deliverance. I had planned to go one way, but duty called another, and I obeyed with glorious results. When in Southington, Ct., at the home of Bro. Hezekiah Davis, on the evening of Sept. 7th, whilst importuning at the mercy-seat in my behalf, as well as obeying the apostle James (5th chapter, 14th verse), was my foot made straight and as nimble as the other, and no one can doubt it. It is as real as to see the crooked made strait, the blind made to see. O how good has the Lord been to me, better than all my fears. I stopped with Brother and Sister Davis a few days and acknowledged my faith, and gave God the glory for what he had done for me. And I will still give him glory, for glory is his due, and you, my dear brethren and sisters, may give him glory, and when our Lord reigneth we will be among the number who will say Alleluia, Amen. And should the poor sinner read these lines, let me ask if that will be your song? Haste, make no delay. Come to Jesus, that you may not only have a hiding-place from the storm, but swell the anthems of praise to God and the Lamb. Your sister in faith and hope and love. Susan E. Teeple.

Hotchkissville, Ct., Sept. 21st 1885.

Be not simply good—be good for something.

SILENTLY SLEEPING, BUT NOT FOREVER.

BY MAGGIE L. KING.

Warney, the first we lost, was a son—
A three year old darling was he;
He's silently waiting for Jesus to come,
The King in his beauty to see.

His name was Shemiah, to hearken and hear
The Lord in his merciful call;
How often we've hoped when to manhood he'd come,
Poor sinners he'd warn, as did Paul.

But death with his icy cold fingers came in,
And without mercy he blighted the scene;
But he's coming again, and then without sin,
To live and to reign with his King.

The next was Katie. Though young, she believed
That Christ, her dear King, she'd soon see;
And in the paradise then made new,
With Christ, her dear King, she would be.

But then without warning death stepped to her side,
And sealed her dear lips with his gloom;
But sleep on, dear Katie, the Lord will soon come,
And wake you to see your new home.

The next was Maggie, too young to believe
In the truths of our soon coming King;
But her life is now hid in Christ and in God
Till Jesus her life he shall bring.

To sing loud hosannahs the three then shall join
To praise their dear Saviour and King,
And then with the ransomed they ever will live,
And their crowns at his feet they will bring.

O come, dear Jesus! hasten the time
The saints to awake and set free,
That they with the glorified hosts may arise,
And we their sweet faces may see.

OBITUARIES.

Robbins. At Galesburg, Ill., Sept. 8th, 1885, at the residence of his son, Edward S. Robbins.

The deceased was born August 28th, 1807, in Copenhagen, Lewis Co., N. Y. He was converted in early childhood. He made a public profession at the age of twenty-one, uniting with the Baptist Church in his native village. He served this church as its clerk until he removed West. He was married to Miss Temperance Allen, June 30, 1833. He moved to the then far West in 1836. He returned on a visit to his native State in 1840, remaining there for seven years. During this time he conscientiously adopted the views held by Second Adventists concerning the second coming of Christ and other doctrines. He considered himself henceforth identified with this body of believers. His residence has been for the past twenty years in this city. He belonged to a long-lived family, his father dying less than four years ago, at the age of one hundred and one years. Mr Robbins has been a great sufferer for more than fifteen months, which he endured with patience and submission. In his Christian life he was characterized with marked cheerfulness, unshaken faith and great love of the Scriptures. He was always a strong advocate of total abstinence. He left the wife of his youth, one son, W. A. Robbins, and two daughters, Mrs. M. E. Hotaling and Mrs. O. C. Pine, to mourn his loss. Like thousands of other fathers, he laid his first-born son on the altar of his country, who was a graduate of Knox College, and died at Vicksburg in 1864. "Precious in the sight of the Lord is the death of his saints." O. C. Pine.

Glidden. In Lee, N. H., Sept. 5th, 1885, Mrs. Rebecca F. Glidden, aged eighty-one years, two months and nineteen days.

Our aged sister became a Christian at a very early age in life, and united with the Baptist Church in Exeter. In 1842 she heard the glad news of Jesus' speedy return from the lips of Eld. Wm. Miller, which, with her companion, she received with joy and gladness. This faith she cherished till the end of her life, and shortly before she fell asleep selected as a text (from which she desired some minister of her faith to preach at the funeral) the words of Paul to Timothy, "I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith." 2 Tim. 4: 7, 8. Our sister was a devoted Christian, and though dead, yet she speaks in her Christian virtues and godly life. Her mind was richly stored with Bible truths, and she ever had words of comfort and help for those who were in sorrow and affliction. Truly she "kept the faith," and now she waits the "crown of righteousness." Many of our ministers will recall with gratitude the kindness and tender care bestowed on them from time to time while they have enjoyed her hospitality, and a quiet resting-place in the "prophet's chamber." Assisted by Bro. Burr, pastor of the Congregational Church of the place, the writer endeavored to speak words of comfort to the mourning friends. May God bless them, and bring them all finally in the glad morning of the resurrection, to enjoy an eternal reunion in the soon coming kingdom.

"Until the shadows from this earth are cast,
Until He gathers in his sheaves at last,
Until the twilight gloom is overpast,
Good night! good night!"

W. H. Mitchell.

Sessions. At Adams, Mass., Sept. 20, 1885, Sr. Florence B. Sessions, of South Hadley Falls.

Sister Florence had been a great sufferer for a long time with that dread disease, consumption. She came to Adams, where her father resides, some months ago, thinking a stay among friends there might be beneficial to her health; but she continued to fail until she quietly and peacefully fell asleep. She leaves an affectionate husband, an aged father, five sisters and one brother, with many other relatives, to mourn. She professed faith in Christ in early life, was baptized by Bro. E. McCulloch, and was ever after identified with the believers in the soon coming of Christ and kindred doctrines. Twice has the enemy death entered the home of Bro. S., each time taking his companion and leaving him lonely and sad. May he realize that underneath him are the everlasting arms, and rise above the trials of earth to renewed energy and zeal in the cause of Christ. We accompanied the weeping friends to South Hadley Falls, where the precious sleeper was consigned to the grave to await the glorious resurrection morn. Many and beautiful were the floral tributes brought to adorn the last resting place—mute but eloquent voices of affection, esteem and love.

"She sleeps, but not forever."

Services on the occasion by the writer. Text, "There shall be no more death"—no more curse.

Mary L. Tower.

Downing. At Downing's Landing, Oregon, Tuesday, Sept. 8, 1885, Margaret Luvisa Downing, only daughter of Frank L. and Hettie Downing, aged five years, ten months and sixteen days.

In Ramah's ancient city once
Was heard a voice of weeping;
'Twas Rachel weeping for her slain
Who in the earth were sleeping.
And Rachel's daughters yet do weep
For children in the dust;
Low in the grave they silent lay
Till Christ shall raise the just.
The Lord himself shall come from heaven
With an archangel's voice,
To raise from death the saints of God—
All those who are his choice.
Then praise the Lord for such a hope,
And let us live as meet,
To share in that great gathering,
And little Margaret greet.

Alson W. Steers.

Strout. In Oxford, Maine, Sept. 12th, 1885, Mrs. Susan Strout, wife of Abraham Strout, in the seventy-fifth year of her age.

The subject of this notice never made a public profession of religion, but during her last sickness prayed with her daughter, calling on the Lord to forgive her sins. She was a kind and loving mother, and will be missed very much. She leaves an aged husband, sons and daughters. May the Lord bless them all. Services by the writer. G. L. Tracy.

Stratton. In Sidney, Maine, July, 3d, 1885, Sister Sophronia, wife of Wm. G. Stratton, aged fifty-eight years.

Sister Stratton's illness was short and severe, but faith triumphed. May the Lord bless the husband and children, and bring them to that sorrowless world so soon to come. Funeral services by the writer. J. R. Hall.

Martin. Fell asleep in Jesus in Bow, N. H., Sept. 15th, 1885, with cancer of twenty years' standing, Margaret S. Martin, wife of Elder A. Martin, aged seventy years.

She sleeps in Jesus. A. Martin.

Bradbury. In Southington, Conn., Aug. 9th, 1885, Bro. William Bradbury, aged eighty-eight years.

Brother Bradbury came from England when a young man. A few years later he gave himself to Christ. In 1843 he became identified with those who "turned to God from idols to serve the living and true God, and to wait for his Son from heaven." All who knew him were ready to admit he believed in the soon coming of Christ, for it was his theme with all classes, saint or sinner. I do not remember of ever being in his company any length of time when he did not say something about the "signs of the times." In former days his home was always open to the servants of God. It was with pleasure he would refer to those days when Brn. Brewer, Mathewson, Walter and Henry Pratt, Grant and others found a resting place under his roof. Those still living will no doubt remember that home in New Britain, Conn. The last of his life was spent with his daughter in Southington, Conn. Since we knew him he has been a great sufferer, and his disease was of such a nature that earthly friends could not alleviate; yet through it all he was continually rejoicing in the Lord. "Bless the Lord!" was a very frequent expression with him. After his lips refused to speak, the smile of his countenance, the movement of the lips, and the clasping of hands, showed to those watching his departure that even then it was the expression of his heart; and so he fell asleep, and was laid to rest for a little time by the side of his companion in Kensington, Ct. Some of his friends still live in England. This side the Atlantic there is left an only son and daughter, with their families. May the blessed hope, which was the father's comfort, be their's through this life, and in the coming kingdom may the family be unbroken. His funeral was held in Southington, Conn., at the home of his daughter. Attended by the writer. H. Davis.

Myers. In North Adams, Mass., Sept. 13th, 1885, Mrs. Cynthia Myers, wife of Bro. Datus Myers, in the seventy-third year of her age.

She sleeps in Jesus, waiting for the resurrection morning and the gift of God, which is immortality and eternal life, in a land where death and the tomb can divide no more. She was converted to God at the early age of thirteen years, and united with the Baptist Church. She listened in 1855 to the glad tidings of our Lord's return, and together with her companion accepted it with joy, and waited in hope the glorious consummation. A husband, two sons and two daughters still survive, and mourn the loss of a faithful companion and God-fearing mother. May the dear Lord wonderfully sustain our dear brother through the lonely days of his remaining pilgrimage, and at last the family circle be unbroken in the land of perfect day. Services attended by the writer.

F. R. Blanchard.

Butler. Overtaken at last by that last enemy, the tyrant Death, by dropsy in Brookfield, Penn., our brother, Eld. Benjamin Butler, aged seventy-three years last May.

Funeral services held Sept. 3d, 1885, by the writer, from a given text by his son, which he often repeated during his sickness—"If a man die, shall he live again?" Job 14: 14. The subject of this notice was a good Bible student. He stood aloof battling for the soon coming of Christ and kindred truths, until the year 1870, when I prevailed with him to help in organizing the Conference of Northern Penn. and Southern N. Y., of which he remained a faithful member up to his decease. He was personally acquainted with some of the ministers of the East, as I have heard him speak of Elds. Munger, C. Goodrich and others. He was an efficient workman that needed not to be ashamed. His companion preceded him some three years. Our Conference will deeply feel their loss. D. B. Hunt.

Wright. Fell asleep in Jesus at New Haven, Conn., July 15th, 1885, Cliffie, youngest son of Daniel and Angie Wright, aged eleven years and eight months.

Little Cliffie's death was very sudden, yet it was not without the most excruciating pain that the enemy conquered him of that fatal disease—lockjaw. He was a lovely boy, possessing a quiet, tender, affectionate disposition, and was dearly loved by all who knew him. Many were the aching hearts which gathered around the little sleeper to hear words of comfort spoken to the bereaved family. Jer. 31: 16 was chosen for the occasion, and the blessed hope of the resurrection was set forth as the true expectancy of the church by the writer, whose earnest prayer and desire is that this sad dispensation may be sanctified to the good of all the family. A. J. Wheeler.

Peal. Suddenly, at her parents' residence in Glassboro, N. J., on Thursday, Sept. 17th, 1885, Ida, youngest daughter of Bro. and Sister Peal, aged three years and one month.

This sudden death was caused by accidental scalding. The circumstances surrounding it were very sad. Ida was an affectionate little girl; was very dear to her parents, also to her elder sisters. While they feel the heavy stroke fallen upon them, they have the sweet assurance of a happy reunion in the near future. The writer tried to comfort them with the blessed hope of Jesus and the resurrection.

The little one now sleeps in Jesus,
But her sleep will not be long;
He is coming soon to wake her,
Then she'll sing the new, new song.
He is coming for his people,
And to waken those who sleep,
Then he'll change the righteous living—
All who do his precepts keep.

H. T. Taylor.

Kelch. Sweetly fell asleep in Jesus near Elk City, Kansas, Sept. 7th, 1885, Forest L. Kelch, infant son of Charles and Rebecca Kelch, and grandson of Eld. W. P. Kelch, aged six months and twenty-two days.

The little soul is resting in his grave till Jesus comes to gather his precious jewels. Dear mothers, do not weep as those that have no hope. You who have laid those little treasures away, read Matt. 19: 14—"Jesus said, Suffer little children, and forbid them not to come unto me, for of such is the kingdom of heaven." Death may chill and wither the sweet little flower for awhile, but Jesus is the resurrection and the life, and he will have millions of them around him in the new earth singing the new song. Mothers, come to Jesus, and have a reunion with those little loved ones. Exercises by C. Corliss.

Barton. In Seabrook, N. H., August 15th, 1885, Sister Eliza Barton, wife of C. A. Barton, aged forty years.

Sister Barton embraced the hope of the gospel and the near coming of Christ quite a number of years ago, and joined the church at this place, where she remained until her death, doing what she could for the cause of Christ. She leaves a husband and a large circle of friends to mourn. We endeavored to comfort a large circle of mourners and friends from words found in 1 Cor. 15: 57. W. Hadley.

Lockman. In Ontario, N. Y., Sept. 7th, 1885, at the home of her daughter—Mrs. Wm. Birdsall, Mrs. Janette Lockman, aged eighty-three years.

Sleep on, beloved mother. Tender hands have laid thee in thy dreamless bed. There we leave thee to thy rest till the resurrection morn. We hope to meet thee then. F. J. B.

John Fletcher was by nature a man of a fiery, passionate temper; yet John Wesley says of him that "for twenty years and upwards before his death, no one ever saw him out of temper, or heard him utter a rash expression, on any provocation whatever." This was indeed a victory worth winning. It was the subjugation of unruly nature by the indwelling Holy Spirit. Seeing that God is no respecter of persons, he must be as willing to do this great thing for every believer as for John Fletcher. What hinders any man from being as meek as he? Surely, nothing but his own lack of earnest purpose, persistent prayer, and utterly trustful faith. The "fruit of the Spirit" in every disciple is "love, joy, peace, long-suffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance."—Ex.

CORRESPONDENCE.

FROM BR. J. V. LACEY.

Dear Editor:—The Crisis still comes to us from week to week, laden with precious Bible truths. How much we would like to attend those precious gatherings of the saints, where so many meet of "like precious faith" to hold sweet communion with each other, and hear the Word preached, and prepare for the great gathering in the heavenly kingdom.

On reading Bro. Wallace's article on "Holiness" in the Crisis, we think, amid all the different theories about holiness, he has the true Bible view. As soon as we are justified, cleansed, forgiven, reconciled to God, we are, according to the Scriptures, holy and ready for the kingdom. The dying thief was as soon as he believed and said, "Lord, remember me when thou comest into thy kingdom." If the kingdom had then been established, and he had been changed to immortality, that very day he would have entered saved, holy, washed in the blood of the Lamb. As it is, he will surely enter when Jesus comes the second time. But we who live a life of faith on the Son of God are to "grow in grace, and in the knowledge and love of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ"; grow up into him our living head in all things. We are complete in him. He is "made unto us wisdom, righteousness, sanctification and redemption." "His name shall be called Jesus, for he shall save his people from their sins"—not in them.

Dear brethren and sisters, let us press forward toward the mark for the prize of our high calling in Christ Jesus. A few of us here in Salinas are still holding on to the "faith once delivered unto the saints." We have many trials and discouragements, but the end is in view. The world is getting ready for the judgment, so few will believe these great truths. Unbelief is the greatest sin, and will condemn the world. "They will not come unto me, that they might have life." We are glad to see that the light is spreading in India, Sweden, Ireland, etc. The hand of the Lord is in it. This is the day of his preparation. Let us be ready to go in to "the marriage supper of the Lamb" pure and holy, having on the wedding garment of Christ's righteousness.

Salinas City, Cal.

FROM O. AND P. KING.

Dear Editor:—I feel it duty to pen a few lines to the many dear ones scattered abroad, and some in isolated places; for many times my soul has been refreshed by the letters of such through the Crisis. I cannot write anything very cheering in regard to my work in the Lord's vineyard, on account of poor health and sickness in my family. I have not been able to do any business since I was attacked with rheumatism and sciatica last December; and my dear companion has also been afflicted for the past three years, being nearly helpless with inflammatory rheumatism. But there is one thing that we can enjoy—the fruits of the blessed Comforter which Jesus promised to his children. O, what could we do if it were not for the aid of the blessed Spirit? Truly, according to his Word, we could do nothing. How much we have to praise Jesus for! In our trials and afflictions we are comforted with the hope of a better life through God's infinite love.

During the past winter and spring we have lost four grand-children by diphtheria, so we realize with others that the work of the enemy is still going on, and will until Jesus comes to destroy him. We know that the time is near when he will accomplish this work, and "deliver them who through fear of death were all their lifetime subject to bondage." Pray for us, dear ones, for we need your prayers.

From your brother and sister trusting.

FROM H. H. JANES.

Bro. Stockman:—I wish to say to our brethren and friends in the East that after my very pleasant and heart-cheering visit with them, which I trust will long be remembered with much pleasure and interest, I took the train at St. Albans, Vt., on the 7th inst. for Manchester, Iowa, where I arrived in safety and in good health on the 9th, and had a very pleasant meeting and greeting with the dear ones there who had met for Camp and Conference Meeting. Truly it was heart-cheering and soul-reviving to meet so many of my old fellow laborers once more in mortality, to renew our covenant vows together to our blessed Lord and Master, and to unite our efforts again in carrying forward the great work assigned us in trying to prepare a people for his glorious soon coming and kingdom. I expect, by divine grace and help, to devote my whole time and life in the future, or nearly so, to this work. Yours as ever in good hope through grace.

Grinnell, Iowa.

FROM M. McCULLOCH.

Bro. Stockman:—If it will encourage the dear waiting ones, tell them that the Lord is pouring out his Spirit here in Western Massachusetts. We have preached several times in our old home town—Savoy. An interest is awakened such as has not been for a long time.

On Sunday, the 27th, I was at Plainfield. This meeting will long be remembered by those present. The Lord gave us freely of his Holy Spirit. The waiting ones were comforted, backsliders wept and cried for mercy, sinners trembled, and ten came forward soliciting the prayers of the church. Praise the Lord! This little church is alive and prospering, which speaks grandly for their pastor, Bro. Dennis Sears, who is with them nearly every Sabbath. Here they do not forget that the preacher must be fed and clothed, and all help as the Lord has prospered them. We continued meetings three or four evenings. Pray for us.

Take care of your character. Do not be too much concerned for your reputation. Keep the character right, and the reputation will give you no trouble. Character is everything, something that cannot be hid from God or man—that cannot be changed as we change a garment; but we carry it with us wherever we go, and by it we are known every day of our lives. A pure, earnest, broad, consistent, symmetrical character—what divine glory it reflects! what blessings it confers on the world!—Sel.

Be quick to discern God's ways with you. This can be done only by watchful prayer and vigilance.

WORTH KNOWING.

At this time of the year, more people take cold than at any other, before they put on their winter clothing, which they do not need; but you need more on your back than any other part of the body, especially old people, as the spine and backbone are the seat of all colds, that affects the whole acting machinery of the body. It should be kept warm and dry. The lungs are nearer the surface, half way down the back, than any other part of the body, and a cold chill striking there strikes a vital spot. Many have taken their last cold in this way.

Put a pad of wool or cotton, twelve to eighteen inches long, four to six inches wide, and one inch thick, from the top of your shoulders down to the top of your hips, or fasten it to your under clothes, and you will be more comfortable than with an overcoat or a shawl, which the rest of the body does not need. This will save more fall colds than anything else. Try it, and see the effect. I have good medical authority for this, and my own experience. H. Munger.

Rufus Choate and Daniel Webster were once arguing a case before a jury where the main point turned on the size of certain cart wheels. Choate used much fine rhetoric in describing the wheels to the jury, and was about to carry conviction, when Webster suddenly drew aside a screen which he had previously arranged and simply said, "Gentlemen of the jury, there are the wheels." He won the case. Let us show life, rather than some fine-spun theory.—Selected.

TEMPERANCE.

Speaking Figures.—Felix L. Oswald, M. D., in one of his articles on "Temperance Teachings of Science," says: "In the South a million men, women and children of farm laborers can earn less than a hundred millions a year, i. e., $500 for every family of five persons. In the manufacturing districts of the north they would earn less than $200,000,000. We can therefore again be wholly certain of not overstating the truth, if we assert that in the United States alone the poison vice devours every year the aggregate earnings of more than fourteen hundred thousand families." The aggregate cost of the poison vice is $1,055,000,000 a year—a yearly sum equivalent to the cost value of all our public libraries, our church property, steamboats, bridges and telegraphs taken together. "In one dollar bank-notes of the United States treasury, one billion dollars could be pasted together into a paper strip that would reach up to the moon. Stacked up in bundles, they would form a paper pile a hundred feet long, fifty feet wide and fifty feet high."—Ex.

What is Whisky Bringing?—What is whisky bringing? was asked of a dealer in that article, one day. He meant to ask, how much is it selling for? A gentleman who heard the remark took it in a different sense from that. "What is whisky bringing?" do you ask. I'll tell you; it is bringing men to prison and to the gallows, and it is bringing women and children to poverty and want."

There never was a truer answer than this. It is estimated that it sends to prison every year one hundred thousand men and women. Twenty thousand children are sent to the workhouse annually by drink. Three hundred murders are caused by intemperance every year. Two hundred thousand children are made orphans every year, by this dreadful evil; and sixty-five thousand are killed by intemperance every year in this country.—Ex.

Temperance workers may well rejoice at the good work being done in Georgia. Some way, northern people have been slow to believe that any part of the south was in dead earnest to suppress the liquor traffic. But they may well say to us now, "Be not faithless, but believing." Why? Because ninety-seven of the 137 counties of Georgia have voted not to allow the sale of intoxicating liquors. Temperance enthusiasm is rising in Georgia, and it does one good to hear them talk about the utter suppression of this vile traffic in a few years. God speed them, and all temperance workers, in the good work. We have great hopes that when the children of Massachusetts have had a few years' training in temperance instruction, the public sentiment of this State will demand and enforce absolute prohibition.—Atlanta Constitution.

Lincoln and Temperance.—"The first time I met him was in September, 1854, at Bloomington; and I was introduced to him by Judge Douglas, who was then making a campaign in defense of the Kansas-Nebraska bill. Mr. Lincoln was attending court, and called to see the Judge. They talked very pleasantly about old times and things; and during the conversation the Judge broadened the hospitalities of the occasion by asking him to drink something. Mr. Lincoln declined very politely, when the Judge said: "Why, do you belong to the temperance society?" He said: "I do not in theory, but I do in fact, belong to the temperance society, in this, to wit—that I do not drink anything, and have not done so for very many years."—Judge Weldon.

Every week, and every day in the week, one may read of some murder, or assault, or other crime, committed by people under the influence of liquor, and who, when sober, would not have thus violated the law. The other day a man was stabbed to death in Gardiner—and later a man in Bath died from injuries received in a drunken spree several days before. Rum is a curse to any community—we wish it was a State's Prison crime for a man to drink until he becomes intoxicated.—Eastern State.

In a recent Winthrop temperance meeting a gentleman made the following statement: "In a neighboring town twenty-seven men banded together to oppose in every possible way the Washingtonian movement. Of these eleven filled a drunkard's grave; seven were lost at sea; four, while intoxicated, drove into an arm of one of the lakes in this vicinity one night and were drowned; two committed suicide; two were hanged in the south, and one went to sea and never was heard from."—Lewiston (Me), Journal.

HOW SHALL WE STUDY THE SIGNS OF THE TIMES?

The signs of any period of time are the events and tokens which manifest the leading characteristics of the period, especially those which are dangerous and need to be watchfully shunned. Our merciful Heavenly Father always gives sufficient signs to warn His creatures of impending danger, and always furnishes means by which to escape the fatal snares.

As the people of every period are exposed to dangers, every period has its signs which show the particular snares to be escaped at that time. God's signs, given for the protection of a people, are always prophetically announced, therefore the people of every period are in part, at least, dependent upon the prophetic scriptures for their safety. The safety of all men depends upon receiving "the testimony of Jesus Christ," which "is the spirit of prophecy."

The Creator never sent a judgment upon men for their sins without first giving them prophetic signs and using means to draw their minds in a way to impress them with the fact of the approaching danger, giving them an opportunity to prepare for it. These principles are made especially applicable to periods preceding the first and second coming of Christ. The importance of heeding those signs, and the results of rejecting them and their forewarning, were fully developed at the first appearing.

According to the consecutive prophecies the period has come for the signs of the second coming to be seen. If so, then it has become an important duty of the church to watch for those signs, and when they appear, to proclaim to the people the approaching judgment.

How shall we watch for these signs? First, study the sacred prophecies, to learn what events were foretold as being signs to characterize the present period. When the prophetic statements are understood, look for just such events as that language describes. This has been the rule by which true faith has been established in all ages.

The Jews were fatally ensnared because they refused to accept the signs of the first advent, every one of which was an event literally described. This rule established by Inspiration is the only divine authority we have by which we can determine what events will constitute the signs of the last times. The prophecies giving these signs should be read with a view to learn what events are predicted in the various departments—physical, political, religious, moral, and then watch to learn if such events are transpiring. By this means we may learn quite definitely what the conditions of the earth and atmosphere will be in the last days, these conditions being the signs foretold as indicating the approach of the day of the Lord.

So it is in the department of the nations. The Lord has told us distinctly what kingdoms should precede those among whom the last signs should be seen, and also informed us what the special conditions of the last nations should be. The same rules apply to the ecclesiastical department. The prophecies give the progressive history of the great apostate church down to the last stage, and at that point expressly states her condition when she is about to be plunged into the sea of destruction. This last condition will be a sign to be watched for.

The history of the true church is also given, showing her various conflicts and victories, until she reaches her last position in the warfare, and that position, and the work there accomplished, becomes another distinct sign of Christ's coming. So it is in the social department. The closing circumstances of its history are signs of its speedy termination.

If this generation is occupying this last special period of time, as many in all parts of the world profess to believe, it certainly becomes a very important duty of every servant of Christ to watch with great diligence and earnestness present developments in all departments of this world's history, to learn what signs of the present times are being manifested. Christ taught distinctly that certain signs would appear, by which the church might "know" that His coming is at the door. To say that those signs are not so described that they may be definitely identified is to say that the Saviour's instructions are not sufficiently explicit to be understood without depending upon the great uncertainty of human interpretations of figures of speech or illustrations.

The Bible rule is this: When God predicts a sign, the event constituting that sign is just such as the language foretelling the sign, literally interpreted, describes. Every sign of the first appearing was according to this rule. Whoever preaches and publishes this vitally important truth of the gospel due this generation, will preach all he is able after earnest investigation, the signs of the present times. This we believe is what God has called his servants of the present period to do.

Brethren, let us do this, even if we are required to sacrifice many things which the flesh and the world may present as desirable. J. C.

"LIKE as a father pitieth his children, so the Lord pitieth them that fear him." This is a very comforting assurance. Men may plot against the upright, but while they have the sympathy of the divine Father, they may be comforted, for he will care for them, and "no weapon formed against them shall prosper."—Ex.

RECEIVE Christ with all your heart. As there is nothing in Christ that may be refused, so there is nothing in you from which he must be excluded.

THE RESURRECTION OF CHRIST.

BY SILAS HENN.

(Concluded.)

Again: the resurrection of Christ, or belief in the resurrection of Christ, at once raised the character of his disciples. They were inspired with new bravery and fortitude and courage. Their confidence was strengthened, their hope was confirmed, their love was deepened, their zeal was inflamed. They became almost unlike their former selves. Their knowledge of God and of things spiritual increased so wonderfully, that some of them were soon able to write epistles, that have given light and guidance and comfort to millions of the human race. No such change as this would have been wrought in these men had their Master been held in the tomb by death. The fact of the resurrection was to them a great motive power; in it they had the best and highest reason for living, and working, and suffering; and if that fact had not existed they would have gone down, and their enemies would have gone up. The victory would have been on the side of the persecuting scribes and pharisees. But they had now no ground for fear. God the Almighty was on their side. All heaven was in their favor. Eternal truth, unchangeable right, and infinite love were with them.

The disciples, after this event, were constituted apostles; and though previously very slow to learn, they now saw the truth in respect to Christ's mission more fully, and were sent forth to teach the truth; and at the day of Pentecost, a few weeks after, they received a remarkable endowment of power to qualify them for their work.

After the resurrection of Christ had taken place, it was soon published abroad. The apostles and disciples made no secret of it. In this grand fact their hopes were revived; and convinced so thoroughly of its reality, they preached the resurrection wherever they went both amongst friends and foes. They preached it in the very city where the death and burial of the Saviour had taken place. Around them and about them were those hypocritical pharisees and the elders who had procured his condemnation, and the men who committed perjury, and the soldiers who had watched, or professed to sleep at the tomb, and the king and the governors, and the public buildings or places for trying criminals. Still, in the midst of all they made the proclamation that Jesus, who was nailed to the tree, and laid in the sepulchre, had come to life again; that they had both seen him and conversed with Him.

Now if it had been in their power, would not their adversaries have contradicted them, and have shown that no resurrection had taken place; that it was all a sham, and that their Master was still under the power of death? Most certainly they would; they would have been glad to have done this if they could. But they could not. The thing was too plain, too certain, too tangible, too palpable. There was too much evidence that He whom they had crucified was alive again. They were confounded; they were silenced; they were ashamed. And they would have rejoiced if the apostles had kept the whole matter quiet, and said nothing about it; for they felt that the proclamation of the resurrection was a proclamation of their guilt in putting him to death. It was in truth a proclamation of his divinity, a proclamation that he was the son of God, a proclamation that he had power to bring them into judgment for the wicked deeds they had done.

But further: in the proclamation of the resurrection the apostles had evidence of the appoval of Heaven. God gave them unmistakable tokens of his presence and blessing. There was evidence of supernatural power. Jehovah confirmed the declaration of the glad tidings by giving them power to perform miracles. "And they went forth, and preached everywhere, the Lord working with them, and confirming the word by the signs that followed." Mark 16: 20. And these wonders were done openly among the people, in the name of Him who had been crucified, but whom they then declared to be alive again—alive for evermore. And these wonders were further proof of the great truth which they were making known.

And the proclamation of this doctrine was not without effect. The enemies of the gospel were amazed and confounded at the multitudes who received the apostles' teaching. That teaching was accompanied with such power from heaven, it was so manifestly divine, it carried with it such overwhelming evidence that Jesus was the Christ, the Anointed, that day by day numbers were converted to the new faith. "And believers were the more added to the Lord, multitudes both of men and women." "And the word of God increased; and the number of the disciples multiplied in Jerusalem exceedingly." Acts. 5: 14; 6: 7. And not a few of these believing ones had been the most unbelieving, and the bitterest in their opposition to Christ and his cause. The evidences of the truth were such that they could not gainsay them, and they were constrained to yield their assent. They united with the despised followers of Jesus at the risk of incurring the displeasure and persecution of the rulers. And multitudes did suffer for their faith. They suffered everything that a perverted ingenuity and a fiendish malice could devise, and human power could inflict. But so strong and deep were their convictions, and so unwavering was their faith, that they counted it an honor to suffer for Christ.

The resurrection of our Lord completed the evidence of the truth of the religion which he taught. God would not have put his seal to what was untrue. If Christ had not been the Messiah, the Anointed—if he had not been a divine prophet and teacher—if he had not been the sent of God, and if he had not taught the mind and will of God, no resurrection on the third day after his crucifixion would have taken place. The resurrection affords the clearest possible evidence that the Christianity of Christ is the religion of Heaven. That any should doubt or disbelieve, with such evidence before them, is, to us, amazing. No higher proof, no distincter mark of divine approval could be given. What more could any reasonable man desire? If such evidence will not convince a man, there is no evidence that will convince him. This evidence has been subjected to the most critical examination, to the closest scrutiny, by the greatest minds in all the ages since the times of Christ, and millions on millions have received Christianity as the absolute truth on the ground of that evidence.

Then on the ground of Christ's resurrection, we have sure and certain hope of our own. Our condition would have been without hope if Jesus had not broken the barriers of the tomb—if he had not made himself the Conqueror of death. If he had not overcome death, we should remain under its power for ever, for no power of our own could deliver us. The apostle Paul says, "For if there had been a law given which could make alive, verily righteousness would have been of the law." Gal. 3: 21. Obedience to the law, prior to the death of Christ, procured the divine favor, but it could not procure eternal life. And if the law was broken, sincere repentance procured forgiveness, but it could not procure life in heaven. That was procured only by the resurrection and ascension of Christ.

Were it not for the hope of resurrection, our sorrow at the death of loved ones would be overwhelming. But we are not without hope. In the resurrection we shall see them again. There is no doubt of this if they are believers in Christ. The evidence of this is abundant and positive. "For this is the will of my Father," says Christ, "that every one that beholdeth the Son, and believeth on him, should have eternal life;" and I will raise him up at the last day." John 6: 40.

Our salvation may be attributed in part to Christ's teaching and example, but it must be attributed mainly to the atonement he made for our sins, and to his resurrection from the dead; for it is through the atonement we obtain forgiveness and cleansing, and it is through the resurrection we shall obtain the redemption of our body. The apostle Paul teaches that though we were once enemies, we are now reconciled to God through the death of his Son; and thus reconciled we shall be more fully saved by, or in, his life; for though he put himself under the power of death for us, he grappled with the enemy and conquered, and now lives at the right hand of God the Father. He lives, and lives for evermore, that this salvation may be fuller, completer than simple reconciliation,—the being changed from enemies to friends. Is not this greater salvation the entire sanctification of the soul, the being filled with the fullness of God, and the certainty of our resurrection to endless life? All praise, all honor, all glory to Christ! In him there is life-giving energy. We may live in him, may have peace and joy in him, may have strength and wisdom and hope in him. He is the source of the believer's fruitfulness.

But some, alas, are without faith in Christ, and therefore are without divine life, without divine warmth, without divine pleasure, without divine hope. You are now winter-bound, ice-bound, frozen, chill and cold. Oh, look up to Christ in beseeching prayer, persevering and believing prayer, and He who is the Sun of righteousness shall shine upon thee, and his beams shall warm thee. Then winter shall disappear, and spring shall come, and summer shall come, and thou shalt rejoice in the warmth and light and gladness of sunshine. And then thy prospect of the eternal future shall be bright and glorious and blessed. Every resurrection blessing shall be given thee, and all along the line great peace shall mark thy pathway to the kingdom. Have faith then in the name of the Son of God, in the Anointed One, who is the resurrection and the life.

"THE REST OF THE DEAD."

BY L. BOUTELLE.

"But the rest of the dead lived not again till the thousand years were finished." This seems to be an obscure text, and hard to be understood. But if we keep the 20th of Revelation where it belongs, we shall find it more easy. I will assume that the 20th of Rev., 4th verse, brings to view the papal tribulation of Dan. 7: 25, while the beast like a leopard was doing his wicked work. "They shall be given into his hand until a time, and times, and the dividing of time." Here in this forty and two months' persecution is the identical work assigned him in prophecy, and is plainly brought to notice in the fourth verse, and fills the mould with the shortening of the tribulation.

"I saw the souls of them [the persons] that were beheaded for the witness of Jesus, and the word of God." This I conceive can apply only to the papal persecution. Here is where John saw the church suffering death, with its horrible barbarities, in the great tribulation, while the martyrs were loyal to Christ, and did reign with him. They did not do as the citizens that hated him, and sent a message after him saying, "We will not have this man to reign over us." But those that were beheaded for their testimony said, We will be loyal, live and reign, whether we live or die. Now John gets his eye on the living church suffering and dying for Christ, and their loyalty to divine government as the test of discipleship, and still he looks on to the living church till Jesus comes. But as yet John has not discovered the jewels, the hid treasure in the field. He takes a searching look into hades, and exclaims, "But the rest of the dead lived not again until the thousand years were finished [and the "little season" must be included]; and this is the first resurrection." What is the first resurrection? Why, when "the rest of the dead" live again This, when they do live, is the first resurrection.

I am aware I shall be told that the rest of the dead are the wicked dead. How do you know that? The Bible says no such thing, neither does it say they are the righteous. But it does say (to me) that the rest of the dead have the first resurrection. You may say all we get about the kinds—good or bad—of the rest of the dead is inferential. I admit it; but they have the first and literal resurrection from the dead before we reach the dreadful finale of the 12th, 13th and 14th verses of the same chapter. God grant our names may be found written in the Lamb's book of life.

FAITH.

BY J. S. WHITE.

There are three degrees of evidence. The first and lowest degree is that which leads a person to form an opinion, as we sometimes hear it said, "It is my opinion." This is not faith, for opinion supposes doubt. A higher degree of evidence leads a person to believe. Faith knows no doubt. The highest degree of evidence is that by which a man can say, I know whereof I affirm. Some may have an opinion that the earth is flat, or a plain surface, and that the sun moves around it. Others may be foolish enough to believe all this, but if they should sail around the world by the compass, or if they would believe the testimony of those who have done so, they would no longer have any opinion or faith in their theory, for they would then know that the world is round, and that it turns on its axis.

Faith in a subject will have the same effect whether the subject be true or false. Noah believed God concerning the flood, and he did just as he would have done if he had known the flood would come; though he did not know it until it came. Abraham believed God. He believed the promises which God had given him. The Lord said to him, In thy seed shall all nations be blessed. God tried his faith by requiring him to take the life of his son. Abraham without delay went forward to do as the Lord bade him. He did as he would have done if he had known that this promise would be fulfilled. He was not required to know it, but to believe it. And his faith was accounted to him for righteousness. The Lord tried his faith by requiring him to offer up Isaac.

The case of Nineveh. The Lord sent Jonah to preach in that city, saying, In forty days and Nineveh shall be overthrown. The king believed Jonah. What he did was evidently just what he would have done if he could have known that the city would be destroyed. The same is true with man in any danger believed to be a reality. Suppose that in a given town all the people should come to believe that within a given time the town would sink to rise no more, what would be the effect of such faith? Would they not move out? Though the town may not go down, so long as they believe it will, the effect of their faith would be the same. Suppose some should not move out who could so do, would it not show that they did not believe it, or that they would like to go down with it? But what of all this? This shows that the effect of faith in any subject is not proof of the truth of the subject.

Again the apparent effect of faith in exciting religious subjects is no proof that the professed believer is a true believer in Christ. He may turn out to be but a way-side, or a stony ground, or a thorny ground hearer. When such a professor is put to a test he is found wanting. The subject of Abraham's faith had nothing exciting or alarming in it; still God tried his faith, which by his works proved to be like the good ground hearers, who received the word into good and honest hearts, and kept it, and brought forth fruit.

A man may believe in the soon coming of the Lord, and that subject may have a powerful effect on him; and it may lead him to do some things as he would do if he were a Christian, still it may remain to be seen if he has any gospel religion. I am not speaking of the man who says he believes, and on whom his faith has no good effect. Such a man professes what he is not, and of course must be deceived, to say the least. The man who has the faith which the gospel requires will have salt in himself, and show his faith by his works.

The Jews believed in the coming Messiah, and they looked for him about the time he did come. Many of them went out and were baptized by John in the name of the Lord Jesus. But in a little while they turned against him, and many of his disciples went back and walked no more with him. So it may have been with some who have professed to believe in the second coming of our Lord.

What is faith? "Faith is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen." That is, faith makes the object believed in a substance—a reality. Faith is confidence. If we have faith in a person we shall have confidence in him and in his word. So, if we have faith in God we shall have confidence in him and in his word. If we have confidence in our neighbor we shall be in sympathy with him; and so in our relation to the Lord. "Without faith it is impossible to please God; for he that cometh to him must believe that he is, and that he is the rewarder of them that seek him."

Jesus did not require those to whom he preached to know that he was the Christ that was to come. He said, Except ye believe that I am he, ye shall die in your sins. It would have been no credit to them to have known that he was the Son of God without faith, any more than it was to the devils who said they knew who he was. Knowledge is not goodness in itself. The wicked will stand before the judgment seat of Christ, and will know that he is God; but for the want of faith and sympathy they will be sent away as workers of iniquity.

The faith of the gospel is that which "worketh by love, and which purifieth the heart and overcometh the world." "The righteousness of God is by faith in Jesus Christ." Paul said, "The life which I now live, I live by faith in Christ." Jesus said, "This is the work of God, that ye believe on him whom he hath sent." Paul said, "I know in whom I have believed." He knew Jesus, for he had seen him and talked with him. But what he knew of him would have availed him nothing if he had not believed in him, and had not been in sympathy with him. See Heb. chap. 11 on the subject of faith. Faith is the great condition on our part of salvation. Without it we cannot please God, and consequently we cannot be saved. This condition is all the way through the Bible. Adam sinned by unbelief, and his posterity have done no better. For them to be saved, they must come back to God by faith in our Lord and Saviour.

COMFORT FOR THE AFFLICTED.

BY C. E. COPP.

Dear Friend:—These words are not directed solely to those who by death have lost near and dear friends. God's dear people were "afflicted" in Egypt four hundred and thirty years, and yet we suppose they lost no more by death than did their cruel task-masters—perhaps not so many—as industry and prudence tend to longevity, while it is said of the wicked that "they shall not live out half their days." Therefore they did set over them task-masters to afflict them with their burdens. . . . But the more they afflicted them, the more they multiplied and grew. Ex. 1: 11, 12.

Perhaps the reader has some inhuman task-masters or persecutors of some sort to deal with; and may be the Lord is in it, as he was in this case, to work out some grand purpose. True, these people were in bondage, and you may be free to quit your present surroundings; and, likely, circumstances are such that it seems you must remain where you are. Well, while for another purpose God so ordered things that this people multiplied and grew in numerical strength under this affliction, and made the Egyptians come to grief on that account (Ex. 1: 11, 12), it is just as easy for him to turn your trouble, with your cooperation, into the multiplication and growth of divine strength in you. The more they afflict, the more you can then multiply and grow in divine strength.

The apostle Peter exhorts us to "grow in grace;" and in his benediction at the opening of his epistle he says, "Grace be multiplied unto you." You probably have grace, but you now want that grace multiplied. One thousand times one are one thousand. You are the multiplicand, and sometimes you feel very weak; well, you need the mighty Multiplier. It doesn't make much difference about the size of the multiplicand, if the Multiplier is large enough to make up the deficiency, the result will be a round sum. Some people who undertake to serve God under trial, though years in the school, have never yet learned this divine multiplication table.

"Grow in grace," also says Peter. You never can have firm, stable, solid growth in anything without opposition of some sort. You can run up quickly, like a potato vine in a cellar, where the sun does not scorch, nor the wind blow, and grow all to "tops;" but that is not the divine order of things. You will find something besides "tops" by digging at a real Christian. The ignorant husbandman smiles in fair weather, and frowns at the wind that blows hard upon his growing crops; while the experienced know that the wind is needed to strengthen the stalk and send the roots down. My father once had a piece of corn that grew rapidly in its first stages during a long, warm, still time of pleasant weather; when up came, all at once, a gale of wind and blew it flat to the ground. Father sighed and said, "We shall get no corn this year;" but up from the roots sprouted another crop, which turned out to be the heaviest he had known for years.

It is best to be "rooted in love;" and persecution, opposition, affliction, tend to that necessary end, if we are so exercised personally; and it is the aim of these words to so direct your mind. There are top-heavy Christians enough, but the Lord wants and the world needs the stable kind, who are not "carried about by every wind of doctrine." "Many are the afflictions of the righteous, but the Lord delivereth him out of them all." He will deliver you if you will let him. Afflictions are "many," and they are of numerous kinds. It is no doubt true that the adversary makes us often think that they are more numerous than they really are. By continually poring over one thing, the whole world becomes tinged with it. Put a piece of red glass, the size of your thumb nail, to your eye, and close the other, and the whole world is red.

Some people get their little trials so near their eyes, that they completely obscure the mercies of God which blossom by the acre before them. They bring them into meeting, and you would suppose they had just been let up from a Roman thumbscrew or rack of torture. They have a wonderful memory concerning trials, which they ascribe to God, and count them as injurious(?) while they are very forgetful of "his benefits." We are not to forget all his benefits. Psa. 103: 2; and if we spent more time in counting the mercies of God toward us as individuals, the sum of our afflictions would not seem so large. The adversary of our souls would as soon scare us to death while under trial and affliction as to wheedle, flatter, and coax us to do evil at other times.

About the best way to clear up the spiritual sky is to burn the incense of prayer and thanksgiving. The poisonous vapors that seem pressing us down to earth are soon changed to fragrant zephyrs. A sister once related a dream in the writer's hearing which well illustrates this. She dreamed that she heard a terrific noise in the rear, as she was walking along, as of a mighty chariot; and turning around she saw the devil towering over her black as ink, and his mouth wide open to [illegible]. She said that instantly she [illegible] to God!" and he began to re[illegible] followed him up with the sh[illegible] him away. How many tro[illegible] driven away with the "glory [illegible] and song from a humble sa[illegible] shine of thanksgiving to Go[illegible] fits will chase the shadows [illegible] evils away, which may, afte[illegible] to have been among the "all th[illegible] ing for our good till this desirab[illegible] ence was reached.

How natural it is for us to t[illegible] troubles are very uncommon and th[illegible] Paul writing to the Corinthians (1 C[illegible] 13) could say, "There hath no tem[illegible] [or trial] taken you but such as is com[illegible] to man: but God is faithful, who will not suffer you to be tempted [or tried] above that ye are able; but will with the temptation [or trial] also make a way to escape, that ye may be able to bear it." If we were stoned for preaching Jesus, and picked up for dead; whipped thirty-nine lashes across the bare back with a Roman scourge, and put in the stocks all night, etc., etc., we might think we were uncommonly afflicted. Lingering and painful sicknesses are other afflictions which some are subjected to. In some cases, no doubt, it is a terrible debt contracted with or inherited from nature which knows no forgiveness; but many righteous people who have led upright, moral lives, with prudent habits, are sometimes thus smitten; and after many apparently fruitless prayers—even prayers of faith—which, it is written, "shall save the sick," they linger on for years in pain, "nothing bettered" physically.

Such need a double portion of God's spirit and grace. His ways in some of these cases seem inscrutable. But here is a most excellent opportunity to exhibit those graces which are the crowning work of Christianity—to keep from fretting, murmuring, and complaining—rebelling against God, as those are apt to do who have nothing but nature to rely upon, and committing suicide, which is so frequent now. O to be able to say just here, "Thy will be done, dear Lord! I have no wish to take myself out of thy hands. Do with me as seemeth good in thy sight, for whether living or dying I am thine. 'Let everything that hath breath praise the Lord,' it is written; and I have breath, for which I thank thee, and with which I praise thee. Though racked with pain, I do that which the dead cannot do—praise thee." To be able to "rejoice in the Lord always" on the bed of suffering is true Christian resignation, and is as loyal as though on the rack of inquisition. All is lost by murmuring and rebellion, and suicide—present happiness, which the Lord is able to give on a sick bed, and future life in the great beyond; and everything is saved by letting "patience have her perfect work."

"There is a joy in sorrow,
A secret balm for pain,
A beautiful to-morrow
Of sunshine after rain."

But probably the most fruitful source of rebellion against God is on account of untimely deaths. The fond mother has lost the joy of the house—her only darling girl, or the father his pride—his only boy. And people will blame God here for what belongs to the devil, who brought sin and death into the world. If they could only see in Jesus the life-giver instead of the life-destroyer, it seems to me that they might see things differently. "Christ was manifested that he might destroy the works of the devil," and some of those works are sin and death. "The last enemy that shall be destroyed is death." "Thy children shall come again from the land of the enemy." "For I would not have you to [illegible] ignorant, brethren, concerning the[illegible] are asleep, that ye sorrow not[illegible] others which have no hope. [illegible] believe that Jesus died, and [illegible] even so them also which slee[illegible] God bring with him." Fo[illegible] unto you by the word of th[illegible] which are alive and remain [illegible] of the Lord, shall not preve[illegible] are asleep. For the Lord hi[illegible] scend from heaven with a sho[illegible] voice of the archangel, and with [illegible] of God: and the dead in Christ [illegible] first: then we which are alive and [illegible] shall be caught up together with them in the clouds, to meet the Lord in the air: and so shall we ever be with the Lord. Wherefore comfort one another with these words." 1 Thess. 4: 13–18.

This is the only comfort held out in the Scriptures to you who have lost friends. He who gives any other sentiment or hope at a funeral service errs. But you are wrongfully told that God has taken your child away. What does he want of the child? He has permitted it to die, it is true. So he permits murders of all degrees of wickedness, and every other crime, and is no more responsible for the one than the other. That is satan's work. Rather let this sad work of his lead you to see a God of life, love and holiness, who "gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him might not perish, but have everlasting life;" who said, "Suffer little children to come unto me, and forbid them not, for of such is the kingdom of heaven."

The time is not come when "mortality shall be swallowed up of life;" hence death must do its work sooner or later with us all, good and bad. "It is appointed unto man once to die." It is the part of the death penalty which we inherit from Adam. And

Some seem t[illegible] special obligati[illegible] who is sick, [illegible] case, I must [illegible]

The church of God [illegible] the world. Its members are trying to bring it down to the level of the ungodly. The ball, the theater, nude and lewd art, social luxuries, with their loose moralities, are making inroads into the sacred inclosure of the church, and as a satisfaction for all this worldliness, Christians are making a great deal of Lent, and Easter and Good Friday, and church ornamentations. It is the old trick of Satan. The Jewish church struck on that rock, the Romish church was wrecked on the same, and the Protestant church is fast reaching the same doom.

Our great dangers as we see them, are assimilation to the world, neglect of the poor, substitution of the form for the fact of godliness, abandonment of discipline, a hireling ministry, an impure gospel, which summed up is, a fashionable church. That Methodists should be liable to such an outcome, and that there should be signs of it in a hundred years from the "sail-loft," seems almost the miracle of history; but who that looks about him to-day can fail to see the fact?

Do not Methodists, in violation of God's Word and their own discipline, dress as extravagantly and as fashionably as any other class? Do not the ladies, and often the wives and daughters of the ministry, put on "gold and pearls and costly array?" Would not the plain dress insisted upon by John Wesley, Bishop Asbury, and worn by Hester Ann Rogers, Lady Huntington, and many others equally distinguished, be now regarded in Methodist circles as fanaticism? Can any one going into a Methodist church in any of our chief cities, distinguish the attire of the communicants from that of the theater and ball goers?

Is not worldliness seen in the music? Elaborately dressed and ornamented choirs, who in many cases make no profession of religion, and are often sneering skeptics, go through a cold, artistic, or operatic performance, which is as much in harmony with spiritual worship as an opera or theater. Under such worldly performances spirituality is frozen to death.

Formerly every Methodist attended class, and gave testimony of experimental religion. Now the class meeting is attended by the few, and in many churches abandoned. Seldom the stewards, trustees, and leaders of the church, attend class. Formerly nearly every Methodist [illegible] exhorted [illegible] few [illegible] as the [illegible] now carried o[illegible] death it carries in its train will only be known when the millions it has swept into hell stand before the judgment.

The early Methodist ministers went forth to sacrifice and suffer for Christ. They sought not the places of ease and affluence, but of privation and suffering. They gloried not in their big salaries, fine parsonages, and refined congregations, but in the souls that had been won for Jesus. O, how changed! A hireling ministry will be a feeble, a timid, a truckling, a time-serving ministry, without faith, endurance and holy power. Methodism formerly dealt in the great central truth. Now the pulpits deal largely in generalities, and in popular lectures. The glorious doctrine of entire sanctification is rarely heard and seldom witnessed to in the pulpits.

IT is not the extent of your knowledge, though that is useful; it is not the extent of your talent, though that is not to be despised; it is your zeal that shall do exploits. This zeal is the fruit of the Holy Spirit.

[illegible] ...and ...fearfully ... Does the ...rch? Is the ...d all. There ..., wicked resistance ... part of sinners. Whether the church be dead or alive; whether the pulpit be true, earnest, mighty to persuade, or indolent, cold and time-serving, any sinner, all sinners, may come to God and be saved if they will. The waters of salvation may be obstructed by the lukewarmness of the people of God, but not so obstructed that an anxious soul may not find the Saviour by decided and earnest seeking. An unfaithful ministry is a terrible barricade against the flow of redeeming mercy; but a lost sinner, who feels his absolute, desperate need of salvation, may rush past a sleeping church, a formal and venal priesthood, and find easy and certain access to the "Fountain opened to the house of David and to the inhabitants of Jerusalem for sin and for uncleanness." No man need perish on account of the shortcomings of Christians.

Hindrance the next is an unaccountable want of faith in the practicability of revival work. A feeling has somehow come over many of our people that it is not much use trying to save the impenitent. That the Holy Spirit can not or does not reach and affect human hearts now as in other years. That the mass of unsaved men have settled their eternal destiny. That the gospel has lost its power to awaken and convert sinners.

Now this is all wrong. So to feel and so to teach is an ungrateful reflection on the love and grace of Jesus the Saviour, and on the mind and power of the Spirit. As Christ's final hour drew near, the close of his ministry on earth, he quickened his pace, and his heart yearned more intensely toward his own blinded people, and towards a world sinking under the weight and curse of its own unbelief. And he has commanded the church to "occupy till he comes,"—not till near the time of his coming, but till we hear the judgment trumpet and see him in the clouds of heaven. And in the supper call he represented that in the very last days of the gospel, just as mercy's sun is setting, there shall be a great ingathering of the poor, the naked, the halt, the blind. They will come to be sure from the highways and hedges, from the lanes and alleys. But they will come.

Can we believe that the Son of God falters in his intercession plea, at the right hand of power, as he sees the awful moment [ap]proaching that shall settle the fate of the [illegible] redemption he poured out [illegible] [con]clude that [illegible] has [illegible] souls. [illegible] certainly fail. [illegible] confidence and persistence will surely succeed. If we preach that revival is hardly to be expected, and the churches believe us, no earnest work will be done, and no lost ones will be saved.

Moreover, there must be specific effort. Divine truth must be directly and persistently and mightily pressed on the consciences of the ungodly. Loving but burning appeals must be made directly and pungently to the undecided. Invitation upon invitation must be pressed home. There must be no fear of over-persuading the impenitent. There is no danger of that. There must be union of faith and effort. Every prayer, every appeal, every sermon, every invitation, must be openly backed up by the whole body of living members.

Especially, the preaching must be adapted to arouse dead professors and awaken careless sinners. Theological disquisition, rhetorical flourish or theoretical argumentation, will not be likely to result in revival. The preacher must be thoroughly endued with power from on high, and an intense desire for the salvation of men. He must be animated by genuine and tremendous zeal to win souls, as trophies of Christ's infinite love. He must urge with real confidence the great Bible motives of repentance—the "exceeding sinfulness of sin; the great love of God and Christ; the necessity and validity of the atonement; the sinner's responsibility, arising from his power of choice; the necessity, certainty and extreme nearness of the final judgment; the second coming of Christ to destroy utterly all the unrighteous. And all this should be enforced by a faithful and most solemn presentation of the "signs" which prove that the day of the Lord is "nigh, even at the doors." It may be relied upon with absolute certainty that such ministrations of God's Word, and such co-operative effort of the churches, will be honored by the Holy Spirit with glorious results as long as Christ intercedes for a ruined world, and the gospel of grace is allowed to be proclaimed.

Shall we have revival in all our congregations? Heaven is more than willing. Grace is still free and sufficient. The Holy Spirit is still with us. Shall we allow unbelief and inactivity to prevent it? How [illegible] acquitted when we meet [illegible] the bar of God?

THE EASTERN PROBLEM.

[Th]e difficulty which the international con[fere]nce at Constantinople is encountering [in] settling the questions that have been brought before it indicates that there is danger that the recent revolution in Roumelia may be followed by serious consequences. If the representatives of the great powers of Europe concede to Prince Alexander the claims which he and the people of Bulgaria and Roumelia have put forward, they will, to all intents and purposes, lay down the rule that the conditions of the treaty of Berlin are not to be seriously considered, and that any of the small Danubian states may carve a slice for itself out of the Turkish domain whenever an opportunity is offered for such a proceeding. That this conclusion has already been drawn by the Servian people is manifest by the activity the government of Servia is showing in preparing for military operations. If Bulgaria is to have Roumelia, then Servia must also extend her borders southward, for it is obvious that one country has just as good a right to violate the conditions of the treaty of Berlin as another.

On the other hand, it may be, as our correspondent at Constantinople has pointed out, the policy of Russia, Austria, and perhaps Germany, to have the treaty of Berlin wiped out of existence by repeated violation of its conditions. If it were possible for Russia and Austria to arrange their differences and agree upon a plan of division that would be mutually acceptable, it is not at all likely that Prince Bismarck would think it worth his while to play the part of champion of the Sultan and defend Turkey against her despoilers. For years past the theory has been put forward that it was the policy of the German chancellor to make of Austria a slave nation by extending the domain of the Emperor of that country over western and southwestern Turkey; in this way fostering the desire for German unity which would later on bear fruit in the almost voluntary union of the Austrian-German people with their brethren of the German empire.

This diplomatic theory has, for manifest reasons, never been officially indorsed, but it does not on that account follow that it may not be a part of Prince Bismarck's policy, and that the revolution in Roumelia may not be seized upon as a favorable opportunity for taking the first steps in this broad and far-reaching scheme. Certain it is that, unless the conference at Constantinople can agree upon some plan of settlement which will be acceptable to the Sultan, the days of the Turkish empire are numbered, for, in order to defend his territory from assaults, it will be necessary for that sovereign to maintain its integrity by driving the Bulgarians out of Roumelia, and defending his borders against Servian and Greek attacks, a proceeding which would be almost certain to bring Austria or Russia, or both of these powers, into collision with Turkey, and at the end of such a contest even such a treaty as that of San Stefano would be an impossibility.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 9. Sir Henry Drummond Wolff's mission has been crowned with success. His understanding with the Porte on Egyptian affairs is complete, and an imperial trade will shortly be issued sanctioning an arrangement, the principal points of which are as follows: Turkey appoints six commissioners—two for finance, two for military organization, and two for general administration. England, on her [si]de, will appoint a similar number. TIME.

[T]hat the time question, like all other questions, has been trifled with by incompetent and fanatical persons, we do not deny; but we do deny anybody's right to count it out of the Bible, since divine wisdom has counted it in for the benefit of the church. While extreme definiteness is forbidden, extreme indefiniteness is to be deplored among any people, and especially among Adventists. What if some have shown an element of wildness in the treatment of this question? Shall we therefore conclude that it should not be treated in a right way? And what if even those who have shown candor in the matter have as really been premature as others, shall we therefore ignore or repudiate this part of the divine arrangement? If some have assumed to know too much about the matter, shall we therefore insist on knowing too little about it? By no means. Rather let us seek for all reliable information.

It is not our design in this article to give a critical and exhaustive argument upon the prophetic time measurements, but simply to refresh the memory of waiting ones with our long standing and oft repeated convictions as to the furthest limits to which it seems possible to carry them.

The 1335 days. It has long been our conviction that the latest point for their commencement was about A. D. 554, when the last vestige of the Arian Ostrogothic horn was obliterated—this horn having been the last hindering power to the development of the Papal abomination, the supremacy of which marked the beginning of this sacred measurement; and from this starting point these days could not run further than 1889; but we have long thought it probable, and still deem it possible that this horn was so enfeebled before A. D. 554 as to be no longer a potent resistance to the supremacy of the Papal abomination; and if so, we are warranted in looking for the ending of the 1335 days this side of the end of 1889; but we see not how to carry them beyond this date at the furthest.

Beginning the 1290 days at the same epoch, and tracing them to that point in "the time of the end," when "many shall be purified, made white, and tried," it is possible that this trial was the result of the great disappointment in 1843-4, this event marking the close of the 1290 days, leaving 45 years more to reach the close of the 1335 days; and there is a plausibility to the claim that the saying, "Blessed is he that waiteth and cometh to the 1335 days," may refer to the waiting of 45 years after the great disappointment that marked the close of the 1290 days, when many were to be "tried," or disappointed—then wait 45 years more to finish the 1335 days. If this is the true solution, instead of being mere fancy, then it would agree with the wilderness experience.

After the children of Israel came to Kadesh Barnea, in the second year of their journey, they met a disappointment, for they expected then to have passed over into the promised land, but had to wait 45 years longer before Caleb received the lot of his inheritance. We do not insist that this was positively a type, but a circumstance worthy of mention and meditation, and if it has any prophetic signification, it will chime in with 45 years waiting time after the watchers were "tried," or disappointed.

Such a work of purification and making white as was witnessed in 1843-4, has not been exceeded since Pentecost baptism, and this was followed by a wonderful trial or disappointment, under which many switched off into fanaticism, or entirely went back, but a certain class waited, not knowing just how long the waiting time might be, and in this waiting time there have been several watches, and it begins to look as though we were entering the last watch. The Advent movement has not been so trivial a matter as to have been overlooked by the great Author of Prophecy, even though men seek to belittle it, and to scoff it down. It has the stamp of divinity in spite of the many appendages attached by human weakness and blindness.

2. The 2300. We see no chance whatever to disarrange our former application of the weeks of Daniel, and it only remains a question as to whether they are a part of the 2300 days or not. The seventy weeks began with the restorant, but the 2300 days began with the restored "daily sacrifice;" and if these days are independent of the weeks of Daniel, they can be shown to begin at a later date—sometime during Nehemiah's twelve years governor-ship—ending, on this supposition, as we have long argued, between now and 1896 at the furthest, but we are strongly convicted that they will end harmoniously with the 1335 days; but we will not lengthen this article out to give the argument that will thus end them. We deeply deplore all efforts to end them in the past. The English language is too weak to express our aversion to this error. Nothing short of a cleansed sanctuary will mark their termination—an event too prominent to pass observation till long after its occurrence.

On this point we have more to say at a proper time. Light is shining, and will continue more clearly. While over definiteness should be guarded against by all, and dogmatism should be discountenanced as detrimental to any good cause, we should not seek to remedy these evils by an evil ten times more ruinous, that of extreme indefiniteness. The light of prophecy will not go out down here. W. S.

WESTERN TRIP.

After the Manchester Campmeeting we went home for a few hours, but on the 15th of September we started for the California Campmeeting, reaching the Beulah camp on the 21st of the month, and preached the same night to the encampment. Here we greeted many old friends, and some new ones. At this writing (Thursday, Sept. 24), the meeting is progressing finely, some have already turned to the Lord, and the first baptism comes off this afternoon; we hope it will not be the last. Brn Carpenter, Hunt, Reed, Adams, Young, Wilbur and others, are among the ministers present, and more are expected soon. W. S.

"EBENEZER."

To the saints and faithful in Christ Jesus I desire to record, to the praise of God, that he hath helped us in our recent Minnesota State Camp and Conference meeting, held at Rockford, in Wright Co., within a stone's throw of our home. The weather was perfect in all respects for such a meeting. From Sept. 20th to 27th, no rain and no frost, but warm and pleasant day and night. There were fifteen preachers, twenty-four sermons, about sixteen prayer and social meetings; perfect order, and expenses all paid. There were some conversions; three were baptized, and we look for more fruit. Our Conference Secretary, Eld. E. K. Smith, will send a report of the good meeting in a few days. Our hearts overflow with gratitude and praise to God for his help hitherto, and we shall trust in him and go forward. Pray for us.

Rockford, Minn. F. A. BAKER.

PERSONAL.

Among the many things of interest connected with the Northern Indiana and Southern Michigan Conference, lately convened at Sumption Prairie, Ind., was the ordination of the Secretary, Bro. George French, of Berrien Springs, Mich., by the laying on of hands. Prayer by Eld. C. Smith; charge by Eld. B. Finney; right hand of fellowship and welcome by Eld. D. R. Mansfield.

Bro. French is a young man devoted and true to the Master's cause, with a stainless record from his boyhood up. May he find an open door in the wide field where such are greatly needed, and be sustained in the calling he has accepted, and in which his heart's deepest longings centre.

FAREWELL.

Again I must say farewell to home and all my dear American friends, and go forth to foreign countries to tell the people that Jesus is soon coming to raise the dead, and give eternal life to all his faithful disciples. The will of the Lord is plainly made known, and I must be obedient to the heavenly calling. I can cheerfully say, "Thy will be done." Anywhere with Jesus. I am willing to be led blindfolded by his unerring hand. If I can only please him all is well. I ask no more. Pray that in this I may be successful. When this is read, I expect to be in mid-ocean, trusting in the Lord to take me safely to the distant harbor. How blessed to know that his strong arm is stretched out in our defense. Praise his name forever!

Dear brethren and sisters, keep in constant readiness to meet our coming Saviour. Avoid everything unholy. Be long-suffering, kind, patient, meek, gentle and forgiving. Beware of evil speaking, evil surmising and backbiting. Put on "the whole armor of God," that "ye may be able to stand against the wiles of the devil." Keep your hearts pure, and a welcome home for the Holy Spirit. Consecrate all to the Lord, that you may be kept in "perfect peace" amid the perils of these last days. Be punctual and active in the prayer meetings. Make the Bible a daily study, especially in relation to practical Christianity. Speak no unkind words to any, no matter how humble their calling. Stretch out a helping hand to all, and bless them with kind words and deeds. "Be not conformed to this world." Let your motto be, "Jesus Only." My foreign address will be "Exeter Hall, Strand, London, W. C., Eng."

RESIGNATION.

At a monthly church meeting of the Second Advent Church of New Bedford, held Wednesday evening, Sept. 30th, 1885, with Bro. Phineas White in the chair, the pastor, Elder L. W. Smith, tendered his resignation as Pastor by letter to the church, when the following resolutions were adopted:

Whereas, Elder L. W. Smith was called by a unanimous vote to the pastorate of the Advent Christian Church of New Bedford: and whereas circumstances have conspired to prevent his taking up his residence among us, thus not being able to fully perform the duties to which he was called; and whereas Elder Smith taking these circumstances to be an indication of the divine will, has tendered his resignation with the same spirit of submission to the divine appointment which is so prominent a trait in our brother's character.

Resolved, that we regret that anything should have prevented Bro. Smith from proving practically that fitness for the work to which he was called as Pastor, which all his qualities of mind and heart seemed to indicate.

Resolved, that we recommend Bro. Smith to all the household of God as a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightfully dividing the word of truth with an eye single to God's glory and the welfare of the sheep of his pasture.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the Crisis for publication, and also a copy to Bro. Smith, requesting him to arrange them by adding or altering them as he thinks proper for publication.

JAMES G. HARDING, Clerk.

In addition to the above, as has been briefly stated, owing to sickness in my family, and other circumstances over which we had no control, and through much prayer for guidance in the right direction, we heartily and with the best of feeling toward the dear brethren and sisters of New Bedford A. C. Church, decide to discontinue our relation as Pastor, trusting that he, who has hitherto sustained them as a people, and brought them through severe trials, will keep them faithful to the end, that they may each have a crown of life in the glorified kingdom of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, unto whom be honor, dominion, and glory, world without end. L. W. SMITH.

GOSPEL GEM SERIES.

We are about to issue a weekly edition of Four Thousand Eight Page Tracts.

A NEW TRACT EACH EDITION.

These tracts are intended for general distribution in the prisons and asylums for the unfortunate, and poor and afflicted everywhere. We have undertaken this work believing it is of the Lord, and trusting that FUNDS will be provided. We invite all who are interested in saving men to co-operate with us, according to your means and ability. We want reliable parties in all our large cities to visit the prisons and asylums, and distribute tracts, and place them where they will do good. We will send packages of ONE HUNDRED weekly to all our churches who may order, with or without price. Let each church have a box in their house of worship in some conspicuous place, marked CONTRIBUTIONS FOR GOSPEL TRACT SERIES.

Twenty-five cents per week will give you one hundred short sermons to distribute among those who attend your meetings. For ONE DIME we will mail FORTY eight page tracts to any address in the United States. FOR TWENTY-FIVE CTS. we will mail ONE HUNDRED, etc. etc. We appeal to the stewards of the Lord to donate funds to meet the expense of supplying prisons, asylums, and for the poor and unfortunate everywhere. We shall open a column in the Crisis for DR. and CR. with GOSPEL GEM SERIES FUND, so that all may be informed as to the financial condition of the work.

Now, dear brethren and sisters, and all who are interested in the spread of Gospel truth, let us all take hold of this work in earnest. The world is in earnest—the devil is in earnest. Let us meet the flood of evil that is coming in upon the church and world with a united effort, and scatter the truth everywhere. Send in your DIMES and DOLLARS for free distribution of tracts, and let us have a colporter in every town and city. The tracts will be mailed on a stated day each week. Address

FAREWELL MEETING.

The call for a farewell Missionary Meeting at the Advent Chapel in Chelsea, Oct. 9th, was responded to by about two hundred and fifty people. The meeting was opened by the singing of the 140th hymn in the New Jubilee Harp, followed by a very fervent prayer by Bro. F. Burr. Then singing by the congregation of the 220th hymn. The pastor of the church then introduced the first speaker, Bro. J. Couch, who for about fifteen minutes spoke very forcibly to the people touching the divine call of this people to proclaim the message of the Second Advent, and the providential opening of doors for the admission of this gospel into foreign lands. Also touching upon the wonderful demand in other countries for this message, closing his remarks by personally addressing Bro. Grant in very impressive and touching language.

Bro. E. A. Stockman was then introduced, who spent a short time discoursing upon the importance of having the gospel with the kingdom in it, saying that there was, and never had been, nor never would be, any other true gospel but the gospel of the kingdom. Jesus preached it. The apostles preached it. Luther and Melancthon preached it. Wesley and Whitefield preached it. John Calvin preached it. But within a century Christendom had neglected to put the kingdom into the gospel. So Bro. Grant was being sent to Europe to preach the gospel with the kingdom in it.

Bro. J. Hemenway was then introduced, and spoke very feelingly of the deep love for the unpopular truth of the Second Advent, which would cause men to leave the comforts of home and pleasures of native associations, taking their lives in their hands, and going forth into foreign lands to proclaim the message, "Behold, the Lord cometh, with ten thousands of his saints, to execute judgment."

Bro. F. Burr was the next speaker. He spoke of his long acquaintance with Bro. Grant. He knew him when a boy. He knew him before grace had affected his heart. He had known him through all his ministry, and the community in which Bro. Grant stood the highest was the community that knew him the best. In his native village in Connecticut he was esteemed very highly.

Our aged Bro. L. Boutelle was then introduced to the people, and in his most enthusiastic way spake briefly, enforcing by his remarks the absolute need of telling the people across the water that they could not get where the Lord was by dying; but if they ever got with the Lord, they must be ready when he came back, and be "caught up to meet him." The remarks from Bro. Boutelle brought out many pent-up Amens from hearts full of the "blessed hope."

The Pastor then in behalf of the church bade Bro. Grant God-speed in his work of faith and labor of love.

Bro. Grant was then introduced, who spoke very hopefully of the prospect of foreign labor, stating that with very great pleasure he started out to occupy the privilege the Lord had granted him of preaching the gospel on distant shores. He felt very grateful for the manifestation of love and sympathy shown by the brethren and sisters in meeting on this occasion.

A few remarks were then made by the Pastor of the church relative to our privilege in sharing in the great work by contributing our means to the support of the missionary, and thus share the blessing with him.

A brief petition was then offered by Bro. Couch for the blessing of God upon Bro. Grant, after which the congregation sang, "We'll all gather home in the morning." The benediction was pronounced by Bro. Grant, after which many friends came forward to take leave of him. And thus closed one of the most interesting and impressive meetings we were ever privileged to attend. May God speed Bro. Grant in his work.

TO THE ADVENTISTS OF SOUTHERN MASSACHUSETTS.

A little more than two years ago the Plymouth and Bristol Counties A. C. Conference appointed a committee on Home Mission work, and placed in their hands a small sum of money to be used by them in defraying the expenses of meetings in new fields. The success attending the efforts of this committee led the Conference to send out an Evangelist to labor in new fields, and with those churches within our Conference limits that were not strong enough to sustain regular preaching. The results thus far have been very encouraging. Most of these weak churches have been strengthened, three new churches organized, and the good seed sown in other fields, where it has already produced more or less fruit. The entire number of sinners converted, backsliders reclaimed, and members of other churches that have come out and openly identified themselves with us, exceeds one hundred.

Our main dependance for the support of our Evangelist has been upon the voluntary contributions of individual Adventists. Of late there has been a falling off in these contributions, so much so as to cause us to address to you this statement and appeal. We cannot think for a moment that you wish to have this work discontinued. What we would advise you to do is to establish a system of weekly offerings, each Adventist within our Conference limits laying aside one cent and upwards per week for this worthy object, to be forwarded once a month, or once in three months, to the treasurer of our Conference, Benj. Irish, New Bedford, Mass. An average of five cents per week from each one of you would give us a fund sufficiently large to relieve us of all financial embarrassment. Some can give more than this, but we think that the number of those who could not give as much must be very small.

If any of you are willing to aid in this work, and yet do not feel disposed to adopt this plan we have suggested, any sum you may wish to send us will be thankfully received.

C. H. Sweet, A. Jenny, L. W. Smith, Benj. Irish, P. White, B. F. Horr, R. A. West, Executive Board of B. and P. Co's Conference.

The urgent needs of such aid as can be easily given to Home Mission work, and the good results thus far obtained in Southern Mass., ought to stir up our brethren and sisters to take hold, anew of this important field of labor, and by the plan suggested, it would be a very easy task to carry on and continue the good begun work, without which aid it must be discontinued. Brethren, let all interested look at this cause in the light of Christ's coming, and remember the Master's words, which will be spoken again in that day, to all his faithful ones "Inasmuch as ye did it unto one of the least of these my disciples, ye did it unto me." L. W. SMITH.

P. W. HOUGH writes:—"I have taken four numbers of the Quarterly Journal of Prophecy from its commencement, and I want to say it has grown better and better from the beginning, and the Sept. number is a decided advance. No Advent literature excels it in publishing the truths we love. May its thousands be soon increased to millions. Amen."

Oelwein, Iowa, Sept 24th.

CHURCH NEWS.

O. DUSTIN writes from Waterloo, Oregon, Sept. 25th:—"As I seldom see anything in the Crisis from this place, I thought a word might be of interest to some of its readers. A church was organized here about eight years ago, under the leadership of Bro. M. M. Norton, called the 'Church of Christ.' We believe in the soon coming of Christ, and all the kindred truths as taught in the Crisis. There was at one time quite a number at this place and the adjacent neighborhoods, but some have gone back to the world, others have moved away, and still others have taken up with the Seventh-day and Age-to-come doctrines, so that but few attend. What I wish to speak of more particularly is the meeting just past. Bro. and Sister Smith came with their tent, and commenced meetings on the 2nd of this month, and continued over two Sundays, assisted by Bros. Porter and Preston. The Lord blessed, and gave the increase. Praise his name! Eight started to serve the Lord during the meeting. One man, the head of a family, renewed his covenant. He once belonged to the Methodist Church. His father was a Methodist preacher. He came out and was immersed. Another brother, who had been a Methodist for thirty years or more, was also immersed, making in all during their stay among us ten souls that were buried in the likeness of Christ's death. Two of them were the daughters of the writer, two others the daughters of Bro. Hamilton, who is a member of the A. C. Church, and who has been preaching to us once a month during Bro. Norton's absence, for two years or more. Near the close of the meeting a church was organized with thirteen members, with Bro. Hamilton as Elder. May the Lord bless them, and may they bring forth much fruit; and may God's richest blessings rest and abide upon those dear ones who have labored so faithfully with us; and may the Lord bless the Crisis, and all connected with it, and may we all be gathered in his eternal store-house soon, is the desire of your brother in Christ."

H. A. MITCHELL writes:—"I wish to say a word for the little church at Alfred, Me. For one year prior to the second Sunday in July the house was closed—no meeting held in the Advent Chapel at all. About the time I went there the house was opened, and we had a good meeting. Bro. Danforth Newcomb and myself have been laboring there Sundays the greater part of the time since. Now a Wednesday evening prayer meeting is held. The Sabbath evening meetings are excellent. A number who have been on the background have started out anew, and the good Lord is blessing. We expect to see a live, flourishing Advent church in Alfred again soon."

D. MATHEWSON writes from Hartford, Ct., Oct. 5th:—"Yesterday was communion day with our church. I baptized five, and there are more to follow. Two united with the church in June, and four yesterday. The Lord is with us. Unity prevails. To him be all the glory."

HONORED BY HIS PEOPLE.

At a meeting of the Second Advent church at Manchester, N. H., on Friday evening, October 2, 1885, the following resolutions were adopted:

Whereas, Our beloved pastor, C. W. Dockham, after deep meditation and earnest prayer, has deemed it in harmony with the will of God to sever his connection with this church as pastor, and go to other fields of labor, therefore

Resolved, That we deeply regret the separation of our friendly and Christian relationship as pastor and people.

Resolved, That during his ministry with us, we have found him to be a man of God, a faithful pastor, an earnest defender of the truth and an ardent lover of the doctrine of Christ.

Resolved, That as he goes from us he will have our deepest heartfelt sympathy, and wherever his lot may fall, we cheerfully recommend him to the people with whom he is to labor, as one worthy of their confidence, love and generous support.

Resolved, That our earnest prayers shall be, that the great giver of all good may abundantly bless his efforts, and crown his labors with success, and in that great day when the books shall be opened, and rewards given, that he may have many stars to deck his crown, and that in the kingdom of God he may shine as the brightness of the firmament and as the stars for ever and ever.

Resolved, That these resolutions be placed on the record of the church, and that a copy be sent to each of the daily papers of this city, and to the Worlds Crisis and Bible Banner for publication.

BIOGRAPHY OF MRS. L. E. FASSETT.

By her Husband, Eld. O. R. Fassett.

Printed on heavy paper, and bound in cloth; 168 pages; price 50 cts. For sale at the Crisis Office, 144 Hanover Street, Boston, Mass.

The subject of this Memoir was well known to a wide circle of friends, among whom for many years she lived and moved as an angel of love, carrying the gospel of Jesus, and by true devotion, womanly modesty and Christian principle, setting an example worthy of imitation by women everywhere. No wonder that she won the affections of hundreds, who ask now she is dead, to have some record of so exemplary a life. Her husband—certainly best qualified to perform the task—has in this beautiful book endeavored to meet the desire of friends. Tenderly has he written, and the tender-hearted will here and there drop a tear while reading passages in the book. The Biography is a work that will sell from its own recommendation. AGENT.

A TRACT FOR THE TIMES. THE RECURRENCE OF DOCTRINE.

By Pastor A. J. Gordon.

This is a reprint of a very striking address, recently delivered by the author before the Alumni of the Newton Theological Seminary. It is not stale reading by any means, but is luscious fruit from the tree of life. It shows how the great truths of inspiration continually recur in the history of the church. By this recurrence the Doctor claims that great revivals and reformations spring up, and perennial freshness is secured to truth. The Eucharist for the people—Salvation by the objective work and word of Christ,—and Last Eschatology, or the doctrine of last things, among the latter, "The Lord Cometh"—are apostolically pressed upon the attention of the Alumni. Good! The doctrine, the precious truth of Jesus' coming, is voiced by the Clarendon Street Baptist pulpit, without misgivings or mysticism.

This is a twenty page tract; price 3 cts. each; twelve for 25 cts. For sale at the Crisis Office, 144 Hanover St., Boston, Mass.

AN EXPOSITION OF THE 20TH CHAPTER OF REV.

By Wm. F. Collier.

This is a tastily printed pamphlet of thirty-two pages, with tinted cover. It gives the author's position upon this chapter, upon which there has been much discussion, and various opinions. The author claims that in the book of Revelation the literal truth is given by symbols. He therefore regards the thousand years as in the past, and thinks it inconsistent with Christ's words to place the resurrection of the just and unjust a thousand years apart; as Christ says, "The hour is coming in the which all that are in their graves shall hear his voice and come forth." But get the pamphlet and examine for yourself.

A student will acquire more knowledge of the history of the world in one day with this Chart than with books without the Chart with one month's study. It is of the same design as the great Chart used by Bro. Grant at our Campmeetings. Address

J. HEMENWAY, Box 5140, Boston, Mass.

FROM B. G. ELLIOTT.

Dear Brn. and Srs.:—While I was reading the editorial on imperative needs of the present hour I could cry out with all my heart, Lord, let a revival of experimental godliness come, that the Advent churches may have the power of God as they did in years past. Oh, for a baptism of the Holy Ghost, that the lukewarm may be quickened, wanderers return, and sinners saved. Jesus is soon coming, and what is done must be done quickly.

I am trying to serve God, and love his precious Word. I still love the old humble way, the way that God's Word teaches. Jesus has kept me for the last six months, which has been a testing time to me, and he will keep me as long as I trust in him. The Lord has not only kept me, but he has blessed me with his Spirit. It is my prayer day by day—Lord, fill me with thy Spirit, for I want a home in the kingdom with all the saints of God, and I am determined to live so I can meet you all in the kingdom.

The Annual Session of the Maine State A. C. Conference will be held at Bridgeton, Me., commencing Wednesday evening, Oct. 14th, at seven o'clock, and holding over the following Sunday. This place is somewhat out of the way for some, but the hand of the Lord seemed to point it out as the place to hold the meeting, and we trust an extra effort will be made by all the churches and societies to send delegates, and also that all the preachers will endeavor to be there, that the good brethren and sisters of Bridgeton may not be disappointed in their desire for a good full meeting. Strangers will inquire for Brn. Hanson, Fields, N. A. Staples, Geo. E. Ham, and S. F. Kilborn, who will see that homes are provided for all.

Art. 3, Sec. 2 of Constitution reads: "Each church or society shall be allowed one delegate, and one additional delegate for every twenty actual members, to be elected by the church or society which they represent, and to be provided with a certificate of election attested by the recording officer of the same. The recording officer shall also with the certificate of election certify to the actual membership of the church or society. These delegates shall hold their membership till the next annual session of Conference." We would also remind preachers who belong to the Conference that the Constitution makes it their duty to be present, and if unable, to send a written report.

The M. C. R. R. will sell round trip tickets to Portland at one fare. At Portland or transfer stations, buy tickets via. Portland and Ogdensburg R. R. to Bridgeton, at one fare for round trip. Those on the line of Bridgeton and Saco River R. R. can also buy round trip tickets at one fare for round trip. All should ask for tickets on account of Advent State Conference at Bridgeton. Let all who can afford it come by R. R., and relieve brethren at Bridgeton. "Bear ye one another's burdens, and so fulfill the law of Christ."

NEW BOOKS.

It is with pleasure we present to the Christian public our new publications, in which the reasons of our faith are presented in a candid and logical manner, and with such a vast amount of scriptural testimony that the books must command the respect of all candid thinkers and Bible students.

"OUR HOPE,"

OR,

WHY ARE WE ADVENTISTS?

The large and increasing demand for this work is an expression of the high appreciation of its merits among our people, and we believe it will accomplish much good in removing unjust prejudice, and enlightening many minds upon the great subject of Christ's Second Advent, and the restitution of all things spoken by the prophets of olden times. We wish that a copy might be placed in the hands of every clergyman in the country. Price single, postpaid, 60 cts., per dozen, by express, $6.00. Agent.

HADES, OR THE INTERMEDIATE STATE OF MAN.

A companion volume to "OUR HOPE." By Rev. H. Constable, A. M., containing 367 pages, neatly bound in cloth, lettered in gold, making it ornamental and attractive. This is a reprint of the English edition, and the third edition of the work. The former price was $1.25 per copy. We are also to put them at 60 cts. per copy; $6.00 per dozen, by express. The large sale of this work in the old country is an undoubted evidence of its great merit. It is the only work extant, with which we are acquainted, that fully presents an extensive historical and scriptural testimony on the state of man in death.

A NEW TRACT.

THE SABBATH ABROGATED.

By Mrs. C. C. Stewart.

A Tract of 16 pages. It is logical and concise, and meets the demand for something that shows up the fallacious claims of the advocates of the Seventh-day theory. The Seventh-day people are flooding some sections of the country with Sabbath literature that is calculated to mislead many, and bind the yoke of the law upon the people. Give this tract a large circulation. Two for 5 cts., 20 cts. per dozen. Agent.

A LITTLE WHILE.

BY MRS. E. CONVERSE.

A little while we journey here,
In the narrow way marked out so clear;
It is the path that Jesus trod—
It is the only way to God.

A little while we're pilgrims here,
And look beyond this vale of tears;
We're pressing onward with our might
To reach the goal almost in sight.

A little while we struggle here
To keep life's lamp all bright and clear;
But soon, alas! O solemn thought!
The flickering lamp of life goes out.

A little while we're watching here,
For Jesus' coming draweth near;
The Bride will with the Bridegroom reign,
And Eden bloom on earth again.

A little while we're waiting here
Till that joyful morn appear;
When earth, all freed from the curse of sin,
The joys of paradise begin.

A little while we'll patient be,
And bear life's burdens—you and me.
In meek submission help us, Lord,
To bow each day and kiss the rod.

A little while—He'll soon be here,
[illegible] wipe away our every tear;
[illegible] with joy our coming King,
[illegible]'s song we'll sing.

[illegible] I was [illegible] unite [illegible] to [illegible] e [illegible] the [illegible] knew [illegible] foolishness [illegible] that believe. [illegible] sign, and the Greeks [illegible] dom; but we preach Christ crucified, unto the Jews a stumbling block, and unto the Greeks foolishness; but unto them which are called, both Jews and Greeks, Christ the power of God, and the wisdom of God. Because the foolishness of God is wiser than men, and the weakness of God is stronger than men. For ye see your calling, brethren, how that not many wise men after the flesh, not many mighty, not many noble, are called: but God hath chosen the foolish things of the world to confound the wise; and God hath chosen the weak things of the world to confound the things which are mighty, and base things of the world, and things which are despised, hath God chosen, yea, and things which are not, to bring to nought things that are: that no flesh should glory in his presence. But of him are ye in Christ Jesus, who of God is made unto us wisdom, and righteousness, and sanctification and redemption: that, according as it is written, He that glorieth, let him glory in the Lord. 1 Cor. 1: 19–31.

We need not comment on the above; all will readily discover that the possession of worldly wisdom will not secure the favor and salvation of God. Secular knowledge, however, is not to be spurned, but is indeed profitable if rightly viewed and employed. The more acquired ability we possess the better, if it be considered a gift from God, and sanctified to him and his cause. But whether in possession of much or little of the wisdom of the world and worldly things, he only is a true sage who has a positive knowledge of one thing. "One thing I know, that whereas I was blind now I see." This is the language of a man who had been blind from his birth, but who had just received his sight as a result of his faith in the blessed Christ. The Jews professed to disbelieve the miracle, and so questioned the young man's parents as to whether he was their son who was born blind. To this they readily answered in the affirmative. But when asked by what means he had received his sight, they feared to answer, because the Jews had threatened to turn any man out of the synagogue who should confess that the one who performed this notable miracle was Christ. For this reason they were referred to the son. After they had called him to them they said, "Give God the praise: we know that this man is a sinner." He answered and said, "One thing I know, that whereas I was [illegible] souls. [illegible] certainly fail. [illegible] confidence and persistence will surely succeed. If we preach that revival is hardly to be expected, and the churches [illegible] us, no earnest work will be do[illegible]; physical lost ones will be saved [illegible] misfortune. Spiritual [illegible] is a greater blessing; spiritual blindness is a greater calamity. All who are physically blind would gladly be restored; and yet while it is the privilege of all who are afflicted with the greater blindness to receive their sight, the great mass of mankind continue to grope their way in moral darkness. This is indeed the height of folly. Thus men not only deprive themselves of present blessing, but of future and eternal glory.

A few thoughts concerning this man in his new condition, and we will close. Could an Ingersoll have made him believe that he was now worse off than before? All will answer No. Then shall we who have received spiritual sight and healing, permit an Ingersoll to shake our faith in Christ and his saving power? We answer No—a hundred times No. To say that this man did not rejoice would be absurd; so all who have truly received their spiritual vision will rejoice in the fact. His friends were glad with him. So all our true friends will rejoice with us when we are converted. If any condemn us, they are not real friends. It is evident that this man had no desire to return to his former condition. So no truly converted one ever desires to go back into the ways of sin and darkness. If the healed blind man should again become blind, his last condition would be more lamentable than the first, because he would be in a condition to more keenly realize his deprivation. So, according to the Scriptures, it is with those who were once spiritually enlightened, and then relapse into a state of blindness.

If the blind man who had been thus healed had realized that his sight was becoming less clear, and he had begun to fear that his blindness was returning, what do we suppose he would have done providing Jesus had still been near? Why, he would have gone to him immediately, and told him all about it, and without any doubt would have received a complete restoration. Are there not some of us who ought to go to Jesus with this complaint, and ask for spiritual restoration? It is no time now to allow our spiritual vision to become dim. The Master is near at hand. Let us be wide awake and watch for his coming.

NOTES BY THE WAY.

BY H. B. SEVEY.

From the Campmeeting in Washington [illegible] went to Lakeside, where we met our [illegible]mily, with many others, well settled in [illegible]amp life, with hearts and voices uplifted [illegible] God in praise for his keeping power. This place has become endeared to many as one of resort in the summer for its beautiful scenery, and especially its healthful location and pure spring of never failing running water. Many are benefited by it. Some farmers draw it to their houses to use. But while the brethren and sisters who go there to spend a few days in worshiping God are grateful for the beautiful water, yet they are more thankful for the water of life.

The meeting was one of usual interest. The preaching was timely and well received. The morning prayer meetings were refreshing. Some made a full consecration to the Lord. A few found Jesus to be precious to them as their Saviour, and in the Lake confessed their faith in the death and resurrection of Jesus by being planted together in the likeness of his death, and raised to newness of life. Thirteen thus followed their Lord and Master. Many who had been lingering around the cross for some time brought a large crowd to the meeting Sunday, some to hear, and others to see and be seen. In the evening two long tables were set in the boarding house, where the disciples gathered around to show forth the death of the dear Son of God by the broken bread and wine until he shall come in glory. It was a blessed season. Thus we turned away from Lakeside in hopes to meet beside the river of life, where the trees of life will yield their fruit every month, and no cold frost can wither their leaves; when there will be no more curse, and no more pain or death.

As we returned to our home, we thought it would be well to stop a few days and do some work, and arranged thus; but it came to us that we ought to go to Mechanic Falls Campmeeting; so in the morning we started, and in the afternoon were among the dear saints in camp, forty-five miles away from home. This meeting was not as large as usual, owing to other meetings coming first, and the weather being unfavorable. Some were prevented from attending by sickness, and doubtless others for lack of interest, being lukewarm, the worst condition man can be in. The preaching was good, and a good spirit was manifested through the meeting. Sunday being a lovely day brought in a large crowd, as the cars run especially to the meeting. Some were opposed to having them run on Sunday, but as I went among them, I saw that they were as orderly and well behaved a class as I ever met with.

We next met with the brethren in Conference at Smithfield. The blessed Spirit was felt in many hearts, and all thought it was one of the best of meetings. A deep impression was made on the people that Jesus was at hand. Some were quickened, and one took a decided stand to be the Lord's. We left with a deep feeling for that people to fill our appointment in Jefferson Tuesday evening, but as it was their usual prayer meeting, they would not give me liberty to preach, although many came, and the appointment was given out for me. Such a [illegible]eeting I never saw. The darkness was [illegible]; two ministers, but no good Spirit. [illegible] all were dissatisfied, but I think it [illegible] well for the truth. Here I found [illegible]llis, who I took with me to Camden [illegible]. This meeting was in the Spirit [illegible] of the truth. It was said by [illegible] the best one they ever attended. [illegible]ing was good, and many saw the [illegible] deeper work, with confession. [illegible] came with power. I stopped [illegible] evening with them, and had a full [illegible]

[illegible] way we called to see Bro. S. K. [illegible], who has been failing for two [illegible] the [illegible] softening of the brain. He has [illegible] one of our prominent preachers in [illegible]; but the good must fall by the hand [illegible] the enemy. He has become like a child. Does not know his own wife and family. As we put our hand on his head, and turned away with a sad heart to see one who was once so full of life in so sad a condition, we thought of the time when he laid his hand on our own head and invoked the blessing of God upon us, with the solemn charge to preach the Word faithfully; and the blessed hope never looked more precious that in a little while, with all the redeemed saints, he would shout victory over the last foe in the paradise of God.

Mt. Vernon, Me.

HE walks in the presence of God who converses with him in frequent prayer and communion; who runs to him with all his necessities; who asks counsel of him in his doubting; who weeps before him as a judge; reverences him as a Lord, and obeys him as a father.

TO BE faithful in that which is least is the possible and beautiful duty of myriads of humble Christian souls, of whom the world is not worthy, but on whom angels look down in wondering love.

MERCY DROPS BY THE WAY.

BY MRS. M. A. TIBBETS.

Although the great luminary of day may shine forth in all his brightness, yet the stars may twinkle forth their little light, and be equally acceptable to the great Master who ordered their cheerful obedience in the universe. Our dear brethren and sisters in the East and elsewhere have recently closed their joyous meetings, numbering thousands of saints and scores of ministers, resulting in many conversions and much spiritual life to the church in general. Well, this is glorious, the news of which has brought joy and peace to all our hearts.

Now I wish to add a little episode to this great gathering, and tell how good the Lord has been to us, even our little church at Volga. Our dear brother, Eld. L. H. Ferrell, who several months ago was ordained to the ministry at Jeffersonville, under the supervision of our venerable brother, Dr. N. Field, came with his excellent wife to visit us, and on last Lord's day commenced meetings, and preached evenings throughout the week to a full house of interested listeners, which continued to increase until the close of the meeting. Our brother's loving and interesting manner (which many of you know something about) seemed to win its way to the hearts of both saints and sinners. One young lady, the beloved daughter of our pastor, Eld. E. Cooperider, nobly came forward and made the good confession, and was baptized, to the joy of her parents, and others equally interested. One brother also wished his name recorded in our church book, which gave us joy and encouragement that others will soon follow, under the labors of our dear brother, who will remain with us a few weeks longer.

Thus my heart has rejoiced in this church blessing brought to me, which I could not go abroad to receive, and it is too good to keep; so after reading Bro. Stockman's precious editorial to-day, I felt this blessing which we have received as a church ought to be added to his own remark, "It is high time that we awake and gird ourselves afresh for a tremendous advance movement." Pray for us that these mercy drops already shared may receive an abundant shower of God's multiplying grace.

I SHALL NOT WANT.

BY THOMAS E. WILSON.

I shall not want. My Father's hand
Controls the fulness of the land,
At his command the earth and sea
Shall yield their treasures unto me.

I shall not want. O grace divine!
For I am his, and he is mine,
And while I trust the Crucified,
My needs in him are all supplied.

I shall not want, for day by day
He leads me gently on my way
He gives to me my daily bread,
And angels nightly guard my bed.

I shall not want. For this I know
That He will keep me here below,
And with the ransomed hosts at last
Give me a home when time is past.

GOOD NEWS.

The Lord is still blessing our efforts in publishing his gospel of the life and second advent wherever we work. The more our opposers hate it, and insiduously write against it, and lie about it and its teachers, the more it awakens attention, and gains believers, confidence, courage, and continuance is our motto. God is with and for us. So we work I. C. WELLCOME.

"Bangalore, India, July 14th.—My Dear Bro. Wellcome,—I beg to return to you my sincere thanks for the large number of books and tracts you so kindly sent me . . . Come, Lord Jesus, come quickly. I know of no greater distinguishing mark between a child of God and a child of the devil than that produced by the idea of our Saviour's coming. The former rejoices and longs for it, while the latter is filled with dread and terror. I am glad to say that a spirit of great inquiry has been created in Bangalore, and that our little Bangalore Bible Banner has been a means of giving many clearer views of Scripture, and of the doctrines we hold in particular. The Wesleyans are now sorry for what they did, but are yet very bitter against us.

"We have organized an Auxiliary 'Conditional Immortality Association,' which has become an established fact. I need counsel and advice, for I feel that I have undertaken a very important work, which may, with care and that wisdom that cometh down from above, grow to be a significant institution. . . .

"I received an application to-day from a gentleman, four hundred miles away, for 'The Unspeakable Gift.' At present the embers of sectarian strife are hardly cool; but by the time more books reach here after you get this letter, I have no doubt that inquiries may be made for them, but I shall have to advertise them. Printing is cheap in India, but advertising is high, as there is more than the papers can publish. Bro. Spence sends me Tamil and Telugu tracts, Bible Banner, and Quarterly Journal, and intelligent natives receive them willingly, and read them too. There is a fine field for labor here, but I wish also to visit other stations, taking with me tracts and books for gratuitous distribution. I have sent you my photograph, and as a good cover to it, have sent you a Tamil Almanac for 1885 as a novelty. You will at least see the kind of idols the people of India worship. I hope it will reach you safely. [It has not been received. I. C. W.]

"May grace, mercy, and peace be multiplied unto us through an insured knowledge of God, our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. Yours in faith, hope and love. C. CRESS. (sent.)

Under date of Aug. 6th Bro. Cress again writes: "Dear Bro. Wellcome,—Your very large budget of books and tracts is just received. Many thanks. You have generously responded to our call. The other day one of the leading Salvationists left them, and cast in his lot with us. That 'definite time effort' has done a great deal of harm. It has always appeared vain to me. 'In such an hour as ye THINK NOT' says our Saviour; so that set what hour or time we may, it cannot be right, as that would be the hour or time ye think, instead of when ye THINK NOT. I have known many to be so concerned about the future as to neglect present duty. To live one moment at a time is the only way to realize a constant settled peace. We are very unpopular, and very poor too, but we are beginning to look up. Our little Banner is much appreciated, simply because it is local and among ourselves. I have no pretensions whatever but to a small share of common sense, and a larger share than I deserve of the grace of God. Blessed be his holy name! The Wesleyans are our only avowed open enemies. But the eyes of the people have been opened a great deal by the 'letter to a Friend,' which I published.

"Good by, my dear brother. If we never meet on this earth, we shall in a cleansed, purified earth. May God hasten its coming. Amen. Yours faithfully in the Lord Jesus. CHARLES CRESS. (sent.)"

YORK COUNTY A. C. CONFERENCE.

The quarterly session of this Conference, held with the friends at Kezar Falls, Me., was a season of refreshing. It commenced Thursday, Sept. 24th, and continued over Sunday. Thursday afternoon was devoted to social worship. Brother Berleigh Emery preaching in the evening from 1 John 3: 2.

Friday morning social meeting. There was a goodly number of the brethren and sisters present, and the time was well improved. Bro. Jesse Gay preached in the afternoon from 2 Tim. 2: 14, and Bro. Mark Stevens in the evening from Psalms 97. 12.

Preaching in the afternoon by Eld. Stillins from 1 Peter 2: 7. In the evening Bro. Berleigh Emery preached from James 5: 19, 20; the Lord's supper at close of services. More than one hundred participated in this solemn ordinance, thus showing forth the Lord's death until he comes.

Sunday morning the love feast, conducted by Bro. Gay, was a blessed season—a foretaste of the grand reunion soon to take place when the saints are gathered home. The meeting commenced at nine o'clock, and every moment of time was occupied up to quarter past twelve. More than one hundred and twenty testimonies came forth from hearts filled with the love of God. Four made a start for eternal life, making five during the meetings. Bro. Jesse Gay preached in the afternoon from Isaiah 55: 6.

It seems to me this was one of the best sessions of Conference I ever attended. "The God of peace" was with us, and his "peace which passeth all understanding" pervaded the entire session. The congregations were large, and our prayer is that the seed sown by the servants of God may take root in good soil, and spring forth unto eternal life. May the blessings of God continue to rest upon this Conference and he in his mercy and infinite wisdom use it for the upbuilding of his cause, and the salvation of the perishing.

Mansfield, Jno. Carver, —— Smith, and Geo. J. French, all of whom preached the Word, warning sinners and encouraging the saints. The business of the Conference was attended to in the usual manner. Officers elected: President, Benj. Finney; Vice President, D. R. Mansfield; Secretary, Geo. J. French; Treasurer, I. H. Ruple.

Mrs. E. S. Mansfield presented the following resolutions, which were unanimously accepted and adopted as the sense of this body:

Resolved, that as a Conference, we regard all such amusements as Sunday excursions for mere pleasure, skating rink and saloon-visiting, dancing, card playing, and dram-drinking as unsalutary in effect, and detrimental to the interests of the cause of Christ, and the spiritual growth of believers, and as such should not be participated in by them.

Also, be it resolved, That this body express their disapproval of the habitual use of tobacco and ardent spirits, especially in the ministry, who are examples to the flock.

A vote of thanks was given to the Sumption's Prairie church for their unexcelled cordiality and liberality with which they entertained the attendants at Conference.

OBITUARIES.

LILLY. In Bennington, Vt., Sept. 30th, 1885, Laura, daughter of Louis and Mary E. Lilly, aged five weeks

Also, Oct. 1st, 1885, Mary E. Boynton, wife of Louis Lilly, aged thirty-five years.

Sister Lilly being very sick, they had taken the babe away to be cared for by an aunt. Soon after the child died, and while arrangements were being made for its funeral, the mother also died In twenty-four hours mother and child lay in death's cold embrace. As we stood and gazed into the casket and saw (what we never witnessed before) a mother lying so sweetly with turned head, as if looking downward upon the babe that lay upon her arm so innocently, my heart yearned for the time when such heart-rending scenes would be done away by the coming of Christ. Sister Lilly leaves father, mother, husband and five children, who deeply feel her loss. In her dying moments she called her husband and children to her bedside, and blessed them, as did Jacob of old. Bro. Lilly is comforted by the promise—"Thy dead shall live again," and said to me, "It is all the hope I have." May God's blessing rest upon dear Bro. Lilly and his motherless children. Oh, who can wish Jesus to stay away! We spoke to a large company of friends—many who had never heard the faith of the Bible—from Isa. 17. 15 Rev. Mr. Shepherson (Baptist), who had been engaged to officiate at the child's funeral, assisted us. GEO. A. STREETER.

WOLCOTT. Departed this life in North Somers, Conn., Sept. 21st, 1885, Sister Dolly K. Wolcott, wife of Bro. Henry H. Wolcott, aged fifty-seven years.

Sister Wolcott became interested in the hope of immortality through Christ only during a series of meetings held in that place by the writer in the spring of 1867, and was baptized, together with her husband and others, who had become the happy recipients of the Advent doctrines, and of Christ's power to save from sin. Sr. W. evinced unusual joy in following the divine example of her blessed Redeemer, being buried in the likeness of his death, and raised again to newness of life in him. She was unassuming, and particularly conscientious in all her acts in life, a faithful and devoted wife, a kind and loving mother. She exemplified her profession with meekness and patience during a long and protracted illness, her sufferings, caused by cancerous affections, being at times indescribable, until at last she fell asleep in Jesus without a struggle, in hope of a speedy resurrection to a life where pain and death will be no more. She leaves a kind, affectionate husband, and five daughters, who deeply mourn her loss. May grace sustain the bereaved family.

Speed on, O wondrous day!
We wait thy dawn to see,
When sleeping gems awake
To immortality.

The large assemblage who convened to pay their last respects to the deceased were addressed by the writer, assisted by Bro. H. W. Perkins. Text, Jer. 14. 8, 9. I. B. POTTER.

GARDNER. At Magnolia, Wis., Sept. 10, 1885, Mrs. Fannie V. Gardner, wife of Mr. Henry Gardner, and daughter of Eld. George and Pamelia Howard, of Magnolia, Wis.

She was sick but a short time, and died with convulsions. She leaves a kind husband, one little boy, and a mother and brother to mourn their loss, but not without hope. She was converted when but twelve years old, baptized by Eld. Adrian, and united with the A. C. Church in Magnolia, of which she lived a consistent and worthy member till separated by death. She was born Oct. 15th, 1856, and was married to Mr. Henry Gardner in May, 1879. It will be a heavy loss to the husband and child, that cannot be made good to them here. She also leaves a Christian mother, who, while she mourns her loss, has hope of meeting her soon again, with her husband and dear ones. The funeral was held in the Advent Chapel, and a large gathering of friends and neighbors were present, together with the church, to mourn the loss of one respected by all. We tried to speak words of comfort to the mourning friends from words found in 1 Cor. 15: 57. D. S. CLARK.

PECK. Fell asleep in Jesus, at Westville, Ct., Sept. 21st, 1885, Sister Louisa Peck, aged sixty-nine years.

The dark shadows have fallen on the widowed home of our sister, who embraced the Advent faith in 1843. She leaves two daughters and a large circle of friends to mourn her departure. Yet they mourn not as those who have no hope in the resurrection and the life. Sad is that home bereft of its Christian mother. May God be a friend to the surviving and weeping family, and may they find comfort and consolation in their mother's God. She was laid beside her faithful Christian husband, to await the last trumpet's sound. J. E. CLARK.

POLLOCK. In Sodus, N. Y., Sept. 16th, 1885, Bro. — Pollock, aged seventy years.

Brother Pollock heard the gospel of the kingdom about seventeen years ago, under the tent we pitched at Sodus Point. He believed and obeyed, with many others, and we baptized him in the likeness of Christ's death Sept. 18th. We laid him in mother earth to wait the call of his Lord to come forth. He held the faith firm to the end of life, having no fear of death. He leaves a wife and four children to mourn his loss. Funeral attended by the writer. M. R. MILES.

DOWNING. In Pittstown, N. Y., Sept. 4, 1885, Fanny, daughter of Edgar and Charlotte Downing, aged four months.

We left our people at our church to hold the meeting on Sept. 6th, while we went to speak to the mourning ones from 2 Sam. 12: 23. The funeral was well attended by friends and neighbors, gathered at the residence of the parents. "They [the children] shall come again from the land of the enemy." May God's blessing rest upon the bereaved parents.

GEO. A. STREETER.

MORRIS. Fell asleep in Jesus at Buchanan, Mich., Sept. 7th, 1885, Sister Sarah Ann, wife of Bro. Garrett Morris, in the sixty-eighth year of her age.

She leaves a husband and three sons to mourn her loss. Sister Morris was among the first in Buchanan to embrace the doctrine of the Advent near, under the labors of Eld. D. R. Mansfield and wife, and was baptized by him some thirty years ago. She maintained her profession with fidelity to the end. The last year of her life was one of great suffering, but she bore her afflictions with Christian fortitude and patience. Being telegraphed, Bro. Mansfield came and assisted at the funeral, speaking words of comfort to the bereaved, and exorting all to be ready to meet her in that kingdom which the deceased believed was soon to be established. The services were attended by a large congregation of sympathizing friends. A loving wife, an indulgent mother, a faithful friend, a consistent Christian, may her children imitate her virtues and embrace her hope, that they may be an unbroken family in the kingdom of God. BENJ. FINNEY.

HUTCHING. In Farmington, N. H., July 17th, 1885, Sister Dorothy Hutching, widow of the late Simon Hutching, aged seventy-seven years, seven months and four days.

Sister Hutching sought the Lord in her youth, and was baptized, and united with the Baptist Church. About fifteen years ago she saw light on the soon coming of the Lord and the literal resurrection of the dead. Sister H. was constant in the faith. She leaves two sons, one daughter, and a large circle of friends to mourn. We miss her very much in the prayer room. May the Lord comfort and sustain the weeping ones, and bring them at last to meet mother in the deathless land. Funeral service attended by the writer.

M. STEVENS.

ROSS. Sept. 3d, 1885, of typhoid fever, at the age of twenty-seven years, one month and eight days, Sister Mary C. Ross.

Sister Ross was an estimable and much loved member of the Hazel-Grove A. C. Church. We have all met a great loss—husband, relatives, neighbors and church. Few wives are so devoted as was Sister Mary to her husband. They had lived with Mr. Ross' father and mother for eight years in harmony and pleasantness scarcely met with in a lifetime. They all feel almost heart broken. May the God of all consolation bind up their sorrowing hearts is our prayer. The services were conducted by the writer.

B. FORESTER.

GORDON. In Bangor, Me., Sept. 25th, 1885, Wiley Nelson, son of Robert C. and Rose L. Gordon, aged two years and seven months.

This interesting child after a very short illness closed its eyes in death, to sleep until Jesus shall take it from its dusty bed and clothe its little form with immortal beauty. Its weeping parents can have their sorrow mitigated as they lean upon the sympathizing Jesus, and hear him in tender tones saying unto them, "I am the resurrection and the life." "Weeping may endure for a night, but joy cometh in the morning." Words of comfort by the writer. JOHN F. CLOTHEY.

WILLAND. In Wolfboro, N. H., Sept. 5th, 1885, of brain fever, Archie J. Willand, son of Fernando and Hattie O. Willand, aged twelve years and twelve days.

Little Archie suffered intensely about three weeks. He was of a quiet and pleasant disposition, and dearly loved by all who knew him. But the relentless destroyer came, and he fell a victim to his embrace. With aching hearts we laid him away until that morning when Jesus shall bring life and immortal bloom to the little sleeper. M. STEVENS.

DORE. In Ossipee, N. H., Sept. 18th, 1885, John C. Dore, at the age of sixty-seven years, eleven months and three days.

He leaves a wife a son, two daughters, and a large circle of friends to mourn his loss.

M. STEVENS.

FARNHAM. In Ossipee, N. H., Aug. 11, 1885, Bro Eben C. Farnham.

Bro. Farnham was a good man. He died in hope of eternal life when Jesus comes. He leaves a wife and two children. May the God of all comfort be with them. M. STEVENS.

FLETCHER. In New Durham, N. H., July 2d, 1885, Bro. George W. Fletcher, aged forty-five years, five months and ten days.

He was a good husband and kind father He leaves a wife and three children to mourn his loss. M. STEVENS.

ROBERTS. In Farmington, N. H., July 23d, 1885, Martha Roberts, wife of Lemuel Roberts, aged seventy-two years and four months.

M. STEVENS.

PIKE. In Farmington, N. H., July 24th, 1885, Woodbury L. Pike, aged sixty-one years and nine months.

He leaves two daughters, three brothers, and a large circle of relatives. M. STEVENS.

HORNE. In Farmington, N. H., July 8, 1885, John W. Horne, aged fifty-one years, five days.

He leaves a wife and five children, and a large circle of friends. M. STEVENS.

FROM MARY N. KENT.

Dear Friends and Readers of the Crisis:—I will write you a few words of cheer and encouragement, for I know that in these days of trial and peril good news, even from a "far country," when it concerns the cause of our common Master, is cheering to his waiting people. Our annual Conference and Campmeeting (N. W. Mo. and S. W. Iowa) was held in this place, where the friends and brethren met together once more, and united again in the worship of God. We had many good meetings. At the close of the Campmeeting it was agreed to leave the "big tent," while Brn. Forrester and Watkins should continue the meetings for awhile. Though the weather was very unfavorable for nearly two weeks, the people had an ear to hear, and a heart to receive the words of life and truth; so we had good audiences, and good attention, night after night, for four weeks, including Campmeeting.

As the result of this patient, persistent effort, we had a church organized, of forty-nine members, with a prospect of more uniting with us soon. Bro. Forrester baptized ten, Sunday, Sept. 20th. Others intend baptism soon. Our meetings closed with a good, lively interest; six rose for prayers on the last night; several from other churches united with us. The old remark, "My Bible seems like a new book" was often heard, and we hope it may continue to shed more and more light upon their pathway until the perfect day. Bro. Watkins was taken sick and obliged to go home, so the labor and burden fell on Bro. Forrester mostly, who seemed to have the promise fulfilled "As thy day, so shall thy strength be." He leaves us to-day, with the good-will of not only the newly-organized church, but also of many others, who will gladly welcome him back if he can arrange to preach for us. Our prayer is that he may ever live low at the feet of Jesus, and so hold him up to the gaze of a lost and perishing world, that he may "draw all men unto him," and win many souls to God.

I feel that we are living amid the perils of the last days, and ask an interest in the prayers of all, that our new church may be faithful in duty, stand firm for God and his truth, let their light shine, and at last be counted worthy to stand before the Son of man when he comes to make up his jewels.' Your sister in Christ.

MARK TWAIN ON EVOLUTION.

Mark Twain disposes of some of the modern scientific methods in the following way, really worth considering: "In the space of one hundred and seventy-six years, the Lower Mississippi has shortened itself two hundred and forty-two miles. This is an average of a trifle over one and three-tenths miles per year. Therefore, any calm person, who is not blind or idiotic, can see that in the old oolitic Silurian period just one million years ago this month, the Lower Mississippi River was upwards of one million three hundred miles long, and stuck out over the Gulf of Mexico like a fishing-rod. And by the same token any person can see that seven hundred and forty-two years from now the Lower Mississippi will only be a mile and three-quarters long, and Cairo and New Orleans will have joined their streets together, and be plodding comfortably along under a single Mayor and Board of Aldermen. There is something fascinating about science. One gets such wholesome returns of conjecture out of such trifling investment of fact.—Ex.

THE TEMPER.

If people generally knew what an advantage to them it was to be cheerful, there would be fewer sour faces in the world and infinitely less temper. A man never gains anything by exhibiting his annoyance by his face, much less by bursting into passion. As it is neither manly nor wise to yield like a child pettishly to every cross, so it is alike foolish and absurd to allow feelings of anger to deprive us of self-control. There never was a man in any controversy who lost his temper who did not come near losing his cause in consequence. If ever a person plays the game of his enemies, it is when he is in a passion. Acquaintances shun men of proverbial ill-temper; friends drop away from them; even wives and children gradually learn to fear them more than to love. Thousands of men owe their want of success in life to neglecting the control of their temper. Nor have they the excuse that it is an infirmity which cannot be restrained; for Washington, though naturally of a most passionate disposition, disciplined himself until he passed for a person utterly impassive. No man who neglects his temper can be happy any more than he makes those happy around. Good temper is gold, is beyond price. Bad temper is a curse to the possessor and to society.—Sel.

TEMPERANCE.

SAVED FROM TOBACCO.

Editors Witness:—I noticed in the last Witness, a short piece about "Tobacco-using Christians." Now I want to tell what the Lord has done for me in reference to tobacco. I have been a tobacco chewer for thirty years, up to about 24th July last. That grand man of God, Dr. W. B. Godbey, held a meeting here, and told us about full salvation. I had been a member of the church for about thirty years, groping in the wilderness—seldom had courage to raise my eyes heavenwards. At the time of Dr. Godbey's meeting, I chewed from five to ten cents worth of tobacco every day. Bought it at wholesale. Glory be to God! the first moment I resolved to do better or die, to trust God for all things, I lost the taste for tobacco, and have not wanted it since,—not only that, I cannot endure the breath of a smoker or chewer. I am as easily made sick by it as a delicate child. I did not resolve to quit it—did not think about it at the time; but when the blessed Lord sanctified me, he purified me. Bless his holy name! and a purified man, cleansed by the blood of the Lamb, cannot want any unclean thing. I do praise God for the perfect love I have that casteth out all fear and all impurities. I have also been a coffee-drinker for nearly forty years. I do not now drink a drop of coffee or tea—do not want it. Bless the Lord!

Let me urge believers, all over this land to trust God entirely—trust him with all you have and are, and be sanctified to his use and purpose. It is such a blessed thing to walk in the "King's highway." Oh! it is such a grand thought, that God, the mighty Ruler, King of the Universe, Judge of all men, is my Father, and I can love him, and walk daily in the light of his countenance! It is such a blessed thought that he leadeth me! My dear wife was only twenty-four hours behind me, in reaching the land of corn and wine. All I ask in this world is for the Father to keep me and my family sanctified. Pray for us, that we may never for a moment doubt.

J. B. MCDOWELL.

THE BROWN GOD.

A gentleman informed me a few days ago, that being in attendance at the campmeeting at Clear Lake, Iowa, this summer, he witnessed a singular occurrence. A man had been seeking the Lord for several days with great earnestness and many tears. He was in terrible distress of mind, but it seemed as though his prayers were unheard, and he was almost at the point of giving up the conflict in despair. When asked whether he had given up everything for Christ's sake, he replied that he had to the best of his knowledge.

Shortly after this, while kneeling, praying and weeping, he was seen to thrust his hand into his pocket, draw out something, and fling it away with loathing and disgust. Immediately he sprang to his feet, praising God and rejoicing in his great salvation. Then some one looked for the object cast away, and lo! it was a piece of tobacco! As soon as he dethroned the brown god, Christ took possession of his heart.

I wonder why Christ would not bless this man clinging to his tobacco! And I wonder, too, if Christ would not give some professors of religion that I know of, if they would get in as deep earnest about their tobacco as this man was, a greater blessing than they can ever have with tobacco in their pockets. We should like to see them try the experiment. After all, it is wiser to never begin the use of tobacco, and then when you seek the Lord this little brown god will not come between you and the blessed Jesus.—S. S. Gem.

DRUNKENNESS is a crime and ought to be so regarded and punished. It is an outrage for a man to fire himself with intoxicants and thus prepare himself for desperate deeds, and then go out on the street, where your children are at play, to defile them by his example, and perhaps injure them by his violence, and his act should be treated as it is, as an offence against the public order.—Ex.

FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.

LONDON, ENG., OCT. 26TH, 1885.

BY MILES GRANT.

My last report ended at Queenstown, where we arrived Monday A. M., Oct. 19th. From there we had a good trip to Liverpool, where we landed before noon the next day. It was a relief to step on land once more, and receive the hearty greeting of dear friends, who became such during my visit last year. Among these are Capt. H. J. Ward, and Bro. J. J. Gyllis. Bro. Gyllis is the pastor of the church at Neston. Capt. Ward erected the Chapel building mostly at his own expense. He is also President of the "Conditional Immortality Association," which had its annual meeting in London last September. It is composed of able men in England and Scotland, who stand up boldly for the great Bible truth that only Christ's disciples can have eternal life, and that all out of him must be utterly destroyed, instead of being tormented eternally. This Association has just opened a Book and Tract Repository in the heart of London, where may be found a good variety of books and tracts on the subject of conditional immortality. The store is at 25 A Farringdon St., near Ludgate Circus. Circus in London means where several streets come together, about the same as a "square" in the States. Bro. Edward Hobbs has the charge of the Repository.

After a short and pleasant visit with the brethren at Liverpool, I left for London the same day at 2.05 P. M., and arrived in the great city at Euston Station 6.33 P. M., having traveled on the North Western railway at the rate of forty-five miles per hour, including the stoppages. When riding through the streets of London to my home, near Charring Cross, my heart was full of gratitude to the Lord for his many rich blessings, and I praised him aloud in the cab, as I rode on my way to my resting place, where I had a home last winter. I prepare my own food, and take much comfort in my plain mode of living on a vegetarian diet, and two meals a day. It is now nearly thirty-five years since I have eaten flesh, fish or fowl, and nearly twenty-five years but two meals a day. I use no pies or cakes, nor any seasoning on my food. I praise the Lord for my perfect health, peace and love. I am longing to see Jesus, and help crown him Lord of all. My faith was never stronger that he is soon coming. The time has arrived to publish the good news far and wide, and to speak out with boldness, as do those who have good news to declare.

I find the doors wide open, as when I left last summer, to receive the evidence of the near coming of our long absent Saviour. Some twenty places are already waiting for a series of meetings. The outlook for work is encouraging. There is much less prejudice in England towards preaching on the Lord's near coming than in America. There are many able men, who do not hesitate to speak out distinctly on the subject. The truth on conditional immortality is also spreading, and is believed and advocated by many strong men. This is a favored hour for Christian workers. Soon the great Deliver will come in all his glory, when the faithful soldier will be changed in a moment from mortal to an immortal state. It is grand to be living in these last hours of the closing days of the Christian dispensation, when we may hope to be in the last fight with the powers of darkness. O what a glorious hope is ours! All else seems as nothing in comparison. Eternal life! What is its value? Who can tell? It is truly the "UNSPEAKABLE GIFT."

Last Lord's day I preached in a Congregationalist Church in London, on Maynard Road. The pastor, Bro. Holway, was educated at Oberlin, O. He is an earnest Christian worker. He wishes me to hold a series of revival meetings in his church, but I am engaged in other places for November. Bro. E. P. Hammond and wife, who sailed with me on the "Oregon" last Nov., have remained in Europe till the present time, and are now holding revival meetings in London, in Dr. Patterson's church. A goodly number have been converted. By his request I have attended some of his meetings, and assisted in the good work.

THE TOWER OF LONDON.

I took occasion to visit this noted old place, which might be properly called a State Prison, where noted criminals were tried, tortured, and executed. The square "White Tower" in the centre of the court was built by William the Conqueror, in 1078. This is the most ancient part of the buildings. It is also called the "Keep," which is considered the strongest part of a castle. It is 116 feet long, 96 feet wide, and 92 feet high. The walls are over thirteen feet thick. In this tower Richard II. abdicated in favor of Henry of Bolingbroke in 1399. Here Prince James, of Scotland, was imprisoned in 1405. On ascending the staircase through walls fifteen feet thick, we pass by the place under which were found the bones of two young princes, sons of Edward IV., murdered by their uncle, Richard III. Their bones are now in Westminster Abbey, and known by the titles of Edward V. and Duke of York. On the first floor are two rooms, in which Sir Walter Raleigh is said to have been confined, and wrote his history of the world (1605–47). On the second floor is the Chapel of St. John, which is said to be one of the finest and best preserved specimens of Norman architecture found in England.

We come next to the "Banqueting Hall," which is now turned into an arsenal. There are a large number of small arms tastefully arranged. Bayonets, ramrods, and swords, are so arranged as to represent sun-flowers and stars. The "Council Chamber" is on the upper floor. In this Richard II. abdicated. It now contains a large and valuable collection of old armor, such as was worn in the time of Edward I., from 1272 to James II., 1688. Some of these are made of chain network; but most of them are of plates, so arranged as to protect the entire body from the spear thrusts of their foes. These were worn by kings, princes, and knights, and some are very costly, being richly inlaid with gold. Their horses were also protected with plate armor. The armor worn by these noted men weighed from fifty to one hundred pounds. If Saul's armor was at all like these, no wonder David was unwilling to wear it when he went against Goliath, the giant Philistine. These suits were worn at their grand tournament six hundred years ago, and since. Twenty-two of these armor-clothed men are represented as seated upon their horses ready for action. Among these are Henry VIII. and Charles I. Some of the armorial suits are covered with engravings, including those on the horses. It is well that the days of knighthood are passed.

Among the horrid, old relics are the instruments of torture, such as thumb-screws, neck-collars with spikes, the block on which Lord Lovat, who was the last one beheaded in England, in 1747; also a beheading axe, used in the execution of the Earl of Essex. Here is seen the uniform worn by the Duke of Wellington, when constable of the Tower; also the cloak worn by Gen. Wolfe, who was killed at Quebec, Canada, in 1759. Among the instruments of torture is a representation of the rack, having a female passing through the agony produced by that fiendish instrument. If the Roman Catholics had the power, we might expect the same things acted over again. Under the White Tower is the dungeon and torture chamber.

The "Crown Jewels," or "Regalia," are kept in what is called the "Wakefield Tower." In this Tower is deposited "Queen Victoria's crown," made in 1838. It is adorned with 2783 diamonds, with a large ruby in front, said to have been given by Don Pedro, of Castile, to the Black Prince in 1367, and was worn by Henry V. on his helmet. The crown has also a magnificent sapphire. This Tower also contains the "Prince of Wales' crown," of pure gold; the "Queen Consort's crown," of gold, set with jewels; the "Queen's crown," which is a golden circlet, embellished with diamonds and pearls, and was made for the wife of James II. "St. Edward's Staff," made of gold, four and one-half feet long, and weighing about ninety pounds. The top is said to contain a piece of the true cross. The "Royal Sceptre" with the cross, two feet nine inches long, richly ornamented with precious stones. Besides these, there are various other valuable sceptres, swords, bracelets, spurs, spoons, fountains, basins, etc. The total value of all these regalia is estimated at fifteen million dollars.

There are fourteen towers within the tower walls, and at one time the twelve towers of the Inner Ward were all used as prisons. These towers have many painful records. The Princess Elizabeth was confined in the "Bell Tower" by her sister Queen Mary. Lady Jane Grey is said to have been imprisoned in the "Brick Tower." The husband of Lady Jane Grey, Lord Guilford Dudley, with his father and brothers, were confined in "Beauchamp Tower." Henry VI. was believed to have been murdered in "Wakefield Tower." The "Beauchamp Tower was built in 1199–1216, and consists of two stories, which are reached by narrow winding stairs. In this Tower the walls of the room on the first floor are covered with inscriptions made by the prisoners. In one corner is seen the word "Jane," supposed to represent Lady Jane Grey as queen, but not inscribed by her own hand.

At the northwest corner of Tower Hill is the Chapel of St. Peter, built by Edward I. Near by is a small burying-ground. Thirty-four beheaded persons are buried in this chapel. The tomb-stone slabs form a part of the floor of the chapel. Among those beheaded and buried here are Thomas Moore, beheaded in 1535; Queen Anne Boleyn, beheaded 1536; Thomas Cromwell, Earl of Essex, beheaded 1540; and Lady Jane Grey and her husband, Lord Guilford Dudley, beheaded 1554.

Many noted person were confined in the Towers. Among these were Wm. Wallace, the Scotland patriot, 1305. David Bruce, king of Scotland, 1347; King John of France, 1537; Archbishop Cranmer, 1553; Sir Thomas Wyatt, who was beheaded on Tower Hill in 1554; Archbishop Laud (beheaded 1643); Lord William Russell (beheaded 1683); Duke of Marlborough, 1692, and many others. Northwest of the Tower, on Tower Hill, was the traitors' scaffold. Wm. Penn was born on Tower Hill. Between the outside and inside walls, surrounding these towers, was a moat or ditch, some rods wide, which was kept filled with water from the Thames. Prisoners were brought on the Thames to the Tower, and taken through a gate from the river into the fortress, and then through another gate, where they were placed in the hands of cruelty, with no chance for escape.

Thank the Lord that those dark days are in the past. When walking up the stone steps of those Towers, where the tortured victims of jealousy, ambition, malice and revenge have gone trembling, expecting that worse and worse things awaited them, till death should end their terrible agonies, I felt glad that the great Deliverer is about to come and raise the dead, and let innocence go free forever.

Macaulay, when speaking of the little cemetery adjoining the Chapel of St. Peter says: "In truth, there is no sadder spot on earth." He goes on to say it associated "with whatever is darkest in human nature and in human destiny, with the savage triumph of implacable enemies, with the inconstancy, the ingratitude, the cowardice of friends, with all the miseries of fallen greatness, and of blighted fame."

This "Tower of London" was both the residence and prison house of kings. Now a portion of the fortress is used for soldiers' barracks. An attempt was made last year to blow up the Tower. Since then it has been closed to visitors till within a few weeks. I had to go to our American minister to obtain a recommendation to the English War Office, for a permit before I could enter. Last year any one could get in by paying the entrance fee, and stay as long as he pleased, without any guide; but now, even those who have a special ticket cannot go in without an official escort, besides watchful police. The dynamiters have made many hearts tremble and have caused a very special watchfulness over foreigners. In America one feels that there is license; in England that is government.

JESUS CHRIST: HIS PERSON, HIS CHARACTER, AND HIS TEACHINGS.

BY SILAS HENN.

"Now when Jesus came into the parts of Cæsarea Philippi, he asked his disciples, saying, Who do men say that I the Son of man am? And they said, Some say John the Baptist; some, Elijah; and others, Jeremiah, or one of the prophets. He saith unto them, But who say ye that I am? And Simon Peter answered and said, Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God."—Matt. 16: 13–16. "In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God."—John 1: 1. "I and the Father are one."—John 10: 30. "Who did no sin, neither was guile found in His mouth."—1 Pet. 2: 22. "Never man so spake."—John 7: 46.

Whatever view we take of the Divine Being, and whichever way we look at his nature, or from whatever stand-point we look at it, we are in a measure bewildered. No finite mind can comprehend what is incomprehensible. We may assert what we believe to be taught in Holy Scripture without understanding it, and our not understanding it would be no evidence that it was not taught there, nor would it be any evidence that what was taught there was not true. It would be strange if a finite creature could understand the infinite Creator,—if a being of yesterday could comprehend the eternal Being. Accepting God's Word then as true, let us believe what it appears to us to teach, even though it may be above our reason or understanding to explain.

Many things are said of Christ in books and sermons which you do well not to believe, but take heed that you do not disbelieve what the Sacred Scriptures say of him. We are sometimes astonished and grieved at the degrading views which some hold and express concerning Christ. They doubt his proper divinity, and they doubt it in the face of the clearest evidence, and they doubt as if it were a great virtue to doubt.

Christ is a subject of thought which can never be exhausted. To thousands of a skeptical turn he is a problem they cannot solve; to the believer, he is the object of faith, and the source of truth, and purity, and hope, and immortality. It is our purpose to offer a few remarks on his person, and character, and teachings, and these passages shall form the basis of our remarks.

The term, "the Son of man," makes Christ one with the human race. But though one with the race, there was one point in which he was unlike the race; he was without sin; his conduct was altogether blameless; his character was unimpeachable, and was most amiable. A careful examination of the New Testament, where the simple phrase Son occurs, will show, we think, that there is generally included in it both the divine and the human natures. The majority of such passages relate to Christ in his complex nature as the incarnate One. He is the Son, and in his person the Son of God and the Son of man are united.

Christ, in his divine nature, is the Son of God, and possesses the same nature and attributes as the Father. The flood of light that proceeds from the noon-day sun is of the same nature as the sun; the beautiful stream of water that runs from the never-failing spring, is of the same nature as the spring: so the Son of God, who proceeds from the Father, is of the same nature as the Father. The Father is divine, so is the Son; the Father is God, so is the Son. This is above our comprehension; but our faith accepts this on the testimony of the Word, though we cannot properly or satisfactorily explain it.

Scripture not only teaches that God is the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, but it teaches that he is the Father of Christ in a higher sense than he is our Father. It teaches therefore that Christ is the Son of God in a higher sense than we, as believers, are the sons of God.

Scripture teaches that Christ was the Son of God before he came into the world, yea, before the worlds were made. He is the Son of God in a sense in which the highest angel is not the Son of God. He is the Son of God in a sense so high, so peculiar, that he is called "the only begotten Son." This phrase, according to the usage of the New Testament, Dean Alford informs us, "signifies the only Son." "It refers to, and contrasts with, the children of God in verses 12 and 13. They receive their divine birth by faith in him, and through him; but He is the only begotten of the Father in the higher sense in which he is begotten the Son of God." He also tells us, though preferring the common reading, that "a remarkable various reading, the only begotten God, occurs here in many of our oldest MSS., versions and Fathers." The expression, "the only begotten Son," signifies, says Chrysostom, as quoted by the Dean, "Kindred and oneness of essence."

It was as the Son of God that Christ possessed the nature of God, and the attributes of God. According to his own words, the Son was with the Father "before the world was," an expression which indicates from eternity. John declares him to be the Word, and the Word he declares to be God, and the Word he declares was with God in the beginning, a phrase which indicates "eternal pre-existence." John further declares that all things were made by the Word, and that without him was not any thing made that hath been made; and therefore he existed before all creation. This phrase, "was in the beginning," says Alford, "is not said of an act done in the beginning (as in Gen. 1: 1), but of a state existing in the beginning, and therefore without beginning itself."

The Jews understood Christ as claiming to be the Son of God in a far higher sense than either angels or saints are sons of God. They regarded him as claiming the nature of Deity when he called God his Father, and declared his oneness with him. And on the ground of these sayings, they accused him of blasphemy, or "making himself equal with God." Being the only begotten Son of God, he possesses the nature of God, the attributes of God, and because of this claim to divine Sonship, the Jews in their ignorance, believing him to be simply a man, regarded him as a deceiver, and laid to his charge the sin of blasphemy.

In his note on John 5: 18, Alford says, "The Jews understood his words to mean nothing short of peculiar personal Sonship, and thus equality of nature with God. And the utterances of Christ that followed show that he regarded their understanding of this expression as correct. He meant by it what they thought he meant. But like some in our day they did not see this truth. They did, however, judge rightly of the meaning of his words, but denied his claim to be what his words affirm he was. In our day his words are explained away. The true sense of all his discourses in reference to his nature is ingeniously put away, and a wrong sense is substituted for it.

But still further proof of the expression, Son of God, being used to set forth Christ's divinity, is furnished in John 19: 7. Pilate, who had convictions of the Saviour's innocence, but not honesty and courage enough to act up to them, declared to the chief priests and the officers that he found no crime in him, which the Jews answered him, "We have a law, and by that law he ought to die, because he made himself the Son of God." This language still more strongly confirms the view we have given that this phrase was understood by the Jews as equivalent to an assertion of Godhead. "In Jewish estimation," says Henry Constable—"and Christ allowed that they were right in this estimation—he who claimed a peculiar relationship of Son of God, claimed thereby true and proper Deity. They knew nothing of the miraculous manner through which Christ took on him our humanity. With them, knowing that Jesus claimed a relationship of Son with God different from, and superior to, that which men or angels could claim, they condemned him for calling himself Son of God, because thereby he claimed co-eternity with the Father." Divine Sonship, therefore, Divinity, Godhead, belonged to Jesus Christ prior to his incarnation.

SOME WORDS IN THE BIBLE SPOKEN BY UNINSPIRED MEN, WHICH ARE NOT TRUE.

BY J. S. WHITE.

We have many times heard passages quoted from the book of Job as if Job had said those words, though Job had not spoken them. I will notice a few out of many.

Eliphaz said to Job, "Now a thing was secretly brought to me, and mine ear received a little thereof. In thoughts from the visions of the night, when deep sleep falleth on men, fear came upon me, and trembling, which made all my bones to shake. Then a spirit passed before my face; the hair of my flesh stood up: it stood still, but I could not discern the form thereof; an image was before mine eyes, there was silence, and I heard a voice, saying, Shall mortal man be more just than God? shall a man be more pure than his Maker? Behold, he putteth no trust in his servants; and his angels he charged with folly." Job 4: 12–18.

Zophar charged Job with lies and wickedness. Job, chapter 11. Bildad, in speaking to Job as if he were a wicked man, said, "He shall be driven from light into darkness, and chased out of the world." These three men, taking Job to be a very wicked man, said much to him and about him that was not true. This is implied in what the Lord said to them. "And it was so, that after the Lord had spoken these words unto Job, the Lord said to Eliphaz the Temanite, My wrath is kindled against thee, and against thy two friends: for ye have not spoken of me the thing that is right, as my servant Job hath. Therefore take unto you now seven bullocks and seven rams, and go to my servant Job, and offer up for yourselves a burnt offering; and my servant Job shall pray for you: for him will I accept: lest I deal with you after your folly, in that ye have not spoken of me the thing which is right, like my servant Job. So Eliphaz the Temanite and Bildad the Shuhite and Zophar the Naamathite went, and did according as the Lord commanded them: the Lord also accepted Job." Job 42: 7–9.

After these three men ceased to answer Job, Elihu the Buzite, a young man who had heard the long argument between Job and the three aged men, and who had been filling up with indignation and wrath, and being full of conceit, he opened upon Job and his three friends by way of charging them all with ignorance, wickedness, and inability to sustain themselves. He said: "Great men are not always wise; neither do the aged understand judgment. Therefore I said, Hearken to me, for I am full of the matter; the spirit within me constraineth me. Behold, my belly is as wine which hath no vent; it is ready to burst like new bottles." He said to Job, "Hearken unto me; hold thy peace, and I will teach thee wisdom. Job hath spoken without knowledge, and his words were without wisdom. For he addeth rebellion unto his sin; he clappeth his hands among us, and uttereth his words against God. Therefore doth Job open his mouth in vain; he uttereth words without knowledge."

Elihu in his egotism said to Job: "Mark well, O Job, hearken unto me; hold thy peace, and I will speak. If thou hast anything to say, answer me; speak, for I desire to justify thee; if not, hearken unto me; hold thy peace, and I will show thee wisdom. What man is like Job, who drinketh up scorning like water? which goeth in company with the workers of iniquity, and walketh with wicked men. Because there is wrath, beware lest he take thee away with his stroke; then a great ransom cannot deliver thee. Take heed; regard not iniquity; for this hast thou chosen rather than affliction."

Elihu claimed superior wisdom, perfect knowledge, a perfect and sinless character, while he condemned Job as if he were the wickedest of wicked men. Elihu claimed great respect for God, all the way in his long speech. He also claimed to be perfect beyond anything that I have ever heard in modern times. He said to Job, "For truly my words shall not be false; he that is perfect in knowledge is with thee."

In the opening of his argument he led off with a text of his own making: "But there is a spirit in man; and the inspiration of the Almighty giveth them understanding." This is a great proof text with some that man is not an animal; that he is above an animal; that he has a spirit which an animal does not have, and that he may have a life that lives after and while he is dead.

We have seen Elihu's text quoted as proof positive, not by one man only, that man has an immortal, conscious soul that survives the death of the body, which soul is the real man, and which can and will live forever. If all that Elihu said of man is strictly true, it in no sense proves that man has a spirit, or soul, that cannot die; for the beasts have a spirit, and God has given them understanding; but it does not follow that they are alive while they are dead.

It does not appear that Job or the Lord took any notice of Elihu's slanderous harangue. It would seem that a man must be hard pushed for argument to refer to Elihu's text to find evidence of the truth of the old serpent, which said, "Thou shalt not surely die."

THE RESURRECTION OF THE DEAD. NO. I.

BY J. H. PETTINGELL.

"If a man die, shall he live again?"—JOB 14: 14.

I listened to a sermon by an English clergyman—Rev. Dr. Sexton of London—a few evenings since, to a crowded and enthusiastic congregation, in the Central Congregational Church of this city, on the text quoted above. Extensive notice had been given. Every part of the house was filled to overflowing. Several ministers of different denominations were in the pulpit with him, and others were in the house. The audience all appeared to be highly gratified with the discourse. He was frequently applauded, and a generous collection for his benefit was taken up at the close of the service. And yet, I must say that I listened with sadness and pain to the performance; and I cannot but hope that there might have been some others—though there were evidently but few, if any—who sympathized with me. For it was a sermon—though preached by a so-called Christian minister, in a Christian pulpit, to a Christian congregation—that might have been preached by an intelligent Pagan or Mohammedan, or even by an infidel; for there was not the faintest allusion to Christ in what he said, from beginning to end. The gospel was utterly ignored. No one who heard him would infer from his argument—for it was an argument in behalf of the doctrine of the immortality of man—that he had ever heard of Christ or his gospel.

Instead of attempting to answer the inquiry of Job in the text—"If a man die, shall he live again?" he undertook to show that man does not, will not, can not die at all. Of course, if there is no death, there is no living again. And yet he assumed, and indeed said, that he was answering Job's inquiry in the affirmative, and his hearers appeared to be well satisfied with his argument. In this way do these Platonized Christian (?) teachers "darken counsel by words without knowledge," and flatter themselves and their willing followers with the idea that they are doing God service when they are flatly contradicting the plainest utterance of his Word.

His argument was the same that has been current from the days of Socrates and Plato till now, and which we all have heard over and over again a thousand times, though drawn out in a popular and plausible form, namely: From the nature of the soul, its instincts and high aspirations, and capacity for perpetual advancement, it must be immortal.

These Grecian philosophers assumed that the soul was eternal in its pre-existence, had never been created, and therefore they concluded it would never die. But taking no account of this hypothesis upon which the conclusion must rest or it can have no foundation—for surely what had a beginning may have an end—what has been created may be destroyed; taking no account of the fact that all creative life, derived as it is from God, who is the only source of all life, must of necessity depend on his will for its continuance; and no account of the fact of sin, which vitiates everything, throws us out of harmony with God and our environment, and is destructive in its very nature; he undertakes to show, and thinks he does show, that the soul, by a certain vis vitæ of its own, lives right on and on forever, whatever may be its condition or surroundings; that the body, in which the soul now dwells is not the man, nor any essential part of him. It is only the shell or outward covering: when the soul gets through using it, it is thrown aside, like an old worn-out garment, never again to be resumed; and the real man rises in greater freedom and activity into a higher state of existence; that what we call death is not actual death, excepting to their gross body, but is in reality only a natural step in its process of upward development.

Now Job evidently thought that man dies, actually dies, or he would not have asked the question—"Does he live again?" This is evident from the context: "He cometh forth as a flower, and is cut down. He fleeth also as a shadow, and continueth not. Man dieth and wasteth away; yea, man giveth up the ghost, and where is he?"

The Bible most certainly teaches, from beginning to end, that man dies; that he might have continued to live if he had continued to live without sin, but that this boon was forfeited by sin, and now he must surely die, and die because he is a sinner. "The wages of sin is death." "The soul that sinneth, it shall die." "It is appointed unto man once to die," and so in hundreds of other texts that might be cited.

There is but one text in all the Bible that contradicts this uniform testimony, and that is in the words of the tempter to Eve—"Ye shall not surely die." And this is the passage that the learned Doctor should have taken for his text, for this was his theme.

But the Bible not only teaches that death is universal, but it also teaches that man lives again—not because he is naturally immortal, but because he has been redeemed from this death by the death and resurrection of Christ. "As in Adam all die, so in Christ all shall be made alive." The one is as universal as the other. But this does not give to all men immortality. If man receives the gift of eternal life that is now offered him in the gospel, and is again united to God through Christ by a new birth, he rises to a life that shall never end in his kingdom. But for all who fail of this great salvation there is a second death, from which there is no redemption.

This anti-scriptural dogma of the deathless nature of man does away with the necessity of a resurrection. It is inconsistent with it. If the souls of men rise into greater freedom and activity when they cast off their mortal coils—if they go directly to the joys of heaven or the agonies of hell, as their doctrine teaches—why should they come back after a time to get their old bodies again? "If the souls of the saints," as good old Tyndale said, "be in heaven, tell me why they be not in as good case as the angels be? And then what cause is there of the resurrection?" It turns this great event, which was the hope and desire of the early disciples, into an unmeaning pageant; and so the advocates of this dogma of the natural immortality of all men endeavor to explain it away. They retain the words "the resurrection of the dead" because it is scriptural, and they must make some use of it. But it is only the word emptied of all its meaning. If every man rises at death—or rather if there be no death, and every one rises to his true place in the life beyond when he casts off this body of flesh and blood—it is idle to call this "a resurrection from the dead." It may be an ascension, or a translation such as Enoch and Elijah experienced, but it is not a resurrection. Indeed, we are now told that the departure of every saint is very much like the translation of these saints.

But enough for the present. I must reserve further remarks on this point for a future article.

THE GLORIOUS APPEARING.

BY GEO. H. PULLEY.

"Looking for that blessed hope, and the glorious appearing of the great God and our Saviour Jesus Christ."—TITUS 2: 13.

In the text Paul directs attention to the second personal coming of Jesus the Christ to this earth, once the scene of his sufferings and death. Old Testament prophecy pointed to two distinct advents or personal manifestations of the Messiah. One of these is indisputably past, while the majority of Christians locate the second in the future. Jesus was once on earth, but did not long remain here. After his public ministry of about three and a half years he ascended to the seat of honor at his Father's right hand, where he has been ever since. Before his ascension he gave the promise to his disciples that he would come again to receive his people to himself.

The first coming of Christ is the supreme event of the past, and the second coming of "this same Jesus who was taken into heaven" is the supreme event of the future. The church of Christ on earth looks back to his first advent as the dawn of hope, and forward to his second advent as the grand realization of hope. There is an amazing contrast between the circumstances and events attending the two advents of our Lord.

His first coming was in sorrow and shame; his second coming will be in "the glory of his Father, with his holy angels." The object of his first coming was to put away sin by the sacrifice of himself; but "unto them that look for him shall he appear the second time without sin-offering unto salvation." At his first advent he was despised and rejected of men; at his second advent he shall be glorified in his saints, and admired by all them that believe in that day." He came at first as a servant, in the form of sinful man; he will next appear as King of kings, clad in the robes of royal majesty. He came once as a man of sorrows and acquainted with grief; he is coming by-and-by to banish sorrow and pain, and wipe the tears from all faces. At his first advent he was led forth as a captive from prison and from judgment; at his second advent he will destroy satan's empire, and release the captives held in death's dark prison-house. He will then abolish death, and bestow endless life upon his redeemed ones. The Christian can now sing

> Ere long I know he shall appear,
> In power and glory great,
> And death, the last of all his foes,
> Lies vanquished at his feet

He was seen by only a few at the time of his birth; but when he shall "come in the clouds of heaven, with power and great glory, every eye shall see him, and they also that pierced him." No royal pomp nor kingly splendor attended his first advent, and little stir was caused by his lowly birth; but at his second advent both heaven and earth shall be stirred by the impressive grandeur of his appearing. Shining legions of his mighty angels shall be summoned to attend their triumphant Lord in his descent to earth, and in view of that grand yet awful sight all the nations of the earth shall mourn because of him. He came once as a Lamb, the great antitype of the paschal lamb; he will soon appear as the Lion of the tribe of Judah, and unsheathe his sword, his dreadful sword, for the final controversy with the nations.

How striking the contrast between his first coming as a light to lighten the Gentiles, and his second coming "in flaming fire, taking vengeance on them that know not God, and that obey not the gospel." At his first advent an angelic choir sang of his birth in celestial strains, that thrilled the hearts of the wondering shepherds; at his second advent many of them that sleep in the dust shall awake and sing, and this is the song they shall sing: "Thou wast slain, and hast redeemed us to God by thy blood out of every kindred, and tongue, and people, and nation; and hast made us unto our God kings and priests: and we shall reign on the earth."

By his enemies he was last seen hanging upon the cross; the next time they shall behold him seated upon his great white throne. Pilate and Herod, together with the high-priest, and all those who once accused him, and clamored for his death, shall see him seated on the right hand of power, and coming in the clouds of heaven. Once he wore a crown of thorns plaited by the hands of wicked men; he will wear a crown of glory when he comes again. In mockery and derision of his claims to kingship his enemies placed in his hand a reed for a sceptre; when he shall return to vindicate his right to take possession of the kingdoms of earth, and rule and reign, a sceptre of righteousness shall be the sceptre of his kingdom, and he shall rule in a restored world, filled with the glory of God, and peopled by a race of holy, immortalized beings. Once he stood before a judgment seat, innocent yet condemned; at his second coming he will summon the countless inhabitants of earth before his own judgment throne.

The attendant circumstances and events combine to make the second advent of Jesus a glorious appearing. It is the hope of the righteous, and the terror of the ungodly. The blast of the trumpet will be the signal of deliverance for the saints, and the knell of doom for the sinner.

The second coming of Christ is the hope that cheers our hearts, and points us forward to that glorious land of rest we are longing to behold. Added to the expectation of his return we have the blessed prospect of soon seeing the King in his beauty. We have seen the signs foretold by the Saviour, and can therefore look up and lift up our heads, knowing that our Redeemer in his resurrection and life-giving power draweth nigh. Signs celestial and terrestrial proclaim in thunder-tones the joyful fact that He, the prophet's theme, the great Deliverer is near. There is now as never before "distress of nations, with perplexity." The end cannot be far distant. The poet has well said:

> "The storm has surely well-nigh reached its height.
> Oh! come, thou Prince of Peace, and still the waves.
> Amid the fearful fight for earthly thrones, oh! come,
> Thou King of kings, and reign supreme.
> Amid the desolating darkness here we look, oh Sun of > Righteousness!
> For thee we wait, and long to hear thy
> Chariot wheels: their lightning flash of glory
> Shall proclaim to all, from north to south,
> The day of joy, the day of vengeance come."

The dawn of that day will bring the great salvation long waited for by the just. Weary waiting ones shall then find the long sought for rest—rest in Eden's bowers. How those eyes will brighten that have grown dim with long watching! Sufferings will then be o'er, and endless pleasures the portion of the saints, in the Paradise of God.

Christ is coming! The whole creation groans, and waits to hear the voice that shall restore her comeliness, and cause her wastes to rejoice. He is coming to judge the people with his truth, and rule the world in righteousness. He is coming to bring deliverance to the oppressed, and punishment to the oppressors. The prayers and tears and groans of the saints for ages past shall then come up in remembrance before God, and to great Babylon, the persecutor of the saints, shall be given to drink the cup of his indignation and wrath.

In that day righteousness alone shall be exalted. Sin, that foul blot, shall be wiped out from the earth. Ultimately God will have a clean universe. All that is not harmonious and consistent with the divine will must cease to be. The prophetic petition, "Thy kingdom come," shall find its complete and glorious fulfillment when Christ's throne is planted on the earth, and only love and obedience prevails in all his vast empire. This happy condition of affairs will not be reached until "He comes whose right it is to reign." For that day let us wait, and watch, and pray, and while doing so we can sing with good Dr. Watts:

> "How bright the vision!
> O how long shall that glad hour delay?
> Fly swifter round, ye wheels of time,
> And bring the welcome day."

IF we are sanctified, our lives will be pure, our conversation will be God-like. Instead of living as we did before we attained this blessed state of grace, our lives will be so much more consistent and holy, as to lead others to see that a great change has been affected in us."

SCOFFERS, OR CHRIST NOT WANTED.

(Republished.)

From the commencement of the Saviour's ministry on earth until this hour, the bitter tones of derision have not ceased to mingle with the prayers and anthems of the church. Christ's earliest teachings were met by the sarcastic criticism: "Is not this the carpenter's son? Is not his mother called Mary? and his brethren James, and Joses, and Simon, and Judas? And they were offended in him." And when he was expiating the world's guilt in the blood and agony of a tragical death, they that passed by reviled him, wagging their heads." Nor did our Lord's personal exit from among his enemies abate at all the relentless hatred which his ministry of love and sacrifice had awakened. The early church was made to drink of the cup, mingled with gall, that had been pressed to the lips of her crucified Lord. For nearly three hundred years, wading in the blood of her martyrs, she was the object of universal scorn. During the medieval period, the real followers of the Nazarene were swept away by popular contempt —through fiery torture and death—as fast as they sprung up. The opening of the Reformation was hailed by a storm of insolent ridicule and mockery. And the great Advent movement—the proclamation of Christ's personal and imminent appearing—has provoked afresh the old spirit of jealousy, hatred and reproach which sent the Son of God to a felon's death, and has reddened the path of the church, through the ages, with Christian blood.

But the scoffers and the scoffing of to-day are peculiar. Adventists and Adventism constitute, chiefly, the butt of ridicule. And this derision of our Lord's appearing is, in itself, a sign of the advent near. The Holy Ghost, in the words of St. Peter, long ago, predicted just this kind of criticism; "Knowing this first, that there shall come in the last days scoffers, walking after their own lusts, and saying, Where is the promise of his coming? for since the fathers fell asleep all things continue as they were from the beginning of the creation." 2 Peter 3: 3, 4.

This language is very suggestive as well as descriptive. Who are these scoffers of "the last days? Not the common masses of wicked men. They do not reason—as in the language quoted—from the stability of nature "since the fathers fell asleep" to the conclusion that the "promise of his coming" is a failure. They do not reason upon this class of subjects at all. They may jeer and persecute, but they do not reason. Nor are St. Peter's scoffers the learned skeptics of this age. They regard the whole matter with scientific contempt; holding, as Mr. Darwin said, that "Christ and science have no relation to each other, except in as far as the habit of scientific investigation makes a man cautious about accepting any proof." But these "last day" scoffers are persons somewhat familiar with the Scriptures, and know that Christ's return is promised; and their reasoning is that the stability of nature "since the fathers fell asleep" is evidence that the "promise of his coming," in any sense that would disturb the present physical order of things, has failed; and their words are pointed with a tone of contempt and ridicule, as though some class of people had been ignorantly looking for the promised coming, in a visible manner and for literal purposes, and had been disappointed. And, moreover, their argument seems to have been drawn out by some proclamation of "His coming," the force of which they desire to controvert. We conclude, therefore, that St. Peter's prediction describes a class of men who stand at the head of religious society, and dictate religious sentiment.

How exactly and strikingly the prediction of the apostle characterizes the present time! About half a century ago a world-wide proclamation began to be made of Christ's personal, literal appearing at hand, based on the fulfillment of prophecy and the occurring New Testament "signs." The first effect upon the popular mind was profound and startling. Hundreds of ministers in the different denominations accepted the message as from God, and went forth with the cry, "Behold the Bridegroom cometh!" Many pulpits were thrown open, and the people everywhere were anxious to hear the evidences of the immediately approaching judgment. The Holy Spirit's power attended the preaching of the word in a wonderful manner. The pentecostal unction rested on all who believed. Thousands and tens of thousands of wicked men "exceedingly feared and quaked," and many were converted. It seemed for a time that the grand proclamation would sweep around the world. Of Mr. Miller's preaching in Lansingburg, N. Y., it was written by one who was present: "I have never witnessed so powerful an effect in any place, as in this, on all who heard. I am of the opinion that not less than one hundred persons who held infidel sentiments are brought to believe in the Bible. Infidelity is dumb, as if frightened, and converts are many."—History Advent Message, p. 66.

And so it was in hundreds of other places. But, as concerning the first advent, so now, bitter and relentless opposition soon arose, having its origin in and drawing its chief strength from the hostile criticism of the pulpit. The message was denounced as essentially fanatical, a disturbance of the peace of the church, and every way injurious to Christian society. The pulpit was seconded, largely, by the religious press; and opposition became general, violent, and sometimes scandalous. This, we believe, was the beginning of the scoffing described in 2 Pet. 3: 3, 4. And from that time to the present the doctrine of Christ's personal advent at hand has not ceased to be the subject of popular religious contempt.

Are not these "scoffers" the same class that Christ denounced in Matt. 24: 48-51: "But and if that evil servant shall say in his heart, My lord delayeth his coming; and shall begin to smite his fellow-servants, and to eat and drink with the drunken; the lord of that servant shall come in a day when he looketh not for him, and in an hour that he is not aware of, and shall cut him asunder, and appoint him his portion with the hypocrites; there shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth."

These "evil servants" only say, "My lord delayeth his coming." But it is very clear that their wish is father to their words, for they "smite their fellow servants"—those servants who believe and teach the Lord's coming at hand—"and eat and drink with the drunken." And it is remarkable that Christ predicts the appearance of these "evil servants" in the period of the special signs of his immediate coming; and Peter locates them in the "last days." We think their identity is as certain as their doom is terrible.

The truth is—sad and painful truth—Christ is not wanted in this world. When he came in his first advent he was regarded as an intruder, and put away as quickly as possible—by bloody hands. The dominant religious sentiment of that time acknowledged the need of no such Christ as he. And great Christendom of to-day is fond of a Christ afar off; but with a personal Jesus coming soon to reign literally on earth they will have nothing to do. Of such a Christ the cry still is, "Away with him!" Nevertheless, "Unto them that look for him shall he appear the second time without sin unto salvation.

Awfully will the doom of the judgment day fall on many classes of unsaved men; but none will wail with deeper anguish than the "EVIL SERVANTS" who seek to smother the awakened apprehensions of the world with contemptuous scoffing at the "promise of his coming."

FROM MANY LANDS.

RANGOON, Nov. 12. King Theebaw has issued a proclamation declaring that he will not accept the absurd proposals of the Indian Government and therefore declaring war. He promises personally to lead his troops, and calls upon his subjects to fight for the defence of their country and religion. Europeans are not to be molested until the invaders cross the frontier, when all are to be slain. Many Europeans are leaving Mandalay unhindered. The Italian Consul will remain there for the present.

PARIS, Nov. 12. The Burmese Envoy has gone to ask Bismarck to arrange with England for the settlement of the dispute between Burmah and Great Britain.

LONDON, Nov. 12. Mr. Varley, the converted butcher, to-day headed one hundred sympathizers of Mr. Stead and marched to the Home Office to petition Sir Richard Cross, the Home Secretary, for the release of Mr. Stead from prison. Mr. Varley was alone admitted to the Home Office, and when he returned to the street he informed the crowd that the officials had grossly insulted him. This announcement was received with groans. The police then interfered and compelled the crowd to move on.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 12. Reports from interior points state that the late cyclone was attended with loss of life and of much property. The residence of Larry England, in Grundy county, was struck and Mr. England was killed. Six of the thirteen inmates of the house were seriously injured. Mrs. Winton was dangerously hurt and will probably die. The residences and buildings of Mrs. Martha Winton, James Winton, Bud Lousk, Thomas Folz and Wis Hobbs were greatly damaged. Mr. P. Reagan, residing near Estelle Spring, Coffee county, was blown some distance and injured. His children narrowly escaped death, being covered with debris. The houses of Mrs. Catherine Smith, Mr. Fanning and Frederick Stahl were destroyed. Hurricane Church was laid in ruins. At Harmony the cyclone wrought much destruction. The dwellings of Mr. Dorsey, Mrs. Lavender and Mr. Jones were wrecked and their furniture scattered far and wide. Mrs. Wilson and children had a narrow escape, two logs and a tree top falling upon a bed in which they were lying. Bird Fraley and wife barely escaped with their lives, being dragged from the debris of their house by neighbors.

CHICAGO, Nov. 12. The strike of the freight brakemen on the Illinois Central Railroad has assumed large proportions. The men have asked pay for overtime and Sundays. A number of trains arrived last night and one came in at seven o'clock this morning. The crews of the arriving trains have all joined the ranks of the strikers. The tracks in the yards are full of cars.

NEW YORK, Nov. 12. It is charged that for a long time Albany butchers have been sending the flesh of consumptive cattle to the New York market. Dr. Cyrus Edson has turned his attention to the matter, and yesterday the first seizure was made, and fourteen sides of beef that had been sent from Albany on Tuesday were confiscated. An examination proved that the carcasses were those of cattle that had died of consumption.

The political campaign in England is now at fever heat. No such excitement has been aroused during the past half century. The Liberal prospects declined during the past week, owing to a manifesto issued by some influential Liberal peers declaring their opposition to all candidates who are advocating the disendowment of the church. This is an open avowal of the split in the Liberal party as nearly all the advanced Liberal candidates of the Chamberlain type are pledged to the measure. The Conservatives are making capital out of the difficulty, and will gain to their support many Churchmen who have hitherto voted with the Liberal party.

An important movement in the Bulgarian difficulty took place last week when the Czar of Russia decreed Prince Alexander's dishonorable dismissal from the Russian army. That is regarded as a bold and unequivocal intimation of the attitude Russia will take in the impending struggle. It is expected that it will be the prelude to an occupation of the country by Russian troops, in which case Austria and Germany could not honorably avoid a conflict. Should England, France, and Italy join the two powers the struggle may be averted for the time, as Russia would in that case find herself in antagonism to all Europe.

THE SACRIFICE AND ABOMINATION.

Gabriel reckoned the 1290 and 1335 days "from the time that the daily sacrifice should be taken away and the abomination that maketh desolate set up." The reckoning cannot begin till the last thing mentioned is inaugurated, namely, the setting up of the abomination; so it does not begin with the taking away of the daily sacrifice, unless that occurs at the same time that the abomination is set up, and we insist that there is an intervening space of time between the two events, and the last event is the one to measure from: the real sense of the text is, as thus rendered, "And after the daily sacrifice shall be taken away, and the abomination that maketh desolate is set up, there shall be" so many days.

1. When and by whom was the daily sacrifice taken away? By the Roman horn and his "host," or armies. "Yea, he [the Roman horn] magnified himself even to the prince of the host, and by him the daily sacrifice was taken away, and the place of his [the Prince's] sanctuary was cast down. And an host [or army] was given him against the daily sacrifice by reason of transgression." Dan. 8: 11, 12. In the siege against Jerusalem the daily sacrifice was taken away, and the sanctuary where it was offered was cast down by military force, in keeping with another statement: "And the people of the [Roman] prince that shall come shall destroy the city and the sanctuary, . . . and in the midst of the week he shall cause the sacrifice and oblation to cease." Dan. 9: 26, 27. And this agrees with another statement: "And arms shall stand on his part, and they shall pollute the sanctuary of strength, and shall take away the daily sacrifice, and they shall place the abomination that maketh desolate." Dan. 11: 31. The daily sacrifice was certainly taken away in the Roman siege against Jerusalem, and the sanctuary where it had been offered was also cast down, and all this was accomplished by military force, as attested by history, in agreement with prophecy.

2. When and by whom was the abomination set up? By the same power that took away the daily sacrifice, but not at the same time. Here is where many have blundered in their efforts to discover the truth. There are two stages to the Roman abomination—the Pagan form, to desolate the Jews and Jerusalem, and the Papal form, to desolate the church of Christ; or, as here stated, "they shall fall by the sword, and by flame, by captivity, and by spoil, many days . . . even to the time of the end." Dan. 11: 33, 35. This is the work to be accomplished by the abomination to be set up, from which to measure, not the Pagan, but certainly the Papal. It seems that the Ostrogothic horn was the last hindrance to its supremacy. This abomination was not set up when the Jewish daily sacrifice was taken away, but there was an interval between the two events, and both events must transpire before the measurement could begin. That the Papal "abomination" is meant by the angel, instead of the Pagan, is made certain from the fact that the Pagan abomination did not inaugurate a persecution reaching "even to the time of the end," while the Papal abomination did do just that thing.

Jesus, in referring to the "abomination spoken of by Daniel the prophet," in his reference to Jerusalem's overthrow, does not mean the Papal abomination, but rather the Pagan, spoken of in Dan. 9: 26, 27, the only place where that book couples an "abomination" with the destruction of Jerusalem: "Shall destroy the city and the sanctuary; and the end thereof shall be with a flood, and unto the end of the war desolations are determined. And he shall confirm the covenant with many for one week, . . . and for the overspreading of abominations [or, abomination, in the aggregate] he shall make it desolate." Here is an abomination to precede Jerusalem's destruction—the Pagan abomination—which stood in the holy land before Jerusalem fell. But this is not the abomination given by the angel as the stake from which to measure. The sacred chain cannot run far into the future, and the Lord must come prior to its termination, for it runs to the time Daniel shall stand in his lot, in the new earth.

W. S.

DANIEL 12.

In the first verse the angel predicts the standing up of Michael, the time of trouble to come on the wicked, the deliverance of God's people who shall be found recorded in the Sacred Book; in the second verse he tells us that as a prerequisite to this deliverance, the holy sleepers shall "awake to everlasting life," and shine forever in glory; and then adds: "But thou, O Daniel, shut up the words, and seal the book, even to the time of the end." What then shall happen? "Many shall run to and fro, and knowledge shall be increased." At this juncture "Daniel looked, and behold, there stood other two, the one on this side the bank of the river, and the other on that side of the bank of the river. And one said to the man clothed in linen, which was upon the waters of the river, How long shall it be to the end of these wonders?" Not to their termination, since there will be no cessation to the shining; but to the end, composed of these wonders—how long to these wonders due at the end? "And I heard the man clothed in linen, which was upon the waters of the river, when he held up his right hand and his left hand unto heaven, and sware by him that liveth forever, that it shall be for a time, times and a part [margin, not half]; and when he shall have accomplished to scatter the power of the holy people, all these things shall be finished."

We regard the "time, times and a part," here given, to be exactly 1335 days, for reasons hereafter to be given; and we look upon the scattering mentioned to be a dispersion of a certain "band of holy people" before the specified time should end, instead of being the dissemination of the gospel after it ends. See Revised Translation: "And when they have made an end of breaking in pieces the power of the holy people, all these things shall be finished."

After Daniel had heard this thrilling time oath, he says: "I heard, but I understood not; then said I, O my Lord, what [critically rendered when] shall be the end of these things? And he said, Go thy way, Daniel; for the words are closed up and sealed till the time of the end. [What then?] Many shall be purified, and made white and tried." Doubtless there were two things that Daniel did not understand about this time oath, which led him to inquire after more light; first, he knew not where to begin the measurement; and secondly, he knew not its exact length, it having been given to him in an indefinite way, as a "time, times, and a part." Where should he begin it? What was its length?

In answer to his question, he is told that the matter was sealed up till a certain event in the "time of the end," viz.: "Many shall be purified, made white, and tried," or disappointed; perhaps referring to that marked epoch in Advent history—the trial of their faith in a way the church had never been tried till reaching the "time of the end." Common trials, even in a severe form, had preceded the "time of the end," and also in a more radical form than in the time of the end itself; but here is a new trial of faith characteristic of the time of the end, marking an epoch in the church's history—a disappointment.

After calling attention to this epoch in the time of the end, telling us that though the wicked should not understand, the wise should understand, the angel proceeds to give Daniel a measurement reaching to this epoch in the time of the end—the trial, or the disappointment of the purified ones—saying, "And from the time the daily sacrifice shall be taken away, and the abomination that maketh desolate shall be set up, there shall be 1290 days"—that is, to the epoch just mentioned, the great trial, or disappointment of the purified ones. Here is a clear starting point; the setting up of an "abomination that maketh desolate"—the Papal abomination; so from its supremacy to the trial, or disappointment, should be 1290 days.

What next does the angel say? "Blessed is he that waiteth [after this disappointment] and cometh to the 1335 days." May not this waiting come after the trial that marked the close of the 1290 days, and continue till the end of the 1335 days? The angel does not speak simply of 1335 days, but emphatically of "THE 1335 days," as though it were a previously mentioned measurement, and where else is it mentioned except in the "time, times, and a part"? This seems to us to be the exact truth. "How long shall it be to the end [marked by] these wonders?" The answer when explained is, 1335 days. Where do they begin? With the established abomination, 1290 days before the purified ones are tried, or disappointed. This carries us back to A. D. 554, when the last hindering power to the supremacy of Papacy, the Arian Ostrogothic horn was totally obliterated; and from this point the 1335 days would reach to 1889, a sabbatic year.

But must the Lord come at the end of the days? We think he must come before they end—how long before we do not know—for Daniel will then be found in his lot, subsequent to the purification of earth, which work will require some time, more or less, after the Lord comes. "But go thou thy way till the end be: for thou shalt rest, and stand in thy lot at the end of the days." What days? The very days under consideration—the 1335 days. Then the resurrected saints will "shine" with heavenly brilliancy in the renovated earth.

CONVINCED.

Friend Wilee:—I have read "Pettingell." My mind, I think, is pretty well settled upon the subject of immortality. There is no immortality—no eternal life to the sinner out of Christ, "who hath saved us, and called us with an holy calling, not according to our works—'hath he saved us'—but according to his own purpose and grace, which was given us in Christ Jesus before the world began; . . . who hath abolished death, and hath brought life and immortality to light through the gospel." 2 Tim. We seek for . . . life and immortality through the gospel. It is given to us conditionally—"by faithful continuance in well doing." If we are overcomers through him, we will receive it as a gift from him; for it is his alone to give at his coming. That Christ in person comes to the believer at death, and gives to the immortal soul immortality, and takes him home to heaven, while the body returns to its earth, is not true according to the gospel of the resurrection.

In Gen. 3: 19 the personal pronoun thou is used, and not "body." It is used five times. And so it is in speaking of man all through the Scriptures. That man hath inherent immortality abiding in him since God breathed "the breath of life" in man, and man became a living soul, cannot be true, for the reason that death passed upon all, and all are dead. I have been taught that "the breath of life," or, the breath of the spirit of life" (margin) means the soul—immortal soul. This does not seem to be true, because (Gen. 6: 17 and 7: 22) "all in whose nostrils was the breath of life, died."

All are born to die. But those who are "begotten again into a lively hope by the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead "shall live." 1 Peter 1: 3-5. "The wages of sin is death—(it does not read eternal dying)—but the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord."

Man had access to the tree of life in Eden. He doubtless would have lived forever upon this earth had he not eaten of the "forbidden tree." But when the curse is removed, and the new earth with its blessed Eden restored, and man restored in it, he having received immortality, and been made like his glorious Lord—fitted to enjoy the fruition of such a glorious life—he shall again have full access to the tree of life—shall eat and live forever. Conditions: "He that hath an ear . . . To him that overcometh will I give to eat of the tree of life, which is in the midst of the paradise of God." The gospel is full of blessed conditions. I only refer to a few: John 3: 14, 15, 16; Rom. 2: 6-11 and 8: 13; 1 John 5: 11, 12.

I thank you for the book, and now, while I would continue on my knees before the Lord, searching his Word, I remain affectionately, my friend, yours in the hope of the unspeakable gift—eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord.

"WALKING WITH GOD."

BY L. BOUTELLE.

The secret of divine attainments is the "walking with God." The lack of wisdom is attributable to the lack of walking with God. Noah walked with God, and had this test—that "he pleased God." Being warned of God of a coming flood, he prepared an ark to the saving of himself and family; not only that, but he condemned the world, and became heir of righteousness, which is by faith." How did he achieve this victory? By walking with God. Faith lighted up the pathway that God ordered him to walk in. He denied himself, walked with God, and went to work building the ark, for which he had to bear reproach and scoffing, and that scoffing has come down to this day.

Do you desire to walk with God? Is that your heart's desire? Then why not? It is the only safe way. It is the only Christian way. God has said in his Word, that this is the way. Walk in it for choice, and you will be walking with God.

Enoch walked with God a long life, and it pleased him so well that God did not let the old 7th from Adam see death, but translated him. Daniel walked with God. He refused the king's meat, and would not bow down to the golden image, neither would he stop praying with open windows, and his face towards Jerusalem, and he walked with God into the den of lions, and was safe. So I might go through with a great multitude of witnesses who in the past walked with God—those that heard God speaking to them in his Word; and without a doubt following that voice has been the salvation of this world, as well as the condemnation of it.

This has always been a chosen way, or there would have been no merit in denying self to take it. But "deny thyself and take the cross," stands facing you in every turn you make while walking in the path of obedience. It will crucify one to the world, and the world to him. Pride, popularity, worldly honor and ambition must give way, and be left behind for this gospel-shining way, that grows brighter and brighter till the perfect day.

Moses, trained from infancy after his miraculous escape from the rushes, in affluence and splendor, with the crown and rule of Egypt, with all its wealth and honor before him, refuses it all. When he became a man of thought and foresight, coming to himself he says, "I choose to suffer affliction with the people of God, rather than to enjoy the pleasures of sin for a season, for he had respect to the recompense of reward." Faith changes his course, purifies the heart, gives the needed courage, and shows up the promised prize—eternal life and glory at the end.

Noah hears the warning voice of God—of things not seen as yet; but believing, he acts as though he knew the flood was coming, and went immediately to work building an ark, amid the scoffs of the antedeluvian age, and the flood came and took them all away. But Noah was safe by walking with God, and by following the directions given him, and saved himself and family.

Thus has it been in all ages. The voice of God has brought a development between the obedient and the disobedient, between the clean and the unclean. Believing on him, and walking with him, gives the highest type of spiritual life or attainment. "He that believeth on me, out of his belly will flow streams of living water." No dry times.

So when we come this side of the papal tribulation, the abomination that desolates, the time of the end, something may be expected. And what? The voice of God says the signs will appear in immediate connection with the passing of the tribulation. "The sun shall be darkened, and the moon shall refuse her light." These are to be signs of the Lord's coming to judgment. "As the days of Noah, so shall the coming of the Son of man be. So reckoning from analogy we should expect the cry, "Behold he cometh!" While he is majestically moving forward with an undoubted design in the fulfillment of his word, and the walk of his people, with a holy union, showing their identity with him in the work, which fully justifies our holding fast the beginning of our confidence firm to the end.

If we walk with God in the light of this gospel "message," shall we not by grace find our way into the kingdom of God? God lives, and his voice must be heard amid the confusion of these degenerate times. The Lord save us from careless indifference in these days of watching and waiting for his appearing.

INCREASE OF CHRIST'S GOVERNMENT.

Isa 9: 7 is quoted to prove the perpetual increase of the subjects of Christ's kingdom—"of the increase of his government and peace there shall be no end." If "Young" is authority, the text proves no such thing. The word from which increase is translated is marbeh, and means abundance or great. In Isa. 33: 23 it is translated great—"there is the prey of a great spoil divided." The word from which government is translated is "misrah," and means "princely power," so the text would read "of his great or abundant princely power, and peace there shall be no end."

E. M. ANDREWS.

WHEN Abraham Lincoln stood for the abolition of slavery in states and territories, he was for a time distressed to see that so many of the clergy were arrayed against him. Then he said, and with almost prophetic forecast, "I may not see the end, but it will come, and I shall be vindicated, and then men will find that they have not read their Bibles right." A right reading of the Bible is, after all, the best way to study the signs of the time.—Ex.

These tracts are intended for general distribution in the prisons and asylums for the unfortunate, and poor and afflicted everywhere. We have undertaken this work believing it is of the Lord, and trusting that FUNDS will be provided. We invite all who are interested in saving men to co-operate with us, according to your means and ability. We want reliable parties in all our large cities to visit the prisons and asylums, and distribute tracts, and place them where they will do good. We will send packages of ONE HUNDRED weekly to all our churches who may order, with or without price. Let each church have a box in their house of worship in some conspicuous place, marked CONTRIBUTIONS FOR GOSPEL TRACT SERIES. Twenty-five cents per week will give you one hundred short sermons to distribute among those who attend your meetings. For ONE DIME we will mail FORTY eight page tracts to any address in the United States. For TWENTY-FIVE CTS. we will mail ONE HUNDRED, etc. etc. We appeal to the stewards of the Lord to donate funds to meet the expense of supplying prisons, asylums, and for the poor and unfortunate everywhere. We shall open a column in the Crisis for DR. and CR. with GOSPEL GEM SERIES FUND, so that all may be informed as to the financial condition of the work.

Now, dear brethren and sisters, and all who are interested in the spread of Gospel truth, let us all take hold of this work in earnest. The world is in earnest—the devil is in earnest. Let us meet the flood of evil that is coming in upon the church and world with a united effort, and scatter the truth everywhere. Send in your DIMES and DOLLARS for free distribution of tracts, and let us have a colporter in every town and city. The tracts will be mailed on a stated day each week. Address

THE YORK CO. CONFERENCE.

Dear brethren and sisters of York County and vicinity, the church at South Windham, Me., desire a full attendance at their Conference (see notice), and we hope, as this is our annual session, you will be there at the commencement of the Conference, so that our business may be done at the first meeting, and the remainder of the session devoted to the worship of God, the building up of his people, and the salvation of the perishing. To this end let all interested in the prosperity of our Conference unite in earnest supplication to God that unity and harmony may prevail, and the power of the Holy Spirit may be manifest in each meeting as it was at our last session. The hospitality of the church at South Windham is so well known that we hardly need say good homes will be provided for all.

ELD. JESSE GAY, President.
T. J. COOLBROTH, Secretary.

NOTE.—Will our churches in all parts of the country who wish for "GOSPEL GEM SERIES" for distribution, please give us the address, and the number wanted for weekly distribution. J. HEMENWAY.

THANKS.

My sons and daughter join with me in thanking the members of the Advent State Conference, recently held at Richmond, Maine, for the kind resolution therein passed touching the death of my deceased beloved husband—Sanford K. Partridge.

Yours in Christ, SYRENA B. PARTRIDGE.

North Whitefield, Me., Nov. 9th.

FROM J. BUCKINGHAM.

Bro. Stockman:—Seeing in the Crisis a record of the death of our dear Bro. John Chapman, of Magog, P. Q., brings to my mind some things of deep interest in connection with my being set apart for the gospel ministry by ordination. Bro. Chapman hearing of my being prevented from preaching the Lord's coming in connection with the Methodist Church (although the Lord was saving the people under the sound of this blessed truth), he came to encourage me in the work of the Lord; so on leaving me for his home said, "Brother, I am going to propose your ordination at the coming Conference, to be held at Derby Line, so I want you to come." I had never thought of this, so I made him no answer. Although engaged in business, I felt an inward impulse I could not shake off, so I went.

I did not arrive till Saturday night. Bro. Chapman had gone to his appointment, and I was a stranger. I entered the Chapel just as the services commenced. I seated myself by the door. Bro. Samuel Thurber noticing me said, "Bro. Buckingham has just come, and will be ordained to-morrow afternoon." So anxious was this dear brother for me and the Lord's work, knowing the opposition I had to meet, he came several times to encourage me, to whose memory I owe a debt of gratitude. It was my privilege to meet him and his dear family at their house, which was indeed a pilgrim's home. God bless them.

Montreal, P. Q.

GIVING PLACE TO THE DEVIL.

We give place to the devil when the sun goes down upon our wrath. Solomon gave place to the devil when he built a house and altar for his heathen Egyptian wife, though he put her and her idols away in a house by herself, for he said: "My wife shall not dwell in the house of David, king of Israel, because the places are holy." He also "appointed the priests according to the order of David, and the Levites to praise and minister before the priests." Thus having satisfied the claims of religion he gave "place to the devil" by allowing seven hundred altars of spurious religions to be brought in by his political wives. And he made his Egyptian princess's house and surroundings of "costly stones" of eight and ten cubits, splendors which took with the masses and, as is always the case with mixtures of human and divine in religion, the human beat the divine, so that his realm became without coherence, like melted snow. When his successor, Rehoboam, took the sceptre neither oath, nor law, nor authority were respected. The nation had seven hundred worships and as many devils for gods.

Churches with lodge-worship in them "give place to the devil." The English State-church has fifty fast days, and one hundred festivals all of human origin. All these are places given to the devil in the church of God. The oaths and blasphemies of drunken Irishmen in the Rocky mountains outside of law and government were awful: but there is more "place given to the devil" in this one sentence of Queen Elizabeth to her Bishop Maddox, than in the swearing belched from the saloons of a continent: "Make the liturgy as evangelical as you can and keep the popish people in the church."—Sel.

THE work of Christ is that of rescuing men, and making them co-workers with himself in saving others. He says, "Follow me, and I will make you fishers of men,"—saviours of humanity. Co-laborers of the blessed Son of God, think what a promise and what a privilege!—Sel.

BIOGRAPHY OF MRS. L. E. FASSETT.
By her Husband, Eld. O. R. Fassett.

Printed on heavy paper, and bound in cloth; 168 pages; price 50 cts. For sale at the Crisis Office, 144 Hanover Street, Boston, Mass.

The subject of this Memoir was well known to a wide circle of friends, among whom for many years she lived and moved as an angel of love, carrying the gospel of Jesus, and by true devotion, womanly modesty and Christian principle, setting an example worthy of imitation by women everywhere. No wonder that she won the affections of hundreds, who ask now she is dead, to have some record of so exemplary a life. Her husband—certainly best qualified to perform the task—has in this beautiful book endeavored to meet the desire of friends. Tenderly has he written, and the tender-hearted will here and there drop a tear while reading passages in the book. The Biography is a work that will sell from its own recommendation. AGENT.

A TRACT FOR THE TIMES.
THE RECURRENCE OF DOCTRINE.
By Pastor A. J. Gordon.

This is a reprint of a very striking address, recently delivered by the author before the Alumni of the Newton Theological Seminary. It is not stale reading by any means, but is luscious fruit from the tree of life. It shows how the great truths of inspiration continually recur in the history of the church. By this recurrence the Doctor claims that great revivals and reformations spring up, and perennial freshness is secured to truth. The Eucharist for the people—Salvation by the objective work and word of Christ,—and Last Eschatology, or the doctrine of last things, among the latter, "The Lord Cometh"—are apostolically pressed upon the attention of the Alumni. Good! The doctrine, the precious truth of Jesus' coming, is voiced by the Clarendon Street Baptist pulpit, without misgivings or mysticism.

This is a twenty page tract; price 3 cts. each; twelve for 25 cts. For sale at the Crisis Office, 144 Hanover St., Boston, Mass.

AN EXPOSITION
OF THE 20TH CHAPTER OF REV.
By Wm. F. Collier.

This is a tastily printed pamphlet of thirty-two pages, with tinted cover. It gives the author's position upon this chapter, upon which there has been much discussion, and various opinions. The author claims that in the book of Revelation the literal truth is given by symbols. He therefore regards the thousand years as ... the past, and thinks it inconsistent with Christ's words to place the resurrection of the just and unjust a thousand years ...; as Christ says, "The hour is coming in the which all that are in their graves shall hear his voice and come forth." But get the pamphlet and examine for yourself.

NEW BOOKS.

It is with pleasure we present to the Christian public our new publications, in which the reasons of our faith are presented in a candid and logical manner, and with such a vast amount of scriptural testimony that the books must command the respect of all candid thinkers and Bible students.

"OUR HOPE," OR, WHY ARE WE ADVENTISTS?

The large and increasing demand for this work is an expression of the high appreciation of its merits among our people, and we believe it will accomplish much good in removing unjust prejudice, and enlightening many minds upon the great subject of Christ's Second Advent, and the restitution of all things spoken by the prophets of olden times. We wish that a copy might be placed in the hands of every clergyman in the country. Price single, postpaid, 60 cts.; per dozen, by express, $6.00. AGENT.

HADES, OR THE INTERMEDIATE STATE OF MAN.

A companion volume to "OUR HOPE." By Rev. H. Constable, A. M., containing 367 pages, neatly bound in cloth, lettered in gold, making it ornamental and attractive. This is a reprint of the English edition, and the third edition of the work. The former price was $1.25 per copy. We are able to put them at 60 cts. per copy; $6.00 per dozen, by express. The large sale of this work in the old country is undoubted evidence of its great merit. It is the only work extant, with which we are acquainted, that fully presents an extensive historical and scriptural testimony on the state of man in death. AGENT.

DURATION AND NATURE OF FUTURE PUNISHMENT.

By Rev. H. Constable, A. M., late Prebendary of Cork, Ireland, and author of "HADES, OR THE INTERMEDIATE STATE OF MAN," etc. Neatly bound in cloth, 360 pages; price, 60 cts. single; $6.10 per dozen, by express.

This book has passed through five editions in England. We have the pleasure of presenting to the public the first AMERICAN EDITION at a low price. It is a companion volume to "OUR HOPE" and "HADES," and the three constitute a compendium of theology upon the subjects of the nature of man, intermediate state, future retribution, and life in Christ, that can scarcely be equalled outside of the Bible.

We will send the THREE volumes to Clergymen of any denomination for $1.75 postpaid. Please remember the above applies to Clergymen only. Address all orders to

J. HEMENWAY, Box 5140, Boston, Mass.

A NEW TRACT.
"WHY ARE WE A PEOPLE?"

This handsomely printed Tract of 22 pages is the Discourse preached by ELD. E. A. STOCKMAN at the Special Convention in Worcester, Mass., and published by vote of the Convention. The Tract is eminently timely in its character, and should be scattered by thousands in every direction.

Price (post paid), two copies for 5 cents; per dozen, 25 cents, per pound, 75 cents. AGENT.

ANOTHER NEW TRACT.
THE END OF THE IMPENITENT.
BY WM. H. MITCHELL.

This tract is the substance of a sermon preached by Bro. Mitchell at Biddeford, and published by the A. C. Publication Society, Boston, Mass. No one acquainted with Bro. Mitchell's pulpit and literary ability will need be told that this production is eminently worthy of careful reading and wide-spread circulation. The argument is unanswerable; the rhetoric is pure and impressive, the spirit Christian and tender. Let this tract be ordered at once by thousands. Price, two for 5 cts., 20 cts. per dozen. AGENT.

A NEW TRACT.
THE SABBATH ABROGATED.
By Mrs. C. C. Stewart.

A Tract of 16 pages. It is logical and concise, and meets the demand for something that shows up the fallacious claims of the advocates of the Seventh-day theory. The Seventh-day people are flooding some sections of the country with Sabbath literature that is calculated to mislead many, and bind the yoke of the law upon the people. Give this tract a large circulation. Two for 5 cts., 20 cts. per dozen. AGENT.

NEW PAMPHLET.
BY A. ROSS
TOKENS OF THE HOUR:

"THEY SHALL HEAR HIS VOICE."

BY J. ALBERT LIBBY.

Sleep sweetly comes to the aged sire,
And the grandma nods in her easy-chair;
But the feet of the stamping boys
Will rouse them with the noise.

The baby, rocked on her mother's breast,
Quietly lays in the cradle nest;
But a little careless sound,
And baby her eyes hath found.

The household all, when the night shades fall,
Buried away by the bedroom's wall,
Mock the dead for awhile,
But morning brings the smile.

A year away from this happy home,
And over the threshold again you come;
The sunshine drops on the entry floor,
But the shadow is heavy behind the door.

Grandpa has found a longer sleep,
And grandma, too, in the cold-bed deep;
They would n't awake that day,
Before they were put away.

And baby closed her eyes and slept,
Then the mother pressed her form and wept;
But baby would n't awake,
Not for the mother's sake.

Ah! vainly all is our earthly call,
When the death-sleep comes to the great and small;
But Jesus his call shall give,
And the dead will hear and live.

Castleton, Vt.

CORRESPONDENCE.

FROM ALSON W. STEERS.

Brethren and Sisters:—As it is very seldom you hear anything from this part of the vineyard, I wish to let you know that there are some in the far Northwest who are looking for the Lord to come soon. In the summer of 1876 I read Dr. Nelson's "Cause and Cure of Infidelity," and though I had been a member of the Christian Church before, this put me to studying prophecy, and after that I could not agree with any of the churches. I had never heard of the Adventists, so I drifted away alone, thinking it very strange that others could not understand God's Word as I did, until in the spring of 1881 I saw a copy of the World's Crisis at Bro. Jas. Downings. I read it, and though I had not known what to call myself before, I have since called myself a Second Adventist, and praise God for sending Bro. Downing and his father, Eld. James Downing, to this country.

About Aug. 20, 1885, Bro. and Sr. Smith, (J. C. and S. E.) came here and held a few meetings, baptized three, and organized a church, with seven members; returned about Oct. 1st, baptized five, and eight were added to our number; so we now have a company of fifteen looking for our coming King. Bro. and Sr. Smith were ably assisted by Eld. Guy Porter. Oct. 7th, Bro. and Sr. Smith, Bro. and Sr. Jas. Downing, Jun., Bro. Porter and myself, went to Scappoose, Oregon (about twenty-five miles from here) and on the 8th began a series of meetings with lectures on the World's Empires Illustrated, by Eld. Smith.

This is noted as a hard place. Eggs, stones, and fisticuffs were threatened, but the power of the Lord was there. The style of preaching and conducting the meetings was new to the people. An interest was created, and some accepted the truth. Seven were baptized, a church of ten members organized, and each one of them are always ready to say a word for the Lord. Bro. and Sr. Smith have gone to Wasco County to attend a quarterly meeting. Bro. Porter has gone to Renton, in the Puget's Sound country.

I have just been looking over the reports of the A. A. M. S. The Eastern Board report the distribution of 105,924 pages of tracts. Bro. and Sr. Smith have distributed about 150,000 alone. They report thirty-seven baptisms in the year. Brn. Smith and Porter in the last four months have baptized over thirty, and organized as many churches as the whole Eastern Board in a year.

The area in square miles of Oregon and Washington Territory is 165,210, and I know of only the three evangelists who devote their whole time to the work: Bro. and Sr. Smith, and Bro. Guy Porter, and but very few local preachers. Is it expected that these few can publish the glad tidings over all this vast territory, when only about one in each two thousand of our population is an Adventist, and all these are poor? Cannot a way be devised whereby some of you can "come over and help us?" We need men and means.

We need a book and tract repository in Portland, Oregon, in charge of some competent man and earnest worker for the Lord, like Bro. J. C. Smith. From Portland are railroads and rivers leading to all parts of the State and territory; ships from all parts of the world, that should be visited and supplied with reading matter. Thousands of our population have never heard the "gospel of the kingdom" preached. The few we have who are willing to devote their time to preaching the kingdom have no means to travel with, and so are fettered. I request God's people throughout the world to pray for us in the Northwest. Hoping to meet all of like precious faith in the kingdom soon, I am your brother in Christ.

Oak Point, Washington Territory.

FROM J. G. DUKES.

Dear Bro:—I want to be known as an Adventist. I have been a preacher for nine years, but am sorry to say that I have been preaching the truth only a little over one year. I have done more traveling and preaching during the last year than I have done for five years before. I find that I have something to preach about—life only in Christ. I visited Brunswick, Ga., three weeks ago, and found eight Adventists. While there I was invited to preach in the Baptist Church. One brother came to me and said that he accepted our faith, and wanted to be baptized. Bro. John Potter, a deacon from the Wilmington Church, N. C., does all the Advent preaching there.

I left Brunswick and went to Jacksonvile, Fla., hoping to meet Bro. Conley, but found that he had moved up the St. John's river, one hundred miles away, so I had to leave without seeing him.

I returned to N. C., and met Bro. Bowman at Antioch Church, Duplin County, and we had a good meetings for two days, with one addition to the church. I am pastor of this church. We are few in number, but are trying to build a house forty by thirty feet, and am requested by the church to ask help. I hope this will meet the eye of some of our free-hearted brethren, and they will send at least one dollar to W. A. Heath, Wallace P. O., N. C.

Our Wilmington church is getting along finely, with Rev. J. P. King as pastor. Bro. Bowman has preached for this church every night for a week with good results. The church at Mt. Olive is growing rapidly. They number now over one hundred and fifty. We expect to organize a church the fourth Sunday in Nov. at Holley Hill, Duplin County. May the Lord soon come, and may all be saved in his everlasting kingdom, is my prayer. I remain your brother in hope of eternal life.

Wilmington, N. C.

FROM J. O. POTTER.

Bro. Stockman;—I take this opportunity to comply with your request for the brethren in the ministry to write their feelings on the subject of the second coming of our Saviour to earth. I think it one of the grandest themes that the Bible advocates. It is at the second coming of Christ that the saints of God will be rewarded with eternal life, and the wicked with eternal death, and upon his coming hangs the final destiny of the human race. On the one hand it will be "Come, ye blessed of my Father," and upon the other, "Depart, ye cursed."

It is not in the power of man to comprehend the solemnity of the judgment day, when the vast multitude that have once peopled this earth, and also those that remain at his coming, are gathered around the throne of the great Judge to hear their sentence. I feel there is a great responsibility resting upon us who are called to be watchmen upon the walls of Zion, for if we see the enemy coming, and warn not the people, and they are destroyed, their lives will be on our heads, and their blood on our hands. I also feel that we as a people do not warn the world as much as we ought, for we are set forth as a "peculiar people" because we proclaim this doctrine. I glory in it, for it is God's wonderful plan of salvation for fallen man.

I am determined to press this doctrine on the people, whether they bear or whether they forbear, for I believe the great day of the Lord is near, even at the door; and my prayer is that there may be many snatched as brands from the burning when God shall take vengeance on them that know him not, and keep not his commandments.

Brethren, let us be faithful a little longer, and give the trumpet a certain sound, for soon He who is to come will come, and will not tarry. Even so come, Lord Jesus, and come quickly.

Young Hickory, N. Y.

FROM L. D. CAREY.

Bro. Stockman:—The Crisis of Oct. 21st is just received, and read with more than usual interest. The articles by yourself and Brn. Henn, Moore and Copp are grand; and I only wish that every man and woman in the land could read them, with unprejudiced minds; but, alas! how few can give up the traditions of men. They are determined to take a straight cut to heaven, regardless of plain Bible teaching and common sense. I ask my little ten-year-old boy to locate the future home of the saints, and he quickly replies, "The new earth." Why is he able to answer? Simply because he can read it from the Bible in plain, literal language.

I put the same question to a "D.D.," and he is dumbfounded. Christ (who is good authority) says, "The meek shall inherit the earth." This language is too plain and simple to be misunderstood by any one. May the dear old Crisis (the only preaching we have here) find its way to the dark corners of every land and clime, to tell the glad story of Jesus and his soon coming. May God's blessings attend Bro. Grant in his great undertaking in foreign lands.

Dear brethren, let us be faithful a little while longer. Deliverance will soon come, and then a crown and a home in the kingdom, where all will be peace and joy forevermore. Your Bro. in hope.

Glasco, Kansas, Nov. 2nd.

FROM J. C. AND S. E. SMITH.

Dear Editors and Brn. and Srs.:—As oft as the Crisis comes, our hearts are cheered by the many words of greeting and love that we find in its columns from the waiting ones journeying toward the eternal city. We rejoice with you all that our redemption draweth very nigh. Many times we labor in new places, and do not see the Crisis for a number of weeks; then we weekly miss it, and when we do come to the homes of those who take it, we look for it at once. We praise the Lord that there is such a source of heavenly light to radiate the glories of the long looked for King of kings and Lord of lords. May the heavenly news spread far and near, that many may become ready thereby to hail the coming one with joy, and not with grief. The Lord speed the message and the messengers in carrying the everlasting gospel (or everlasting covenant) through the midst of heaven, till the everlasting life and everlasting inheritance that this gospel presents, shall be ushered in in all of its glory. Then the blessings of God through Christ will be bestowed upon all, both Jew and Gentile, that have had faith in the past, and faith in Jesus; and when he shall appear they will receive the benefits that this gospel offers; a hundred fold here, and in the world to come everlasting life.

I am certain that our Age-to-come brethren are looking for things that never will come. The "everlasting covenant" in Christ, or gospel covenant, is due the people of this earth and world, and the everlasting benefits they will receive in the world to come; and only those that are accounted worthy of that world will live and reign there. They will "reign then in life (eternal) by one man—Jesus Christ." O that bright world to come tongue cannot describe! Thrice blessed is the home where saints will dwell. Turn away then from sin, and obey the Word of God, and at the last great day all will be well.

A brother and sister from Idaho writes us: "Do not stay too long in one place. Spread it on thick and fast, and come over and help us." In Modoc Co., Cal., where we were last winter, a brother writes that a little band is there waiting for the Saviour, and thank God that we were sent there, and now they want more truth.

On our return to Oak Point, a distance of one hundred and sixty miles, we again commenced meetings, and the brother who was so deeply troubled that he did not eat for two days, found peace and rest in Jesus, with a dear companion, two daughters, and two sons, and a number of others. Five more obeyed the Lord in baptism, and eight united with the church. While at this place I was taken sick with a severe cold, that nearly laid me up, but the Lord had mercy on me, and raised me up. All praise be to him!

At the close of our meetings at Bunker Hill, we set out with Brn. Porter and Steers, and Sister Downing, and came up the Columbia River, some thirty miles, to St. Helen's and Scappoose, and there in a wicked neighborhood, perfect strangers to all, we gave out notice of meetings, and set up our banner in the name of the Lord. The results for over two Sundays and through the week were glorious. Aged Bro. Downing's son, John Downing and wife, and daughter and son, with three others, came out into the light and liberty from the galling yoke of sin and death. Seven put on Christ by baptism, and others were deeply convicted. A little church of ten was set in order, and now they want more of the pure gospel of peace. Infidelity received a shock at this place from which it will never recover. While here we preached a funeral discourse at the grave of a dear boy about ten years of age. After the services a Bro. Braim from Toronto, Canada, made himself known to us. We had a precious season at our last meeting. Eighteen gathered around the Lord's table to commemorate his death and sufferings. All but two prayed, and all spoke.

We then went to Sauvie's Island, and met with Sister Morgan and Bro. and Sister Thomas, who are still looking for the "blessed hope." Now we are at dear Bro. and Sister Sutcliff's home, Portland, where we have ever been welcomed. We have had a good meeting with Bro. Bronaugh, and he is sending out the warning in a tract to many souls. The Lord speed the truth, and the time of our absent Lord's return. Pray for us as we journey to other fields of labor. From your brother and sister in Christ.

FROM A. M. HOLDER.

Bro. Stockman:—I have not seen anything in the Crisis from this place. I want to write a few lines to tell the scattered saints what the dear Lord has been doing here through his servants. Eld. Geo. F. Earle came here in August to hold meetings. Other preaching brethren lent a helping hand, and the Lord blest wonderfully. This is a new field, and many have started to serve the Lord. Nineteen have been baptized. A church has been organized of thirty-one members, and there will be more soon. Praise the Lord! Three came out of the Congregational Church and were buried in the liquid wave. The interest is still good, and we hope to see many more brought in before it shall be too late, for the Judge standeth before the door, and it will be said, "Come, ye blessed," or "Depart, ye cursed." Oh, may God help us to have on the whole armor, and be washed in his precious blood, is my prayer.

A Sunday School has been organized with Bro. Frank Harding for Superintendent.

SPECIAL ANSWERS TO PRAYER.

☞ We solicit brief, well authenticated statements of special answers to prayer, in the healing of diseases, or other remarkable deliverances.—Ed.

A Case of Faith Healing.

Praise the Lord for his wonderful gifts to the children of men! Last June I was obliged to give up all work, with no hope of ever being any better. My nervous system was so broken down that I was partially insane at times, and growing worse. I thought if I could only pass away, and be relieved from my mental and physical suffering, and also relieve my dear companion from his constant care and attendance upon me, I would gladly lie down and sleep in Jesus a little while. But the dear Lord had something better for me. Praise his dear name!

The evening of June 20th my husband read in the Crisis of a case of healing by prayer. My faith grasped the promise, and I asked him to anoint me in the name of the Lord, and pray for me. He did so, and I realized a change while he was praying. My distress ceased, and I slept sweetly all night.

The next day I was decidedly better, and proposed going with my husband to his appointment, but he thought it would not be prudent. That morning I understood my heavenly Father to tell me he would make me perfectly well; that he did not want me lying around any longer. Monday I did my work with ease. Tuesday and Wednesday I did not feel quite as well, but continued to do my work. Thursday, while having a severe trial of my faith, my eye caught these words, "God will answer the prayer of faith. Hold on by faith. Be not discouraged at seeming delay, but have confidence in our Father, who is infinite in love mercy and wisdom. This strengthened me so much I felt that God himself had sent it to me.

Friday, feeling that my faith was not quite strong enough to get the complete victory, I wrote for Bro. Levi Rhoades and wife to come as soon as they could. From then until the next Friday I continued to do my work, and had victory every time I stepped out by faith in God; had many trials, and felt to pray, "Lord, let me have all the trials I need to fit me for thy work." On Friday came the most severe trial of all, and at noon I was compelled to give up work. Husband said, on going to his work, "Hold on by faith." It helped me so much. I went into another room, threw myself down on the lounge, and at the same time into the arms of Jesus, I fell asleep. When I awoke I felt refreshed, but soon felt worse again, yet held on by faith, and grew better again, and began to sing "It is better farther on" just as Bro. Rhoade and wife drove up to the door. He prayed with me, and soon after I felt to say I was made whole.

Since that time, the 3d of July, I have traveled 325 miles by team, 170 by rail, and over 30 on foot, and attended one hundred meetings. When at home have done my housework, and taken care of the milk of two cows, cut and made four dresses. I speak of this to let you know what the dear Lord has done for me. I know there are a great many of the dear brethren and sisters who will rejoice with us for the great blessing wherewith he has blessed me. Praise his dear name forever and ever. I felt as though I must send this for insertion in the Crisis, that some poor sick one might step out by simple faith, and be brought from the fetters of satan. If your old troubles appear to come back after you are healed, continue to believe you are healed. It is a temptation of the devil. The Lord suffers it for the trial of our faith. I have been raised twice before, but only enjoyed the blessing two or three days, for when the trial of faith came I lost my confidence. But this time, having the experience of others to help me, when the trial of faith came I kept believing, and the dear Saviour has brought me off victorious every time. Praise his dear name! It seems almost like a new world to me I am so happy all the day.

Richmond, Me. MRS. E. O. DINSMORE.

HIS COMING DRAWETH NIGH!

The following lines are from the pen of WINFRED COOK, of Friendship, Me., who now sleeps beneath the dust. But soon he will arise to meet the Lord in the air.—O. O. R.

I am waiting for the dawning
Of that grand and glorious morning
Which shall soon delight my eye,
When we will see the King descending,
With a cloud of saints attending,
As he comes through yonder sky.

Through dark ages of past history
This apparent clouded mystery
Was only brightened often time
By the signs which were predicted,
Though by scoffers contradicted,
But remaining still sublime.

Soon the signs so long expected,
Shall like lightning be reflected
Just preceding that great day,
And the saints of distant ages,
With God's old prophetic sages,
Shall awake and sing their lay.

Soon in clouds we shall behold him,
While the trumpet's notes are rolling
Through the arches of the sky.
Now, dear saints, leave off your mourning,
And your hearts with grace adorning,
For his coming draweth nigh.

OBITUARIES.

PRIME. Sister Mary (Black) Prime departed the toils and sorrows of this life at her home in Monticello, Minn., Oct. 25, 1885, aged seventy-two years.

Sister Prime was born at Whitehall, N. Y., Sept. 18, 1813. She was married to Augustus Prime Dec. 14, 1830. The husband and wife became members of the Universalist Society during their early married life, at Albany, N. Y. In 1855 they moved to Monticello, Minn. The husband died at Monticello, Minn., Dec. 27, 1870, leaving the widow and several children, of which there had been seven; some however died in infancy, one on the battlefield of Gettysburg, and the others were widely scattered, only one daughter remaining near her. Mary Prime united with the A. C. Church of Monticello Feb. 19, 1870, where she remained until her death, a faithful, devoted, loving, cross-bearing sister, ever ready with time and means to do her utmost for the church, the suffering children of the world, and her Lord. By her death we all sustain a great loss, and the tear-stained cheeks of those who knew her speak more eloquently than words the precious love we bear for her. Long will be remembered the kindness of the mother, the goodness of grandmother, the unceasing love and faithfulness of our sister. Yet though we miss her here, and mourn her loss so deeply, we know that at the coming of the Master and the dawning of the resurrection morn we shall see her in her perfectness, and join her, where tears shall never fall or loved ones part. The funeral services were conducted by Elds. A. J. Bolster and G. H. Dewing, at the home, Oct. 27, 1885.

"Asleep in Jesus! far from thee
Thy kindred and their graves may be;
But thine is still a blessed sleep,
From which none ever wake to weep."

G. H. DEWING.

BELLOWS. Fell asleep in Jesus Oct. 13, 1885, in Newnansville, Florida, Sister Sarah E., wife of Elder Alba Bellows, aged forty-three years, twenty-four days.

Sister Bellows was converted when about eighteen years of age, and has ever since that time maintained a good Christian character. The last year of her life has been more devoted to the Lord's work than any previous ones. Our sister was led about a year ago to make a full consecration to God, and it brought her more to the front. She was an ardent lover of the truths which distinguish us as a people. She leaves an aged mother, a husband, son, daughter, brother and sister, beside a large circle of relatives and friends to mourn her loss. Memorial services were held in our chapel in Danielsonville, Ct., on Sunday, Oct. 25, when remarks were made by the writer from Rev. 14: 13. The attendance was large. Our sister fell at her post, and thus the mourning ones find comfort in the sweet thought of meeting her by and by, never to part again.

At the regular monthly business meeting of our church on Friday evening, Oct. 30, the following preamble and resolutions were unanimously passed by a rising vote: "Whereas, in the providence of God, death has been permitted to enter our ranks, and one has fallen—Sister Sarah E. Bellows—therefore, Resolved, that we as a church do extend to our esteemed and afflicted brother, Elder Alba Bellows, our heartfelt prayers and Christian sympathy. Resolved, that in the death of our sister the church of Christ has met with the loss of an earnest Christian worker; our brother of a consecrated, godly companion; her children of a noble Christian mother; humanity of a kind friend; and we, as a church, are deprived of the prayers of one who ever remembered us at a throne of grace. Resolved, that we commend our brother and the afflicted family to the mercy of God and the word of his grace, praying that 'Our Father' may sustain them in this their great hour of affliction. Resolved, that a copy of these resolutions be sent to our brother, also to the World's Crisis and Bible Banner, with a request for publication."

WARREN N. TENNEY.

BENHAM. In Broome, P. Q., Oct. 14th, 1885, at the residence of her son, Elder Loren Marsh, Sister Cansady Benham, in the eighty-first year of her age.

Sister Benham knew what hardships were in the earlier part of her life. Her first husband, Palmer Marsh, died in 1841, leaving her with a family of eight children—six boys and two girls—most of them being small. She lived a widow thirteen years, then was married to Henry Benham, and lived with him twenty-seven years. He died in 1881. Again her heart was made sad in her old age, but she found a good home with her son, Elder Loren Marsh and his faithful companion, where she was well cared for until her death.

Sister Benham was converted in 1865, under the labors of Elders Wm. Sweet and John Chapman, and was a firm believer in the soon coming of Christ. The writer endeavored to speak words of comfort to the mourners and friends from Job 14: 14—"If a man die, will he live again?" May the surviving and weeping family find comfort and consolation in their mother's God. We laid her beside her first husband, to await the last trumpet's sound.

W. P. DROWN.

PARKER. In North Bucksport, Me., Oct. 20, 1885, Sr. Louisa L. Parker, aged fifty-four years.

After five years of intense suffering, this dear sister has at last found rest. It was her desire that death might relieve her, if according to the will of God. The power of Christ has surely been shown in the patience of this child of his, through her continual suffering. Her life has been spent for the welfare of others. A noble generosity, accompanied with Christian activity, made her a blessing to all who came under her influence. The truths of the Bible were very precious to her, and those that preached them received from her encouragement and substantial help. The very best that she had was none too good in her estimation for those who labored in the gospel. Devoted to her family, kind to her neighbors, her memory will be fragrant in the minds of all who knew her. She leaves a companion and eight children to mourn her loss, and a large circle of friends lament the removal of so useful a woman from their midst. We expect to greet her on the eternal shores, where sickness and death will be no more. "Weeping may endure for a night, but joy cometh in the morning." J. F. CLOTHEY.

FREEMAN. At the residence of her son in Valparaiso, Ind., Sister Elsie Freeman, wife of the late Avery Freeman, of Union Mills, Ind.

She became a Christian in early life, and was the mother of ten children, six of whom are living. Being naturally quiet and thoughtful, the industry, frugality, patience, tenderness and piety, which she combined with her devotion to her family, gave her rare qualities as a wife and mother. While the church will miss her prudent and Christian counsel, the entire community join in saying, "Truly a good woman has fallen in death." She with her husband received joyfully the news of a soon coming Saviour to bring life and immortality, in which faith they lived and died, and together await a glorious resurrection. Services were conducted by Eld. D. R. Mansfield, at the old homestead in Union Mills. "Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord."

E. S. MANSFIELD.

FAIRFIELD. In China, Me., Oct. 20th, 1885, Bro. Isaac Fairfield peacefully fell asleep in Jesus, in the eighty-fourth year of his age.

Brother Fairfield was an honest, upright, God-fearing man. For several years he held positions of trust among his townsmen, and for several years was deeply interested in the personal coming of Christ to give immortality and an inheritance on the new earth. He leaves a widow—a second wife, and sons and daughters by his first wife, who mourn his loss. May the blessing of the Lord rest upon them all, and bring them to the redeemed world. Funeral services by the writer.

J. R. HALL.

MITCHELL. In Rockland, Me., Sept. 26, 1885, Mrs. Elizabeth S. Mitchell, aged seventy years, six months and twenty-one days.

The subject of this notice was long a believer in Christ, and died in hope. She was a firm believer in the Advent faith, and after suffering long she peacefully fell asleep in Jesus. Gone with a smile on her face, no more to return until the trump of God shall awake the sleeping dead. May the blessings of God attend the mourning family. Her kindness will never be forgotten by the writer.

MRS. SARAH C. CLARK.

MAGOON. In Lawrence, Mass., Aug. 17, 1885, Annie J., child of Henry and Carrie B. Magoon, aged three years and two months.

Early nipped by the frost of death, this precious bud lies withered and dead, and the parents are left to weep. But not long will the little one lie in the enemy's icy embrace, for He who is the Resurrection and the Life is coming soon to claim her as his own. May the parents whose eyes are now bedewed with tears be comforted with the hope of meeting their innocent babe in the fadeless fields of the renewed earth.

M. O. C.

SHAFER. Bro. John Shafer, aged twenty-five years, after extreme suffering one week, fell asleep.

He was buried in baptism in 1881, and arose to walk in newness of life, in full triumph of faith. He leaves a father and mother, four sisters and three brothers to mourn their loss; but they sorrow not as those who have no hope. Services by the writer. Text, John 5: 28, 29. E. HUBBEL.

KASTEAD. At Cape Elizabeth, Me., Oct. 5th, 1885, Mrs. Mary A. Kastead, aged seventy-six years and nine months.

May the Lord bless the mourning friends. Words of comfort by the writer. H. MAINS.

HODGDON. At West Buxton, Me., Oct. 5th, 1885, Mrs. Jennie Hodgdon, aged thirty-six years.

May the Lord bless the companion, and others who mourn her loss. Words of comfort by the writer.

H. MAINS.

GOOD NEWS.

As we continue to send the gospel messages of our Lord's soon coming to raise the dead and give eternal life to his saints, so the Lord continues to open new doors in the dark corners of the earth for the light to shine, and raises up new agents of his own, choosing to convey the truth to the people. His workings are wonderful with the most simple agencies. Please read another letter from our dear Bro. Spence.

I. C. WELLCOME.

"Madras, India, Sept. 12th, 1885.—My dear Bro. Wellcome:—Truly it is a pleasure to sit down to write to you. I will just give you an insight to what I have been doing to-day. I have made up a packet of books and tracts for Bro. Wood, another for Bro. Thomas of Burmah, and yet another for a Brother who is Manager in a State Railway station in the ceded district. I have written a letter to Bro. Cress, another to Daniel. After doing this, and also writing to Brn. Thomas and Wood, I went from my place of business to my home, and made up a packet of over fifty pounds of Tamil and Telugu 'Bible Banners,' 'Bible Creed,' 'Gospel Keystone,' 'The New Birth,' 'The Kingdom of God,' 'Our King is Coming,' 'The Resurrection,' and 'Quarterlies,' and sent them off to the railway station, and did not the water run off me? It is wonderful how one perspires here. Well, here I am, bound to my office. Now I write to tell you I sent Daniel on the 3d inst. to Bangalore, to see if he can preach the truth there, also I enclose his first letter to me from there. . . . I have faith in circulating tracts, because the Lord is Master. Suppose some few are put to a bad use, it is not so with all that are given away. The Lord knows why they are given, and what is best, so we are not responsible for results. A good many will have to be given away before the people are educated enough to pay out money for the sake of truth. They have been accustomed to take what has fallen from the pulpit as gospel, and they get that for nothing here, and without the trouble of reading. . . .

"Oh, I do wish you in America could all join together and make a solid front in this grand work. I have kept an account of my income for giving one-tenth to the Lord since 1880. Since I last wrote you Bro. H. H. Tucker has sent me a copy of the 'Jubilee Harp,' and you have sent me three copies of it. I like it much. I was disappointed in one hymn, 'Beulah Land.' You gave this beautiful hymn in the Crisis some time ago, but it is not the same in the 'New Jubilee Harp.' . . . Do you think you will be able to supply me with funds to employ ——— at ten rupees (a little over $4 per month) as a traveling tract distributor and street preacher! This would be in addition to what you now send for D——, and for printing tracts. I shall consult the brethren here about the matter, and leave the decision with you. He is recommended for our work. With best Christian love I remain your affectionate brother in Christ.

J. SPENCE."

IN everything, not in one or two, not in great things only, but in even the smallest things that tire and perplex you, "let your request be made known unto God." This is our encouragement. We are to come with expectation, praying for help. We are to come also with "supplication," that is, with earnest prayer, prostrating ourselves before the mercy throne. We are to remember how much we possess, although there be so much that we want; how much we are to bless God for, while there are so many burdens which we beg him to remove. Even in our deepest sorrows we have abundant cause to pray with thanksgiving.—Ex.

CONFERENCE REPORT.

The Hoosick Valley A. C. Conference held its fifteenth annual session with the A. C. Church at Hoosick, N. Y., commencing Thursday, Oct. 22d, and holding over the following Sunday. Business session Friday, Oct. 23d at 9.30 A. M., the President, George A. Streeter, in the chair.

Preachers present: Geo. A. Streeter, Wm. J. Blanchard, T. R. Lewis, W. O. Higley, Mary L. Tower, Ellen E. Towsley. Visitor, D. P. Perkins. Delegates present: Manchester, Vt., R. T. Bourne; Hebron, N. Y., David Lincoln; Hoosick, N. Y., Clark Brownell, Nelson Robertson, Levi Gardner; Sandy Hill, N. Y., W. O. Higley; Castleton, Vt., Peter Paradee, Willie Sanford; Corinth, N. Y., T. R. Lewis; Savoy, Mass., Lyman Tower; Pownal, Vt., Ellen E. Towsley.

Eld. Geo. A. Streeter was elected President; Eld. James Ferris Vice President; Eld. W. O. Higley Secretary; John B. White Treasurer, for the ensuing year. Ministerial Committee: W. O. Higley, Geo. A. Streeter, Wm. J. Blanchard. Delegates to the A. C. Association: Geo. A. Streeter, W. O. Higley, J. B. White. Voted, that the A. C. Church at Corinth be received into this Conference. Voted, that the first quarterly meeting of the Conference be held with the A. C. Church at Chittenden in Jan. 1886.

A vote of thanks was tendered to the Church and people of Hoosick for their generous hospitality in entertaining the Conference.

There was preaching during the meetings by Elds. Wm. J. Blanchard, T. R. Lewis, D. P. Perkins, W. O. Higley, Sr's. Tower and Towsley. Sinners were faithfully warned to flee from the wrath to come by accepting of the Lord Jesus Christ.

The social meetings were excellent, characterized by great earnestness, and accompanied by the Spirit and power of God. Evidently Bro. Streeter is doing a good work in Hoosick. There is a good, harmonious spirit pervading the church, and many who are not fully committed to these truths have a desire to hear. Never did preacher address more attentive audiences than were gathered together during our Conference meetings, and it was evident that the Spirit of the Lord was present in power. It was thought that Bro. Perkins would assist the pastor in further meetings. May God add his blessing.

W. O. HIGLEY, Secretary.

IT is the privilege of any one who cannot become a personal messenger to the perishing men and women of heathen lands to consecrate his property to this definite work, living himself economically for this very purpose, that all he can thus save may be given to sustain those who do go as personal messengers. Most richly is such a consecration rewarded.—Ex.

TEMPERANCE.

THE HOME OR THE SALOON?

An affecting scene—one of the saddest—occurred lately at the visiting window of the gaol in an Amerian city. A boy about eighteen years old was imprisoned, awaiting transportation to the penitentiary, where he is to serve a six years' sentence. The prisoner was a fine-looking young fellow. His father—an aged minister—had come to visit him. The son stood with shamed face on one side of the grating, and the grief-stricken father on the other. Drink had been the cause of the boy's troubles.

The father pleaded earnestly with his child to reform while in prison, to read his Bible, and improve all spare time in study. "Son," continued the father, "if you had the grace of God in your heart you wouldn't be here. If those cursed grog-shops were swept away, I'd have been spared all this. Let it be a lesson to you, boy. This is the last time you will probably ever see me. I am old, and probably won't live to see your six years out. O, my boy, promise me to give yourself to God, that I may see you over yonder." The boy promised, and the old man went his way. While this father returns [illegible] to go down to a premature grave in sorrow, the man who ruined his son is now engaged in ruining other sons. Which shall we have, "the home or the saloon?"—Ex.

CHOLERA AND DRINKING.

The experience of former cholera visitations has demonstrated, both in our own and in other countries, that the intemperate are specially liable to the cholera visitation, that the drink-shops, in cholera seasons, are sources of special danger to the public health. It is much wiser and better for all concerned to avoid, as far as possible, the conditions which invite to cholera infection. One important safeguard, which each individual may adopt, and which all, by our health authorities, should be counselled and admonished to adopt, is total abstinence from all alcoholic beverages. Furthermore, the drink-shops may and should be ordered closed by the officers charged with the supervision of the public health. This authority is now being exercised in other directions. Recently in a local market in this city the health officers seized and sent to the offal-dock two thousand pounds of tainted fish and six tons of stale fruit. A squad of sanitary policemen enforced the execution of their edict. The "personal liberty" of the owners of the fish and fruit was infringed upon to the end that the public health might be preserved. Every grog-shop is, in a kindred sense, with a cholera visitation impending, a peril to the public health, and should be summarily closed.—The (N. Y.) Witness.

LICENSE-TREE FRUIT.

A tree is known by its fruit, and the following dispatch from Pittsburg, Pa., will show what kind of fruit that State is now specially favored with: "Thomas Bingham, of McKeesburg, Pa., came home intoxicated, and because his wife refused to give him money for more liquor, knocked their six months' old baby out of her arms, and then beat the woman until she fell unconscious on the floor. He then sprang upon her body, and jumped up and down on her chest until life was almost extinct. Hearing people coming he fled, and has not yet been arrested. Mrs. Bingham is still living, but no hopes are entertained for her recovery. The baby is also in a dangerous condition from its father's rough handling." We regret to say, in this connection, that the markets, in all directions, seem to be over-stocked this season, with the same kind of fruit.—Ex.

FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.

Monday Morning, Nov. 2nd, 1885.

BY MILES GRANT.

I am now at Skipton, Yorkshire, 227 miles northwest of London. I left London, Saturday, Oct., 31st, at 10.35, and reached this place at 4.02 P. M., thus traveling the entire distance in five hours and twenty-seven minutes, including a suitable stop for dinner. The speed of the London trains surpasses that of the American. Much rain has fallen of late, and hundreds of acres are covered with water as the result.

I spent two evenings in Skipton last April, when a lively interest was manifested to hear about the coming of Christ. I find several who are truly alive in the service of the Lord, and longing to see him coming in glory. Skipton has some ten thousand inhabitants, who are mainly engaged in the manufacture of cotton goods, and in limestone quarries. It is also a grain and cattle market.

Here is an old castle, built in the eleventh century. In the centre of the inner court stands a yew tree, some five hundred years old. It looks lonesome. Could it speak, no doubt it could tell some sad tales of what has been done in Skipton Castle. The only windows on the side facing the entrance are some narrow openings in the thick stone wall, in the shape of a cross, through which arrows might be shot at the enemy, who might get into the outer court. No two rooms are on the same floor. In going from one hall to another, one must either go up or down some steps. The old kitchen fireplace is very large, being some eight feet wide. In the heart of the castle is the dungeon, where prisoners were confined. It has no window, or means of ventilation, and is a small room, surrounded by great stones. Prisoners were taken in there blindfolded, and locked in to stay in the most horrid, and desolate darkness and destitution, to be treated in the most brutal manner by the one who controlled the castle. Lord Hothfield is its present owner. It was often besieged, but suffered no serious injury except in the first of the civil wars in the seventeenth century, when it was captured by the Parliamentary forces, and partly demolished. Lady Anne repaired it; but it was not made a place of defence afterwards. Queen Mary was there imprisoned. Her chair is still in the castle. Royalty once revelled there; but its glory has all departed. Some parts of the castle buildings are occupied by the servants of the present owner, who take charge of the grounds.

Right here, I wish to say a few words about the "Blue Ribbon Gospel Temperance Army," of which Bro. M. Baxter, of London, is President. He has established over one hundred missions in England, Scotland, and Australia. These missions are for the purpose of reaching those who have not been in the habit of attending meetings. Bro. Baxter is a firm believer in the near coming of Christ. He is the Editor and Publisher of London Christian Herald, and The Blue Ribbon Gazette; both of which are weeklies. The Herald has a circulation of some 270,000 copies. When Bro. Baxter finds an earnest, able, and judicious Christian worker, who is willing to devote his or her whole energies to the cause of Christ, and endure hardships, if need be, for Jesus' sake, he sends such an one to open, or take charge of a mission in some city, or large town, with the understanding that if the mission is not self-supporting, he will make up the deficiency. He has built, bought, and hired chapels for this mission work, and blessed results have followed. I visited some twenty of these missions when in England last winter and spring, preaching on the near coming of Christ, and holiness, as the necessary preparation for the glorious event. The great prophetic chart is a special help in showing the evidence that we are near, very near, the end of the long prophetic stream of time. The time seems to have fully come in these missions, as well as in other places, to set forth the prophetic evidence that "the kingdom of heaven" is certainly at hand; and those who wish to be ready, have no time to lose.

There is one special advantage in the arrangement of these missions. When I leave, the interest is not left to die out for want of care and support, as is too often the case, when new fields are entered; but the faithful leaders of these missions push forward the work, holding meetings every evening during the year. Thus the fire kindled is kept burning; and the seed sown is watered and protected. This is a special field for mission work. Most of the members are poor, and unable to give any thing beyond to pay for the necessary, current expenses; and in many stations, they cannot even do that. I received nothing from the twenty missions which I visited; excepting through the kind benevolence of Bro. Baxter, who looked after my fare on the railroads. If one expects an easy time, good living, nice beds and rooms, he should not enter this field; but if he is ready to sacrifice all for Christ, and esteem it a privilege to be allowed to do it for Jesus, then he may have a continual and heavenly feast; and be thankful for plain fare, and a lounge for a bed, in the humble home of one of the Lord's poor disciples. A little self-denial for Jesus' sake affords very rich returns in peace and assurance. Selfishness and unhappiness are inseparably connected. The miser is miserable.

Last Saturday evening we had a meeting in the Temperance Hall, which is a good room for meetings. At seven A. M., Sunday morning we met for consecration, and had an excellent meeting. The Spirit of the Most High was upon us in power. At ten we had an open-air meeting, and at eleven o'clock, I preached on practical Christianity. At two P. M., we had another open-air meeting, and at three I spoke on the prophecies relating to the coming of Christ, illustrated by the chart. At 6.30, I continued the subject before a large and very attentive audience. To-night, I am to speak on "the signs of the times," showing that we are in the last generation, and may expect the return of our Saviour very soon.

I have now appointments in eight other places besides this; and many others are waiting to hear about the coming of our Redeemer. In England, there are many faithful men and women, who do not shun to declare their belief in the near return of the Crucified One. Praise the Lord, we are almost home. Let us work with renewed zeal in this blessed cause, and publish the glad tidings everywhere. Pray for me.

ENGLISH POLITICS.

At the present time there is considerable agitation among English politicians in relation to the "Disestablishment" question; and also as to whether the Conservatives or Liberals shall be elected to fill the seats in Parliament and elsewhere. This matter is to be decided in about two weeks. There is a strong movement against the "Established Church;" that is, the Church of England, which is now supported by the Government. Those who favor "Disestablishment" would have the Church and State separated, so that those who belong to the Church should see to its financial as well as its spiritual interests. There is not much doubt but that if time lasts a little longer, the separation will take place. In all parts of the world, the professed church is losing the respect of the world, because of its backslidden state.

Worldly people know how the church ought to live; and can readily tell when they meet a real Christian. They are seldom mistaken. They are sharp critics. Every year, the nominal church is losing its influence for good upon the unconverted. The condition of things is alarming; but it is one of the signs of the last days, and will continue to become more and more apparent, as the Scriptures clearly indicate. At the same time, the true disciples of Jesus are becoming more and more like their divine Master; and are preparing to meet him with gladsome hearts. They are longingly waiting for his return, as the living bride waits for her coming bridegroom. The language of their hearts is, "Come, Lord Jesus," "Come quickly." Amen.

JESUS CHRIST: HIS PERSON, HIS CHARACTER, AND HIS TEACHINGS.

BY SILAS RENN.

The first chapter of the Epistle to the Hebrews, like the first chapter of the Gospel of John, is full of evidence—evidence of the strongest kind—of the Deity of Christ. Things are here said of the Son, and acts are here attributed to the Son, which could only be true of one who by the constitution of his being is truly God. God, the Father, we are taught here, has appointed his Son "heir of all things;" through him he also "made the worlds," or ages; the Son is said to be "the effulgence of his glory, and the very image," or "the impress of his substance," that is, "of his essential being." He is said to uphold "all things by the word of his power," and the Father commands all the angels to worship him. The Father also calls him "God," and declares that his throne "is forever and ever." And then it is affirmed of him that in the beginning he "laid the foundation of the earth, and the heavens are the works of" his hand. The Son of God, being Creator and Preserver, and the object of worship by all the angels, must be God; his nature the same as that of the Father; his attributes the same as those of the Father. "He was the Son of God," says Dr. Parker, "the only revealer of the Father, his companion through all eternity, the Angel of the Covenant in one age, the Wisdom of another, the Coming One of all time—God the Son."

The Son of God is the source of life, and he is the source of life as the Son. "For as the Father hath life in himself, even so gave he to the Son also to have life in himself." John 5: 26. The Father hath life in himself; the Son also hath life in himself; but this life is no other—can be no other—than eternal life. Eternal life in the Father makes him the eternal Father; eternal life in the Son makes him the eternal Son. Life in the Son is the same as life in the Father. And the Son can give life to others the same as the Father. The words "as" and "even so" in this passage prove that there is equality in the possession of life.

Christ is uniformly spoken of, both in the gospels and the epistles, in some passages as if he was God, in other passages as if he was man, and in others as if he were both God and man; and none of the writers make a single remark to guard us against misunderstanding what they say. It seems to be assumed that the union of the two natures in the one person is understood, and hence names, and attributes, and works, which implies Godhead and manhood, are attributed to him interchangeably.

Various acts and works of Christ are narrated in the gospels, but the writers do not tell us which are divine and which are human, or which must be ascribed to Christ as God, and which must be ascribed to him as man. We are left to make that description for ourselves, and there is little or no difficulty in doing so. One writer has well said, "In all the redemptive plan and work our Lord Jesus appears in twofold nature; in blended character and being. To explain the mystery of this union no human skill is adequate. To discern and accept the fact is the measure of our duty, and the crowning of our faith. To think and speak of Jesus as having but one nature, involves the whole record of his ministry, and of his manifested power in confusion and contradiction. . . In all our Lord's earthly ministry two natures are apparent; the human always visible; the divine always back of the human—always gleaming through it. Sometimes the human is predominant, sometimes the divine."

The union between the divine and the human natures is one we cannot fully understand. It is beyond the comprehension of any finite mind. What a mystery, what a miracle is the person of the Christ? How wonderful is his complex nature—God and man united in one person! This is the miracle of miracles—the divine nature making itself one with the human, that the human might be lifted up to the divine.

"The human nature of our Lord," says Dr. Pope, "underwent a sinless development; a development in common with other men, but, unlike that of other men, without sin. That is to say, on the one hand the union with divinity did not arrest the natural development of the human nature; and on the other, that union did not avail to secure the perfect development of that nature, under the conditions, however, of making its infirmities the instrument of the mediatorial obedience and passion. . . The two natures of this one person are not confounded or fused together, as is testified by the eternal necessity of the case, as also by the fact that none of the attributes of either of the two natures is ever assigned to the other."

But though the Son of God thus dwelt in a human body, though divinity was thus mysteriously united to humanity, that veil of flesh did not altogether hide his essential divinity. On many occasions there were manifest in him the attributes of God. "But," as Dr. Daniel Steele remarks, "born into the world a helpless infant, unfolding in physical, mental, and spiritual power under the laws of normal development, subject to the limitations and ills of humanity, his Godhead was not so conspicuous as his humanity. The divine glory which he had with the Father before the world was, was eclipsed by the robe of clay in which it was wrapped. Only a subdued brightness gleamed through the earthly vesture." Still that brightness was so conspicuous on many occasions in his history, that it is a marvel to us how any one can read the Gospels and not see it.

Remarking on the universality of Christ's nature, of his having in himself a complete humanity, Robertson says, "There was in him no national peculiarity or individual idiosyncrasy. He was not the Son of the Jew, nor the Son of the carpenter, nor the offspring of the modes of living and thinking of that particular century. He was the Son of man. Once in the world's history was born a MAN. Once in the roll of ages, out of innumerable failures, from the stock of human nature, one Bud developed itself into a faultless Flower. One perfect specimen of humanity has God exhibited on earth."

Each evangelist giving us what he knew and heard of Christ, and each one looking at Christ in some respects from a different stand-point, we get a fuller and more correct view of him than we could have done if only one had written his history. We get a number of side lights, which enable us to form a more perfect conception of the person and character of our Saviour.

Do not tell me that nearly two thousand years have passed away since Christ was upon the earth, and that it is too great a stretch of faith to believe things which are said to have taken place such a long while ago. The history of Christ in the Gospels is genuine history. There is all the evidence of its genuineness that a reasonable man can require. There is no other history in the world so well authenticated. If there is ground to doubt the history of Jesus, then no history may be believed. Does the lapse of time take from the New Testament history its truthfulness? It is impossible. The facts related there are as true to-day as they were in the age in which they transpired. The fact of the great civil war in America—the great and terrible conflict between liberty and slavery which took place a few years ago—will be as true a hundred or five hundred years to come as it is to-day. Numbers of histories not nearly so well authenticated as the Gospel history, are believed by literary men everywhere. Why should men who believe other ancient history doubt or deny this? Even profane history bears indirect testimony to the truthfulness of many of the leading facts of the sacred Scriptures.

THE SEVENTH VIAL.

BY S. S. BREWER.

We endeavored to show in a previous article the effects of the sixth vial in the drying up of the symbolic Euphrates. We now propose to present some expository remarks upon the seventh. But before noticing its diversified effects upon the natural and animal creation, we will notice first the great earthquake. Second, the great city, and its division into three parts. Third, the fall of the city of the nations. "And the seventh angel poured out his vial into the air; and there came a great voice out of the temple of heaven, from the throne, saying, It is done. And there were voices, and thunders, and lightnings; and there was a great earthquake, such as was not since men were upon the earth, so mighty an earthquake, and so great."

There are three kinds of voices in this book—exultant voices. See Rev. 11: 15; mirthful voices, 18: 22. And the above voices denoting anger, strife, and hatred, producing divisions, eventually culminating in dividing the great city into three parts. I will notice two revolutions under the significant metaphor of an earthquake.

1st. The great and mighty one above predicted. The political atmosphere of the old world in 1848 seemed to be impregnated with revolution. Was the undefinable agency infused into the air? Perhaps it was by the seventh vial.

The following items of testimony concerning that memorable year must certainly interest all lovers of prophecy.

The first is taken from the "London British Banner" on the revolutions throughout Europe. "From the 7th to the 12th of February, 1848, the subject of reform was fiercely debated in the French Chambers. On the 22nd the people of Paris rose up against the constituted authorities. On the 24th the monarchy fell, and a republican government was set up in its place. On the 8th of March the freedom of the press was proclaimed in Saxony, and the censorship abolished. On the 13th the spirit of revolution broke out in Vienna. The chains of the empire in a moment were snapped asunder. Metternich, the patriarchal High Priest of despotism in Austria fled, and the Imperial Deity did homage at the throne of constitutional freedom. On the same day the flame of revolution burst forth in Berlin. Suffice it to say all the minor powers of the continent have more or less been revolutionized. From the Atlantic to the Vistula every throne has been shaken. The shores of the Baltic and the mountains of Sicily have alike been swept by the mighty whirlwind; the laws, governments, and armies of fifteen centuries departed like a scroll."

Here is an item from "The Alliance and Visitor": "The events of Europe have followed each other in quick and startling succession. The events of centuries have been crowded into a year. The amazing rapidity has astonished the human race. The hand of God should be recognized in these remarkable events."

Another editor commenting thereon stated:—"They are so astounding as to seem more like the visions of the night than the sober realities of the day. There is not a throne that has not been shaken by the uprisings of the past few months."

I will now quote an interesting paragraph from "The Franklin," a large weekly journal: "We stand at a great starting point in the history of the world. All things are about to pass away, and we know not what shall be the new. The continent of Europe, startled by the warning trumpet of 1848, has cowered into silence; and while all faces gather blackness, men's hearts fail them for fear of what is coming upon the earth. The rulers of great nations council together how they may consolidate and extend the reign of despotism, keep down the rising tide, and shut out the coming day." The events of 1848 were the fulfilment of the predicted earthquake, such as was not since men were upon the earth!

"Voices" denote contentious strife. "Thunders" signify divisions. In nature they cause a separation of the elements, resulting in a purifying of the atmosphere. Previous to and since 1848 contention, angry debates, divisions and separations have been manifest to a greater or less extent in all ecclesiastical and parliamentary bodies the world over, extending even to the "great city," as we shall now be called to observe.

Although John was not permitted to enjoy telegraph intercourse with the nations, he was endowed by the Holy Spirit to impart to all coming ages that which has been and is now of more importance than the tongue of electricity, and graven upon the pages of Holy Writ a symbolic photograph of things that should come to pass, and the eye of faith is able to trace them to their fulfilment, even to their last jots and tittles, as they now appear. In Rev. 17 we have the similitude of a "woman" illustrious in infamy, corrupting the kings of the earth, and making them drunk with the blood of saints and martyrs, and on her forehead written "Mystery, Babylon." John wonders with astonishment when the angel explains to him the mystery, and closes by telling him, "The woman which thou sawest is that great city which reigneth over the kings of the earth." In simple fact, Popery, with Rome for its metropolis.

We will now notice this prediction: "And the great city was divided into three parts." I have before me an article with this heading—"The Infallibility of the Pope." The editor of the "London Telegraph" speaks of this matter as follows: "With respect to the dogma of Papal infallibility the Latin church is divided into three parties. One of the three declares that, being true, the doctrine ought to be promulgated by the Ecumenical Council. The second that, although it is true, the promulgation of the truth at such a time as the present, would be highly inexpedient for the interests of the church; while the third declares it to be a monstrous fiction, unknown to the early church, and born of gross and detected forgeries. The first party is represented by Archbishop Manning, who in a recent pastoral has vehemently advocated an immediate decree of promulgation; the second by Bishop Dupanloup, and other French prelates, who as vehemently oppose such a course; and the third by the most learned divines of Germany, such as the authors of the 'Pope and the Council,' and Dr. Dollinger, who have exhausted all their erudition to show that the doctrine is a fiction."

Truly the "Voices" and "Thunders" permeated the atmosphere of the blasphemous high priest of the "Strong Delusions," and divided the great city into three parts."

Thus all prophecy seems to be verging to a focal point. Dear reader, should not the solemnity of the hour urge all that are looking for our long absent Lord's return into the activities of a holy, consecrated life, and a fervent zeal in view of the uncertainty of an extended future?

> Earth's closing scene is drawing near;
> Dread omens are portending;
> Soon will the Judge and throne appear,
> Probation is near ending.
>
> In mercy, Lord, then let me stand
> Amid the blest at thy right hand.
> Dear reader, strive a crown to gain,
> And with the King in glory reign.

WHEN we are most ready to perish, then is God most ready to help us.—Luther.

THE RESURRECTION OF THE DEAD. NO. II.

BY J. H. PETTINGELL.

"If a man die, shall he live again?"—Job 14: 14.

A few days after the English clergyman—to whom I referred in my former paper—had preached from the above text his sermon on the deathless nature of man, I asked the pastor of the church—one of the leading churches of this city—to permit me to preach to his people another sermon on the same text, to show how (not pagan philosophy, but) the Scriptures answered this question. As he was a courteous and liberal minded man, and withal a good friend, I had some hope that I might be allowed to put some divine truth on this subject before the minds of his congregation. But I soon perceived that my proposal gave him no small embarrassment. For while, on the one hand, he would have been glad to gratify me, how could he, on the other, permit the heresy of the gospel to be given to the people for whose religious instruction he was responsible? And so to relieve him I withdrew my request.

He then frankly told me of the quandary in which it would have placed him to have consented to my proposal. It was this: It was his custom on funeral occasions, and at other times, in his sermons to speak of the deceased—certainly those of fair character—as having gone straight to heaven, and as now enjoying heavenly bliss, and his people expected to be comforted in this way. It would embarrass him greatly if I were to tell them that their friends were now sleeping in death, and waiting for the redemption of their bodies in the resurrection, at the coming of the Lord.

Of course it would. And as I would not take any surreptitious advantage of his courtesy on the one hand, nor consent to withhold the truth on this question on the other, if I preached on it at all, the withdrawal of my request was a relief to both of us.

So is it with my so-called "orthodox" ministerial brethren generally with whom I am on terms of comity and good fellowship; they are either unwilling or afraid to permit the presentation of the plainest gospel teaching as to life and death and kindred topics, in their pulpits, lest forsooth it should conflict with their own teaching. And yet, while I would forbear to judge their motives, I cannot help thinking that not a few of them are more than half persuaded that the truth is with us. The same may be said of the popular and widely circulating periodicals, both religious and secular, of the present day. It would, no doubt, damage them in the minds of many of their patrons if their columns were to be opened to the unpopular side of these questions. And so we must content ourselves, for the present at least, with employing as we have done, and shall continue to do to the extent of our means, such other methods of disseminating the truth as we can command.

It has become quite common, and I think almost universal, for the clergy of all denominations to send the souls of the dead directly to their homes in the spirit world—some of them allowing that they will come back again after a time to undergo a kind of resurrection; but others, and I think the number is rapidly increasing, teach that beyond this rising at death there is no other resurrection.

Our religious journals in commenting upon the translation of Elijah, which was the subject for International Sunday School Lessons, very generally taught that there was very little difference between the removal of this eminent saint from the world, and the sudden death of any Christian. Let me quote a few passages from some of them:

"The miraculous translation of Elijah only sets before us, in visible appearance, what takes place when every true child of God departs."—The Sunday School Times.

"Elijah's translation slightly differs from that of every Christian."—N. Y. Independent.

"Every child of God goes to heaven just as much alive as Elijah did. The body is not gone; you live in it, and keep on living without it."—The Christian Union.

"The dead do not slumber in the graves. God's own go straight to the heavenly place. Elijah went up thither, not to sleep, but to live and serve and rejoice. So dying saints now pass at once to glory in Paradise."—N. Y. Observer.

"A sudden departure from this world is often considered a misfortune; a stroke of lightning, a token of divine displeasure. But if we are ready, as Elijah was, we may accept of it as a token of divine love; and the manner of our removal is quick and painless."—Cal. Pacific.

I was present at the monster Methodist Campmeeting this last summer at Ocean Beach, where hundreds of the clergy and thousands of the laity were gathered. After the sudden death of one of the preachers, the leader of the meeting the next morning announced the event in this wise: "Our brother—who was with us on this platform last evening—found the door of heaven a little ajar during the night, and slipped in, and is now singing praises with the angels around the throne of God."

In eulogizing General Grant, recently deceased, the clergy in not a few instances have sent him directly to heaven. From the extravagant language of some of them, we might suppose they had actually seen him go up, as the disciples did our Lord, and enter in with somewhat of the same eclat that attended the King of glory, when the echo rang throughout the heavenly arches—"Lift up your heads, O ye gates, even lift them up, ye everlasting doors, and let our conquering hero come in!" I myself heard a Methodist preacher commend him to God as worthy of his distinguished consideration, as an eminent saint, and to enforce what he said, he related at considerable length, in his prayer, an anecdote to illustrate his scrupulous regard for the Sabbath.

This is the sort of teaching and preaching and praying that is the most popular, and hence prevails very largely, especially in polite society at the present day. I think if the prophet Jeremiah were now alive, he would say of such teachers as of old: "How long shall this be in the heart of the prophets that prophesy lies? Yea, they are prophets of the deceit of their own heart. I sent them not, nor commanded them, therefore they shall not profit my people at all, saith the Lord." "Is not my word like as a fire, and like a hammer that breaketh the rock in pieces? He that hath a dream, let him tell a dream; and he that hath my word, let him speak my word faithfully."

This is what we hope to do, so far as we can gain a hearing; or more definitely, we propose in a few brief articles, in answer to Job's inquiry, "If a man die, shall he live again?" to show what we believe to be the true Scripture doctrine of the resurrection of the dead.

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov., 1885.

THE REST OF THE DEAD.

BY WM. F. COLLIER.

"But the rest of the dead lived not again until the thousand years were finished. This is the first resurrection." At the very commencement of "the Revelation," Jesus has given instruction as to his manner of presenting this prophetic history. If these instructions were carefully followed, I think the seeming shroud of impenetrable mystery, which sometimes conceals the true signification of the above text, would quickly disappear. Jesus says, "He sent and signified it [the revelation] by his servant John." Rev. 1: 1.

The Greek word from which the above word "signified" is translated means, to show by signs and symbols. In John 12: 32 Jesus says, "And I, if I be lifted up from the earth, will draw all men unto me." This is symbolic or figurative language, as the verse which follows will show: "This he said signifying what death he should die." This word "signifying" is translated from the same Greek word as is the above word "signified," clearly proving that this word "signified" means to show by signs and symbols, or by figurative descriptions.

Again, in connection with this announcement that the events are "signified," he has given examples, and explained them, showing how they are signified. Notice the presentation of "candlesticks," which he explains to mean churches; also the "stars," which he says are given to represent the angels of the churches. Chap. 1: 13, 16, 20. It seems to my mind that these facts clearly demonstrate that all things revealed in this "Revelation" are presented through the medium of signs and symbols. The events announced in the text under consideration are exclusively a part of the Revelation, for in no other book in the Bible are we told anything about a part of the dead not living again until a certain thousand years are finished. Neither are we told in any other book anything about a first literal resurrection of the literal dead. Therefore the language used in the text referred to is not a literal statement of real facts, but rather it is a figurative description of things real, which were to come to pass in due time.

Admitting that the foregoing preliminary suggestions are scriptural, the question arises, What class of persons are signified by the expression, "But the rest of the dead"? Before answering this question I will suggest that there is but one thousand year period brought to light in this chapter, but this period is referred to several times. There is another period brought to light, called in the third verse "A little season." It is shown in this chapter that the "little season" period will begin when the thousand years have ended, and will reach to the time when the sea, and death, and hell (the grave) shall have delivered up the dead which are in them; to the time when the dead, small and great, stand before God to be judged, "EVERY MAN," according to their works; to the time when the final judgment will be executed upon the devil and all his wicked host.

Therefore, inasmuch as Jesus says these events will take place "when he shall come in his glory," "in the end of this world"—age—(Matt. chaps. 13 and 25), it is clear that the thousand year period must have its fulfillment within the history of the gospel dispensation. For again, as shown above, this "little season" period, which is to reach to the point of time when these events are to transpire, does not begin until the thousand years have expired.

Having briefly but as I think clearly shown that the events of the thousand year period must have their fulfillment within the history of the Christian dispensation, I will now endeavor to show who are signified by the expression, "But the rest of the dead." I have shown that this is not a literal statement of a real fact, therefore it cannot refer to any class of persons who were or are literally dead. The word "But," which begins this announcement, is a connection, showing clearly that that which is said after the word must have been given to elucidate or modify the sense of that which is said before the word, or to show contrast. That which immediately precedes the word "But" reads as follows: "And I saw the souls [persons—Syr.] of them that were beheaded [slain] for the witness of Jesus, and for the word of God, and which had not [prior to the time when they were beheaded] worshiped the beast, neither his image, neither had received his mark upon their foreheads, or in their hands; and they [the class who were being beheaded] lived and reigned with Christ a [those, Syr.] thousand years."

I have shown that all the events brought to light in this chapter must have been and will be fulfilled within the time covered by the "thousand years" and the "little season." Therefore, all the events signified in the fourth verse, quoted above, must have had their fulfillment within the time bounded by the beginning and end of the thousand years. Hence the CLASS of persons who were being beheaded must have been reigning with Christ during the same period of time as that in which they were being beheaded. To reign means to prevail, to conquer, to overcome. (See Webster.) The class of persons who were being beheaded prevailed over, conquered and overcame the dual government, symbolized by the beast and his image, by suffering death under its laws for the witness of Jesus. Jesus overcame and won the field—the world—and the jewels in it, by submitting to the suffering of death at the hand of his enemies. Hence he says, "To him that overcometh will I grant to sit with me in my throne, even as I also overcame, and am set down with my Father on his throne."

Christ—the Messiah—was and is "priest forever after the order of Melchisedec." This order, Paul says, is—"First being by interpretation King of righteousness, and after that also King of Salem." Therefore as our great High Priest—Christ—is now King of righteousness, so all who now in this dispensation overcome with him, or as he overcame, do now in this symbolic sense reign with him as kings of righteousness, and will literally reign with him in the everlasting kingdom of God, when his Father shall have bestowed upon him his second and final office, namely, King of Salem. Paul says, "For we [the true church] which live are always delivered unto death for Jesus' sake." 1 Cor. chap. 4. Therefore, the true Christian church being always liable to be condemned to death for Jesus' sake, are accounted as dead, and hence may be and are symbolically referred to as dead.

The class of persons who were being beheaded for the witness of Jesus, and who were reigning with Christ, constituted the true Christian Church of the thousand year period. Therefore, the members of the true church must be the class of persons signified by the word "dead," in the symbolic announcement, "But the rest of the dead." For the word "But," which commences the announcement, demands its reference back to the class of persons who were being beheaded, and who were reigning with Christ. The "rest" of this class, or the "rest" of the true church, who were not to live again until the thousand years were finished, signifies the last phase of the true church, namely, those who were to exist upon the stage of action during the "little season" after the thousand years have expired.

Therefore, as shown above, the fact that the true church symbolically "lived and reigned with Christ" during the thousand year period, signifies that they overcame the government symbolized by the "beast and his image," by suffering death for the witness of Jesus, rather than to worship that dual government. And the fact that the true church symbolically "lived not again until the thousand years were finished," signifies not only that she was under condemnation to death, and therefore accounted dead during that period, but it also signifies that at the end of that period the death sentence would be removed; after which event, and during the "little season" period," free toleration of religious worship would be granted her. Therefore, the symbolic text, "But the rest of the dead lived not until those thousand years were finished," seems to have been given for the purpose of contrasting the condition of the true church during the thousand year period with her condition as it would be after this period had come to an end.

If the view I have presented in the foregoing is scriptural, then the symbolic announcement, "This is the first resurrection," also refers back through the word "But" to the class of persons who were being beheaded, and who were reigning with Christ, thus signifying the spiritual condition of this class. The word resurrection implies salvation. Therefore the symbolic phrase "first resurrection" must signify first salvation. Hence the announcement, "This is the first resurrection," signifies that the class of persons who were being beheaded, and who were reigning with Christ, had been made partakers of the first degree of salvation, namely, salvation from sin through the blood of Jesus Christ. This was a guarantee to them that in due time they would come in possession of the second degree of salvation, namely, eternal salvation in the coming kingdom of God. Therefore this symbolic announcement seems to have been given to elucidate—to remove obscurity—from the announcement which precedes it in verse four, which reads as follows: "And they lived and reigned with Christ these thousand years." Thus signifying that the class of persons who were being slain for the witness of Jesus, and who by this act were overcoming the "beast and his image," and who by consequence of this overcoming were reigning with Christ, were accomplishing all these things by virtue of their being partakers of the first salvation, as shown above.

For a carefully digested exposition of Revelation chap. 20, I will refer the reader to a tract now advertised in the World's Crisis, wherein I think I have clearly located in the history of the past the millennial period of that chapter, showing the fulfillment of its events, and also what governments are symbolized by the expression, "The beast and his image," and what constitutes the mark of the beast, which during that period all persons were compelled to receive, on pain of death.

Simple obedience to God's commands is what commends us to him most, and what is best for us too. Col. Havelock told his little son at noon to wait for him on the London bridge, and in the press of business care quite forgot the child; but at night, when the mother asked for the son, the father recalled his last command, and driving at once to the spot, found the faithful son cheerfully waiting his father's coming. —Ex.

THE injunction to pray for the coming of the kingdom of God is the guarantee that no earnest effort directed to that end can be wasted.

DEDICATION.

The house of worship recently purchased by the Second Advent Church in Salem will be dedicated on THURSDAY EVENING, DEC. 3D, at 7 o'clock. Further notice next week.

CHRIST TAUGHT HIS SECOND ADVENT BY PREDICTED SIGNS.

Predicted signs of great events are, in some sense, more forcible than verbal declaration. Men may neglect to hear and know inspired declaration; or they may elect not to recognize what God has said; or, through circumstantial ignorance, they may be unconscious that any declaration has been made, and so be overtaken by judgments of which they have no apprehension. But visible signs are divinely, and mercifully imposed upon the attention of all classes. If Jehovah utters his thunders, men cannot well avoid hearing. If he sends forth his lightnings, the multitudes must see. If he turns the sun into darkness at midday, the people cannot through ignorance or neglect fail to know it. However much the meaning and proper application of the signs may be perverted by the skill of artful scepticism, still God has been heard, the warning has been given. And failure to prepare for judgment cannot be covered by the plea of ignorance.

Moreover the signs, in their occurrence, are present to the generation for whom they were designed; they cannot be forgotten as things of the long past, nor unknown as things of the distant future. In this God's special mercy is visible.

Signs are at once prophetic and premonitory. They are predicted events, whose fulfillment verifies the divinity of the Holy Word and justifies the confidence of believers. And they are, in their accomplishment, Heaven-sent warnings to the wicked.

Signs may be simply natural, as when bud and leaf prefigure the approach of gorgeous summer. They may be supernatural, as when physical forces are charged with unwonted and ominous display, and God puts fiery tongues and terrific voices in the elements.

Signs imply the instability of present conditions, and the certainty of change. In a universe at rest in itself omens could never occur. Only where nature is distorted and the creature is at war with the Creator can mutation reign or revolution be possible. So it is declared of the kingdom to come that it will stand forever—it shall not be given to other peoples. But "signs and wonders" preach unrest, uncertainty, ultimate dissolution.

The signs of the Scriptures constitute a kind of special revelation in corroboration of plain, verbal, inspired statements; a book of visible omens, which must be read by all men.

There were signs of the first advent; accompanying omens of the messianic nature of Christ's ministry; wonders which attested his divinity, power and kingship. And the Saviour complained of the blindness of Israel because they could not discern "the signs of their times." They did witness them. They could not avoid the knowledge of his mighty works, however much they might refuse to listen to his teachings. But they could not or would not discern the import of the "signs and wonders" which everywhere attended him and his disciples.

Christ defended his high claims by reference to the supernaturalism which invested his birth and his entire career; but, constrained to allow most of the facts, they perverted their significance and falsely applied them; charging, in some instances, that he wrought miracles by the power of demons. Nevertheless, visible miraculous witness was added to his wonderful words; and they were left without excuse.

And to guard the church and the world against possible unconscious ignorance, he not only plainly declared: "If I go away, I will come again," but he predicted a course of the most imposing "signs," which would attest both the fact of his second coming and the approximate time of his return.

But as concerning the first advent, so now concerning the second advent, although signs and wonders of the most startling grandeur are imposed upon the attention of all men, their divine significance is—purposely or carelessly—not discerned. Forced to admit the inexplicable occurrences, this unbelieving generation persistently perverts their ominous and real import, and deny that they signalize the coming of the Lord at hand, or that they are the precursors of great dispensational changes.

Amidst the convulsions of nature, the blasts of war, the shock of empires, trembling to their fall, in hourly hearing of the groans of the toiling millions; restless and vengeful under the heavy burdens of unrequited labor; face to face with universal unrest and discontent, the world, and still more the blinded church, tauntingly says, "We see no sign of change." Nevertheless, Christ's predictions of signs in the sun and in the moon and in the stars, as the immediate precursors of his second coming, are being fulfilled before their unbelieving eyes.

In another article we will point out the signs in their specific detail.

GOD NEAR US.

Paul was at Athens. "Left in Athens alone." The great expounder of the new Faith had found his way to the world's centre of art and learning, the seat of the heathen philosophy. He was there to preach what Plato did not know—the existence and character of the true God. And well equipped was he to grapple with the Pantheism of the Stoics, and the Atheism of the Epicurians.

Standing in the Areopagus, surrounded by their sculptured deities—Minerva, Jupiter, Mercury, Apollo—the apostle of the Nazarene stretched forth his hand and said, "Ye men of Athens, I perceive that in all things ye are too superstitious. For as I passed by, and beheld your devotions, I found an altar with this inscription, TO THE UNKNOWN GOD. Whom therefore ye ignorantly worship, him declare I unto you. God that made the world and all things therein, seeing that he is Lord of heaven and earth, dwelleth not in temples made with hands; neither is worshiped with men's hands, as though he needed anything, seeing he giveth to all life, and breath, and all things; and hath made of one blood all nations of men for to dwell on all the face of the earth, and hath determined the times before appointed, and the bounds of their habitation; that they should seek the Lord, if haply they might feel after him, and find him, though he be not far from every one of us."

GOD NEAR US. "Though he be not far from every one of us."

The Heavenly Father is nearer to us than the stars, nearer than the skies, nearer than the air we breathe, nearer than our nearest friends. "In Him we live and move and have our being."

He is near us in the plenitude of divine divine affection. In proof of his great love wherewith he loved us, he gave his own and only Son to redeem us.

How near the Father comes to us in the person of Jesus the Christ! So closely is the Deity thus allied to us, that of the Saviour it is affirmed: "God, manifested in the flesh." The "fulness of the Godhead" revealed among us "bodily." In the Son the divine and the human pulsate in glorious unison. The Father's heart shines in the person of the Anointed. In Jesus we touch all the springs of Deity; Emanuel, God with us.

God is near us in his Holy Word. The words of the Blessed Oracles, ever speaking to us, are the voice of Jehovah, as of a father to his children. His infinite heart breaks forth in speech—the utterances of pity, love, grace, remembrance, promise.

Nearer still is He to us in the presence of the Spirit; even dwelling in us, and we in him; filling us with "all the fulness of God." The divine indwelling covers and infolds every spiritual sense, pervading the all and in all of our being.

We need not go to Athens to find a god. The only and true God "is not far from every one of us." Wherever we may be—on the land on on the sea; in the light or in the darkness; among the many or alone; waking or sleeping; in the flush of life or at the gates of death—there is He.

An ever present, and all-present God! What safety! What joy! What amplitude of all sacred and glorious things is in that grand truth—"God with us"!

THOSE ESSAYS.

"OCCUPY TILL I COME."

As the divine Nobleman, Jesus has taken a journey into the far country, instructing his servants to occupy till his return. He is still absent, but will surely come back, and then a day of reckoning will dawn, and the faithfulness or unfaithfulness of each one will be made manifest. "After a long time the Lord of those servants cometh and reckoneth with them." From a human stand-point he has already been absent a "long time," while God counts it only a "little while;" but this "long time," during which some become inactive, and even distrust his return, will surely expire, and bring us face to face with the infallible Judge, and we shall reap the fruit of our work.

Jesus did not mean "occupy" in temporal matters, though it is well to do even this, but he admonishes us to faithfulness in his service. If we have ten talents, he holds us responsible for their faithful improvement; if we have but the one, he will not excuse us if we hide it. We are left here during his absence to look after the interests of his cause, and cannot be excused for neglecting to respect his will. And especially on the eve of his return this admonition should ring in our ears with divine emphasis, "Occupy till I come." Jesus said it, and he meant it, too. Do we hear it? Will we heed it? ~~In a great variety of ways can we~~ obey him. W. S.

CALIFORNIA ITEMS.

After leaving the Beulah Campmeeting, we spent three Sundays in San Francisco, preaching to the friends in the new Advent Chapel, built by the generosity of Bro. Walker, and our congregations increased till we had a house full of earnest listeners, being aided in the services each Sunday by our esteemed Bro. Howell, who has long stood by the cause in this city. One asked for prayers at our last meeting.

On the 20th of Oct. Bro. Cary and myself began a meeting of six days at the Advent Chapel in Napa Valley; and several families pitched their tents around the Chapel, and camped for the week; so the meeting resolves itself into a Campmeeting on a small scale, though not appointed as such.

In various ways the meeting accomplished much good—in vitalizing the church, in reclaiming several backsliders, in removing prejudice from the minds of outsiders, and in giving the gospel of the kingdom a stronger foothold in community. The outside attendance was said to be the best ever secured in this place, and it cannot be that all the seed sown will prove in vain, but we hope future meetings may reap a harvest from this sowing. There being no ministers present but Bro. Cary and myself, I overworked—could not well avoid it.

At the close of this meeting, Bro. Elkington took me to the Mt. Veeder Resort, twelve miles from Napa—a fine place for recuperation, eighteen hundred feet above sea level, among the red woods and mountain elevations, with one of the nicest climates of the world. Here we are to remain for several days. It seems almost like getting into a new world. Here many have found the health that medicine failed to bestow; asthma leaves at once, and weak lungs grow strong, and dyspeptics recover. This is one of the most romantic places I ever beheld. To-morrow we propose to climb to the top of Mt. Veeder, with others, and view all the land below, and the ocean too. We expect to spend the first Sunday in November with the San Francisco church again. Arrangements beyond this date are not yet made.

Up to this date (Oct. 29) we have seen no signs of frost. Here in the mountains the weather is decidedly summer like at present, and free from the fogs that spread over the valleys so much. I have never before felt such a difference in climate; and the difference is not restricted to the difference in altitude. It seems to infuse new life into the system.

Had one meeting at the "Resort," and one backslider who had attended the Napa meeting, broke down before the Lord, and started anew for the kingdom. This gladdened many hearts. W. S.

ISRAEL'S DISAPPOINTMENT.

In the second year after leaving Egypt, the children of Israel came to Kadesh-barnea, from which point Moses sent spies to view the promised land. Ten of them were faint-hearted, and saw obstacles in the way, in the shape of potent foes, and strong fortifications; but Caleb and Joshua had "another spirit," and brought back the grapes of Eshcol to stimulate the people, and affirmed that they were "well able to overcome;" and Caleb said: "Let us go up at once." Num. 13: 30.

No doubt they had expected to enter the land immediately, being already within a few days' march. But in spite of this expectation God kept them wandering in the wilderness for a long time, and it was not till forty-five years after this event that Caleb claimed his portion of the inheritance.

He then said to Joshua: "Forty years old was I when Moses, the servant of the Lord, sent me from Kadesh-barnea to spy out the land. . . And now, behold the Lord hath kept me alive, as he said, these forty-five years; . . and now, lo I am this day eighty-five years old. . . Now, therefore, give me this mountain. . . And Joshua blessed him, and gave unto Caleb, the son of Jephunneh, Hebron for an inheritance." Josh. 14: 7-13.

So this Caleb, who said at Kadesh-barnea, "Let us go up at once, and possess it," had to wait forty-five years before receiving his possession. A long waiting time indeed, and the most of his associates fell in the interim, but he got his possession at last. W. S.

A SPARK NEAR THE MAGAZINE.

The little war now raging so furiously in Eastern Europe is certainly a spark very near a mine of tremendous explosives. The question of its liability to produce a general rupture is causing great quaking among the prophetic kingdoms. The agency and process of kindling the flame is still a mystery, but no doubt it was directed by Providence to fill a niche in the great prophetic arch. It is impossible for human eyes to see what the results of this sudden outburst may be, but it has come at a time when it will be very difficult to subdue the flames. Europe is like a vast field of dry stubble, with a high wind of antagonistic excitement sweeping over it, while the elements capable of extinguishing the flame of war are nearly exhausted. The great governments have, during the last fifty years, like armed giants, held back the revolutionary elements; but the surging millions who have dreamed of coming deliverance, now feel that to perish in the battle for liberty is preferable to longer suffering the heartless tyranny of debauched rulers.

This war has commenced in a locality where it has required the greatest skill to hold the nations from rebellion against the powers that be. The real question at issue, and the one which is inclusive of all others involved is, Shall the Grand Turk, the Moslem tyrant of the world, be longer suffered to trample in the dust under his iron heel millions of the manacled peoples of Christendom? There are more than a score of nationalities who unite in one harmonious declaration; We shall make one more desperate effort for freedom from these galling shackles, and shall obtain our independence, or sacrifice all in the attempt.

It will be observed that in this struggle, Prince Alexander of Bulgaria, King Milan of Servia, and King George of Greece declare virtually that their subjects demand permission to fight for their liberty, and if their rulers will not lead them into the field, then they will call others to take their places, who will sound the bugle for them. When nations are thus inflamed with revenge for old and new oppressions, and feel that life itself is not too great a price for liberty, it becomes nearly impossible to find floods sufficient to quench the flames. Such is the present condition of the combatants in Eastern Europe.

A few facts relating to and conducive of the present war are necessary for an understanding of the situation. The great Christian Powers of Europe have been determined for more than a hundred years to embrace the first opportunity to dispossess the Turk of his European dominions, and relieve the down-trodden Christian nations, who have been scourged by his tyranny for four hundred years. The only reason why this deliverance has not been enjoyed before is because the great Powers could not agree how to divide and control the spoils. Every movement in this direction has resulted in the complete or partial freedom of some of those enslaved peoples. The present movement is for the same purpose. The same hindrance to the immediate completion of this work of liberation—the disagreement among the Great Powers—now exists as before. Russia is determined when the Turk fails to obtain a controling power over Constantinople and the Dardanelles. England is just as determined that Russia shall never enjoy that boon. This principally has produced the long antagonism between the empires. In the last conflict between Russia and Turkey, when Russia was just laying her hand upon the golden prize, England sent a fleet of her iron-clads to the "great water way," and commanded the Cossack to halt. He did halt, but uttered an oath of revenge for himself, his successors and his empire. The fire of that revenge has burned every moment since.

The Czar's first movement after that defeat was to form a treaty with the Sultan, which was speedily done at San Stefano. This treaty united Bulgaria and Eastern Roumelia, together with a large district lying west of it. It was evident that Russia designed to constitute Bulgaria a strong kingdom, with a government passively under Russian control, so that when another movement to subdue the Turk should come, Russia would have an ally so near Constantinople that she could safely quarter her armies there, and wait for the auspicious hour to strike with fresh troops the final blow. Immediately after the treaty of San Stefano the European Congress met at Berlin, when England protested against making Bulgaria so strong and independent a kingdom. England gained her point, and the Bulgarian kingdom, constituted by the treaty of San Stefano, was divided by the treaty of Berlin, and instead of being independent of the Turk's control, was made tributary to and put under the suzerainty of the Sultan. The English delegates to that Congress saw that Austria, in the final break up of the Turkish Empire, was designing to use Servia as an ally to assist her in obtaining what she coveted of the estate to be divided, and so they, together with the French and Italian delegations, divided Servia so as to weaken that State.

The great dissatisfaction of the people of Bulgaria, Servia, Greece, and many others of those States in the treaty of the Berlin Congress, caused the delegates to give assurances to those peoples to quiet them, that in the near future they should have their prayers granted. Lord Salisbury, now the English Premier, was one of the English delegates to the Berlin Congress, and said within the last few days:

"The Berlin treaty was intended to pave the way for the independence of the Balkan States. The treaty had done its work well in an exceedingly short time, and it was absurd to insist that it be maintained. England earnestly desired a settlement that would satisfy the Balkan States and preserve the integrity of Turkey, which was necessary for European peace."

These circumstances make it certain, in the mind of every one understanding them, that the peace of Europe cannot long be maintained, which accounts for the fact that many writers refer to a coming general war in Europe as a matter of necessity. The Editor of the Boston Journal says:

"The mobilization of the Servian army will bring 100,000 men into the field, and if all classes of the reserves are called out, as they probably will be, King Milan will have a force of 200,000 men at his disposal. With such a strength as this to back him, he can do some very effective slashing against the Bulgarians, if the conflict be limited to that State, or against the Turks, if they decide to interfere. The probabilities are, however, that Russia will not remain passive should the advance be made, Servia being virtually Austrian, and so conflicting with her interests in the Balkan States. In that event an Austrian advance may be looked for, and the inevitable war which Europe has so long been striving to stave off will be fairly on."

This writer sees in the present war, for it is now progressing just as he supposed it might do, a link to connect it with the "inevitable war which Europe has been so long striving to stave off."

The following report of a telegram sent by Lord Salisbury to the English minister at Constantinople is very remarkable, as it is related to the present war:

"Believing that the final struggle of the Turkish empire for existence is approaching, Lord Salisbury has telegraphed to Mr. White, the British representative at Constantinople, instructing him to assure the Porte that England will do her utmost to preserve the integrity of Turkey."

If the opinion of the British Premier is correct, then it is certain that the great war for which such vast preparations have been made, and which has been so long anticipated by prophetic expositors and intelligent politicians, is at hand.

There are many facts connected with this movement which are exceedingly interesting to all classes who have been anticipating such a fearful antagonism. We will make reference to but one more in this article. The Conference of the Powers at Constantinople, designed to make some arrangement to stay the war elements or "hold the winds," was reported on the 13th as follows:

"War hangs on the decision of Prince Alexander in reply to the collective declaration of the Ambassadors of the Powers. The Powers require an immediate reply to the demand that Bulgarian forces recross the Balkans as a preliminary condition to the concessions agreed to by Turkey on the initiative of Lord Salisbury, supported by the Western Powers. The conference can do nothing further in relation to the revolution in Eastern Roumelia, and can take no further steps to avert the calamity of war. King Milan's reply to the clause in the collective declaration calling on Servia and Greece to demobilize their armies has been received. It is a distinct and emphatic refusal to disarm, although conveyed in courteous language."

Nov. 14th the following news was cabled from London:

"Servia has declared war against Bulgaria."

The present war between two of the second rate European States cannot, in our opinion, be considered a prophetic war. But if it should prove to be the spark which will reach the great explosives, so that the Great Powers shall come into bloody collision, such a war we should look upon as the prophetic last struggle in human conflict. We shall watch with great interest the developments in the immediate future. If God's time has come for the last conflict, no earthly power can stop it, but if not, no human desires can bring it. J. C.

THE CHURCH AT LYNN, MASS.

We have been favored with the opportunity recently of spending two Sabbaths with the Advent Church in this place, and we could not help calling to mind while there the meetings we held with them some twenty-five years ago, when God wonderfully poured out his Spirit upon the people, and many gave their hearts to Christ, rejoicing in the fact of sins forgiven, and in the hope of eternal life. There are some of the fruits of that work still remaining, although many who used to be present then are now sleeping among the dead.

Then the brethren used to meet in a hall; now they have a commodious house of worship, and, as then, a good congregation of people to listen to the preached Word. Like many of our Advent Churches, this has had its trials; but there are a goodly numnumber holding on to God and truth, and are determined not to give the battle over until they shall come off victors.

The church at Lynn have a flourishing Sabbath School, under the able superintendency of Bro. John Burnham. Bro. B. seems to be the right man in the right place when having the charge of a Sunday School. We have never seen a Sabbath School among our people that excels the one at Lynn. It is well organized and disciplined, prompt in recitations, and really an active working body.

Very much more interest is manifested among our people in Sabbath School work than formerly, but there is still a great chance for improvement. The importance of earnest activity in Sabbath School work cannot be overestimated, and I would that we all might realize it more and more.

The church in Lynn is growing steadily. We had the privilege of immersing three in the likeness of Christ's death on one Sunday that we were there. It was estimated that there were fully two thousand people at the baptism. May God still bless this church. A. W. SIBLEY.

HE COULDN'T COMPETE.

I had a conversation recently with a retired Methodist clergyman, an elderly man, of considerable ability, I should judge. Speaking of the education of his children, to secure which he had left the ministry in later years to enter business, he said that while he had as good an education as his associates, yet when he came to be settled in large villages he found that he could not compete with the ministers of other denominations. He therefore desired a liberal education for his sons. He then spoke of his oldest boy's progress in the ministry, and that from a small beginning in a poor western parish he had risen until he now received a salary of two thousand dollars per year.

I have thought much of the conversation. "Competition with other ministers!" How the words grated on my ears. And has it come to this, I thought. No wonder that some of the people are of Paul, and some of Apollos, if such be their teachers. All due respect to education, but let it not be used for competition.

Said Luther, "Ambition is the rankest poison to the church, when it possesses preachers. Cursed are all preachers that in the church aim at high and loud things, and neglecting the saving health of the poor, unlearned people, seek their own honor and praise, and therewith to please one or two ambitious persons. When I preach, I sink myself deep down. I regard neither doctors nor magistrates, of whom are here in this church above forty; but I have an eye to the multitude of young people, children and servants, of whom are more than two thousand. I preach to these, directing myself to them that have need thereof. Will not the rest hear me? The door stands open unto them; 'they may begone.'" And was it not the Apostle Paul, learned beyond his fellows, who said, "And I, brethren, when I came unto you, came not with excellency of speech or of wisdom, declaring unto you the testimony of God?"

Does God expect his servants to compete with the wisdom of the world? Wonder if Noah was successful in competition? How about the prophets? What of Jesus and his apostles? What of the reformers and the Wesleys? Were they successful competitors for popularity and salaries? What is the object of preaching? Rivalry? Popularity? Good salary? Or is it the proclamation of the truth of God, whether men will hear or forbear—whether you get curses or pennies—whether your congregations be small or large? Some of old "loved the praise of men more than the praise of God." Is the number small to-day? I fear not. O for more respect for God's truth in pew and pulpit. How many professed Christians will go to a certain church if only a particular minister is to be there; but when that individual goes away, they go.

Said a lady recently, "They sing—

'I've found a friend in Jesus,
He's everything to me.'

But they ought to sing—

'I've found a friend in the minister;
He's everything to me.'"

Brother, sister, it is time to cease from man, whose breath is in his nostrils. Let our eyes be only unto the Lord's glory, and not earthly recompense. With a single eye let us "press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus."

WM. A. BURCH.

THE CROWN OF THORNS.

The Rev. George R. Kramer preached an eloquent sermon on the "Crown of Thorns" recently. In part he said: "He whose coming was the beatitude of humanity, was, strange to say, crowned, not with the blessing, but with the curse of the earth. It was true—in the language so expressive of the sacrifice of Christ—'He saved others, he would not save himself.' He came to the earth in love to its inhabitants, to whose guilty primogenitor it was said: 'Cursed is the ground for thy sake, in sorrow shalt thou eat of it all the days of thy life; thorns also and thistles shall it bring forth to thee.' The very fact of taking humanity upon himself—in touching this earth of ours with a nature susceptible to its influence, necessitated the thorns, the common participation of the sorrows of the earthborn; but he not only partook of our woes, not only shared our calamities, not only felt with us the curse, but was 'made a curse for us, was crowned with the curse.' 'Surely he hath borne our griefs and carried our sorrows.' This is the treatment which the world gives its benefactors; the age of martyrdom has not passed.

Truth is unpopular to-day and has its Calvary and its thorns, while falsehood has power, place and a large constituency. Goodness is derided as chimerical when too close an imitation of the Son of God, while religion is ostensibly applauded. We cannot promise you the wealth and plaudits of the world if you follow Christ. 'If any will be my disciple let him take up his cross and follow me. Gethsemane and Calvary are found by those who follow the Man of Sorrows, and 'Blessed is he,' says Christ, 'whosoever is not offended in me.' But this crowned one is a King. He was crowned in mockery of his claims; but his claims were just, and, in the consciousness of innocence and the knowledge of the justice of his title, he could bear the crown of thorns. Let those who suffer unjustly, whose claims are set aside by triumphant wrong learn a lesson of resignation from him who meekly bowed his head to this thorny crown and prayed for his enemies.

But as a King he will come again and receive the crown of glory; and 'if we suffer with him we should also reign with him.' Have you 'a thorn in the flesh?' 'Is there trouble anywhere?' 'Unto you it is given in behalf of Christ not only to believe on him, but also to suffer for his sake.' The crown of thorns worn by Christ should cause all sorrowing, suffering ones to look to him, to trust him as a Saviour of infinite compassion.

'A new heaven and a new earth;
No more pain, neither sorrow nor crying,
The divine event
To which the whole creation moves.'

'And there shall be no more curse.' 'Instead of the thorn shall come up the fir tree. 'It shall be to the Lord an everlasting sign.'"—Ex.

FROM C. PIKE.

Bro. Stockman:—We are glad to say for the encouragement of the saints scattered abroad that the Lord has been blessing the little church at Peck, Mich. They had become nearly discouraged, and as one of the members remarked, "We were as low as we could get." Yet the Lord came as he always does when we feel our perfect helplessness. Bro. L. Kerr was with them for some months, but was obliged to go from them last August.

The Sanilac Quarterly Conference was held with this church, commencing Oct. 16, and continued over the following Sabbath. All pronounced it one of the very best of meetings. The cause was obvious: the Holy Spirit was present from the first. By request of the brethren we remained for days preaching the coming of Jesus, and pleading with sinners to prepare to meet him. We were there in all about twenty days. The convicting power of the Spirit seemed to rest upon every one who came, and some whom we were told dare not come. Backsliders returned to the fold, and a goodly number rose and requested the prayers of saints.

Last Sunday (Nov. 8th) we immersed thirteen intelligent, happy souls in the likeness of Christ's death and resurrection. We are looking for others to follow. The church is very much quickened, and have resolved to go on till Jesus comes. After the evening service we gave the right hand of fellowship to fourteen, only one having professed Christ to the world before the meetings. We then commemorated the death and sufferings of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. Thus closed our labors here for the present. May those who read this lift their hearts in silent prayer to God that his blessing may abide on this flock.

THE more believers love God, the more they love one another; as the lines of a circle, the nearer they come to the centre, the nearer they come to each other.

GOSPEL GEM SERIES.

We are about to issue a weekly edition of Four Thousand Eight-Page Tracts.

A NEW TRACT EACH EDITION.

These tracts are intended for general distribution in the prisons and asylums for the unfortunate, and poor and afflicted everywhere. We have undertaken this work believing it is of the Lord, and trusting that means will be provided. We invite all who are interested in saving men to co-operate with us, according to your means and ability. We want reliable persons in all our large cities to visit the prisons and asylums and distribute tracts, and place them where they will do good. We will send packages of ONE HUNDRED weekly to all our churches who may order, with or without price. Let each church have a box in their house of worship in some conspicuous place, marked

Contributions for Gospel Tract Gems.

Twenty-five cents per week will give you one hundred short sermons to distribute among those who attend your meetings. For ten cents we will mail FORTY eight-page tracts to any address in the United States. For TWENTY-FIVE CTS. we will mail ONE HUNDRED, etc. etc. We appeal to the stewards of the Lord to donate funds to meet the expense of supplying prisons, asylums, and for the poor and unfortunate everywhere. We shall open a column in the Crisis for DR. and CR. with GOSPEL GEM SERIES FUND, so that all may be informed as to the financial condition of the work.

Now, dear brethren and sisters, and all who are interested in the spread of Gospel truth, let us all take hold of this work in earnest. The world is in earnest—the devil is in earnest. Let us meet the flood of evil that is coming in upon the church and world with a united effort, and scatter the truth everywhere. Send in your DIMES and DOLLARS for free distribution of tracts, and let us have a colporter in every town and city. The tracts will be mailed on a stated day each week. Address

FROM J. C. & S. E. SMITH.

Dear Editor, and Brethren and Sisters in Christ:—We had a blessed meeting at our Quarterly Conference. The God of Jacob was with us in power. The preaching brethren present were Brn. Whitehouse, Orchard, McFadden, and J. C. and S. E. Smith. Five have set out for eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord.

At one place two directors, one a saloon keeper, the other a hater of God and his people, shut the school-house, put on a large chain and lock, and when some seventy-five or a hundred of us came together, we found we were shut out; but they could not shut Christ out of our hearts, so we invited all the enemies of the cross of Christ, and all the dear children of God, to go to dear Bro. Patterson's house, and there we would break the bread of life. We went, and one man who had been convicted for three years since we were here at the first, and who had persecuted the blessed Master, was there, and others. We spoke from 1 Pet. 4: 14-16. The Lord poured out his Spirit, and the next night this man arose, and said he was ashamed of his company, and should stay no longer with them, confessed his wrong, and came out a free man in Christ; whereas, if we had resented the wrong of shutting the school-house, and had broken it open, no doubt this man would never have been brought to Jesus. Five others are awaiting baptism, and this man, for whom so many prayers have been offered, obeyed the Lord in this ordinance. Now we have just received a note that Bro. Porter, who left us at Scappoose, and has gone away up near the British dominions, is doing a good work for Jesus. We praise the Lord for what he is doing. Pray for us. Your brother and sister in Christ.

The Dalles, Wasco Co., Oregon.

FROM GEO. V. GREENMAN.

Bro. Stockman:—Thinking perhaps some of the saints would like to hear from us out here in Dakota, I will write a few words.

Bro. Philo Hitchcock came here about two years ago, and labored a few months, and God blessed his labors in gathering in a few chosen ones. He organized a church of some sixteen members. Last June eight went forward in baptism, we trust to walk in newness of life. Since then others have obeyed. God bless them all, and make them living epistles, known and read of all men Bro. Hitchcock is truly a man of God, whom the Lord delights to honor in his work. He has gone to Brookings to labor this winter. May God bless his labors to the salvation of many souls is our prayer. Yours looking for that "blessed hope."

Redfield, Dakota.

THE REASON WHY.

It is obvious to me that the primary reason why the coming of the Lord and kindred Bible truths are so little preached by the so-called Orthodox clergy is because more attention is paid to the study and preaching of theological tenets and denominational creeds than is paid to the careful, prayerful study of the Word of God. Hence it is preached that man by nature is possessed of immortality, and at the dissolution of this mortal body an immortal, invisible, indestructible soul goes to its just reward—either to a life of joy in realms of bliss beyond the sky, or to a life of eternal woe in the lake of fire, which is not "the second death," but a death which never dies. And necessarily such a position throws aside the object of Christ's coming; and Scripture treating on such a theme is either spiritualized into nothingness, or given an everlasting letting alone. But nevertheless our Lord has said, "Behold, I come quickly, and my reward is with me to give every man according as his work shall be." Rev. 22: 12. It seems a little strange that men called of God to be his ambassadors should make so wide a mistake in delivering the message as to fail to say anything about what God has made so prominent.

A LIFE which is hid with Christ in God yields to one a never-failing experience of trustful repose and freedom from worldly care, but is not a life of indolence. The true Christian finds abundant opportunities for activity.—Sel.

THE leaven spoken of in the gospel, the word of God, is now preached throughout the earth. There is scarcely an island where the priests and missionaries are not to be found. So far the word of the gospel has been filled, and now, it may be, that the end of the world is not remote, said Rev. Nicholas Balleis, pastor of St. Francis' Roman Catholic Church, Putnam avenue, Brooklyn, in commenting upon the gospel of the day. It is not promised that all the people of the earth shall be converted, but that the gospel shall be preached. This is now being done, and we know not but the end is not far off.—Sel.

BIOGRAPHY OF MRS. L. E. FASSETT.

By her Husband, Eld. O. R. Fassett.

Printed on heavy paper, and bound in cloth; 168 pages; price 50 cts. For sale at the Crisis Office, 144 Hanover Street, Boston, Mass.

The subject of this Memoir was well known to a wide circle of friends, among whom for many years she lived and moved as an angel of love, carrying the gospel of Jesus, and by true devotion, womanly modesty and Christian principle, setting an example worthy of imitation by women everywhere. No wonder that she won the affections of hundreds, who ask now she is dead, to have some record of so exemplary a life. Her husband—certainly best qualified to perform the task—has in this beautiful book endeavored to meet the desire of friends. Tenderly has he written, and the tender-hearted will here and there drop a tear while reading passages in the book. The Biography is a work that will sell from its own recommendation. AGENT.

A TRACT FOR THE TIMES.

THE RECURRENCE OF DOCTRINE.

By Pastor A. J. Gordon.

This is a reprint of a very striking address, recently delivered by the author before the Alumni of the Newton Theological Seminary. It is not stale reading by any means, but is luscious fruit from the tree of life. It shows how the great truths of inspiration continually recur in the history of the church. By this recurrence the Doctor claims that great revivals and reformations spring up, and perennial freshness is secured to truth. The Eucharist for the people—Salvation by the objective work and word of Christ,—and Last Eschatology, or the doctrine of last things, among the latter, "The Lord Cometh"—are apostolically pressed upon the attention of the Alumni. Good! The doctrine, the precious truth of Jesus' coming, is voiced by the Clarendon Street Baptist pulpit, without misgivings or mysticism.

This is a twenty page tract; price 3 cts. each; twelve for 25 cts. For sale at the Crisis Office, 144 Hanover St., Boston, Mass.

AN EXPOSITION

OF THE 20TH CHAPTER OF REV.

By Wm. F. Collier.

This is a tastily printed pamphlet of thirty-two pages, with tinted cover. It gives the author's position upon this chapter, upon which there has been much discussion, and various opinions. The author claims that in the book of Revelation the literal truth is given by symbols. He therefore regards the thousand years as in the past, and thinks it inconsistent with Christ's words to place the resurrection of the just and unjust a thousand years apart; as Christ says, "The hour is coming in the which all that are in their graves shall hear his voice and come forth." But get the pamphlet and examine for yourself.

NEW BOOKS.

It is with pleasure we present to the Christian public our new publications, in which the reasons of our faith are presented in a candid and logical manner, and with such a vast amount of scriptural testimony that the books must command the respect of all candid thinkers and Bible students.

"OUR HOPE," OR, WHY ARE WE ADVENTISTS?

The large and increasing demand for this work is an expression of the high appreciation of its merits among our people, and we believe it will accomplish much good in removing unjust prejudice, and enlightening many minds upon the great subject of Christ's Second Advent, and the restitution of all things spoken by the prophets of olden times. We wish that a copy might be placed in the hands of every clergyman in the country. Price single, postpaid, 60 cts.; per dozen, by express, $6.00. AGENT.

HADES, OR THE INTERMEDIATE STATE OF MAN.

A companion volume to "OUR HOPE." By Rev. H. Constable, A. M., containing 267 pages, neatly bound in cloth, lettered in gold, making it ornamental and attractive. This is a reprint of the English edition, and the third edition of the work. The former price was $1.25 per copy. We are also to put them at 60 cts. per copy; $6.00 per dozen, by express. The large sale of this work in the old country is undoubted evidence of its great merit. It is the only work extant, with which we are acquainted, that fully presents an extensive historical and scriptural testimony on the state of man in death. AGENT.

DURATION AND NATURE OF FUTURE PUNISHMENT.

By Rev. H. Constable, A. M., late Prebendary of Cork, Ireland, and author of "HADES, OR THE INTERMEDIATE STATE OF MAN," etc. Neatly bound in cloth; 260 pages; price, 60 cts. single; $6.00 per dozen, by express.

This book has passed through five editions in England. We have the pleasure of presenting to the public the first AMERICAN EDITION at a low price. It is a companion volume to "OUR HOPE" and "HADES," and the three constitute a compendium of theology upon the subjects of the nature of man, intermediate state, future retribution, and life in Christ, that can scarcely be equalled outside of the Bible.

We will send the THREE volumes to Clergymen of any denomination for $1.75 postpaid. Please remember the above applies to Clergymen only. Address all orders to

J. HEMENWAY, Box 5140, Boston, Mass.

A NEW TRACT.

"WHY ARE WE A PEOPLE?"

This handsomely printed Tract of 22 pages is the Discourse preached by ELD. E. A. STOCKMAN at the Special Convention in Worcester, Mass., and published by vote of the Convention. The Tract is eminently timely in its character, and should be scattered by thousands in every direction.

Price (post-paid), two copies for 5 cents; per dozen, 25 cents; per pound, 75 cents. AGENT.

ANOTHER NEW TRACT.

THE END OF THE IMPENITENT.

BY WM. H. MITCHELL.

This tract is the substance of a sermon preached by Bro. Mitchell at Biddeford, and published by the A. C. Publication Society, Boston, Mass. No one acquainted with Bro. Mitchell's pulpit and literary ability will need be told that this production is eminently worthy of careful reading and wide-spread circulation. The argument is unanswerable; the rhetoric is pure and impressive, the spirit Christian and tender. Let this tract be ordered at once by thousands. Price, two for 5 cts., 20 cts. per dozen. AGENT.

A NEW TRACT.

THE SABBATH ABROGATED.

By Mrs. C. C. Stewart.

A Tract of 16 pages. It is logical and concise, and meets the demand for something that shows up the fallacious claims of the advocates of the Seventh-day theory. The Seventh-day people are flooding some sections of the country with Sabbath literature that is calculated to mislead many, and bind the yoke of the law upon the people. Give this tract a large circulation. Two for 5 cts., 20 cts. per dozen. AGENT.

NEW PAMPHLET.

BY A. ROSS.

TOKENS OF THE HOUR: The Last Phases of the Papacy marked in Prophecy.

LINES

Composed by Mrs. F. R. Blanchard, North Adams, Mass.

Help me, dear Saviour, to the end,
My burden to endure,
And ne'er my cross to lay aside
Till life is made secure;
Until I reach the other shore,
Where weary feet may rest,
And throbbing hearts shall break no more,
By cruelty oppressed.

Where everlasting love shall spread
Its pinions wide and far,
Designing foes and treacherous friends
No more our peace shall mar;
But happiness, wave after wave,
In endless courses roll;
Eternal bliss, age after age,
Shall satisfy the soul.

Once there, and all will be forgot
That we have suffered here;
The path, so dark and lonely now,
Will there at last be clear.
We'll know why these chastisements come;
Affliction's hand must fall;
And by our side loved ones go down,
In gloom enshrouded all.

We'll know as we are known, 'tis said,
Beyond earth's shadowing gloom,
When those who love and those who hate,
Are awakened from the tomb.
Together all may rise, perchance,
But share a different doom;
For lying tongues will there be hushed,
And perjured lips be dumb.

Deceivers and deceived must stand,
And pass the final test,
Their names be called, their sentence read,—
Depart, or come ye blest.
But is there no escaping then?
No refuge city nigh?
That man may reach, and there escape
That all discerning Eye?

The everlasting mountains fall,
The solid rocks must fly,
And mortal man come forth at last
To meet Jehovah's eye!
The ocean's depths give up its dead,
The earth its millions slain;
Not one a hiding place can find,
For God Jehovah reigns!

Lord, guide these faltering steps of mine,
And shield this throbbing heart,
For dark and dangerous is the way—
From thee I would not part.
In vain I've tried to anchor here,
And trust an arm untried;
That awful day comes on apace—
I need a heavenly guide.

My foes are strong, my friends are few,
I faint on desert sands;
There's none on earth O God, but thee,
To hold these trembling hands.
I stretch them out each hour, O God,
To meet thy answering clasp;
But oft I faint, the heart grows weak—
These tried hands, O grasp!

Oh! draw this wayward child of thine
Nearer, still nearer thee,
And wipe the blinding tears away,
That I thy face may see.
Then when the ransomed, blood-washed ones
Before thy face shall fall,
May I be found enrolled with them,
And thine the glory all.

THE WORCESTER CONVENTION.

The General Ministerial Convention of the Second Adventists was held according to the announcement, commencing Tuesday evening, Nov. 10th, and closing its sessions on Friday evening, Nov. 13th. There was a good attendance from abroad, and the interest of the meetings was remarkably enlivening, except at times when the essays were a little tedious. Experience shows that the interest in such gatherings is enhanced by brief essays, if any are to be read, and by giving the members of the Convention an opportunity to express their thoughts. With slight exceptions, the interest of the people attending this Convention was very close and lively. Those who remained through Thursday and Friday sessions expressed themselves as being much edified and pleased with the proceedings. The Worcester church manifested their usual hospitality, which was more than sufficient for all the necessities of the Convention.

The opening sermon was by Eld. J. H. Pettingell, of Philadelphia. The writer was not present to hear it, but the people were glad to hear from Bro. Pettingell during the sessions of the Convention. The topics discussed Wednesday forenoon were, "The Personality of Jehovah," "The Divinity of Jesus Christ," and "The Office of the Holy Spirit." The first was led in an essay by Eld. Wm. H. Mitchell, of Me., the second in an off-hand discourse by Eld. S. G. Mathewson, of Worcester, and the third in an address by Eld. E. A. Stockman, of Chelsea. They were all followed by stirring remarks from members present. Bro. Mitchell's essay was said by the members to be a very able one, but the writer was not present to hear it, being detained by home duties. It is to be regretted that the excellent essay of Bro. M. could not have been heard by a full house. We hope it will be published in the Crisis. Bro. Stockman's address was very touching in many of its passages, and the comforts and consolations of the Holy Spirit were vividly portrayed. Remarks on the topics were made by Bro. Couch, Pettingell, Hemenway, Morgan, McKinstry, Wellcome, and others present.

On Wednesday afternoon the Convention organized by electing Eld. E. A. Stockman, President, Eld. G. H. Wallace, Vice President, and Eld. F. Burr, Secretary. The social service was one of lively testimonies, as was the case in all the social meetings of the convention. The spirit of the meetings was excellent, and the kind feelings of the members while holding conflicting views on some points, was evidence of their Christianity. Love was the ruling power of the convention. The first topic of Wednesday P. M., was, "The Authority and Design of the Holy Scriptures." Eld. L. C. McKinstry gave a lengthy essay on this topic, and in the brief time that followed several spoke in harmony with the essayist, that the authority of the Bible was that of God, and the design was to make known God's will through Jesus Christ. Eld. I. C. Wellcome read a lengthy essay on this topic, "The Importance and Scriptural Philosophy of the Atonement." He spoke of the word "atone" as declared by Webster to be the union of "at" and "one," and signifying to make two disagreeing persons to be at one.

He spoke at length of Adam's transgression and its consequences, showing the need of an atonement; of Jesus' work of redemption as being for the whole race, but of salvation being only for believers and God's chosen. There was no time for discussion after this essay. Eld. Pettingell followed in a lengthy but refreshing essay on the "The fact and nature of the Resurrection." He reviewed some of the various views upon the topic—gave the creeds of the Papal church and the Westminster Catechism, showing the agreement of the two with the exception of the doctrine of purgatory. Some now hold,—and the number is increasing,—to probation after death, and make the resurrection a step to entire restitution. Some hold that the ghostly state is the true resurrection. But the Bible teaches an absolute physical resurrection—of all—some out from the dead—the others of the dead. The Bible declares death to be an enemy, but many ministers almost deify it, and ignore the Redeemer and his claims. Nature gives no resurrection either of insects or vegetables, for they do not die and then live again. Resurrection is no natural development, but a stupendous miracle. Personal identity is preserved in the parts; I do not know the manner, but I believe the fact. It is Biblical. We receive it by faith, not by reason. Many things are inexplicable. The psychical organizes the material. The "spiritual body" is not a phantom, but a real veritable body. Jesus was thus, the same body changed. There is a new life. Where is its commencement? I claim it is here. The begetting is here; we are in embryo waiting the redemption of our bodies.

Bro. Wallace led the social service at 6.30, and Bro. Couch gave the occasional address at 7.30, on the topic, "Are we a prophetic people?" He answered the question strongly in the affirmative. He said that a prophetic people is one whose history is written beforehand. If we can find a fulfillment of prophecy at the present time in which we fill the mold, then we must be a prophetic people. Jesus was a child of prophecy. By this we know him to be the Messiah. Joseph, Moses, Joshua, were all men of prophecy. The Hebrews were a prophetic class. We are a prophetic class of people. The prophecies just prior to the second advent of Jesus are now being fulfilled. The announcement is being made, The two servants—the "faithful and wise," and the "evil servant" that says, "My Lord delayeth his coming," are now acting. Bro. Couch's discourse was very timely and convincing to the audience. We hope it will be published.

On Thursday morning, Eld. N. P. Cook, of Providence, R. I. led the social meeting, Eld. A. W. Sibley followed in an able essay on the "Scriptural signs of the present times." We quote from the Worcester Spy:

"Eld. A. W. Sibley read an exceedingly interesting essay on 'The Scriptural signs of the present times.' He divided the signs into classes, as social, religious and political, with the signs in the heavens and earth, all of which are as the Scriptures declare they would be at the second advent of Christ. The climax of his argument was very forcibly stated, and the speakers who followed him gave sanction to his essay."

We expect the essay will be published in the Crisis.

Bro. G. H. Wallace read an essay on "What is Gospel Holiness?" We quote from the Spy:

"Eld. G. H. Wallace read a brief essay taking strong ground in relation to the necessity of holiness as a preparation for eternal life. He defined it as a character—godliness—like God. Not a change of natural temperament, but an eradication of sin and an enthronement of the Holy Spirit in the person who is holy. It is not a supplement to Christianity, but Christianity itself."

We hope the essay will be published in the Crisis. There were many excellent points which we have not space to write out.

As the Convention had received through its President a report from Eld. Miles Grant of his safe arrival in England, and a request for the prayers of the convention, the following resolution was passed by a rising vote, after which Eld. Couch led in fervent prayer in behalf of Bro. Grant and his mission.

Whereas, Eld. Miles Grant, in his journeys as a foreign missionary under the auspices of the Advent Mission Society sends greeting to this Convention, and asks our sympathy and prayers for his mission. Resolved, that we hereby declare our deep sympathy and heartfelt prayers for the success of Bro. Grant's mission in carrying to foreign lands the grand and glorious truths of the coming kingdom of our Lord as an impending event, and we trust the Lord will prosper him in all his journeys, and that he will be able to earnestly present the Bible doctrine of conditional immortality and the end of probation at the coming of Jesus, and also that the prophecies teach that the last moments of gospel proclamation are now passing. This resolution shall be sent to Bro. Grant as a proof of our fellowship in his work.

On the next topic, "What rules should govern a pastor in his labors," the essayist, Eld. C. H. Sweet, could not be present, and so sent an excellent essay which was read to the Convention by the Secretary, and very heartily received and endorsed. It will be published in the Crisis. In the speeches which followed its reading the following pithy things were said: Look out for religious burglars—beware of adulterating the gospel—bring out things "new and old"—take no sides in parish difficulties, but seek unity—the minister should have a grave where he buries all gossip—pray much—don't leave the team on bare ground—we should know how to catch men as men catch fish, all the time.

The social meeting in the P. M. was led by Eld. S. P. Hayward, of Vt. Eld. J. S. White then read a brief essay on "The Divinity of Jesus Christ" he being necessarily absent yesterday. The essay was recommended for publication. On the topic of "Nebuchadnezznar's Dream" a letter from Eld. Boutelle was read apologizing for his absence, and giving some interesting thoughts concerning the "Dream" and Adventism. An open Bible class followed, led by Eld. F. Burr, and the hour was very profitably spent in discussing many of the points brought out in the prophetic dream. Following this was an address on "The Tarrying time of the Second Advent," by Eld. S. G. Mathewson. He inquired: 1, Was there to be a tarrying time? 2, Are we in it? 3, When does it commence and when end? He read passages from Habakkuk, from Christ, in Matt. 25th, from Heb. 10: 36–39, and Dan. 12th chapter to show that there was a tarrying time predicted. Yet there could be no tarrying unless there was definite expectation and a disappointment. This has been the case. He located the setting up of the abomination that makes desolate as being no later than A. D. 554, when full power was acquired by the "little horn." From that date 1260 years would bring us to A. D. 1814, the time of the dowfall of the "Abomination," and 1290 years would bring us to A. D. 1844, a time of general expectation the world over, for the Lord's return. From that he dated the "tarrying time" as the difference between the 1290 and 1335 day-years of Dan. 12th. The difference is 45 years, which brings us to A. D. 1889 as the end of the tarrying time. The address and argument were kindly received by those present, and many spoke in sympathy with the sentiments even if they did not fully endorse them. Eld. Welcome, however, said he believed the tarrying time to be the whole time of this dispensation. Eld. Hemenway asked: "Is the tarrying time to be measured?" He believed it an indefinite time. The reply was—"There are the 1290 days as seemingly the end, but immediately the angel says wait to the 1335 days—a definite length of time.

Eld. A. W. Sibley, of Haverhill, Mass., led the social service at 6.30 P. M. At 7.30, Sister McKinstry gave a lecture to a large audience, on Rev. 17th chapter. We again quote from the Worcester Spy:

The evening hour was occupied by Mrs. L. C. McKinstry, who gave an intensely interesting lecture on Rev. 17th. The lecture was illustrated by a finely painted chart. The lecturer herself is one of the class of women who are at home and at perfect ease on the platform. Modest and earnest, in clear and well chosen language she gave an exposition of the passage in consideration such as caused an intense interest in all her audience. This lady has given a course of lectures upon prophecy in scores of towns in New England, and is everywhere well received. Her memory and ease of address is remarkable.

On Friday it was thought best to change the programme somewhat, in order to give certain topics more time. The first hour and a half were given to reading two essays, one from Eld. A. F. Moore, on "What constitutes a proper preparation for the Gospel Ministry?" and one by Eld. F. Burr, on "The scope of Paul's instructions in 2 Tim. 2: 15." These will both be published, and therefore need not be given here. The remarks which followed were of a lively character, and very apt. When God calls you, go and preach, not go and prepare. Prepare in the ministry, not for the ministry. There are two extremes, one is that of no previous thought, the other is that of scholastically written sermons. The "golden mean" lies between the two.

At 10.30 Eld. J. Hemenway gave a very interesting address upon "The relation of Spirit to Matter in creation." Much thought was eliminated, and several criticisms followed. The interest in the theme can be imagined by those who have heard Bro. Hemenway lecture from his chart at other meetings. We trust all who have not heard him will embrace the first favorable opportunity to do so. We could not well give an epitome of his address in this report. Suffice it to say that the thought of "God in creation" was strongly and clearly shown by the address.

In the afternoon Eld. J. Cross, of Webster, Mass., led the social service, and Eld. J. Couch gave a masterly address on the topic: "Is the Eastern Question a subject of Prophecy?" He defined the "Eastern Question" by quoting from H. Grattan Guinness as the question of how to dispose of the Turk and not set Europe all ablaze. He showed that it is in the prophecies of Rev. 12 and Dan. 11. The argument was excellently well arranged. When asked if the speaker thought the "time of trouble" would commence before, at, or after the coming of Christ, he replied he was not sure, but thought it would commence a little before. Eld. Pettingell coroborated many of the statements of the address, as he had been over the very soil of the disputed territory, and seen the condition of the people.

The last, but by no means the least, essay of the Convention was given by Eld. N. P. Cook, of Providence, R. I., on "Paul's desire to depart and be with Christ." As we suppose it will be printed we will not occupy space to give the excellent points of the theme. Eld. Cook appears to be well versed in the subject, and his essay showed deep thought, and a clear conception of the facts in Paul's writings and experience.

In the evening Eld. Perkins, of Scitico led the social meeting, and Eld. S. P. Hayward of Bristol, Vt., preached on Repentance and Building for Christ. The thanks of the Convention were given by the Sec'y. to the Worcester Church for their hospitality, and so the Convention closed with the feeling on the part of all that it had been a very profitable occasion.

CHRIST'S EXAMPLE.

BY A. N. SEYMOUR.

The apostle Paul says, and with much propriety too, that Christ is in all things to have the pre-eminence. Why is he to occupy such a position? Because God, the supreme ruler of the universe, has exalted him to this position, he being his own beloved and dutiful Son, his chief heir, a noble child, perfectly willing to yield obedience to his Father's will in all things. He says, "I come to do thy will, O God." God's will is perfect, complete in all of his supreme arrangements. Christ fully enters into this arrangement of the Father's, to save a world lost in sin, lost in death, and lost under the curse. Christ is exalted above all kings, all potentates. He is head of all things, and proposes to save all such as follow his example, influence and counsel. Christ, standing at the head of all principality and power, sets a good, perfect and glorious example before all the world to follow; sheds a pure, holy and sacred influence upon all, and disseminates the best and wisest counsel possible. This was done for the best good of a race of mortal men, women and children. His example, influence and counsel cannot be bettered. They are pure, wise, noble, and greatly beneficial to an unholy world. Should all mankind follow Christ in all his righteous deeds of love and goodness, what a different world we should see and enjoy.

Christ's noble example, influence and counsel had no elements of discord or demoralization in them; they always had a tendency to unite, elevate, ennoble, encourage and purify the corruption found in the races of mankind. If Christ, who stands at the head of the family of man, set us this example for the benefit of the race, it surely was a noble enterprise, a very great blessing to mankind, and the race should highly esteem and venerate him for his extremely kind acts and benevolence. Would Christ have set a good example, shed a holy influence, and disseminated wise counsel, had he come into this lower world for the upholding of sectarianism, creeds, bodies of divinity, dram shops, theatres, skating rinks, houses of ill fame, horse races, etc.? Surely not. This is about the condition of the world at the present time. It is bad, and only bad, and that continually.

May the dear, loving people of God be exceedingly cautious how they mingle and commingle with these elements of corruption and demoralization, lest they become entangled in them, and they finally perish. God have mercy, and give wisdom and grace, that we as an intelligent people looking for that "blessed hope," the consummation of all our anticipated joys, may be found with our lamps full of oil, well trimmed and burning brilliantly, and fully ready for translation, to meet our priceless treasures when He comes to the gathering of his sleeping jewels, as well as his jewels who are so anxiously waiting for his return to bring eternal deliverance to that innumerable company that is to be gathered out of every kindred, tongue, and people.

Come, dear Lord, and take up thine abode with thy body, the church, in the new earth, or kingdom under the whole heavens, and reign with and over us forever. I never felt more like crying day and night for the dear loving Saviour to come than I do now. I do want to see my dear Lord and Master more than I can express. He is my soul's anchor. I am safe only in him. Hence I am waiting, longing, earnestly desiring, praying, watching the Eastern world for the bright omens that are to usher in that morn of eternal beauty, happiness, blessedness and glory that my soul has been anticipating since 1843, when my precious wife (who now sleeps in Jesus) and myself embraced and commenced teaching and preaching his coming back to earth again. I hardly know how to wait much longer to see her lovely face once more. Come, dear Saviour, rend the heavens, and fulfill thy precious word, "I will come again."

BABY BLANCHARD.

Buried at Chittenden Nov. 14th, 1885.

BY J. ALBERT LIBBY.

Beautiful little sleeper now,
Closely laid in the casket bed;
All as pure as the new-dropt snow,
Seemeth this baby, cold and dead.

Father and mother brought her here
For funeral words that must be spoken;
Old and young of the friends draw near,
To pity the hearts with death-grief broken.

What shall we say for comfort now?
Where are the words to meet such sorrow?
Over the book from heaven we bow,
That sweetly speaks of a bright to-morrow.

Baby life shall come back again—
Baby love to the waiting arms—
Christ, let the children lead the train
Into the kingdom with all their charms.

They kissed the baby a fond farewell,
And into her grave bent down the heart;
But baby forever with Christ will dwell,
And parents may find her, and never part.

THE MILLENNIUM.

A Methodist Bishop's gloomy view of the millennium.

New York, Nov. 9.—A large audience gathered in St. Paul's Methodist Episcopal Church in Fourth avenue this morning. On Sunday every Methodist Church in this city, Brooklyn, Jersey City and the suburbs for fifty miles around announced that Bishop Foster of Boston would address the meeting. Bishop Warren presided. Chaplain McCabe conducted the singing. Twelve Bishops and forty laymen from all parts of the United States, composing the Methodist Missionary Conference, were present. The meeting was called by the Conference in the interests of its missionary work. Bishop Foster's subject was the "Outlook of the World for Humanity." For an hour his audience followed him with the closest attention, only broken by outbursts of enthusiasm and hearty "Amens." His views were not wholly roseate. He believed in the triumph of Christianity over all other religions, saying in part.

There are some who too fondly anticipate a millennium. There is a lack of information on the progress of Christianity. The facts are misstated daily in pulpits all over the country. Ministers hesitate to present the worst side for fear of causing discouragement. They create hopes that are never to be realized. We are not at the dawn of the millennium. Compared with the work to be done, the past is nothing. Our children's children for ten generations to come must labor harder than we are doing to accomplish the conversion of the world. The world's population is 1,500,000,000. Of these, Christians number less than a third. Half of that third belong to the Roman Catholic Church. The Protestant number 113,000,000. They are divided into 500 sects. And this number of their strength includes, also, all the thieves, ex-convicts, the debased, besotted, the speckled and streaked in Christendom. The popular idea is that the Church of Rome is anti-Christ. I don't agree with the popular belief. I regard that wonderful institution as a great Christian camp. It may have to be reconstructed, but before us we have the great problem—the 1,100,000,000 of pagans to convert to Christianity. That is the solid rock that looms up in our path. Look at it; see what work has been done in 1800 years, and how much is yet to be accomplished. In India, after more than a hundred years of mission work, we have 600,000 native converts and 2,000,000 Christians among 260,000,000 heathens. Can we remove that solid boulder that is as old as the hills. ["Yes, we can," shouted Rev. Dr. Corbett. "We have the Holy Ghost with us. Don't be in a hurry, brother." "Amen," "Hallelujah," were shouted to this from different parts of the church.]

Bishop Foster continued: "We must get down to hard pan then. It is a big loaf to be leavened, and it has been a long time working. We have now with us the sunlight of modern thought that is melting superstition. I am tired of the cant from our pulpits of sacred phrases that mean nothing. Put soul into them to bring on victory. Our Methodist church we think the most divine and ineffable. We boast that we are going to conquer the world and we come from our palaces and princely farms and subscribe fifty cents a head for the undertaking. [That's so," "that's so," replied several voices.] It is a burning disgrace, that excites pity and disgust. Here have we been our own board of twelve Bishops and forty laymen incubating for a week. Now we find that our nest was filled with rotten eggs, and a world is waiting to be conquered. I'll say no more.—Journal.

A Christian minister said, "I was never of any use until I found out that God did not make me for a great man."

FROM H. MUNGER.

Bro. Stockman:—I have received a letter from "A Methodist," (so he signs himself), of West Ossipee, N. H., requesting me to answer him through the Crisis. He writes in this way: "When the Advent people first started out they preached against having settled pastors, note preaching, instrumental music, theological schools, the prefixing the title of Rev. to your minister's names, etc. Now your ministers are doing all these things. Please make a full explanation in your paper.

I will say to "A Methodist" that the Advent people have never been under bishops, presiding elders, a church discipline and creed, but all have been free to believe and act as it has appeared right to them; so they have not agreed in all things.

1. In regard to having settled pastors, there has been a difference of opinion among us, and is now. At first, before we had any established churches, our ministers were all lecturers on the prophecies, and confined themselves very much to expositions of that part of the Bible. This was what the people then needed. These "lectures," as they were called, embodied ten times more gospel matter than any Methodist sermon I ever heard during the twenty years I was among them. What caused many of our people at first to speak against the settling of pastors, was the way the ministers in the nominal churches controlled the people, keeping them from seeing the light, and thrusting out those in the churches who did receive it. Some of our churches now want pastors; while others do not. We are under no hierarchy—each church can settle a pastor or not, as it pleases.

2. Note preaching. I would say to "A Methodist" that what our people have found fault with is the writing out sermons and reading them at length to the people; and this they still object to. Heads noted down and references to scriptures some of our preachers have ever used, and our people have not complained of these. Dates and quotations from history in lecturing have been from the first noted or written down by our preachers. It may be that some of our younger preachers are now carrying into the desk more manuscript than before has been done by the old hands. Perhaps my Methodist critic has made this discovery.

3. Instrumental music. Some did in 1843 object to instrumental music in the worship of God, and they still object to it. Hence there is no confession to be made by them. Some of our congregations now have an instrument to help in the singing. We make no apology for it.

4. Theological schools. We have as yet no theological school, so the charge of having one cannot be justly made. As a people looking for the Lord, we have felt that there was not time to build up an institution of learning, and to educate men for ministers. My Methodist friend must not bring this charge against us.

5. Prefixing titles to your ministers' names. Why did "A Methodist" put Rev. before my name when he wrote to me? I never took such a title, and never did one of my people address me with the title of Rev. There never has been one among us, to my knowledge, who has wanted the title. We are all averse to it, believing it belongs only to God. We cannot help what people call us, nor by what title they address us; but this I ask of my friend at West Ossipee, if he should write me again, not to prefix to my name a title that all Methodist preachers take and use in common as a title of honor.

Now if our people ought to confess and explain to the Methodists, to whom should they confess for their departure from their original position and faith? The Discipline that I subscribed to when a Methodist, forbid all these things, even the wearing of gold, church fairs, festivals and the like. "Consistency is a jewel," as you say. We have never backslidden by going into church fairs and festivals. You say you are an inquirer after truth. But what kind of truth? Is it the truth about Adventists, or the great and most important truth of these prophetic times, but which your people oppose as much as any other people in the world? If you are honest in saying you want to know our scriptural position, you can know by reading a standard work, called "Our Hope." I would send a copy to you did I know your name; but as you did not sign it, I am in the dark as to who you are.

If you wish for further information respecting Advents for forty years, or Methodism for sixty-five years, I will give it, showing which have fallen furthest from their original position during the last forty years. Yours in the hope of the gospel.

A BRIEF CHANGE.

By the long and earnest solicitation of the friends of Christ in Eastern Dakota, we decided to spend the winter with the Sherman Church, located in Brooking's County, close to the Minnesota line. Our home is in Spink County, where nearly three years ago we organized a company of believers upon a gospel basis, adopting the covenant of the Advent Christian Church. There has been constant accessions to their number, and on the two last Sundays ten others were received into church fellowship, and four were baptized in the only true and apostolic manner. As in primitive times, "when they believed the things concerning the kingdom of God and the name of Jesus Christ, they were baptized both men and women."

We have tried to do our whole duty during the time we have been in this territory. Upon our stating to the friends our intention of removing to Brooking's County for the winter, fearing they might be left permanently without a pastor, they immediately pledged substantial help provided we would return in the spring. May the Lord direct. We have left the work in the hands of Bro. R. H. Bateman during our absence, trusting the Lord will still continue revival work among the people. Of course financial assistance has been only small, but I shall not stop on this account. By the grace of God I shall tell this story until the illustrious Hero of the story shall return to regenerate the earth, and reign upon it, or I fall by the hand of the grim messenger. We have worked against many adversities. Nearly all the time we have had no team to take us here and there to our appointments, but have gone on foot, or went with others. We began work as near home as we could possibly get, believing that if we could not influence people there by preaching and practice, we could nowhere. A number of near neighbors have been converted and baptized, and some of our own children. May they be faithful over a few things, and reap eternal joys by and by. I have been greatly encouraged in my work by the influence and assistance of Bro. Geo. Greenman and Bro. Harvey Cushman, two well-tried soldiers of Jesus. The cause of truth will never suffer in their hands. They are not only true Christians, but are Advent Christians also.

We are now at this place to spend and be spent for God and truth, and to labor wherever duty calls. Frankfort church have pledged nearly sixty dollars for tent and mission purposes. We trust a tent will be put into the field in the spring to unfold this gospel of the kingdom to the sons and daughters of Dakota; but the work will be solid toil amid tears, and sorrows, and persecutions. Nine-tenths of the people despise the truths of Jesus' coming. The masses wish to be "let alone" and not "disturbed" while enjoying their day-dreams of pleasure and security. But they must be disturbed. God calls upon us to sound an alarm along their borders. If we do not, who will? God help us is my prayer.

Raised Up.

Bro. Stockman:—I send an account, clipped from the Canton Telephone of Nov. 9th, 1883, of the dear Lord's dealings with me. I used to think when the physicians would say there was no help for me, that I knew the Lord could help me, and I fully believed he would if it was for the best. And, praise his holy name, he has helped me. When earthly help failed, then the Lord raised me up. I feel that I never can thank him enough for what he has done for me. This was in the year 1883; and now, with the help of God, I am keeping house. We have had a great deal of trouble since I was raised up. Four loved ones have been taken from us in less than fourteen months, but the dear Lord has given us strength to bear it, and I am trusting in him who has done so much for me.

Alice Bryant.

Livermore, Me., Nov. 9, 1885.

Remarkable Cure.

On Monday, Oct. 22d, Miss Alice Bryant, a near neighbor, who has been an invalid for the last nineteen years, and for the last twenty-seven days could not be moved from her bed on account of the severe pain which she suffered, called upon the writer in apparent health. Her recovery has been so rapid and unusual that he sends you the following brief notice of her case.

About nineteen years ago Miss B., then a young girl, was so severely attacked by scarlet fever that she seemed to have become an incurable invalid. Thirteen months ago she was brought down to her bed with a sickness so violent that her friends and herself believed her recovery to be impossible. In March last she made arrangements for her funeral and burial, with Christian calmness and cheerfulness, making known her wishes in regard to the disposal of her effects, and calmly awaited the hour of death. Her case baffled the skill of her attending physician, who corresponded with some eminent physician in regard to it. They considered it a very unusual and difficult one. Miss B. lingered through the spring and summer, gradually wasting away, being unable to take but little food, until she became almost a skeleton, and so feeble that she could be moved only in a quilt held by its four corners, and at last could not endure the pain of even this gentle movement.

During the latter part of the summer she began to feel that it was the will of the Saviour that she should not yet be called away, and entertained a secret faith that God would raise her up from her bed of sickness. Some of the family connections meeting with Elder Rhodes of Litchfield, of the Advent denomination of Christians, of which Miss B. with her father and mother are members, made known her condition to him, who said that he believed the Lord would raise her up from her sick bed. At their request, he visited her on Saturday, Oct. 20th. On arriving at the house of Mr. Bryant, he went to the bedside of Alice; he poured some olive oil on his hand, placed it on the pit of her stomach, saying, "I anoint you in the name of the Lord." He then prayed, the family kneeling at the bedside. Having sung he prayed a second time. Miss B. lay quiet for about a half hour, then asked her mother for her clothes, and dressed herself. At the usual time for dinner, she took her seat at the table and partook of food, experiencing no discomfort from it. She is now, though not entirely well, able to go about the house and to ride when the weather is suitable. Though suffering none from the sickness which prostrated her, she does not consider herself to be in perfect health, but expresses her faith that the Lord will soon give this to her. Immediately on her recovery she was overjoyed and filled with praise to God, and for several nights could sleep but little from very thankfulness.

This, Mr. Editor, is the very brief account which you requested of me, of a case which will no doubt interest your readers. Mr. and Mrs. Bryant, and Miss B. their daughter, are well known in this region as irreproachable Christians, and receive the congratulations of all their neighbors and friends. Respectfully yours,

Asa H. Gould.

Note.—Although this case may not be more remarkable than others that have been reported in other parts of the State, it will be of unusual interest to our readers, as the above statements cannot be questioned. Mr. Gould is a Baptist clergyman, and his intimate acquaintance with the family, and reputation wherever he is known, leaves no chance for doubt.—Ed.

A religious character is the greatest of all human attainments. This it is to have Christ formed within us, the hope of glory. Jesus, the blessed Master, lived the perfect life. In him, each good affection of humanity had its fullness, its permanence, its perfection. How reverend, how holy, how dear, how soul-entrancing, is that incarnate loveliness! God in him, God with us: the brightness of the Father's glory, and the express image of his person.—Ex.

The Emperor of Germany, while visiting a chapel in Berlin, on Oct. 26th, received an address from his chaplain. In the course of his reply the venerable Emperor uttered these pregnant words: "As for what you have said about me personally, I accept it with all modesty as a man whose days are now numbered. In my lifetime heaven has covered me with blessings and mercies, especially in my old age; but the homage paid me I lay at the throne of the Highest, from whom we derive strength to execute all the best things that can be done on earth. Within the last few years, before the eyes of all of you, things have happened by which Prussia has been raised higher than ever we expected. You have all been witnesses of the great work accomplished, which will continue to endure if its foundations remain in purity of religion and progress in every good deed. In my old days I can call heaven to witness that I have ever looked upon religion as the sole foundation on which everything reposes, and as the highest good of my people.—Ex.

Revivals.—Remarkable revivals are reported among the Huguenot settlements in the south of France. Whole villages are coming to the Lord. It is another Pentecost, and spreads as by a powder train from church to church. God is bestowing on these ancient people, who have so long held up the banner of the true faith amid many perils, a sudden and overwhelming blessing. Nothing like it has been known in modern times. They seem thirsting for the truth; lips open, hearts full; a great spirit of faith and prayer, repentance with tears, family quarrels reconciled, and the unregenerated startled by what they witness of the power of God.—Ex.

Five P's.—"What are the requisite qualifications of a good Sunday School teacher?" He ought at least to have five p's in his mind. Let them stand for punctuality, patience, perseverance, piety and prayer. He ought to have common sense. He should find the point in his lesson. Every lesson has a point, and it is the business of the teacher to find it, and put it sharp at the scholar, so that he will carry it home with him.—S. S. Teacher.

Nothing satisfies the soul but the gospel. There are longings which can only be allayed by faith in Jesus. Men vainly seek satisfaction in pursuit of wealth, honor and pleasure. While it is true that nothing gives rest and peace on the journey of life but the grace of God in the heart, it is still more true in the hour of death. Unbelief has no promises for the world to come?"—Ex.

TEMPERANCE.

LAGER BEER.

The chemist of the Brooklyn Health Department has been investigating some of the beer sold in that city, and has arrived at results that are anything but reassuring to those who drink it. He reports, in the first place, that the common practice of drawing beer through brass or copper faucets, is highly injurious to the consumer. The metal becomes corroded, and deposits of it are found in the liquid in quantities large enough to be dangerous. This danger is small, however, compared to others which the beer-drinker undergoes. Dr. Bartley goes on to speak of the practice, so common with some brewers, of adding bicarbonate of soda to the beer, so as to make it foam when drawn. Two ounces of the drug are compressed into a cartridge and dropped into the keg at the time of filling. Thirty glasses of beer thus charged will contain nearly three teaspoonfuls of soda." Further than this, he finds that most of the beer made in Brooklyn is sent out from the brewery in about fourteen days after the brewing, and is necessarily unwholesome. It is a little strange if Dr. Bartley found no other adulteration in the beer of Brooklyn than bicarbonate of soda. As the readers of the Mail and Express remember, an investigation made by us nearly three years ago showed that various noxious drugs were used by brewers to impart a bitter taste to the beer, to counteract its constipating influence, and to "age" it. Among these substances were aloes, quassia, and nux vomica.—Mail and Express.

Men are Reasoned into Reform.—The Milwaukee Sunday Telegraph speaks as follows: The people should know that the only way to dispense with the liquor traffic is to induce the people to quit drinking. Withdraw the demand and the supply will certainly cease. This is a plain proposition. The demand cannot be withdrawn by abuse of the saloon keeper or the men who drink. If, however, anybody is to be abused, abuse the man who makes the demand for saloons—the man who drinks. He is the culprit, if any one. How, then, shall the demand cease? By means of education and moral suasion. Men are reasoned into reform. Children can be educated to abstain. The most certain way to stop the demand is for the hundred thousand clergymen of the United States, and the twelve or fifteen millions of church members, to concentrate effort in the direction of moral suasion and education in favor of sobriety. Such work as they are capable of doing would result in withdrawing the demand for at least three-fourths of the 200,000 saloons in the country, within the next ten years. Are these clergymen and these millions of church members ready to engage in the undertaking? And are they willing to prosecute the work for that length of time? If they are not, they owe it to themselves and the cause they represent to cease damning saloon keepers and their business.—Ex.

No Time for Religious Duties.—It is just fifty years since a large dry-goods firm was in active business in this city, when one day the head of the firm said to his partners: "We must restrict our operations. I find that the demands upon my time are such that I have not the requisite leisure for my religious duties, and I cannot go on this way." The other members of the firm consented, and the reduction was made. Just two years from that time there came a great financial storm which engulfed nearly all the business houses of the city. But the firm in question safely rode out the storm, and found that what they had done out of their religious convictions was really a matter of the soundest policy, though they were not aware of it at the time.—Intelligencer.

THE WORLD'S CRISIS is devoted to the exposition of all Bible truth; especially the doctrine of the immediate, personal coming and reign of Christ on the earth; holiness of heart; the unconscious state of the dead; their literal resurrection, and final destruction of the wicked.

FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.

LETTER FROM ELDER GRANT.

My last report closed at Bradford, Yorkshire, Sunday, Nov. 8th. Monday, the 9th, by request, I spoke on Spiritualism, for the first time in England, and had a very free time. The attention of the audience was all [illegible] could desire. Quite a number of Spiritualists were present, and at the close, several asked questions which added interest to the occasion. I assured them that in no case had they ever received a communication from any human being who had died, unless he had been literally raised to life from the dead, which no Spiritualist claimed. I stated most emphatically that all the dark-circle performances, such as tying with ropes, ringing of bells, the "bag test," the "ring test," "materialization of spirits," including all the other strange feats, are tricks performed by the medium; and that in no case do spirits of any kind have any thing to do with these phenomena; but they are tacked on to spiritualism proper, to make money; because people will give more to see a supposed spirit perform a trick, than they would, if they knew it was done entirely by human hands.

After showing that all the dark-circle performances are done by merely human trickery, the real work of the demons was examined, according to the Bible and history, when the true cause of seeing what are supposed to be the spirits of the dead was shown to be the result of demoniacal power, imported from the demon, just as a mesmerizer operates upon his mediums, who are under his control. As in mesmerism, the person under control never sees the real object; so in Spiritualism, the medium never sees the real person but only a mental picture produced by the demon.

Tuesday, Nov. 10th, I went to Morley, some five miles from Bradford, and gave two lectures on the near coming of Christ. Morley has some 17,000 inhabitants. Our meetings were in the best hall in town. The Salvation Army held meetings on the opposite side of the street. They are doing a large work in England, as well as in other countries. They are noted for their untiring zeal. A lively interest was manifested in our meetings.

Near my lodging place in Morley is the large coal mine of Ackroyd and Bros. Coal there is only $2.20 per ton. After seeing the strong machinery above ground, employed in working the mine, and moving the coal from the mine to the railroad, I arranged to visit the under-ground scenery, which astonished me. Before going into the pit, I was much interested in examining the miners' safety lamps, which resemble small lanterns, with brass trimmings, made very strong. They are polished and cleaned by machinery every day. There are some five hundred of them. They are so constructed as to warn the miners when there is gas in the mine sufficient to make it dangerous. The presence of gas causes the lamp to burn dimly, and more so, till it would go out in the presence of much gas. Although the gas is very explosive, when touched by fire, a wire gauze surrounds the lamp so that it will not set fire to the gas. This lamp is of great value to the miner. When lighted for use, they are fastened so that they cannot be opened without an instrument kept for that purpose. Being provided with one of these lamps, I put on my overalls, cardigan jacket, and a cap loaned me by one of the miners, and proceeded with the Inspector of the mine to the mouth of the pit, to take a hasty ride downwards, into the dark gulf below. We stepped upon a platform, some three feet square, having a railing on two opposite sides, but none on the other two. It had been hinted to me by outside parties that the speed in descending was sufficient to almost take away one's breath; but I made up my mind that I could stand it as well as the miners; so I aroused my courage for my strange ride. I was instructed by my guide to take hold of the railing of the platform, or elevator, while he held on to me to prevent any accident. When all was ready, the machine was started, and down, down, down we went, not as swift as lightning, but 480 feet in about thirty seconds. I rather enjoyed the ride because of its frightfulness; like as one enjoys an ocean storm, when he has confidence in the ship and the captain. At this time, the coal-box was my descending ship, and the Inspector held the place of the captain. I said to him, it reminded me of what I had read about the "infernal regions," where Jupiter was said to have forged thunderbolts. [illegible] haul out the coal, part of the way by hand, and then by horse power. When reached to where the coal was being dug, we found quite a room, some three feet high, where the coal had been removed, and wooden props had been put in plentifully to keep the earth from falling upon the men when at work, which sometimes happens in spite of their carefulness. Leaving this cave, we went to another place, near by, where the props had been removed, and the room deserted, because there was no more coal in that section. After the props are taken out, it is expected that the earth above will fall down in due time, and fill up the cavity made by the removal of the coal. I noticed [illegible] that a portion had already fallen. I said to my guide, is there not danger that the earth will fall upon us? He said, we should have warning by a cracking noise, indicating that the earth over head was settling; and that usually there was time to escape before the fall. Of course, I did not care to hear a "cracking" sound over my head. My guide suggested that I should take one of the miner's picks, lying there, and break off a piece of coal for myself, to take away as an evidence of my visit to the mine. I was pleased to follow his suggestion. Some of these underground coal roads extend a mile or more away from the place where we started.

When at the bottom of the shaft, we [illegible]

I was much interested in the horses kept in the mine. There are some forty. After they are taken down, they are not brought up again, while they are able to work. When I heard this statement, before entering the mine, I pictured to myself a sad sight of horse flesh, cruelly treated, like prisoners once at Newgate; but when I reached their stables, I found as nice looking horses as would be seen in a first class livery stable. They all seemed real happy in their clean, whitewashed stalls. This mine produces five hundred tons of coal per day. When I had looked over the coal-mine wonders to my liking, we returned to where we descended, stepped again on the platform, and holding on as before, assisted by my Guide, up we darted to the open air, thankful for what we had seen.

Thursday, Nov. 12th, I left Morley for Dewesbury, some four and a half miles away. Dewesbury has some 27,000 inhabitants. This is Saturday morning, Nov. 14th. The two meetings here have been specially interesting. I never had a freer time in speaking on the prophecies relating to the coming of Christ, than last night. The audience was intelligent, and hungry for the truth. They were very urgent that they might have an opportunity to hear more on the subject. I may return. To-day, I am to leave for Heckmondwike, some two miles from Dewesbury, where I am to spend the Lord's day. Pray for me.

JESUS CHRIST: HIS PERSON, HIS CHARACTER, AND HIS TEACHINGS.

BY SILAS HENN.

Again, as soon as Christ had completed His earthly life-work, his life was taken away by wicked hands; he was crucified by the Jews, and his body was laid away in the tomb; but death ceased its further work of dissolving it to dust. His body "saw no corruption." And on the third day he came out of the grave alive, and in a little while showed Himself to hundreds of his disciples. There was no mistake; the grave could not retain him. He had power over death and the grave, and the evidence of his victory was complete, and to minds unbiased by prejudice, indisputable. That Jesus was the Christ, the Messiah, the Anointed, is thus evidenced by his resurrection.

And in the resurrection of Christ, we have the promise and pledge of our own resurrection when he shall appear the second time. If we believe in him, we live in him; our life is hid with him in God, and we shall live for ever. Hence between Christ and believers there is a spiritual relation of which believers are conscious, but of which the world are in ignorance.

The question, "What think ye of the Christ?" is one which, if answered, will test, not only the correctness of our judgment, but the state of our feelings toward Christ. If, like the unbelieving Jews, we regard His claims to be the Messiah as false, we shall have a feeling of disapprobation, or perhaps hatred, towards him. If we regard him as the Son of God, as the Sent of God, and as the Divine Redeemer of men, our feeling towards him will be one of reverence, love, complacency, and gratitude.

The question put to Peter, "Lovest thou me?" is one which, if answered, will test the attitude of our will towards Christ. If our will is not on the side of Christ, we shall disobey his commands; but if our will is for Christ, [illegible] before, and around his person the battle rages continually. He is in the world's thoughts, in its literature and philosophy, in its science and art, the one living, vital power. To banish him is out of the question. He is in the midst of friends and foes, and there he will remain." The latter would gladly get rid of him, but they cannot; they have to think of him, and either admit or reject his claims.

Again, as a teacher Christ was unique. "Never man so spake," said the officers to the pharisees after they had listened to his teachings in the temple. In all the race he was without an equal. Another teacher such as he was not known in the whole world. The utterances of Christ surprised men. They were unlike what they looked for from any teacher. Without apology or ceremony he set aside principles advocated for ages before he appeared on the earth, and in the same way set forth principles which no teacher before him had set forth. To pronounce a blessing on the poor in spirit did not accord with their conceptions. To require love to enemies met with no response from hearts that swelled with hatred to their foes.

And Christ differed from all human teachers in his method of teaching. Human teachers employ reasoning and argument to establish and enforce their teachings; Christ, as a Divine, or Divine-human Teacher, employed authority. Christ gave some new precepts such as men had never dreamed of before, and into some old precepts he put a new spirit. He set on foot a movement to which there was nothing parallel in the dispensations previous; which was a marvel to the generation then living; which has been a wonder to all the generations following, and the issue of which will be a wonder still greater in the future. The influence of his teachings will be as wide as the wide, wide world. But the disciples were very slow in understanding their great Teacher. His lofty and yet simple sayings contained truths and principles they could not apprehend. There were depths in his words they could not fathom; there were heights they could not reach. His humanity, his poverty, his meekness shrouded the glories of his divine nature, save that it was seen in glimpses. And the glimpses they got seemed sometimes to stagger them, and he was a mystery to them.

Christ's teachings will never be exhausted; we shall never get all out of them that there is in them. Dean Stanley says, "You never get to the end of Christ's words. There is something in them always behind. They pass into proverbs, they pass into laws, they pass into doctrines, they pass into consolations; but they never pass away, and after all the use that is made of them, they are still not exhausted." Thus he opened up a new path for men to walk in. He constructed a new mould in which humanity may be re-cast, in which the moral nature may be new-created. He laid down principles by which to give distinctness and strength to the sense of right and wrong, and set the lower nature on a continually ascending scale. He placed before men the true foundation, the true walk, the true brotherhood, the true riches, the true worship, the true perfection. He showed men how to be large-hearted, sweet-tempered, and beautiful in the daily life. He did not give for our observance a number of laws suitable to all the various exigencies and events of every day life; but he laid down a few great principles by which every thought, desire, purpose, word and action might be governed.

The Christianity of Christ places before us as an object at which we are to aim that which is noble and grand. That object is the glory of the Divine Being in the completion of our manhood, the perfection of our moral nature. Christianity was not designed merely to reform a man's outward life; it was intended to mould afresh the whole man. The old self-life is designed to be supplanted by the new divine life, and the soul placed in a new relation to God. Christianity requires a higher morality than the morality of the world; it requires the fountain, the springs of action to be purified; it requires a more upright and downright dealing one with another than the world requires; it demands that truth and holiness and charity come to the front; and many professors are lacking in these things. Christianity suffers in their hands. Their life does not fairly represent it before the world. Some judge of it, not as Jesus taught it, but as men live it, and they condemn it because of the sins and faults of its professors. (To be continued.)

DID THEY UNDERSTAND HIM RIGHTLY?

BY I. L. LESLIE.

The Jews understood Christ to make himself equal with God the Father. Was this not a legitimate conclusion drawn from the language of Christ? Jesus did not seek to [illegible] should, to be reasonable, explain how he, being only human, can forgive sins against God, and thus justify those who have violated his law. It is not enough to say that the Father delegated Christ to do this work for men. God has never delegated to an entirely natural, human being power to take away sin. No one but him, who through a divine nature made an atonement for sin, can forever remove from the soul the very stains of transgression, and save to the uttermost the chiefest of sinners. An all-human being could not do this. To overcome as Christ already has, and as he is yet to, is not in the power of a natural, all-earthly being. There must be that in the last Adam which was not in the first. The first was all of the earth; the second was not—was of heaven. To object to a divinity in the Lord Jesus Christ, when he himself claims to be of God, and from God, and like God, is inconsistent with a profession of spiritual life in him. Let us not confess him as our Saviour, and deny his God-nature. A glorified human being can not save sinners. But Christ came to save them, being able to save to the uttermost all that come to him. Why not believe that he was and is the divine Son of God?

"THE SCOPE OF PAUL'S INSTRUCTIONS AS GIVEN IN 2 TIM. 2: 15."

(Read at the Worcester Convention.)

BY F. BURR.

The text under consideration reads as follows: "Study to show thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth."

In the Revised Version the text reads: "Give diligence to present thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, handling aright the word of truth."

In explanation of the language in the text we notice that the word "study" is not here confined to the sense of scholarship in sciences, or to mental improvement alone, although it evidently includes all that is necessary in preparing and assisting the minister to properly present the word of God to the minds and consciences of mankind. The word "study" in this sentence signifies to give particular attention to all that would cause the minister to be an able exponent of the Word of God, by the improvement of both his mental and moral understanding of divine things.

"To shew thyself" signifies in other words to appear, to make thyself manifest as one laboring in the service of the Master.

"Approved unto God" signifies the condition of a servant who so accomplishes his work as to meet the approval of his Lord. For this approval and this only the servant of Christ should labor, although the approval of all godly people will of course be given to the one whom God approves. But looking beyond the approval of men, though by no means disregarding their feelings, the servant of God seeks to find the goal of his approval in heaven.

"A workman" signifies one whose work is skillfully accomplished. An unskilled laborer—a botch—is not a "workman."

"That needeth not to be ashamed" relates to the personal feeling of the minister in his own behalf concerning the character of his service. Not proud, of course, yet "not ashamed." There is no virtue, as some have thought, in a minister's being ashamed of his sermons, neither is there any wrong or evil in his feeling of satisfaction over the manner and power of his service, yet in either case Satan has great opportunity to set snares for the feet of the minister who does not guardedly "watch unto prayer."

"Rightly dividing" signifies the ability to present each truth of God's Word in its proper place in relation to the times and experience of the church of God. It is similar in its general application to the words of Jesus when he spoke of giving "meat in due season." There are specific instructions given in the Word of God for each dispensation, and also for the various and changing experiences of each different time. These should be so well understood by the minister that he will not fail to give the instruction due at the time when he speaks, and will also be able to show what teachings belonged to former times, and what experiences are to come hereafter. Especially should he be able to expound the prophecies so as to show to the church and the world the signs of the times in which they live. A proper exposition of doctrinal, prophetical and practical truth is included in this thought.

"The word of truth" is nothing else than the word of God. With this word and this only should the minister feed the church and warn the world. Not only should the text of the sermon be a scriptural one, but the substance of all the sermon should be scriptural. The minister should endeavor so to teach the word of God that his hearers may be well informed of what is written in the Bible. He should impress upon his hearers the necessity of believing the word as it is written, and because it is so written. If he fails to do this, he fails in his ministry. [illegible]

if at all. God is able, surely, to work miracles, but we should never lay aside natural conditions when they are at hand, and demand miracles in their stead. So the minister should not disregard all natural aids to the gospel ministry, and require a miraculous gift of all wisdom that he may speak the word of God. We knew a minister in the city of Chicago who became so fanatical upon the point of entire dependence upon God, and disregard of his own ability, that he thought it wrong to seek a text for his discourse, but thought to open his Bible and preach upon the first text in view, trusting the Lord to guide him. He tried it just once, and became so overwhelmed with shame that he soon quit the ministry. He held open air meetings, and on that particular occasion he gathered his congregation by singing and prayer, and then opened his Bible to read any text the Lord should give him. His eye lit upon Prov. 26: 6—"He that sendeth a message by the hand of a fool cutteth off the feet, and drinketh damage." Without reading it aloud, he closed his Bible and walked away, leaving his hearers surprised at his sudden departure.

The mind is a storehouse for knowledge, and no intelligence that bears upon the word and work of God should be rejected by the minister of the gospel. The Lord has placed no premium upon ignorance. However illiterate or unlearned the Galilean fishermen were when Jesus called them, they afterwards became able to write in both grammatical and glowing language the glad tidings of salvation in the name of Jesus. They were well versed in the history of the world. They drew their comparisons from vegetation, and from the planets of the heavens. Their culture was manifest, and their dignity among men was notable. The study of God's works and word will remove uncouthness and barbarity from the appearance and language of the minister, and clothe him with benignity and grace among men as well as before God. All that educates the mind and heart, knowledge of language, knowledge of earth, of the heavens, of humanity and of history are in the line of study here enjoined the minister of the gospel.

Men too frequently make gross errors in language. A brother in our hearing once with great earnestness exhorted the congregation to be "steadfast, unmovable, always 'bounding in the work of the Lord, and every bound you make bound towards the kingdom." Another, speaking of men's desire to be great, reproved such a desire by quoting "The little foxes spoil the vines"; "and I want to be one of those little foxes," said he. Such ignorant use of language and of Scripture is inexcusable. Such foolishness is not of God, and one such specimen will spoil a whole sermon, if it does not result in even a worse calamity.

The second great error is that the study pursued by the minister may be so very one sided as to fill his mind with one line of thought to the exclusion of all else. Men will study science, elocution, rhetoric, polemics, history, doctrine, prophecy, and detached portions of scripture, filling the mind with that which pertains to only one of these subjects to the exclusion of all the rest. Such persons are called "cranks" because they separate one idea from the body of truth, and dwell upon it entirely. A crank is a useful piece of machinery when it is used to turn the whole mill, but when it simply turns itself, it is of no use.

The conclusion of the whole matter is this: God has given to the minister a great storehouse of truth from which he is to supply himself in every department that his field of labor may require. The minister should use all diligence to supply himself with the knowledge of God, that he may be a co-worker with the Lord, and glorify the name of his Master among men. Such a calling is the highest on earth, and should engage the entire devotion of the person who engages therein. The great Teacher is Christ Jesus, and from him the minister obtains that gift which qualifies him to improve in his abilities to serve his Lord.

WHAT KIND OF A PEOPLE ARE WE?

BY G. W. T.

Bro. Stockman:—As you and others have truthfully told us "we are a people," we ought to be a people, and in order not to let the most sublime truths ever given to man die on our hands, we were forced to be a people. Please allow me to ask a few questions, and make some suggestions as to what kind of a people are we, hoping that it may help us to be a Godlike people.

Is our ministry, as a whole, what circumstances and duty demands, standing as we do free from the sectarian shackles of superstition and creedism, with an open Bible, and the concentrated rays of hundreds of years of prophetic light shining at our feet, and all signs, moral, spiritual, in air, earth and seas, being fulfilled in a way not to be mistaken? [illegible] rest? And while the jots and tittles are being fulfilled, and the vision seems to tarry, are many of our people saying to the Assans, "Make us gods to worship; as for this Moses that brought us out, we do not know what is become of him?"

Is it possible that any of us are to help swell the ranks of those that eat and drink with the drunken? No. Cry aloud and spare not. A world stands on the brink of the great decisive day of judgment, or God has not spoken by us at all. What kind of a people are we?" Blessed are those servants that shall be found giving meat in due season." Have we any meat to give?

Dear friends of Jesus, I am not saying these things because I have nothing else to say. Nor would I be disposed to look too much on the dark side of any picture. But it becomes us as a people, to fear lest we fall after the same manner of unbelief. A word to the wise ought to be sufficient. I would not in any way uphold the wild-fire-time-setting element that has been amongst us; and yet I am satisfied that many of our people have become so frightened with the idea that time will destroy us, that many are not willing to read or hear a judicious talk upon the subject of our Lord's speedy coming.

Will God be obliged to call out other servants to make the midnight cry? God will take care of us, as a people, if we will attend strictly to his work that he has given us to do. We ought to have something to keep us humble at the feet of Jesus. As Bro. Stockman says in the Crisis of the 18th, the truth is "Christ is not wanted in this world." And the great object is not to become a great sect or party, but to do what he bids us to do, that we may finally hear the "well done." Our Saviour's coming and eternal life only through him, never suited the devil, and him that was a liar from the beginning will fight us all of the way until One stronger than him shall bind and destroy him. Come, Lord, and come quickly!

PULPIT NOTES.

Sunday, Nov. 1, at 3 P. M., Eld. Wm. A. Burch of Massena, N. Y., spoke at the Town Hall. Subject: "The Sheol and Hades of the Revised Bible." Texts, Ps. 16: 10; Acts 2: 27. The speaker introduced his subject as a plea for the neglected doctrine of the resurrection, inasmuch as the Bible description of Sheol or Hades rendered it absolutely necessary. Without it, "then they also which are fallen asleep in Christ are perished." After speaking of the [illegible] fact that many public teachers were now telling the people plainly that, according to the Bible, souls went to Sheol at death, Mr. Burch stated that the Hebrew word Sheol occurs some 65 times in the Old Testament, translated "Hell" 31 times, "grave" 31, and "pit" 3 times. It appears in the Revised Version Sheol 30 times, "grave" 15 times, "hell" 15 times, and "pit" 3 times. The Revisers have however placed Sheol in the margin, where they have omitted it in the text, and the American Revisers wished it uniformly in the text. In the New Testament, Hades, the corresponding Greek words formerly rendered "hell" ten times and "grave" once, now appears "Hades" wherever it occurs.

Naturally people desire to know the meaning of this new word Sheol (or Hades). The Revisers, in their preface, state that it "signifies the abode of departed spirits." Dr. Wm. Smith, author of the large Bible Dictionary, says in a note on Sheol, "The word Sheol is never used of the grave proper or place of burial of the body. It is always the abode of departed spirits, like the Greek Hades."

The speaker then proceeded to give the Bible description of this "abode of departed spirits," which, he said, must be our authority rather than the fanciful descriptions of Homer or Virgil.

1st. Sheol is in the earth. Num. 16: 30; Deut. 32: 22; Job 17: 16, etc. (See margin wherever "pit," "grave" or "hell" is in the text.)

2nd. It is not heaven. Psalm 139: 8; Amos 9: 2.

3d. All souls go there at death. Psalm 16: 10; Ps. 88: 3; 89: 48, etc.

4th. The body also goes there, notwithstanding the opinion of Dr. Smith and others. Num. 16: 30; Ps. 49: 14; Ezek. 32: 27; Gen. 42: 38; 1 Kings 2: 6, etc.

5th. Beasts go there also. Ps. 49: 14; "Like sheep." Eccl. 3: 19, 20.

6th. It is the place of death, not of life. Death and Sheol (or Hades) are constantly associated. Psalm 89: 48; 1 Sam. 2: 6; Cant. 8: 6; Rev. 6: 8; 20: 13. Gesenius, the great Hebrew lexicographer, says: "Sheol is the Hades of the Hebrews, in which thick darkness reigns, and where all men after death live as ghosts, without thought or sensation." But what kind of a "life" is that "without thought or sensation"? The Bible calls it death.

7th. It is not a place of destroying fire—it is not Gehenna, which shall finally destroy the ungodly.

8th. It is a realm of silence and darkness. Ps. 31: 17; Job 10: 21, 22.

9th. None praise God there. Ps. 6: 5; Ps. 115: 17; Isa. 38: 18. [illegible]

THE RESURRECTION OF THE DEAD. NO. IV.

BY [illegible]

"If a man die, shall he live again?"—Job [illegible]

In answer to the inquiry, What is the Bible doctrine of The Resurrection [illegible]

I. It is a resurrection of the dead, and not of the living. If there be no actual death, as our popular theology asserts, then there can be no actual resurrection of the dead; and all that is said in the Scriptures of the resurrection of the dead is a [illegible]

The word to die, with its cognate terms, death, the dead, etc., is used [illegible] thousand times in the Bible. [illegible] of these instances, it [illegible] words. But [illegible] it is never used in the literal sense, and never means what it does when predicated of other living things, is absolutely incredible. It is an assumption to which the believers in the deathless nature of man are driven in order to defend their theory. We know what the term death means when used in its literal sense. It means the cessation of all life, and we shall so understand it when in the judicial and sober language of God's Word it is predicated of man, unless some better reason than that pagan philosophy teaches otherwise, can be given for understanding it to mean the continuance of life under other conditions.

Enoch and Elijah did not die, and of course were not raised from the dead when they ascended to heaven. They were translated without dying. These were not cases of sudden death, as the children were told in the National Sunday School Lesson a few weeks since. Their exit from earth was altogether miraculous. Indeed the Word expressly assures us that "Enoch was translated that he should not see death"; and so was Elijah, and so will be all who shall be found alive when Christ shall come. But those who have died before his coming shall be raised from the dead and live again, if indeed they are Christ's at his coming, whether found alive or whether raised from death, they shall enter upon that new life in his kingdom that shall never end. But if not, they will rise only to be condemned in the judgment and to perish in the second death, from which there is no resurrection. Had it not been for redemption through Christ, this first death would have been final and remediless. But in view of this resurrection from the dead, this first death is spoken of in the Scriptures as a "sleep," and the death of the sinner after judgment [illegible] "sleep"—are used frequently in the Scriptures of the same event. Jesus said to his disciples, "Our friend Lazarus sleepeth; but I go that I may awake him out of sleep." Then said his disciples, Lord, if he sleep he shall do well. Howbeit Jesus spake of his death; but they thought that he had spoken of taking of rest in sleep. Then said Jesus unto them plainly, Lazarus is dead." Martha said unto Jesus, "Lord, if thou hadst been here, my brother had not died." Jesus said unto her, Thy brother shall rise again." Martha replied, "I know that he shall rise again in the resurrection, at the last day." Jesus said unto her, I am the Resurrection and the Life; he that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live; and whosoever liveth and believeth in me shall never die"—that is utterly and forever, or in the second death from which there is no recall. (See John 11th chapter.)

Our Lord used the same prophetical phraseology in reference to the maid whom he restored to life. "Weep not; she is not dead, but sleepeth; and they all laughed him to scorn, knowing that she was dead." Luke 8: 52, 53. This was the very point of our Lord's argument with the Sadducees, who denied the doctrine of the Resurrection. They held that the first death was the complete and final end of all men. But Jesus told them they erred, because "they knew not the Scriptures nor the power of God." "Now that the dead are raised, even Moses showed at the bush, when he calleth the Lord, the God of Abraham, and the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob. For he is not a God of the dead [irrecoverably dead], but of the living; for all live unto him." The Sadducees believed in Moses as a true prophet, and this was an argument from [illegible]

"THE MAN OF SIN."

THE USURPATION OF THE "MAN OF SIN."

"He as God sitteth in the temple of God, showing himself that he is God." "Who exalteth and opposeth himself above all that is called God." This word "sitteth" gives another and exceedingly suggestive hint as to the meaning of this prophecy. The Papacy calls its throne "the Holy See,"—that is, the Holy Seat,—and boasts great things about its occupancy of "The Chair of St. Peter." The simple truth is, that St. Peter never sat in that chair, but with a reverence and godly fear, which his alleged successors have ever lacked, he kept himself from such presumption. For what is the Holy Seat, strictly considered? It is the throne of God on earth. In the tabernacle, the cloud of glory, the symbol of God's presence, rested down on the mercy-seat. Here was the throne of Jehovah. "He sitteth between the cherubim" (Psa. 99:1). The Jewish tradition is, that the cloud of glory, the shekinah light, withdrew on account of Israel's sins, and the Temple thus ceased to be, strictly speaking, "the temple of God." When Christ came, and "the Word was made flesh and tabernacled among us," God reappeared in the Temple, only to be rejected, after his three-years-and-a-half ministry, and the sentence went forth, "Behold, your house is left unto you desolate."

In the day of Pentecost, God came to his church once more in the symbol of fire, as he appeared at first to "the church in the wilderness." Commentators have constantly dwelt on the significant language concerning "the cloven tongues like as of fire," [illegible] The Lord is again in his holy temple. The body of believers is now the seat of the Most High. "A habitation of God through the Spirit" is the name now given to the church: this is the seat of the Holy One, And how reverently Peter recognizes this fact appears in the Acts of the Apostles. When Ananias and Sapphira had committed their grievous sin, he said, "Why hath Satan filled thine heart to lie to the Holy Ghost?" It was he that presided in the house now, and the apostle would not think of obtruding into his seat, and pronouncing judgment which belonged alone to him. "Thou hast not lied unto men, but unto God." So when the dissension about circumcision arose, and the decision had been reached, we hear the apostolic decision couched in the words, "For it seemed good to the Holy Ghost and to us."

This simple recognition of the Spirit of God as presiding in the church, as sitting in the house of God for counsel and judgment, is the beautiful mark of the church's primitive purity and simplicity. When man began to obtrude into this position, to usurp the seat of God, and to take upon himself the functions of the Holy Ghost, it was an evident token of apostasy; and this apostasy culminated when the bishop became a Pope, bearing rule and making ordinances. Here is a departure, so fatal in its nature, and so disastrous in its consequences, that we wonder not that it should be made the subject of a special warning in an epistle to a Gentile Christian church. It is a sin of which traces are not wanting in our Protestant churches. Wherever in any degree God is set aside and man is set up, the germs of this apostasy are present. It has been called "clerisy," and has been thus defined: "As respects God, it is the ceasing to give the Lord his own place in the assembly of his saints, together with the ignoring of the Holy Ghost's presence. On the human side, there is, instead, the leaning on some gifted individual, and, ultimately the railing off of a caste," etc. (Lincoln on the Apocalypse, p. 56).

This bad tendency ripened, we have said, when the bishop became a Pope. How awfully literal has been the fulfillment of the words, "showing himself that he is God!" and "exalting himself above all that is called God." The event of some future man claiming divine attributes, would be a comparatively insignificant circumstance beside that which has been already witnessed, of a line of men enacting and repeating this blasphemy through century after century. Let us recall a few instances of this assumption of godhead. "For thou art our Shepherd, our Physician—in short, another God on earth," were the words with which the Pope Leo X. at the Lateran, was addressed by Marcellus. Gregory II. boasted: "All the kings of the west reverence the Pope, as a God on earth." And hear the following, seeming, as we read it, like the utterance of one who had been seized and possessed with a fatal frenzy for literal fulfillment: "Wherefore, if those things that I do, be said to be done not of man but of God, what can you make me but God?"

Again: "If prelates of the church be called and counted of Constantine for gods, I, then, being above all prelates, seem to by this reason ABOVE ALL GODS. Wherefore no marvel if it be in my power to change time and times, to alter and abrogate laws, to dispense with all things—yea, with the precepts of Christ; for when Christ biddeth Peter put up his sword, and admonishes his disciples not to use any outward force in avenging themselves, do not I, Pope Nicholas, writing to the bishops of France, exhort them to draw out their material swords?" Read the accounts of "the adoration" of the Holy Father: "Most holy and blessed father, head of the church, ruler of the world, to whom the keys of the kingdom of heaven are committed, whom the angels in heaven revere, and the gates of hell fear, and all the world adores, we specially venerate, worship and adore thee. Chair of St. Peter, forsooth! And how vehemently Peter declined to sit in this chair when it was offered him. When Cornelius, the centurian, "fell down at his feet, and worshipped him," Peter forbade him, saying, "Stand up; I also am a man.."

Now it is no exaggeration to say that volumes might be filled with a record of these self-deifying utterances of the Popes. And the blindness with which they have gone on century after century, heaping the most literal fulfillment on this prophecy of Paul, is only approached by the blindness of those whose eyes are so hidden that they see not that this day this scripture is fulfilled before our eyes. It has been reserved for our own generation to witness the climax of this assumption in the promulgation of the dogma of Papal Infallibility. And when, at the announcement of that decree the representatives of the Catholic Church from every part of the world fell on their faces before the Pope, the blasphemy was consummated.

Here we may answer the difficulty of such as say that the Papacy does not meet the conditions required in the Antichrist predicted by John, since it is said that he "denieth the Father and the Son," and that he "confesseth not that Jesus Christ is come in the flesh." It may be that an individual Antichrist shall yet come, according to the view of many learned and devout scholars, who shall in his own person, and for a brief time, exhibit all the traits which we have thus far sketched; but, so far as the most literal and awful fulfillment of the predictions concerning such a monster are concerned, we feel sure that we need go no further to find it; for the very name Antichrist, which Greswell and many others have shown to mean in the Greek "vice-Christ," is an exact expression of the Pope's long-cherished title of the "vicegerent of Christ." Yet when did the Papacy deny the Father and the Son?" it is asked. If it has not done so dogmatically, it has for centuries given the most awful practical denial of both. By stepping into God's place, and assuming his attributes and prerogatives, pope after pope has set the Lord aside, and made his Word of none effect. And has not the mass been a standing denial of the atoning work of Christ? Has not the priesthood and intercession of saints utterly obscured the mediatorial work of Christ.

As for the denial of Christ coming in the flesh, how could any more radical and prolonged contradiction be given to that truth than is given in the theory of the Immaculate Conception? Let one read the history of the rise and development of that heresy, running through centuries, and he cannot fail to be struck with this. The aim of that assumption—which was stormed against in its first suggestions by such theologians as Bernard and Thomas Aquinas—is to give to Mary a superhuman nature, by holding that she was conceived by the Holy Ghost, and is now exalted to the throne of heaven. But Christ came in the Virgin's flesh, and took his human nature from his mother. If she was divinely conceived, and is now "the Immaculate Queen of Heaven," as is claimed, then Christ did not come in the flesh, and his nature, instead of being like ours, is a superhuman, or divinely human nature. And this being the conclusion, it is evident that for centuries the Papacy has been framing the most ingenious and elaborate denial of Christ's true humanity, and that this denial, also, has culminated in our time in the promulgation of the "Dogma of the Immaculate Conception." And this is the kind of denial which our whole consideration has led us to expect from the "Man of Sin;" not a dogmatic and direct denial, but a virtual and indirect one, in the shape of spurious substitutes; a counterfeit God in the person of the Pope; a counterfeit atonement in the shape of the mass; a counterfeit mediation in the intercession of the Virgin and the saints. We again express our conviction that it would be impossible for a single short-lived man, in the person of a future Antichrist, to give any such extensive and elaborate contradiction to these great central facts as those already enacted by the Papacy.—REV. A. J. GORDON, D. D., in The Watchword.

DIGEST OF SECULAR NEWS.

In the elections now in progress in England the Liberals, with Mr. Gladstone as leader, are likely to be restored to power.

Several towns have been wrecked and several persons killed by an earthquake in Algeria.

Hostilities are likely to be renewed between Servia and Bulgaria. If the great Powers are drawn into collision there will be bloodshed on a terrific scale.

The British army is successful in Egypt.

LONDON, Dec. 3. The following additional details of the surrender of King Theebaw were received to-day: "On Saturday last Gen. Prendergast, at the head of a brigade, marched into Mandalay. King Theebaw at once received Col. Sladen, who accompanied the expeditionary force as civil commissioner, at the palace with the eastern formalities. The King was much affected and frightened. He said he hoped the British would spare his life, that he wished to abdicate and would remain in any house allotted to him by the British government. King Theebaw claimed that his ministers had deceived him in regard to the situation of affairs, that he was ignorant of what was occurring outside of Mandalay; that he was almost a prisoner in his palace, and that he feared assassination if he left it. Col. Sladen advised his majesty to plead with Lord Dufferin, the viceroy of India. On Sunday King Theebaw surrendered in the presence of the ministers and embarked for Calcutta under guard. The French consul accompanied his majesty. The Burmese appear to be friendly disposed toward the British.

MADRID, Dec. 3. The Queen regent today presided over a cabinet council. She expressed the desire that her reign should be marked by the extension of amnesty to all press offenders and others who are now undergoing sentences of exile and otherwise suffering on account of crimes of a political character. It is reported that the suggestions of amnesty include Senor Zorilla.

OUR BOOK TABLE.

A NEW TRACT.

A very interesting and valuable new Tract, entitled, "PAPAL MYSTERIES: or, Why the Church at Rome is called 'Mystery, Babylon the Great.' Rev. 17:5." By Miles Grant, author of "The Soul, what is it?" "What is Man?" "The Spirit, what is it?" "Rich Man and Lazarus," "Spiritualism Unveiled," etc., etc. Price 5 cts.; 50 cts. per dozen.

This Tract is a thrilling combination of original thought and careful quotation and collation of most important information upon the mysteries of the Papacy.

We have rarely seen so much valuable matter compressed into so small a compass. It is alike profitable for the common reader and the special student of the bloody history of "Babylon the Great." And for easy and reliable reference it is of rare worth to our preachers. On sale at the Crisis Office.

PERSONAL.

We learn that our dear brother, Eld. Ira Morgan, is soon to leave for San Francisco, with the view of spending the winter there. It gives us personal pleasure to commend our Bro. to the confidence and Christian affection of our people, wherever he may go, as a worthy and intelligent preacher, and a true and discreet Christian.

"THE HIGHER LIFE."

We like the thought expressed by "the higher life"—not a difference in the quality of divine experience, but in the quantity. There is a low-water mark and a high water mark in the divine life—a low and a high stage—and the higher life is preferable. Then it is that we shall "be not conformed to this world" in any degree, but shall be "transformed by the renewing of our minds," in which state we shall experimentally "prove what is that good, and acceptable, and perfect will of God." A life in the altitude of sweet sunshine, is preferable to a life in the low grounds where shadow and sunshine alternate, and where shadow preponderates in its chilling power. It is possible to live above the ordinary shadows of earth, where the rays of the Sun of Righteousness may constantly vitalize the heart, imparting spiritual health. Not that we can reach a point where temptations can never come—not that, for then we should get beyond watchfulness—but where we can be strong to cope with the enemy, and able to resist him successfully, and to live in victory over carnality. A life so low and so weak that we alternately conquer and get conquered, is inferior to the life that makes us so "strong in the Lord" that we can be victorious in the conflict, enabling us to keep the "body under," and to hold the devil at bay constantly. W. S.

DAVID'S GOOD ADVICE.

The fourfold advice of David, if followed, would improve the experience of many souls. It is given in the first part of the thirty-seventh Psalm.

1. "Fret not thyself." A chafing experience, a life of friction and fretting, is not [illegible]

2. "Trust in the Lord." Just cast your care on him confidingly, for he cares for you. Trustingly rely upon him for help, even in a dark emergency.

3. "Delight thyself also in the Lord." His service is full of delight when we are implicitly trusting him, and enables us not only to believe in him, but also to "rejoice in the Lord"; not simply because we have "the comfort of the Scriptures," but also the internal "comfort of the Holy Ghost."

4. "Rest in the Lord." There is a rest of faith to be enjoyed in this life, preparatory to the rest eternal to be enjoyed in the world to come. The spirit of that coming world must be in us here, while we are pilgrims and strangers, to fit us for a home therein. Since the kingdom of God is "righteousness, peace, and joy in the Holy Ghost," we must possess these elements here, in order that we may find a congenial element when we enter the kingdom to come. And with a heart thus divinely imbued, we can calmly "rest in the Lord." This experience cannot be manufactured by human manipulations, and but poorly imitated; but it must be the fruit of sacred heart rectification; "Christ formed within, the hope of glory." W. S.

CALIFORNIA ITEMS.

After returning from our Napa trip to San Francisco, we preached in the city three Sundays more, making six in all since we left the California Campmeeting. The two last Sundays were rainy days; but on the last Sunday two unconverted persons requested prayers—one at the close of the morning sermon, and one at the close of the evening discourse. Have been solicited to hold a protracted meeting there; but not being rugged, I have feared to venture, lest I should overdo, and unfit myself for even partial work.

During the last week of my stay in the city I superintended the painting and printing of a prophetic chart, five feet wide by thirty feet long, each foot representing a century of time, beginning several centuries before the first Advent, and ending with the last part of the nineteeth century, giving the prophetic probabilities that interest prophetic students as to our special nearness to redemption. Bro. J. D. Cary, of Santa Clara, executed the work to my satisfaction, and if any should wish a similar help in elucidating prophetic themes, they would do well to correspond with him. One like this could be made for about twenty dollars, or a less extended one for a smaller figure. Each century contains the prophetic events due therein, each chain having its proper starting point made clear.

Left San Francisco Nov. 19th for Santa Clara, where I called on Dr. Carpenter, whom I call Bishop of the Coast. Also met Bro. D. D. Reed, who is still a whole-souled Advent preacher. Staid over night with my old friend, Bro. Morse, with whom I enjoyed an agreeable visit. On the 20th of November I started for Santa Cruz, and put up with Bro. Place. Was glad to find the two churches previously existing in this city happily united, and worshiping together in their new chapel. They now seem to be in a position to be a power for good in this city. On Sunday, Nov. 22d, we preached to them. It was a very rainy day, but more attended than we had dared to look for, though some of them got wet. We have consented to remain with them another week, though it is too muddy for evening meetings at present. It is now the rainy season in California, and it is said that for over thirty years there has not been so heavy a fall of rain at this time of the year.

This climate is very similar to the climate of Palestine, though a little further north, having its early and latter rains—a rain in the autumn, after which they plow and sow, and a rain in the spring, to ripen off their crops, after which they harvest their crops, getting no more rain till the next autumn. They however get frequent showers between the early (October) rain and the latter (April) rain, differing in this respect from Palestine.

Santa Cruz is a pleasant little city of five thousand inhabitants on the Coast, to be reached both by boats and cars from San Francisco, about eighty miles distant. Up to Nov. 24th we have seen no signs of frost. W. S.

JUDAH'S CAPTIVITY.

Different expositors have commenced the 70 years' captivity at different epochs,—some in the 4th of Jehoiakim and 1st of Nebuchadnezzar; others seven years later, at the end of Jehoiachin's three months' reign, and in the 8th of Nebuchadnezzar; while some others incline to the end of Zedekiah's eleven years' reign, and the 19th of Nebuchadnezzar. At the first epoch only a few were taken away from Jerusalem; at the second epoch the king, and all the men of wealth, and workmen of all kinds, with over "ten thousand" of the people, were led into captivity, leaving only the poorer people behind to be ruled over by Zedekiah; at the third epoch but few were carried to Babylon, but the city was smitten, the houses being extensively burned, and the walls of the city being thrown down. After this last event the prophet Ezekiel states: "It came to pass in the twelfth year of our captivity . . . that one that had escaped out of Jerusalem came unto me, saying, The city is smitten." Ezek. 23:21. This smiting of the city was after Zedekiah's reign closed. A few months later, this man from Jerusalem carried the news to the prophet, it then being the "twelfth year" of the captivity.

1. Not the twelfth year from the fourth of Jehoiakim, for that would place it in the fifth of Zedekiah, before the city was smitten.

2. Not the twelfth after Zedekiah was captured; it would have been learned by other means sooner than that.

3. It was the twelfth year from the end of Jehoiachin's reign, and this ended eleven years before the city was smitten. Ezek. 40:1. The year after Zedekiah's reign ended was the twelfth year of the captivity—not the first. W. S.

"PAPAL MYSTERIES."

I have read Eld. Grant's tract entitled "Papal Mysteries" with a great deal of interest. It is an excellent compendium of facts concerning the origin and existence of corruption in the professed church of God. Every believer in the Bible is desirous of keeping clear of "Babylon." Do you know what "Babylon" is? While people cry, "Come out of Babylon," they should be careful not to go into Babylon themselves. Purchase and read this tract and you will learn of the corruptions that constitute modern Babylon, and then you can shun them. All people looking for Jesus to come should shun them. The antediluvians, Sodom and Babylon are so fully repeated in the present age that the doom of the world cannot be far hence. Keep posted, brethren, and clear of Babylon's sins. Give the tract away to others that they may read and be warned if they will not believe. Thus we shall clear our skirts of blood in the judgment day.

FRANK BURR.

CHURCH NEWS.

Bro. Stockman:—As you receive so little correspondence from the southern New England churches, I thought perhaps a few words from here would be welcome. This church with the others is not idle, though we blow no trumpets before us. It is true that this way "still waters run deep." Special seasons of grace are being enjoyed in many of our churches, and the most of them were never stronger than now. Piety seems to be deep—the foundation of Christian work.

The Lafayette church is alive, as it has been for some time. About six weeks ago we entered upon our third year with this people, and our labors together have been pleasant and most enjoyable. We are pleased to say we found them a noble-hearted, broad-minded, Christian people, and they have not withheld these qualities in carrying forward the things which make church-life so precious. This church has been blessed, from one point of view, beyond many of the churches of our faith, in that we have one of the prettiest and most comfortable houses of worship (of its size) in New England. For this we thank God, as there is nothing too good in which to worship the One who made heaven and earth. As a people, we are free from speculative theories, "private interpretations," and the many "isms" which separate and divide: in fact we are "determined to know nothing" but "JESUS and his love." In this is included all. The truth of Jesus' soon coming and conditional immortality stands well in the community, and many of those of the denominations are pleased to worship with us. The ministers in the surrounding towns and in fact throughout the State are very friendly, and those of any faith seem glad to exchange pulpits.

Recently our church has enjoyed extra meetings. In the past nine weeks we have had eighty-five services—have preached fifty sermons, and conducted services once a month at Hamilton Mission, some four miles from here. As the result so far of the local interest, backsliders who have been away from Father's house eighteen or twenty years have been called from their wanderings, and sinners have heeded the voice of the Master. One of the most promising features of the work is that many of the young men are interested and are leaving the "fields of sin." Deep conviction is resting upon many. We ask the prayers of God's people that the work may continue.

"Looking for that blessed hope," in prayer and in work, your Bro. in Christ,

CHARLES E. PRESTON.

SEED SOWN BY MANY WATERS.

The following letter, addressed to our Business Agent, strikingly illustrates the watch-care of divine Providence which attends every effort to disseminate the tidings of our Lord's soon appearing, as special encouragement to our people in their glorious work of publishing the "gospel of the kingdom." Let no one fail to read it. It will confirm confidence, quicken faith, and inspire generosity and activity.—ED.

Essex, Eng., Nov. 19, 1885.

E'd. J. Hemenway:—Dear Bro.: Having been away some time in the Provinces, on my return but lately I found waiting my arrival three copies of the World's Crisis—two for the month of August, and one for September, for which I wish to express my gratitude to you. I have been engaged as an evangelist for the last twenty years, both at home and abroad. It was while abroad in India that my faith was shaken in the soul's immortality and the eternal torment of the wicked, by one of your papers being put into my hands for a short time while up the country, which I had to return within the hour. But as short as the time was, I copied down these important items to test them by the Word of God at some future period. I had seen the name of Bro. Silas Henn, with his address in England. I wrote to him to let me know more of these blessed truths. But whether my letter reached him I know not. My soul was hungering and thirsting. The party who lent me the paper was gone; however, what I had copied off, like the Bereans, brought me to the Scriptures, which I found shed full clear light upon the quickly coming of the Lord, the unconscious state of the dead, and the destruction of the wicked.

For a long time I kept this precious truth locked up in my bosom, only now and again bringing it out piecemeal, for fear I should lose it. I was like one who had found a hid treasure, fearful of being robbed of it. O for a companion at that time! and in my joy I had entirely forgotten the Editor's name and address. In the meantime, my health suffering from the climate, I had to return to England, which is about four years since.

It was in the early part of this present year that I saw in an advertisement the name of Silas Henn preaching at Birmingham. I wrote again, but although I did not receive a reply by letter, I got something better—the three copies of the World's Crisis (thank God for them!), which has caused me to embrace fully these precious truths, and I trust for the glory of God. Of course being dismissed for the truth's sake, I have no alternative but to go on. After being so long in the work, I should feel it very difficult to give it up, and my dear wife would have to bear the opprobrium. Oh, I thank you for these papers. I feel sure that God will not desert me in this hour. My salary was that of any other evangelist, averaging a little over a hundred pounds a year—two pounds weekly, or ten dollars. I feel that I must go on and make known these precious truths. Although I am very poor at this moment, I enclose an order for $3.25 for tract literature, which you will kindly send me. Oh, there is a great field of labor in the towns and villages around, distributing them and sending them to clergymen and ministers, and a rich harvest to be reaped.

Again let me thank you for the Crisis. Please continue to send them. O that I had the addresses of some of the brethren, that I might correspond with them—building each other up on our most holy faith; and although places are closed to me now, the Lord may open a door which the enemy cannot shut, so that these precious truths may be wafted the length and breadth of England, to the glory of God. May God bless and prosper the work. He will do it. I am now selling what few things I have for the Lord's work, according to the commandment of the Lord, "Sell that ye have." It must come to this with all who wish with a full heart to follow the Lord.

I shall be thankful to God to receive the tract literature safely. These precious truths will reach hearts that my lips cannot reach, and God will be glorified thereby. As soon as God enables me, dear brother, I will send for some of your precious books. In the meantime may God enable you to publish more and more for his honor and glory. Sincerely yours in the hope of eternal life,

O. A. K.

WHEN Henry Martyn went out as a missionary, he was told that he could not live long. "How long," said he to the physician, "do you suppose I shall live?" "Seven years," was the reply. "Oh, seven years!" said the angelic man; "how much good may I accomplish, if I live seven years!"—Sel.

MANY of our cares are but a morbid way of looking at our privileges. We let our blessings get mouldy, and then call them curses.

"GOSPEL SHOES."

BY [illegible]

In the apostle's fit out, so as to be able to stand and quench all the fiery darts of the wicked one, is to have "your feet shod with the preparation of the gospel of peace." He understood how uncomfortable and unsafe it would be to go out in this gospel warfare barefoot. So he furnishes for his feet gospel shoes. These are to help him make straight paths for his feet, so as not to turn the weak and feeble out of the way. They are to keep him peaceable and cheerful in all his pilgrimage while contending with spiritual wickedness in high places in stemming the storm.

Having on these preparation shoes, they keep him from going in by and forbidden paths. If there is an invitation to the theatre, to enjoy an evening in fun and laughter, the shoes do not ascend the steps, but say, "It is only to be made a fool of for your money." And if solicited to the drinking saloon, by a sign of "lunch room," on reaching the door the gospel shoes would immediately turn him about and hurry him to the prayer meeting, where the worshipers are exhorting one another, and so much the more as they see the day approaching.

None of these shoes are worn to the Skating Rink. Should a dozen pair of these feet, well shod, be found in a Skating Rink, they would scatter [illegible] the demon of iniquity, and spoil all their gains. Neither could they be induced, where there was a resort to lotteries, auctions, post-office fairs and pleasure seeking, by lawless and deleterious performances to supply the Lord's treasury.

Feet thus shod could never be induced Sundays to leave the holy gathering of sanctified souls in town or city, and go to the beach for pleasure or refreshing. These gospel feet are seen walking the narrow way, their heads uplifted; they know redemption, promised by God, is near; their loins are girt about with truth—yea, present truth. They use "the sword of the Spirit, which is the Word of God." This last piece of armor is necessary in this warfare, and none will conquer without it. Have you on these gospel shoes?

THE FAITH OF CHRIST WITHOUT RESPECT OF PERSONS.

"My brethren, hold not the faith of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Lord of glory, with respect of persons."—JAMES 2:1. (Revised.)

The pure faith of Christ excludes partiality among the true people of God. Heavenly union among believers, or gospel fellowhip, is produced by each possessing the same spiritual principles. Human fellowship is created by the parties possessing the same human principles. The rich, by a natural law, have special regard for those who are in possession of wealth, and by the same law they hold the poor as inferior to themselves, and unworthy of the same positions. All social classes, controlled by wordly principles, are without exception divided into castes, those possessing the greatest worldly advantages being placed on the highest plane, and those enjoying the least, without regard to moral qualities, on the lowest. The faith of Christ takes people out of the worldly realm, and puts them under a higher law—"the law of liberty," the action of which produces altogether a more heavenly union, a more Christ-like fellowship. As God and his Son, in the administration of the Divine Government, are without partiality, there can be no grading into high and low castes, of the subjects of that government. Therefore all who are under the control of the gospel are, without regard to worldly advantages, upon a common level, so that the rich and the poor, the king and the slave, are all reckoned equal before the law of Christ.

Christian character is made up of Christian principles. The divine elements are loved and fellowshiped by Christ and his people, imparted to believers.

As men in nature walk by sight and not by faith, they naturally estimate the value of character by that which appears externally, and not that which is hidden in the heart, the spiritual principles which produces real gospel devotion. When we have the faith of Christ we "walk in the light as Christ is in the light," which insures true fellowship. Christ is in the light which reflects the real virtue of each person's character, so that the contrast between human and heavenly principles can be clearly seen. In that condition the Christian has learned by experience what principles are given by Christ in answer to faith, and knowing that they produce in himself virtuous character, he will esteem all who manifest the same purifying principle; He will love and fellowship such persons though poor and unlearned. If we have respect of persons with those we acknowledge to be Christians, on account of public opinion, or any human attainments, we may be assured that we are not fully under the control of gospel faith, but are powerfully influenced perhaps unconsciously, by unsanctified humanity.

The apostle, in the context of the text, gives an example, showing what false faith will cause people to do in professed Christian associations. Two men appeared in the congregation of worshipers,—one, from his external appearance, was highly cultivated, wealthy, and enjoyed human elevation; the other, viewed from the same stand-point, belonged to a lower caste; had not enjoyed so great worldly advantages and social refinement; his garments were coarse, and his external appearance less attractive to unsanctified eyes. To a person whose faith gave the preference to the human and worldly, the man with the "gold ring and gay clothing" would receive the highest honor and expressions of the most intimate fellowship. What did this treatment of the men prove as to the character of the faith of that congregation? It proved that they had a faith which produced partiality, and this Christ did not possess or allow in his followers. It was a partiality which esteemed the worldly superior to the heavenly. This is in opposition to God's order for he hath "chosen the poor of this world, rich in faith, and heirs of the kingdom which he hath promised to them that love him."

The true faith of Christ reckons the riches of this world of very little importance compared to the riches of the kingdom of God; and as far as the honor of securing the one or the other elevates a person, that faith will esteem the virtue which first of all secures the heavenly riches vastly superior to that which makes the earthly the first object of pursuit. Then the faith of Christ can never make worldly people, whose only recommendations are their social qualifications, their literary accomplishments, and their human refinements, superior to those who have the adorning of the heavenly graces, and are heirs of God and joint heirs with Christ to the heavenly inheritance.

True gospel faith always esteems those the richest and most to be honored who have secured wealth happiness and honor in the world to come, and, like their Master, have voluntarily made themselves "of no reputation in this world.

It is to be feared that there are many persons who profess to exercise the faith of Christ, who choose for their communion and fellowship persons and classes for no other reason than because of their popularity, their social refinement, and because of worldly advantages gained by such associations. If such people suppose that they are in heart the true followers of Christ they are fearfully mistaken. Christ, when here, never sought the companionship of rich and worldly people because of any human distinctions, but those that he especially honored were in the humble walks of life, and least esteemed by proud and popular people.

It is the [illegible] of religious hypocrisy to profess [illegible] the gospel as a rule of life, and give those who are acknowledged devout Christians, the back, uncushioned seats in the church, or refuse them a seat with the family at the dining table, or exclude them from the parlor when proud, worldly people are present. Would you presume to treat the King Eternal so? Then remember that He will say at the last day "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me." J. C.

THE WEST INDIES.

For several years we have felt a deep interest in foreign mission work, and from first to last have devoted considerable time to sending publications abroad. Fruitful of good as this department of work has been, we have often felt that the preaching of the gospel by "word of mouth" was equally binding. For a long time we have felt a drawing to visit, for gospel work, some of the foreign fields—among them the West Indies. There are here on these islands, controlled by the English, between one and two millions of people who speak the English language, who have heard little of the coming and kingdom of Christ.

Yielding to this drawing, after long and prayerful consideration we have resigned our pastorate over a people whom we love much—the church of St. Johnsbury, Vt.; and if the Lord shall open the way, we now propose to visit the West Indies during the present winter. We close our work with the church here the 13th of December, and we hope to leave our New Hampshire home early in January for the Islands. Any who may wish to aid this enterprise may perhaps help the cause of truth abroad; and we sincerely ask the prayers of all for the blessing of the Lord upon us.

Friends will please address us hereafter at Melvin Village, N. H. F. L. PIPER.

DEDICATION.

It was our privilege to attend and assist in the dedication of the church at Denver, Ill., Sunday Nov. 22nd. Eld. Hurd preached the dedication sermon. The house was well filled, and all seemed interested in the prosperity of the new church. Quite a liberal response was made to Bro. Hurd's appeal for means to meet the indebtedness of the church, but a small amount remains to be raised. The brethren have decided to go down in their pockets, and wipe out the last remnant of indebtedness, and start free and easy. The Denver friends, both men and women, have showed great courage and determination in carrying forward this work, and as a reward for their untiring zeal they now have a commodious chapel, and a chance to reach the people with the truths they love so much themselves. May heaven's richest blessings be with them and their pastor. We preached Sunday night, and every night but one until Thursday night following. Sr. Sawin spoke Tuesday evening. Her discourse was listened to with close attention by a good audience.

We are confident that the truths we hold as a people are having their influence on the public mind at Denver, and will at no distant day bring forth fruit. We enjoyed our visit with this people very much. Our congregations were good and very attentive all through the meetings. They are not very strong in numbers, but they are strong in the faith once delivered to the saints, and as long as they remain so victory wil crown their efforts. Eld. Hurd is pastor of the church, and is much beloved by all, both in and out of the church. This is the home of our venerable Brother, Elder Larkin Scott. He can no longer go out and face the storms and hardships as he once did, but his faith is strong and hope bright, and whether waking or sleeping, he expects soon to see the King in his beauty, and be made like him.

Elder Cramer, of the Christian Church, attended our meetings, and expressed himself as being much pleased with the truths set forth by us. We were somewhat surprised at this, inasmuch as the subjects under consideration had been strongly doctrinal. God is honoring his truth. Let us take courage and press the battle.

Auburn, Ill. J. F. ADAIR.

FROM J. H. SIMONS.

Bro. Stockman:—I have, by request of Bro. Owen, written twice about revivals at Stanton Town. Bro. Owen and myself both thought that brethren scattered abroad would be glad to hear of the work being done in Ohio. Wife and I have been talking it over, and it seems, dear brother, that our beloved paper, the Crisis, is just at present occupied with news from foreign parts more than home mission work. We do most assuredly rejoice with you in all we hear of Bro. Grant's work, and all others who are proclaiming our Lord's near coming in foreign lands, yet we feel there is a work for us at home. Ohio is a neglected field, and I wish that some of our able brethren from the East were willing to pioneer a little here. There are many places where they are hungry for the truth.

The meeting I spoke of, held by Bro. Owen, was a new field. Over forty (counting a few reclaimed ones) came out upon the Lord's side. We want all the brethren and sisters to rejoice with us. I want to do all I can for the Master, that it may be said "Well done" of me.

Meetings are still going on at Stanton Town. There will be some immersions Sunday; do not yet understand how many. Think we will have an organization there, with forty or fifty members. Pray for us, that we may be used for the glory of God. Your brother in expectation of immortality when Jesus comes.

Marengo, Ohio.

How many times have I heard men in the prayer meeting say, "I did not expect to speak to-night, but as no one else has spoken, I think it my duty to say a word." They just talk to kill time, and such men do kill time, and the meeting, too.—D. L. Moody.

NEW BOOKS.

It is with pleasure we present to the Christian public our new publications, in which the reasons of our faith are presented in a candid and logical manner, and with such a vast amount of scriptural testimony that the books must command the respect of all candid thinkers and Bible students.

"OUR HOPE," OR, WHY ARE WE ADVENTISTS?
BY E. A. STOCKMAN.

The large and increasing demand for this work is an expression of the high appreciation of its merits among our people, and we believe it will accomplish much good in removing unjust prejudice, and enlightening many minds upon the great subject of Christ's Second Advent, and the restitution of all things spoken by the prophets of olden times. We wish that a copy might be placed in the hands of every clergyman in the country. Price single, postpaid, 60 cts.; per dozen, by express, $6.00. AGENT.

HADES, OR THE INTERMEDIATE STATE OF MAN.

A companion volume to "OUR HOPE." By Rev. H. Constable, A. M., containing 367 pages, neatly bound in cloth, lettered in gold, making it ornamental and attractive. This is a reprint of the English edition, and the third edition of the work. The former price was $1.25 per copy. We are able to put them at 60 cts. per copy; $6.00 per dozen, by express. The large sale of this work in the old country is undoubted evidence of its great merit. It is the only work extant, with which we are acquainted, that fully presents an extensive historical and scriptural testimony on the state of man in death. AGENT.

DURATION AND NATURE OF FUTURE PUNISHMENT.

By Rev. H. Constable, A. M., late Prebendary of Cork, Ireland, and author of "HADES, OR THE INTERMEDIATE STATE OF MAN," etc. Neatly bound in cloth, 360 pages; price, 60 cts. single; $6.00 per dozen, by express.

This book has passed through five editions in England. We have the pleasure of presenting to the public the first AMERICAN EDITION at a low price. It is a companion volume to "OUR HOPE" and "HADES," and the three constitute a compendium of theology upon the subjects of the nature of man, intermediate state, future retribution, and life in Christ, that can scarcely be equalled outside of the Bible.

We will send the THREE volumes to Clergymen of any denomination for $1.75 postpaid. Please remember the above applies to Clergymen only. Address all orders to

A NEW TRACT.
"WHY ARE WE A PEOPLE?"

This handsomely printed Tract of 22 pages is the Discourse preached by ELD. E. A. STOCKMAN at the Special Convention in Worcester, Mass., and published by vote of the Convention. The Tract is eminently timely in its character, and should be scattered by thousands in every direction.

Price (post-paid), two copies for 5 cents, per dozen, 25 cents, per pound, 75 cents. AGENT.

ANOTHER NEW TRACT.
THE END OF THE IMPENITENT.
BY WM. H. MITCHELL.

This tract is the substance of a sermon preached by Bro. Mitchell at Biddeford, and published by the A. C. Publication Society, Boston, Mass. No one acquainted with Bro. Mitchell's pulpit and literary ability will need be told that this production is eminently worthy of careful reading and wide-spread circulation. The argument is unanswerable; the rhetoric is pure and impressive, the spirit Christian and tender. Let this tract be ordered at once by thousands. Price, two for 5 cts; 20 cts. per dozen. AGENT.

A NEW TRACT.
THE SABBATH ABROGATED.
By Mrs. C. C. Stewart.

A Tract of 16 pages. It is logical and concise, and meets the demand for something that shows up the fallacious claims of the advocates of the Seventh-day theory. The Seventh-day people are flooding some sections of the country with Sabbath literature that is calculated to mislead many, and bind the yoke of the law upon the people. Give this tract a large circulation. Two for 5 cts.; 20 cts. per dozen. AGENT.

NEW PAMPHLET.
BY A. ROSS.

THE COMING OF THE LORD.

Coming, coming, coming! Who?
Christ, the Lord of life and glory,
He who once for me and you
Died!—oh, depth of sin's sad story!
Coming, not a helpless stranger,
Cradled in the friendless manger;
Coming, Lord of earth and heaven!
King! to whom all power is given,
Judge! at whose all-searching bar
All must stand, just what they are;
And the wicked tell with shame
Why they've cursed his holy name.

Coming, coming, coming! How?
Clothed in strange, unearthly splendor,
Glory men ne'er dream of now,
Grandeur earth ne'er had attend her.
At his sight the heavens shall wither,
From his presence earth shall flee,
Islands move, and mountains thither
Seek the caverns of the sea.
Every eye shall then behold him,
All the nations feel his ire;
While the brightness that enfolds him,
Is to them consuming fire.
Thunders all the air shall thrill,
All the heavens with lightnings blaze,
And the universe stand still,
While through all its realms is heard
That profound, omnific word
Which to life the dead shall raise.

Coming, coming, coming! Why?
To redeem his purchased treasure,
All his saints o'er sin who sigh,
All who make his will their pleasure;
To bring back within their borders
His whom hades holds to-day;
To arrest sin's wild disorders,
And the monster Death to stay.
Coming to fulfill his plan,
Make his oath and promise good,
Which secures repentant man
Life eternal through his blood.

Coming, coming, coming! When?
Ah! that question solemn, thrilling!
For when He appeareth, then
All these earthly scenes, fulfilling
His sure word, shall have an end.
And behold the day is near!
Signs in earth and heaven portend
That the Lord will soon appear,
Angry thrones, through wars, proclaim it;
Scoffers by their scoffing name it;
And the mute and solemn sky
Has hung forth its prophecy.

Coming! while we wait and dally;
Coming! while we sleep in sin;
Swift as light o'er hill and valley,
That great day is coming in.
Sinner, rouse thee to thy fate;
Saint, be watchful at thy gate;
Saviour, fit us all to appear
At thy coming, now so near.

MUSIC FOR THE CHURCH.

[Published by request, and worthy of careful attention.—Ed.]

There was a large attendance of the Unitarian Club at its February meeting in the Hotel Vendome. The theme appointed for discussion was church music, and the essayist was Rev. William H. Lyon. His opening remarks were somewhat humorous, and were even flavored with sarcasm when he commented on the pretensions of experts in music, and their victims in the congregation, who were musical but not expert. Following is a summary of the address:

The Puritan worshippers of New England were rich in religion but poor in music. Their descendants are not open to reproach in the latter, however it may be in the former respect. Our churches have the best music which those who make music a profession can supply. But in a professional choir there is an elegant danger. The music of the service should be expressive of the feelings of the worshippers; it is likely to be but a demonstration of the skill of the musicians. A professional choir almost inevitably regards the music in a professional or technical way. Often the singers have no special interest in the church or the congregation for which they are employed, and sometimes have no interest in things spiritual or moral. It is not surprising, therefore, that at times is heard music of a frivolous and worldly suggestiveness, reminding the hearers not of things spiritual, but of the concert hall and the stage. And in their singing of music not thus suggestive, and which in a technical way is not only open to no criticism but entitled to praise, there still may be something lacking when measured by an ideal standard, as there might be if one were to hear a famous elocutionist who should as a matter of elocution merely recite the Lord's Prayer.

The professional choir approaches the music of the service from the artistic, not the religious side. An occasional anomaly arises thereby, as when a distinguished Unitarian clergyman was called in the order of programme on a public occasion to follow with other devotional exercises the excellent singing by the choir of "Ave Maria." To follow the singing of the "Gloria" or "Te Deum" might have been not inconsonant with his feelings, but an inscription to the Virgin is somewhat aside from the Unitarian sympathies. It is sometimes urged that good music is helpful in strengthening the congregation, since many not otherwise inclined, will be induced to attend the services. But a musical expert of good authority on this point has said that in his experience and observation no permanent gain comes to a church in this way, but only through the faithful preaching of the word. Those drawn to church by music are ecclesiastical tramps, who wander as their mood may be, and use the churches as they do the parks, for personal pleasure. A church resting on such patronage is built upon a sandy foundation, which a very little flood will sweep away. Much of the church music of the professional sort is lacking in depth, not open to any technical criticism, but as playing prettily but lightly about the surface. Any one may get an illustration of this point by stopping for a few minutes to listen to the music of a Catholic church, and, with the impression thus made fresh upon him, go thence to his regular Unitarian service, and note the contrast in respect to the music. He doubted altogether the fitness of having the musical element of worship expressed by proxy. The genuine religious feeling naturally expresses itself in the song of the worshipper himself. It was so with Luther's chorals and Wesley's hymns, and in the more modern revivals of the High Church and those led by Moody and Sankey. The ideal of church music implies fellowship in worship, and while quartet singing cannot be wholly set aside, something may be gained by combining with it the chorus choir; and congregational singing is practicable to a much greater extent than the present usage provides.

In the discussion that followed, Rev. Dr. Bartol expressed his concurrence with the opinion that congregational singing should be more common than it is. At any rate, it should be an invariable rule for the congregation to sing the concluding hymn. If the service that has gone before has had a proper effect, the feelings and emotions of the congregation have thereby been lifted in some degree into spiritual sympathy, and such feeling can best express itself in song. Let not this hymn be merely a doxology of two verses, but a long hymn in which feeling might duly find expression. The hymn serves to join the people in worship better than the prayer, better than any liturgy which they may join in reading. The fitness in Christian worship of long public prayers may well be questioned. The founder of the religion seems to have explicitly affirmed the essential privacy of the act of prayer. "Enter into thy closet and shut the door." But the praise and the worship of God in music can most fervently and fully be performed in a union of voices. The test of the truth of a religious doctrine is in the affirmative of this interrogatory, "Is it singable?" Total depravity, arbitrary election, everlasting torment are doctrines that do not stand this test. One of the objections to Calvinism is that that it cannot be sung. A distinguished German said, "Music is the most direct revelation of God."

Rev. Mr. Spaulding favored congregational singing, but urged that much improvement through practice will be necessary before a satisfactory stage can be reached. At present, congregational singing is too generally a chaos of sound dominated by a few female voices. The lips of the men may be seen to move, and it must charitably be supposed that in the performance there is melody in their hearts. Choirs may be or may not be satisfactory. Once upon a time, at a service, unfortunately, as it was thought, the quartet failed to arrive. It turned out to be no misfortune, for some of the best singers of the Sunday School were put into the gallery for the occasion, and the service went off, so far as the musical part was concerned, with unwonted zest and fervor. A practical measure and real improvement will consist in the organization of a singing society from the congregation with weekly rehearsals. Congregational singing has died out in being afflicted by respectability. Almost every singer restrains his voice, lest it should be said the next day that he sang out of tune. It is only when the Unitarians get into the grove conference gathering in summer, that they sing in the congregational way. Then each feels that the others are mostly strangers, and, being no longer afraid, gives his voice scope and utterance.

Rev. William R. Alger followed in a speech on the religion likely to have sway in the coming age; but did not touch on the subject of music; and there were one or two other speakers.

CHELSEA, MASS.

To the Brethren and Sisters looking for Jesus, greeting: I have been a constant reader of the Crisis for ten years, and have always considered the correspondence from the different parts of God's moral vineyard relating to the welfare and condition of the churches, which we find in the columns of the Crisis, among the most important reading matter in the paper. If a church is in prosperity, it gives the children of God comfort to read about it; if in trial, Christians then know it, and can pray for them. Although having contributed somewhat to the columns of the Crisis for the last six years, which time I have been trying to sound out to the world "Behold the lord cometh!" I have rarely ever ventured to report my labors, or the success attending my ministry; and while I have always been very interested in reading the accounts of the travels of others, and their reports of the different churches that they have visited, I have never ventured to publish my experience. Yet I have always thought that a person making a flying visit to a place, and preaching one or two sermons, was not so capable of giving a true report of the condition of things as one spending their entire time with a people.

I accepted a call to the Pastorate of this church a year and a half ago. While deliberating as to accepting the call, many discouraging words were spoken to me, and letters of a very discouraging nature written to me. Some said the church was divided in doctrine, and would prove a hard field of labor. Others said Chelsea was full of Advent ministers, which would tend to make my labors very disagreeable inasmuch as one of the ministers did not believe in settling a Pastor. After laying the matter before the Lord, I decided it was the Lord's will for me to come. And in weakness and much trembling I commenced my labors here.

Although not a large congregation, I found a congregation intelligent, and eager to listen to Bible truth; and not only eager to listen, but ready to labor; and I can say to the praise of God I never have met a people who have been so true helpers in the gospel, and such true yokefellows, as the Chelsea church. It seems that the entire church has tried to outdo each other in kind acts and words to make my labors agreeable and pleasant. I can say from my heart it has been the best year and a half of my life, and I trust that our labors have not been in vain in the Lord; and although there has not been so many converted as we might wish, yet the good Lord has had mercy on some. We have buried ten in the liquid grave, and taken fifteen into the church; some backsliders have been reclaimed, and our congregations have nearly doubled, so that Sunday evenings at prayer meetings our vestry is full, and meetings good. Although there are a number of Advent ministers here, they have not made my labor hard and disagreeable, but rather more agreeable, and made the burdens of life very much more easily borne, for which may God reward them graciously.

We have a very prosperous and ably conducted Sabbath School, under the management of Bro. C. H. Woodman. I consider the Sabbath School work one of the most important branches of Christian work. May God bless every one who is interested in it. With a united church and a good prosperous Sabbath School, our services cannot be otherwise than interesting and profitable.

Dear brethren and sisters, please remember us in your prayers, that we may "be steadfast, unmovable, always abounding in the work of the Lord, and that when the Master comes, a good number may be caught up from Chelsea to meet the Lord in the air, and so be forever with him. Your brother looking for Jesus.

E. M. Andrews.

GOOD NEWS.

We have more new cases to report, showing the importance of tract work among the heathen as well as among the people in Christian lands. Gospel seed sown in faith often drops in good ground, germinates and matures with fruits for the kingdom of God. "Be not weary in well doing, for in due season ye shall reap if ye faint not. So says the word. Let us be encouraged to do more than ever before. Your hearts should burn with joy and gratitude as you read the following deeply interesting letter. I. C. Wellcome.

"G. H. Hospital, S. India, Oct. 3d, 1885.—Eld. I. C. Wellcome, Yarmouth, Me,. U. S. A.—Dear brother in Christ, I have been much delighted and benefited by going through some of your publications and books, given me by a friend of mine. It is truly profitable work to read such books. I am a convert from heathenism, and to me these publications have been invaluable. I thought myself a higher cast man some time ago, but now I consider myself a Christian, which, though my heathen relatives think low and abominable, it seems to me an excellent thing. I should now say I consider myself a highest cast man. Yes, to be a Christian, a child of God, is really an excellent thing.

"I beg to say I am a medical man, an apothecary, and am in charge of this Hospital. I am surrounded by coffee planters (Europeans and natives), and a large number of heathen. But we have no church, no catechist, no pastor, and none to preach or teach the Bible. I am not allowed to talk Bible in the Hospital. The authorities never like me to say anything about the Bible to others in the Hospital. But as far as I can I go out among the heathen and teach the word of God, although I think myself an unworthy servant of the Lord. There are several educated heathen around me, who come to me very often and ask me to read to them a portion of the Bible, which I gladly do. Many of the European planters here, who call themselves Christians, are really worse than heathen. They lead such a bad life that they are mere snares and thorns to thousands. I have opportunities to talk to them of the truths and teachings of the Bible. This they do not like to hear, though they often do hear just to please me, because I am a medical man.

"I shall feel greatly thankful if you can assist me by sending some of your tracts and books, if you can do so, for distribution among these planters and other heathens. Please write to me as often as possible, my dear brother, and try to strengthen me in this my weak work. Pray for me that God may bestow his Holy Spirit upon me, and lead me in the paths of righteousness, and strengthen my faith in him, and make me a fit servant of his. Kindly send me some of Mr. Moody's sermons if you can, and other good books. I am sorry I can write no more at this time, but office duties call me. I am, my dear brother, Yours affectionately, Y. P. S."

"Resolved, that three members of this Conference be appointed by the Chair to give us addresses, at our coming annual session on church work, to include Church, Sunday School, and Home Mission work."

The Chair then appointed Elders Haines, Sergisson and Williams, to deliver the above addresses. The Conference then instructed the Secretary to put the above resolution in the coming annual Conference call. It was then voted that the Chair appoint three, beside himself, to give short addresses on the above subjects, especially home mission work, during this session, and Sunday afternoon was selected as the time for their delivery. "Resolved, that a committee of five be appointed by the Chair to solicit funds to employ an evangelist to act in the bounds of this Conference, to reconstruct our run down churches, and establish new ones, said committee to act in connection with our present mission board."

As a result the following brethren were were appointed as the above mission committee: G. F. Haines, J. G. Morris, C. H. Williams, A. H. Dunbar, and H. H. Brown.

At 6.30 P. M., we gathered for our last testimony service, and many left a parting testimony for Jesus and truth. The closing sermon was delivered by Eld. M. R. Miles. Text, Luke 22: 15. After which we gathered around the Lord's table to commemorate his sufferings and death, while with anxious hearts we anticipated that dawn beyond this "little while," when he shall call us to that other table, where no more shall be the vacant chair. A new inspiration seemed to pervade the entire session, and a realization that what was to be done to get a people ready to meet the Lord must be quickly done.

A SONG OF TRUST.

BY MRS. A. KIMBALL.

God has given me a song—
A song of trust;
And I sing it all day long,
For sing I must;
Every hour it sweeter grows,
Keeps my soul in blest repose,
Just how restful no one knows
But those who trust.

O, I sing it on the mountain,
In the light,
Where the radiance of God's sunshine
Makes all bright;
All my path seems bright and clear,
Heavenly land seems very near,
And I almost do appear
To walk by sight.

And I sing it in the valley,
Dark and low,
When my heart is crushed with sorrow,
Pain and woe;
Then the shadows flee away
Like the night when dawns the day;
Trust in God brings light alway—
I find it so.

When I sing it in the desert,
Parched and dry,
Living streams begin to flow
A rich supply;
Verdure in abundance grows,
Deserts blossom like a rose,
And my heart with gladness glows
At God's reply.

For I've crossed the River Jordan,
And I stand
In the blessed land of promise—
Beulah land!
Trusting is like breathing here,
Just as easy; doubt and fear
Vanish in this atmosphere,
And life is grand.

CHURCH NEWS.

Bro. Stockman:—Knowing how interested you and other saints are to hear anything encouraging from the little Advent Churches scattered abroad, I would say that God is blessing us in Alton. We have, with others, been passing through severe trials, and some have earnestly been praying, and the trial of faith has proved more precious than gold, for the Holy Spirit is being poured out, and some are being converted, and backsliders reclaimed. One young man and two ladies have recently been baptized, and there are more to follow. There are quite a number of the forty-three veterans connected with this church of whom no evil can be said truthfully. How helpful such men are when we need counsel! We love to hear them hold up the blessed theme of our dear Lord's near coming, for we know that their lives, as well as their lips, proclaim the holy gospel they profess.

We have Bro. N. Glidden to preach for us two or three Sundays of each month, who, like Noah of old, is proclaiming dispensatial truths to the people. He often tells us he is going to give us a written sermon, and how the good word of the Lord comes from him as he repeats from memory verse after verse, and many times whole chapters, which is better than all the written essays of the learned divines of our day. He preaches the whole gospel: Christ's near coming, the resurrection of the dead, and that none but the pure and holy will ever enter the pearly gates, and the need of being filled with faith and the Holy Ghost. "Blessed is that servant whom, when his Lord cometh, shall be found giving the household meat in due season."

My faith was never more firm in the speedy and final consummation of these glorious truths than it is now. Thanks to my dear Heavenly Father that he imparts joy and peace, and an earnest desire that sinners may be made ready for the harvest. Blessed hope soon to be realized by the faithful! All tears to be wiped away, and we shall meet the loved ones who are sleeping, awaiting the glorious awakening. Let us be the Lord's wholly, and soon the crown will be ours.

How happy then the saints will be
Who now are sorrowing here;
Joy will be theirs eternally,
Without a sigh or tear.

Alton, N. H. Harriet A. Crain.

ONWARD, BUT HOMEWARD.

BY C. PIKE.

Time in its rapid march bears us onward from childhood to manhood, and from manhood to old age, and from old age down to the grave; but it is toward home. Every week, month and year counts one, and brings us nearer home. Each sigh, each tear, and each pain whispers "going home." Step by step we tread the path of life, and if it be the narrow path it will lead us straight home. What if there be dangers and trials along the way, we need not fear; our Leader assures us that we shall reach our home in safety. We should rejoice and be glad amid all our sorrows, knowing that we are getting nearer and nearer our desired and long looked for home.

Then roll on, ye wheels of time. Each revolution demands a shout of victory from the child of God, for he may expect soon to realize the meaning of that sweet word "home." There is joy in the thought that time never stands still. Who would trig time's chariot wheels for an hour, or even a second; It would only keep the weary traveller so much longer from home. Time hastens to be no more; man should hasten to be more. Time hastens to die; man should hasten to live. Time hastens to be lost in eternity; man should hasten to be saved in eternity.

Faith without repentance is not faith, but presumption; like a ship, all sail and ballast, that topples over with every blast. And repentance without faith is not repentance, but despair, like a ship all ballast and no sail, which sinketh of her own weight.—Sanderson.

SPECIAL ANSWERS TO PRAYER.

☞ We solicit brief, well authenticated statements of special answers to prayer, in the healing of diseases, or other remarkable deliverances.—Ed.

HAVE FAITH IN GOD.

Without faith it is impossible to please God. What is it to have faith in God? Merely to believe he is able to perform whatsoever we ask, or to believe there is an all-wise, all-powerful, all-merciful Creator? No, we are required to believe more than this. Christ says, "Let not that man think he shall receive anything that asketh doubting." And again, "Whatsoever ye ask in my name, believing, ye shall receive."

Jesus says, "Is any sick among you, let him call for the elders of the church, and let them pray over him, anointing him with oil in the name of the Lord; and the prayer of faith shall save the sick, and the Lord shall raise him up; and if he have committed sins, they shall be forgiven him." "The effectual, fervent prayer of a righteous man availeth much." I can say, blessed be the Lord, and bless his holy name for his goodness and mercy to all those that trust him. I have been a great sufferer for many years with a complication of old chronic diseases; have spent a great deal with doctors and for medicine, but could get no relief, and gradually growing weaker in mind and body, and in my agony I prayed to be healed; but my prayer was not a prayer of faith. I tried to exercise faith, and thought I did. I said to the Lord, "Why wilt not thou heal me?" Overlooking the love of God, and his willingness to heal I said, "Lord, I believe thou art able to do all things." But in my heart I was doubting that he would do it, for I was still taking medicine, still trusting in the arm of flesh; and it came to me in the still hours of the night, "Faith without works is dead."

I made up my mind that I would show my faith by my works, and that I would ask believing. The next morning I took all my medicine and put it away, and gave all up to God; and from that very hour began to amend rapidly, pain and soreness left me, and my strength came back. Some serious symptoms pertaining to the heart, which threatened immediate death, were from that day relieved.

Oh, brothers and sisters, is it not worth our time and attention to strive to live a Christian life? If we could only realize and appreciate the innumerable blessings daily showered down on our unworthy heads, by a kind and loving Father, who is far more willing to give good gifts to those that love and serve him than earthly parents are to give good gifts to their children, would we be so ungrateful as to live on in open rebellion to his laws and wishes as many of us do? Let us strive to do his will, and the blessing will be ours, for he that "endureth unto the end, the same shall be saved." Having, therefore, these promises, dearly beloved, let us cleanse ourselves from all filthiness of the flesh and spirit, perfecting holiness in the fear of God." Mrs. Nellie E. Hill.

NOTES BY THE WAY.

The first Sunday in November I was at Friendship, Me. We had a good audience, and some warm testimonies were given. The dear ones are holding on by faith, and looking for the Master. From there we went to Port Clyde. It rained very hard Sunday, so we had only one meeting, but three during the week. There are some strong in the faith. Their church is at Martinsville.

Our next stop was at Cushing. No Advent preaching had been there for some time, and the town was hungry for the truth, and turned out en masse. Sunday night should say that we had two hundred out, and good interest. About twelve have started for the kingdom. Monday night we preached again, and Tuesday night the Methodist people had a meeting; so we attended that.

The next morning crossed over the George river to Port Clyde, to meet Bro. F. G. Plummer, and go to Montville Centre. We stopped in South Hope, and although rainy we had a good audience. The church are doing well. Bro. M. M. Stevenson has moved there, and will no doubt help them much. We started early from Bro. Watkins', and arrived safe at Montville Friday, and started with good courage. Advent preaching was something new to them, as no Adventist ever preached there. They gladly opened the church to us, and one man (not a Christian) said he would furnish the oil if any one would come and speak. Bro. Solomon Palmer, a young man who has just moved here, is the only Adventist in the place, and is full of the Spirit. So with three agreed we looked for much good. We tried to preach Sunday in the afternoon, but the notice had not been given out right, and few were out. But our faith took hold on God, and we had a free time, and hope some good was done. Spiritualism has got a strong foothold here, and infidelity is one of the prominent features of the place; but we feel that those that are for us are more than those that are against us, and in the name of God we can do all things through Christ. It is as it was in the days of Noah; sin abounds on every hand.

Jesus is coming, and we must be up and doing. Pray for the poor home missionary. The fields are broad. Every town around is in need of a preacher. Bro. Plummer gave them a lecture Sunday night on "Who made the Bible?" Had a good interest. Took a vote of the people if we should continue the meeting, and an unanimous vote was given. Satan has tried every way to discourage us, but light shines out of the darkness, and soon "the Sun of Righteousness will arise with healing in his wings." Then, and not till then, will we lay down our armor and be at rest. G. G. Haynes.

Many years ago, over the door of an inn in London, hung a sign representing the four ruling elements of the government. It was the picture of four men standing upon the shoulders of each other. At the top stood the king; on his breast was the legend, "I govern all"; under him the soldier, and on his breast the motto, "I fight for all;" under him stood the clergyman, and on his breast the motto, "I pray for all;" at the bottom stood the laborer with brawny sinews, every nerve strained to support the burden resting upon him, and on his breast was the motto, "I pay for all."—Ex.

There is nothing to be gained by falsehood but the disadvantage of not being believed when we speak the truth.

OBITUARIES.

Churchill. In Methuen, Mass., Nov. 2, 1885, after only a few hours illness, James M. Churchill, aged sixty-seven years.

Bro. Churchill was a man of God. He espoused the Christian religion in early life, and maintained true gospel integrity of character unto the end. He was very retiring in his nature, but firm and unyielding in his faith and devotion. He sounded no trumpet for notoriety, but gave liberal alms in secret. Forty years he had watched for the coming of the Saviour, and died in the hope of a speedy resurrection. He left a wife with whom he had lovingly lived thirty-three years in the bonds of true Christian union, and one daughter, who are grief-stricken by the loss of a most affectionate husband and father. By his death the church at Lawrence are deprived of one of its most faithful supporters and true-hearted brethren. We deeply mourn his sudden death, but to him it is a quiet and undisturbed rest, from which the trump of God will soon awaken him to blissful consciousness of the triumphs of a holy life.

For many years, when wearied with labor or exhausted by sickness, their home has been open to receive us, and their hospitalities been freely and bountifully bestowed. With them we have enjoyed some of our pleasantest associations. We submissively say, Rest, dear brother, where wearisome labor or howling storms can no more disturb thy soft and quiet slumbers. We wait to meet thee, when the breath of immortality shall be given to all the holy dead.

J. and M. G. Couch.

Provin. In Westfield, Mass., Nov. 7, 1885, Sister Helen M. Provin, wife of Bro. Henry G. Provin, aged twenty-six years and eight months.

Sister P. after a brief illness closed her eyes upon the scenes of mortality, bidding adieu to all around her, and fell asleep in Jesus, calmly resting and waiting for the thrilling sound of the trump of God, when it will call the sleeping millions from their dusty beds to an immortal life in the glorious world to come. Sister Provin gave her heart to God in early life, and was baptized by Eld. E. Phelps and united with the A. C. Church in Westfield, and continued her membership there until her death. She leaves a husband, mother, and others to mourn. May the consolation which the gospel alone can give be graciously conferred upon Bro. Provin in this dark hour through which he is called to pass, and be he preserved in faith and hope till the resurrection, when he will see the companion of his youth in a deathless world, like the angels of God—eternally to live.

On the occasion of her funeral a large concourse of people assembled to bid adieu to one who has pleasantly moved in their midst, and adorned her life with those Christian excellencies that won for her a place in the affections of all who knew her best. The writer endeavored to set before the mourning ones and all present the gospel hope, the resurrection of the dead to an immortal life in the fadeless fields of a Paradise restored. May this sad dispensation be sanctified to the good of the church of which our sister was a member, and to all the mourning ones of the deceased.

A. W. Sibley.

Knapp. In Westfield, Mass., Nov. 8, 1885, Miss Lilly L. Knapp, aged twenty-eight years.

The subject of this notice, after a very brief sickness, passed away, closing her eyes in death until the morning of the resurrection. A little previous to her death she gave her heart to God, and rejoiced in the forgiveness of her sins and of the hope of eternal life through Christ. A large audience of people assembled at the A. C. Church on the occasion of her funeral, which attentively listened to the Word of life as we endeavored to present it to them. She leaves a large circle of relatives and friends to mourn. May this afflictive dispensation be sanctified to the good of the mourning ones, and they be prepared to meet Lilly in that world where the chilly winds of death will never blow and no storm-cloud will ever rise, but where all will be immortal, undying forever.

A. W. Sibley.

Hackett. In Massena, N. Y., Nov. 7, 1885, Mrs. Elsie Hackett, wife of Ira Hackett, aged sixty-eight years.

Sister Hackett was in former years a member of the Baptist Church, but for many years was more intimately connected through family ties with the Advent people. Confined to the house for many years through lameness, she was nevertheless highly esteemed by those who came within the circle of her acquaintance. Her bereaved companion and children will miss her sadly, but we trust will be sustained by the Christian's hope. The last time I visited her she was much pleased at hearing the old hymn, "How firm a foundation," etc., and expressed her trust and hope in the blessed Jesus in full assurance of faith. In spite of bad traveling a large concourse of neighbors and friends assembled at the old homestead on Monday to tender the last solemn offices of sympathy and respect. Sermon by the writer from 1 Thess. 4: 16-18. May we so live that we may meet again in the morning.

"Home is not home, for mother is not there!
Dark is her room, empty is her chair;
Nor will she rest from her labor and care
Till that morning so fair."

Wm. A. Burch.

Jarvis. Another of our oldest brethren has fallen—Bro. Thomas Jarvis, of Shipton—in the sixty-first year of his age.

Bro. Jarvis came to Canada from England when quite young, and passed through most of the toils and privations consequent on the settlement of a new country; but by diligence and thrift he attained a competency, having a comfortable home at the time of his death, which, like all death's victims, he was forced to leave. Yet we thank the Lord he was not like the vast majority whose aims and ambitions die with them. Our brother looked for that city which hath foundations, whose builder and maker is God. He died trusting in Jesus, expecting a glorious resurrection when the King comes. Bro. Jarvis is the seventh of the older brethren of the Danville church which it has fallen to our lot to lay away in death, to await the sounding of the trump of God, during a ministry of five and a half years. May the Lord bless the bereaved, so that they all may profit by the lessons we are continually receiving of our own mortality. How long shall death, the tyrant, reign?

John Ward.

Smith. In Deerfield, Pa., Oct. 5th, 1885, of strangulation caused by whooping cough, daughter of Wm. and Anna Smith, aged one year and six months.

Sister Smith is a member of our church, and mourns, but in hope of meeting her child when the Rachels return from the land of the enemy. Words of comfort spoken by the writer.

D. B. Hunt.

Fraser. In Westfield, Pa., Nov. 1st, 1885, of fits, infant twin daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Fraser.

Words of comfort by the writer.

DISCIPLINE OF SICKNESS.

Severe illness is a great teacher. It comes unbidden and unwelcome. Its stay is often prolonged, as if it were not an unsolicited visitor. At first we feel impatient, and submit with a very bad grace to the enforced confinement; we think that business cannot be neglected, that people must be seen, that not one of numerous things can go on well without us. But this original impression soon wears away. We perceive that the great machinery of the world moves steadily on without our help, and even without so much as noting our absence. Our anxiety about many matters steadily diminishes, until after awhile we wonder at the intensity of the interest which we once felt in subjects which we have come to regard as of very little importance.

We grow philosophical. The days seem longer, because we have attained a calm, patient, reflective mood, but they also have become pleasanter. Pain, if we suffer it, we have become accustomed to and maybe we feel a new veneration for science on account of the relief which medical knowledge has afforded us. If the morning lowers, we confine our thought within doors, where all is cheerful. It is the sunshine which, on a bright afternoon, streams into the windows of the still sick chamber which awakens the greatest flood of reflections. We go back to our childhood and school days. We think of those whom, perchance, we have not thought of for years before. But how fresh and distinct is our remembrance of them now! When we proceed to reflect what has become of them and where they are now, our thoughts wander over many lands, but they rest mostly upon the churchyards. It is to those that one after another—it seems as we summon them in memory, as if it were nearly all—of our youthful companions are gone. And yet it seems but yesterday that we were playmates together. We become sensible that in reality, human life is, indeed, but a mere span.—Freeman.

INTERESTING PARAGRAPHS.

The Eastern Question is growing unmanageable. Servia has declared war on Bulgaria. The circumstance that Bulgaria is not a sovereign power, but a prince ruling under the suzerainty of the Sultan, interposes no difficulty for the Servian government. Russia disapproves of the Bulgarian move—preferring to let the pear ripen for her own picking. Germany and Austria are supposed to have "views" not altogether disinterested. The delay of the powers to come to a definite basis of settlement has increased the restlessness of the populations that chafe under the Turkish yoke, and it would not be a marvel if a great European war should soon be in action. Nobody wants war, but as England was said to have "drifted" into the Crimean war, so Europe may fall into a conflict which every nation involved would undoubtedly desire to escape.—Ex.

Are you watching for opportunities to do good? You need not let a single day pass without making some life brighter by your loving ministrations. Every day you may speak some comforting word, some cheering portion of scripture, which will help lighten the burden of some weary heart. Every day you may seek to win some soul to Christ. No one is so situated but there is some one within the reach of his influence. No one is so feeble but that he may use the most powerful of all weapons—prayer. My brother, watch for opportunities of usefulness as those who watch for the morning. Watch with consistency of character, that men may see that you mean what you say; that you are in earnest in what you do; that they may be influenced to love Jesus by your loving and holy example.—Sel.

Some men who are poor in earthly things are yet rich in faith. Others have coffers overflowing with gold, but are beggars in heart, since, being supremely selfish, they give no abiding-place in their affections either to God or man. Superficial observers envy the latter and despise the former, but reflecting minds prefer the poor man with his faith, to the rich man with his gold. Looking into the future they see him, who, amidst the humiliations of his present life, is seeking for "glory and immortality," crowned with "eternal life," while the self-loving rich man who refuses "to obey the truth," appears crushed beneath that "indignation, wrath, tribulation and anguish" which all who do evil pluck down upon themselves. Unhappy lover of ill-gotten gold, how dark is thy destiny! Happy child of poverty and faith, how glorious is thy crown!—Ex.

At the Point of Need.—The store-house in which God's goodness is laid up is always found at the point of need. Take a promise or two for illustration.—"In the time of trouble he shall hide me in his pavilion." It is very clear that we cannot get his promise when we are in joy and safety, but only when we are in peril. "When thou passest through the waters I will be with thee." This goodness is laid up in the midst of the wild waves, and cannot be found in any sunny field. "I will be a husband to the widow, and a father to the fatherless." This promise can never come to the tender wife when she leans on the strong arm of her husband; nor to the happy children when they cluster about the living, loving father's knee.—Ex.

The faith that overcometh is Christian faith, faith in Him who was born in Bethlehem and lifted upon Calvary. The world has made full trial of faith in science, faith in art, faith in politics, faith in ethical culture. It has tried all these and found them wanting. It is only faith in God through our Lord Jesus Christ, faith which sees and loves a personal Saviour, that overcometh the world.—Ex.

The way to do God's work is to begin at once and with all the might and keep at it. "Say not ye, There are four months, and then cometh harvest? Behold, I say unto you, Lift up your eyes and look on the fields; for they are white already to the harvest." Work for the harvest is ready. Work as they do in harvest, with all energy and force and with all haste.—Ex.

If we would escape the gigantic and ineradicable pauperism that burdens and shames the Old World, let us act in time. Prevention is easier than cure. Two things are requisite for this: the suppression of drunkenness by legal statute, and the abatement of the pauper spirit by putting all recipients of charity in the way of self-help as far as possible.—Ex.

God gives us tongues on purpose that they should be used. As he made birds to sing, and stars to shine, and rivers to flow, so has he made men and women to converse with one another to his glory. It may be desirable that some should speak less, but it is still more desirable that they should speak better.—Spurgeon.

"All things work together for good to them that love God." In our blindness we sometimes fail to see how this is. We cannot see the hidden mysteries, the secret workings of our lives, and so are many times led to doubt this truth, instead of trusting God, whose wisdom is far above ours.—Sel.

FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.

LETTER FROM ELDER GRANT.

When on the way to California, I did not expect to ever see anywhere else scenery equal to that on the Rocky and Sierra Nevada mountains; but what I saw after passing the Mont Cenis Tunnel, in Italy, completely eclipsed that in America. The Italian scenery is much more varied, besides being occupied by the peasants, whose rude cottages are scattered all about on the mountain sides, amidst their vineyards, which completely cover the land that can be cultivated. The vineyards are owned by the peasants, and are their chief means of obtaining any money.

In going from Mont Cenis to Turin and Torre-Pellice, Friday, Nov. 27th, I passed thousands of acres of land occupied by vineyards. They set out willow trees about their fields to produce twigs for tying their grape vines. Every year they trim the willows as they do the vines, causing new sprouts to shoot forth, affording a fresh supply of willow twigs for tying the vines. These willow trees are usually set out in rows, and serve as the boundary lines between neighbors. They have no fences. Among these mountains are little lakes nestled in among the lower portions, and purling brooks winding their way with fresh supplies from the melting snows, or mountain springs. The railroad passes through many rock tunnels in its serpentine course.

As we go on, we pass through every conceivable variety of mountain and valley scenery, constantly changing like a kaleidoscope. At the same time may be seen mountains near by, towering upward from six to ten thousand feet, with their white snow caps enshrouded in the clouds; and at their base a beautiful vale, with its green grass, little brook, vineyards of the peasants, their sheep, cows, and rude stone houses, while they may be seen ploughing or digging the land for their future crops, their green wheat patches crowded in between the rows of vines, or in small, garden-like places.

These peasants are industrious, and very economical. Nothing is wasted. In preparing their land for wheat, they turn two furrows together, and then smooth them over, making a bed about twenty inches wide, and sow their wheat with much care on these beds, putting no seed in the furrows between. This is done to protect the young wheat from being spoiled by the rains. Where they cannot use a plough, they dig up the land with the spade and hoe. In the larger wheat fields, in the Piedmont valleys, they smooth and level the beds between the two furrows with a machine made for the purpose. These wheat fields, thus prepared, present a very handsome appearance, beyond any thing of the kind in the States. The wheat is now looking finely, being about two inches high. Some Indian corn is raised, but nearly all the land not occupied by vineyards is appropriated for the raising of wheat.

As we passed on, the scenery continued to become more and more wild, grand, picturesque, romantic, charming, and even enchanting; till I was overwhelmed at the sight, and gazed for hours with wonder and admiration. I do not expect to see its equal elsewhere. Any pen picture I can give will afford but a faint idea of the reality. A painter might as well undertake to paint the sunbeams, or to put its warmth and power into his picture. He can only sit down and say I cannot do it. The whole sight might be summed up by saying it looks like confusion confounded, wildness run wild, beauty becoming beautiful, the grand dressed in grandeur, the humble with humility, and the sublime topped off with sublimity. All these are mixed and mingled together, at one view. On the top of a high hill may be seen a tower or castle; on the top of a mountain peak stands a rock steeple, as though placed there by gigantic hands, to finish the structure; in the low valley between, at the bottom of the mountain, it looks like a New England garden spot in the month of May. Down the steep mountain sides come bounding little brooks, resembling silver cords, as seen in the distance.

As we advance, the valley gradually widens, and the peasants' stone houses multiply upon the mountain sides, and the vineyards are more numerous. Their houses are not at all inviting. They are the most unpleasant part of the sight, for they say to the passing traveler, those who live here have had, and are still having hard fare. One might think that the people had been so greviously taxed, they had nothing left to repair their ancient dwellings. Or one might think there had been a war, when the enemy went through and spoiled their homes, leaving them in a delapidated condition, after plundering all that was of any service or value. The roofs of their houses are covered with flat stones, which need a strong support beneath. The houses are small, and built of rude and small stones abounding on the mountain sides, and in the valleys. Many have windows without glass, or window frames. The one conclusion must be that poverty prevails. They are the descendants of the persecuted Waldenses, who hid among these Alpine mountains. Looking away up a thousand feet to the scattered houses on the mountain slopes, one might almost wonder how they get up to their secluded homes.

Some of the way there was only room for the river and the railroad track between the mountains, like some parts of the mountain road to California. Then we would come to a valley, setting back into the mountain like a bay, or a harbor, in which would be a little village, with a church, which would be the principal building. Then up the mountain side, stopping some distance below the snow, are vineyard terraces, rising one above another, looking in the distance like very long stairs, on which to ascend the mountain. On the way we passed through a second tunnel much like Mont Cenis, though not as long. Looking up some eight thousand feet, where the bright Italian sun poured its shining beams upon the snow-topped mountains, a delicate fog, like steam, could be seen rolling up as a veil to cover the white, cold heads of the mountain peaks.

In one part of our mountain ride, after passing Mont Cenis, the rail road track was hundreds of feet above the plain, like the passage around "Cape Horn," on the road to California. At this point the scenery surpassed all the other we had witnessed. We passed through tunnel after tunnel, with short openings in the cracks of the mountain, into which the sun flashed upon us with all the sparkling brilliance of an electric light, so that the momentary flash was even painful to the eyes. I suppose the bright surrounding snow helped to produce the strong light. From this dizzy height, I looked away down, down, upon deep gorges, the silver river in the valley, the scattered homes of the peasants, sheep and goats feeding, stacks of Indian corn stalks, women washing their clothes in the river, men and women at work together in the field and garden, ploughing, hoeing, and planting.

The first Italian woman I saw in Italy had a two-bushel basket full of wood strapped upon her back. They seem to be yoke fellows with the men at work. They seldom are seen with a bonnet upon their heads, but a handkerchief, or else nothing. They are dressed plainly and modestly, like our mothers in New England homes, sixty-six years ago. They are far removed from the foolish, untasty, unchristian, and costly fashions adopted by the French and American women. The English are more modest, and in better taste.

At 12.30 P. M., we had nearly passed the snow-covered mountain tops, as they had retreated before the widening Piedmont plain, which is the most beautiful one I ever saw. A cloudless sky, a little smoky, like our old-fashioned Indian summer, such as we had in Ct., in my boyhood days, but rarely seen in these later years; roses blooming and climbing upon the peasant's home, made it seem as though paradise might not be far away.

There, dear reader, I have tried to give you a little idea of the trip from Paris to Turin, where we arrived about 1.30 P. M., Friday, Nov. 27th. This city has about 180,000 inhabitants, and has an inviting appearance. After leaving the cars, my first effort was to find some one who could speak English. Looking about for a moment, to select the first one to address, I spied a fine looking gentleman, having on an official cap, and on its front the word "Interpreter;" and to my joy he was one of Mr. Cook's Agents, who, like the one in Paris, gave me all needed aid. In a short time I had my chart box passed through the Custom House, where my "Interpreter" purchased my ticket for Torre-Pellice (pro-Pel-e-cha), the residence of Bro. Oscar Cocorda, some forty-six miles from Turin. In Italy, for all registered baggage, that is all not carried in the hands, a small fee is charged for every pound.

JESUS CHRIST: HIS PERSON, HIS CHARACTER, AND HIS TEACHINGS.

BY SILAS HENN.

Without loyalty to Christ, we cannot fully understand the truth. To know his doctrine, to see its unity, its simplicity, and its beauty, there must be entire consecration to Christ. Spiritual discernment of the truth is not given where spiritual devotion is lacking. The Lord's secrets are not made known to worldly or unfaithful Christians. The golden key that unlocks the treasury of truth is only entrusted to the holy ones. We must see Jesus to see the truth. We must know him to know his doctrine to be divine. We must love and honor him to love and honor his words. And to avoid being deceived by the errors promulgated around us, the words of Christ must abide in us continually. We need the indwelling Spirit to enable us to separate the chaff from the wheat, and so to eat and digest and assimilate the latter, as that it shall aid, not only our intellectual, but our spiritual growth. The living truth is the food, the living Christ is the bread, from which we may derive nourishment and strength.

But there are multitudes, alas! who do not know Christ. They are ignorant both of his person and his character, both of his mission and his teachings. And there are many who oppose Christianity who have never seriously endeavored to understand it. Some have opposed it through the press who have been ignorant both of its character and its tendency. But it is passing strange that men who know nothing of religion should write about religion; and it is still more strange that they have not sense enough to see their folly. A blind man has always a good share of pity and sympathy, yet he would make himself ridiculous and get laughed at if he should attempt to describe and criticise the different paintings in a picture gallery. So he is not worthy of a hearing who, notwithstanding he is a stranger to experimental religion, thinks himself qualified to pass judgment upon it. The man who has never believed in the gospel, and therefore has never known its saving power, who has never tasted or tried Christianity himself, should not pronounce it a failure. He who has never walked in the way of holiness, should not bring an evil report on the good land. Those who receive Christ's teachings, and who know that they have sympathy and fellowship with God, and who are walking in the light of heaven, the light of life, cannot be easily argued out of it.

Where Christianity is embraced, where its spirit is imbibed, and where its teachings are observed, happy results always follow. It takes away sin, and brings in righteousness. It disperses darkness, and sheds light around. It removes despair and gloom and remorse, and imparts hope and cheerfulness and peace. And were Christianity universally believed, and were all men walking in the truth, we should not need to pass out of this world to find heaven; we should have heaven down here. Our homes, our family life, our social life, and our church life would all be permeated with the heavenly life. Justice and righteousness would characterize our business transactions; truthfulness, simplicity and chastity would adorn our daily discourse. Every man's rights would be respected, and woman's rights would be held as sacred as man's rights. Every man would love his brother; every woman would love her sister; and men and women the wide world over would live in love and happiness as one great family of one common Father, redeemed and saved and made holy by one common Saviour.

When a man becomes a Christian, if he is young, it adds a charm to his youth; if he is old, it adds honor to his old age; if he is in poverty, it gives him the true riches; if he is in affliction, it gives him support; if he is suffering from temptation, or persecution, or bereavement, it gives him deliverance, and blessedness, and the hope of reunion with loved ones in immortality. Christianity sheds its light on every pathway of life, and its mild and unfading lustre does not leave him when he comes to the edge of the grave.

In the school of Christ there may be some very different, and sometimes very difficult lessons to learn; but the great Teacher is never harsh or severe. He is kind, tender, forbearing, and therefore it is delightful to receive his instructions.

Some, full of vain philosophy and puffed up with pride, think themselves in advance of Christianity. They think that Christianity is only suitable for weak minds. That it is suitable for weak minds we acknowledge, but it is equally suitable for strong minds. It is calculated to make weak minds strong, and strong minds stronger.

It was part of Christ's mission to reveal what before was hidden, to simplify what was mysterious, to throw light upon what was involved in obscurity. What a vast amount of instruction—practical instruction for every day life—is found in his memorable sermon on the mount. How full of heavenly wisdom is that discourse. How his various sayings sparkle with gems of divine truth. But it should be remembered that much as the sermon on the mount contains of Christ's teachings, it does not contain all that he taught. It contains nothing on the subject of regeneration, and nothing about believing in him as the Messiah, the Christ, the Anointed. We must study all the four Gospels, therefore, to learn all that he taught.

Christ is the great light, the source of light, and Christians shine with his light. Dark in themselves, they have no light but what comes from him. Impure in themselves, they have no purity but what flows from him. Unhappy in themselves, they have no peace, no joy but what has its spring in him. And Christ is the way to truth and goodness and immortality. He not only showed the way, but he is himself the way. He not only taught the truth, but he is himself the truth. He not only declared how life might be obtained, but he declares that he himself is the life. He is the Source, the Fountain of truth and goodness and life; and believing in him, accepting him, loving and obeying him, you have life and walk in the truth.

Christ and his doctrine must never be divided. We must not trust in the teaching apart from the Teacher. His words can only give life and peace as the living Christ himself is received who uttered them. When we meditate on, or enforce upon others his doctrine, it must always be in connection with himself. Men must be taught that doctrine cannot save them apart from Christ; that creeds, however full of doctrine, or of teaching about Christ, will avail nothing without him to whom all creeds point. Let creeds be for ever forgotten if we may but remember Jesus, and remembering him, serve and honor him, and wait for his manifestation.

Indeed, we cannot separate Christ and Christianity. If we preach Christ, we preach Christianity; and if we preach Christianity, we preach Christ. Without Christ, Christianity cannot be explained; without Christianity, Christ cannot be explained. One, if we may so express it, is a part of the other, and each without the other is a perfect mystery. Christianity owes its existence to Christ. Its genius, its spirit, its inspiration, its power, its blessing are all from Christ. No wonder then that those ministers misinterpret Christianity who do not understand the person of Christ. It is only in him and through him that we learn the truth. It is only in him and through him that we learn the will of the Father. It is only in him and through him that we learn our own nature, and the end of our being, and how to obtain the realization of our hopes, the fulfilment of our aspirations.

ONE of the fairest fruits and evidences of divine grace in the soul is a "meek and quiet spirit"—a spirit that deals gently with others, even their faults and provocations—is not swift to take offence, or explode in passionate resentment—refrains from all arrogant interference with its neighbor's rights and duties, and moves contentedly, unobtrusively, in its own allotted sphere. —Spurgeon.

THE PASSING PERIODS.

"While it is said, To-day if ye will hear his voice, harden not your hearts, as in the provocation."—HEB. 3: 15.

Time, in human experience, is divided into periods, and these are constantly passing, not one ever to return. Each period presents an open door through which we are compelled to pass into the midst of a variety of scenes, which demand of all activity and labor. No one passes into that vast labyrinth of events and experiences entirely independent of the beings and circumstances with which he is brought in contact. The Author of these periods, beings and scenes, demands that each creature act in harmony with and for the benefit of all other creatures with which he or it is associated.

The great principle of love was designed to be the ruling element through the entire dominions of the Divine Creator. That love in the creature is controled by the same law as in the Creator. He manifests kindness and mercy towards all creatures, and so will those who receive and are controled by the same heavenly love. His love is experienced by his creatures, through all periods, and by all within the reach of his kindness, and so it is with the recipients of his grace; their mercy and compassion will extend through their period, and to all within the reach of their limited power.

As God is the Creator of these beings, and the Controller of these periods and events, he has a sovereign right to enact laws for the government of those creatures, and to execute them by rewarding the obedient and punishing the rebellious. It therefore follows that each of our race will receive reward for improvement or punishment for neglect of opportunities of doing good to others during the period given for the accomplishment of that work.

As these periods and circumstances can never be recalled or repeated, so the work assigned to each can be done only during that special period. When the time called To-day is passed, the work allotted to that day, if neglected, must remain forever undone. The neglect may be forgiven if repented of in season, but the work must be forever a blank. The greatest possible advantage to be secured in this matter is to commence at the beginning of our period (and the period is the time of our probationary life), and be faithful to the Creator to the end of it.

This experience may be illustrated by a Watchman's Clock. We will suppose that the clock has two dials. The first in front, the second in the rear of it. The first has one opening, the second has many in a circle, so that by its rotary motion each opening will come opposite that in the front dial. Each puncture in the rear dial has a particular shape and has a pin fitted to its special form. Each of these openings in the rear dial, by its motion, comes opposite the opening in the front dial, so that the pin fitted to that opening can be driven only at that time. At the end of the day the clock is opened by the officer in charge. It will then be seen, by the pins driven, how faithful each watchman has been during his watch. If each pin has been driven, it is proof of his faithfulness; but if four are absent it is proof that there was an hour of unfaithfulness. If forgiveness for this neglect of duty can not or has not been obtained, the transgressor must be punished.

So it is under the divine government. Each individual and each generation has its day. Each period has assigned to it special duties, differing in some particulars from all others, and this is like the particular shape of each pin, which can be driven only in its place; and these duties can only be done during their particular period. Noah's period was unlike that of Lot's, as to events connected with him, and the special event called for special action. His acts of obedience to the same law differed from those of Lot, and by the same rule from those of all other periods and classes. By this rule Abraham's day differed from all other periods of church history, and so it has been with all others. One fact in each of the cases is made very prominent in the Bible account of them, viz., the class who were faithful to the special duties pertaining to their period were justified by God, while those were condemned by God who were unfaithful in the special work.

Many of the Jews in Christ's day were very pious in obeying Moses in all that he commanded and foreshadowed, down to that part of his instructions which related to their period, but that part of Moses' writings requiring them to accept Mary's Son as their Messiah, and to change their creed and the Levitical priesthood, and accept common laborers as the chosen of God, to minister in holy things, they positively refused to do. But God was true to the rules of His government, and approved those who accepted the new period with all its new conditions and duties, and condemned as rebels and wicked, all who refused to accept them. Jesus expressed this truth relating to them thus: "And shall lay thee even with the ground, and thy children within thee; and they shall not leave in thee one stone upon another; because thou knewest not the time of thy visitation." Luke 19: 44.

Is the present time a special period, expressed and defined as really and as explicitly as that of the first advent, or the great persecution? We fully believe it is. Then what is the specific duty of this period? It is to find the pin God has fitted to the opening now presented to this generation, and drive it into its place before the opportunity to do so shall forever pass. If we have come to the period designated in the consecutive prophecies, where all Gentile governments are to terminate, then the gospel of the kingdom is due, which must be preached as "a witness to all nations," testifying that "the end of the world" is at hand. The proof is clear as we are occupying that time, therefore the special part of the work to be done during the present period is to preach the gospel so as to give its prophetic proof that the coming of Christ is "at the door." Thrilling and grand message! There has been no period in the history of the church in which a message of such vast importance to our world and race has been introduced by God, nor has any class of God's servants been called to do a more responsible work than those now living.

The nature and importance of this message must be understood, that those called to proclaim it may elevate it to its proper position, and be willing to make such sacrifices to carry it to the people as its Author requires.

Would not God reserve for the last and final period of the dispensations of mercy some of the most sublime and testing truths of his revelations? Every generation of our race is called to stand upon a higher plane, as to the importance of its work and the responsibilities it must bear, than any one preceding; for truth is progressive in its developments, and the son has the advantage of the father, because he has witnessed the victories and defeats of the father, and may learn from these his danger or safety.

The people of the present period will be responsible for a greater flood of heavenly light than will those of any past age. The angels are gazing with great interest, to see who of this generation understands the last and peculiarly formed pin to be put in its place in God's great clock during the present hour. God has done all on his part for the accomplishment of this marvelous work. He has opened a wide door, and furnished abundant means for the accomplishment of the special work assigned his servants of this period. Who will answer to the high calling? Who can God trust with the great responsibility of leading his chosen people amidst the perils of this peculiar hour? The battle waxes hot between the Lord's faithful remnant and the mighty hosts of the wicked one.

Brethren, the Lord has called you to occupy a certain position. Remain loyal at your post. You now have an hour in which to secure the eternal benediction of Heaven. This is your period, during which you can gain peerage with angels, infinite blessedness, the glory and riches of the kingdom of heaven. Be watchful, be vigilant, for the shadows will never return a degree on your dial. When our watch is passed, our record will be changeless and sealed for the final judgment. Prepare, prepare to meet thy God, O ye servants of the Lord, for your day is ending, and the night in which no man can work is drawing its curtains around you. Hark! the mutterings of a distant tempest indicate the approach of the great day of wrath. Be ready to welcome the coming Bridegroom. J. C.

DIVINITY OF CHRIST.

(Read at the Worcester Convention.)

BY J. S. WHITE.

(Concluded.)

CHRIST IS OMNISCIENT.

Matt. 9: 4. Jesus knew their thoughts. Luke 10: 22—"All things are delivered to me of my Father: and no man knoweth who the Son is, but the Father; and who the Father is, but the Son." Jesus knew the future before he was manifested in the flesh. 1 Pet. 1: 10, 11—"Of which salvation the prophets have inquired and searched diligently, who prophesied of the grace that should come unto you: searching what, or what manner of time the Spirit of Christ which was in them did signify, when it testified beforehand the sufferings of Christ, and the glory that should follow." John 2: 24, 25—"But Jesus did not commit himself unto them, because he knew all men, and needed not that any should testify of man; for he knew what was in man."

CHRIST IS OMNIPRESENT.

Matt. 18: 20—"For where two or three are gathered together in my name, there am I in the midst of them." "Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel; and lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world."

CHRIST IS LIKE GOD, UNCHANGEABLE.

Heb. 13: 8—"Jesus Christ, the same yesterday, and to-day, and forever." Heb. 1: 8-12—"But unto the Son he saith, Thy throne, O God, is forever and ever: a sceptre of righteousness is the sceptre of thy kingdom. . . . And thou, Lord hast laid the foundation of the earth, and the heavens are the works of thine hands: they shall perish, but thou remainest; and they all shall wax old as doth a garment. . . . But thou art the same, and thy years shall not fail."

CHRIST IS LIKE GOD, SINLESS.

"He, who knew no sin, became sin for us, that we might be made the righteousness of God through him."

CHRIST IS A BEING TO BE WORSHIPED.

"When he bringeth in the first begotten into the world, he saith, Let all the angels of God worship him." Heb. 1: 6. "It is written, Thou shalt worship the Lord thy God, and him only shalt thou serve." Matt. 4: 10. This being true, Christ is properly called God.

CHRIST IS HIGHLY EXALTED.

Eph. 1: 21-23—"Far above all principality, and power, and might, and dominion, and every name that is named, not only in this world, but also in that which is to come; and hath put all things under his feet, and gave him to be the head over all things to the church, which is his body, the fulness of him that filleth all in all." Phil. 2: 9-11—"Wherefore God also hath highly exalted him, and given him a name which is above every name; that at the name of Jesus every knee should bow, of things in heaven, and things in earth, and things under the earth; and that every tongue should confess that Jesus Christ is Lord, to the glory of God the Father."

Heb. 1: 4-6—"Being made so much better than the angels, as he hath by inheritance obtained a more excellent name than they. For unto which of the angels said he at any time, Thou art my Son, this day have I begotten thee? And again, I will be to him a Father, and he shall be to me a Son? And again, when he bringeth the first begotten into the world, he saith, And let all the angels of God worship him."

Heb. 3: 3, 4—"This man [Christ] was counted worthy of more glory than Moses, inasmuch as he who hath builded the house hath more honor than the house. For every house is builded by some man; but he that built all things is God." Isa. 43: 11—"I, even I, am the Lord; and beside me there is no Saviour." Acts 4: 11, 12—"This is the stone which was set at naught of you builders, which is become the head of the corner. Neither is there salvation in any other: for there is none other name under heaven given among men, whereby we must be saved." John 10: 30—"I and my Father are one."

SOMETHING MORE DEFINITE.

BY GEO. J. FRENCH.

Dear Editor:—In your issue of Dec. 2nd, a writer, seeking after "more light" on the subject of the Lord's soon coming, made this assertion: "This [the speedy coming of Christ] is the key-note that thrills our very soul." I believe this with all my heart, and many times I have gazed into the eastern sky with heart beating rapidly, anxiously waiting to cry out, "This is our God, we have waited for him." But as I turn my thoughts to the scenes of earth, and consider the millions of her inhabitants who are totally unprepared for such a grand and awful event, my pulse quickens, and I feel as if I could fly as upon the wings of the wind to all parts of the world to tell the inhabitants thereof of Jesus' love, and his power to forgive sins, that whosoever will call upon him shall be saved, and warn them of the danger of procrastination. And thus, having such a vehement desire in two directions, I am filled with such enthusiasm that I can scarcely sleep nights, and can only wonder how any one, believing in the speedy coming of Christ, can become "drowsy." If, instead of sitting down in a selfish manner (as thousands of our people are doing), and eating the loaves produced by "prophetic expositors," and then drowsing away their time until fresh loaves can be produced, they would push out into the highways and hedges, and compel others to come unto the feast, they would find no time for drowsiness.

Why ask for "something more definite"? The Lord with his own mouth declared many signs which should appear in the heavens, upon the earth, among the nations on sea and land, and then adds (according to Luke 21: 28), "When these things begin to come to pass . . . your redemption draweth nigh." And (according to Matt. 24: 33), "When ye shall see all these things (which includes the very last sign mentioned), know that it is near, even at the doors", and then adds further, "This generation shall not pass till all these things (which includes redemption) be fulfilled."

The question now is, "Have all the signs appeared? No one can read the Editor's article on the fulfillment of the signs in the sun, moon and stars, without observing how strikingly they have declared the nearness of the kingdom. But other signs were to follow. "Upon the earth distress of nations, with perplexity; the sea and the waves roaring; men's hearts failing them for fear, and for looking after those things which are coming on the earth." All will readily observe that Christ represented these signs to be the result, or effect of the shaking of the powers of the heavens. Therefore if we can show that the effect has appeared, the cause certainly must have first existed.

For example, we cannot see the wind blow; but when our hats fly off, and the dust sweeps down the street in a cloud, and the trees bend to the ground, we know the wind is blowing. Likewise when we see mankind so miraculously wrought upon by some power as to cause them to perpetrate the most fiendish crimes without any apparent cause; financial affairs clashing so as to deter moneyed men from venturing into business; working men out of employment counted by thousands, leaving nearly as many families destitute; men and nations wild with anxieties because of political affairs and the cry of war; the rapid decline of our world's population, morally and physically, accompanied by a horrifying increase of incurable diseases, whereby mortality is multiplied year by year; the mighty cyclones flowing through sea and land, heaping up the waters, which recede with almost equal force, causing the sea and waves to roar with horrifying anger; tossing ships hundreds of feet high, then plunging them back into the deep many times, never again to rise; snatching up barns, and houses of wood, brick and stone, even licking up their very foundation upon which they stood, and hurling them into space, and tearing them into atoms; lifting rocks of many tons' weight from their beds, and carrying them rods away; hurling mammoth chunks of iron; twisting large iron rods as a man would twist burnt broom wire; picking up whole droves of grazing cattle and dashing them into mince-meat; uprooting trees and razing them to the ground; and many more horrifying scenes which we have not time or space to mention;—I say, when we hear, see and know of a great multiplicity of such things having followed each other in rapid succession for the past few years, filling the world with consternation and awe, we have no room for doubt as to "the powers of the heavens" having been "shaken," and all of these signs fulfilled. What did Jesus say should take place next in connection? "And then shall they see the Son of man coming in the clouds, with power and great glory."

Dear reader, what "more light" do we need? This is an "unmistakable light" from the great lamp, the Bible, beckoning to us from "home." What do we want more definite? If these things will not arouse a person from dormancy, and prevent him from being "drowsy," we may expect him to be numbered among those "whom the Lord shall consume with the spirit of his mouth, and shall destroy with the brightness of his coming." Yours in the "blessed hope," working watching and waiting.

THE NEW ANGLO-AMERICAN TRANSLATION.

BY T. FIELD, M. D.

This translation, on which Bible students made large calculations, is no better than the common version. The result of the labors of the translators goes to show the folly of expecting an honest translation of the Holy Scriptures from the Hebrew and Greek into a living language by a lot of clergymen. The only way to get the work done right is to employ men thoroughly acquainted with the dead languages in which the Bible was written, and who belong to no church at all, and have no partiality for any religious denomination, sect or party. From such men we could reasonably expect a fair and impartial rendering of every word and sentence of the Hebrew and Greek Scriptures. But until that is done, we may have a thousand versions not as reliable as that of King James.

We commenced the work with a determination not to translate the Hebrew word sheol, but to adopt it into the English language, and leave scholars to learn its meaning from its use in the Old Testament. But they departed from the rule, and still rendered it in a number of cases by the old Saxon word hell, leaving the ignorant reader still to be misled by the popular meaning of the word hell. The translators knew just as well as all biblical scholars know, that the Hebrew word sheol, the Saxon word hell, the Greek word hades, and the English word grave, mean one and the same thing; yet they try to perpetuate a delusion by retaining the word hell. Not satisfied with the adoption of sheol in part, they take the unwarrantable liberty of defining it in the preface as "the place of departed spirits." This literary fraud, palmed off upon the ignorant, is in the interest of immortal soulism.

In Isa. 54: 15 they retain an erroneous translation, evidently to favor the practice of sprinkling water on babies for baptism. The common version reads, "So shall he sprinkle many nations." It is a part of a prophecy of our Saviour's humiliation. The same word is translated in the preceding verse by the word astonished. The Greek word in the Septuagint is thaumsonti, and means astonish. The correct translation is, "So shall he astonish many nations." The reason of this is given in the context. Thus we see how utterly deficient the translators are in candor and honesty. That they were ignorent of the error in the common version cannot be admitted. Failure to correct it must have been willful.

In the Hebrew Scriptures the word sheol occurs forty-nine times. It is translated by the English word grave twenty-eight times, by the Saxon word hell nineteen times, and by the word pit twice. In no instance is it said that it is either a place of departed spirits, or a place of punishment.

The New Testament translation is more dishonest than the Old. In the first place the translators lacked the moral courage to adopt the Greek words Gehenna, Hades, and Tartarus into our language, and thereby end the disputes and misconceptions about the obsolete Saxon word hell, which originally meant the grave, but is now made to mean a place of eternal torment. They put the word hell-fire in the text, and gehenna in the margin. There is no such compound word as hell-fire in the Greek. It is simply gehenna, which was a place of fire, but not hell-fire.

They retain the erroneous punctuation in Luke 23: 43, making the Saviour promise to take the thief to paradise the day he died, thereby contradicting several declarations of Christ that no man can go to the heaven to which he would return. Besides, there was no paradise for the thief to go to. It was originally the garden of Eden, and will finally be the new earth. Moreover, the Lord did not ascend to heaven until forty days after his resurrection; so that, if heaven is paradise, it is certain the thief never went to it the day that Christ died.

In 2 Cor. 15: 53, they depart from the rule of adopting hades into the English, and translate it and thanatos both by the word death. So that it makes a saint get the victory over both death and the grave when he dies. This is a deliberate fraud, perpetrated to prove a false doctrine, that death emancipates an immortal soul from the prison-house of the body, consequently death is a blessing.

In 2 Cor. 12th chap., they retain another erroneous translation of the word harpazo, which means caught away, and not up. Macknight so renders it, and a better Greek scholar did not live in his day. Paul was caught away in vision to the new heaven and new earth, the third heaven in order, according to 2 Pet. 3d chapter. The earth restored will be paradise. It was originally the garden of Eden. It is not now, nor never was above the skies, but here on the earth.

I am surprised that any publisher of an Advent paper would advertise and recommend such a dishonest translation. It is not worth the paper on which it is printed. The common version, with all its imperfections, is a better work.

THE history of the world teaches no lesson with more impressive solemnity than this: That the only safeguard to a great intellect is a pure heart; that evil no sooner takes position of the heart, than folly commences the conquest of the mind.—Ex.

To the subscribers, the readers, the patrons and the friends of our FAMILY PAPER—"The dear old Crisis"—to each and to all: A happy new year.

Our many thousand readers are to us as a great family, bound together by the golden cords of hope and love; whose heart-beats we seem to feel, but into whose faces we cannot look; whose voices we cannot hear, and whose hands we cannot grasp—not yet—but among whom we hope to stand, with the blood-washed millions, in the very presence of the Lamb, amidst the glories and splendors of Mount Zion—not long hence.

With the gracious prosperity and the personal happiness of EVERY ONE of you, our anxious thought, our sincere sympathy, our earnest prayers, and our daily toil are bound up. Your unity and growth and victories are our joy; your sorrows and sicknesses and bereavements fill us with sadness; your faith and hope and love are the anchor of our confidence; and the surety of the "blessed hope" of immortality and glory in a world of purity and peace, where we shall "know as we are known," fills us with inspiration, courage, and exceeding joy.

We may be happy: for though our hearth-stones are saddened by vacant places, and kindly voices are hushed in our darkened homes, and loved and tender forms lie silent and cold under the crisp grasses and the pure drapery of the "beautiful snow," there shall come an hour when our precious treasures shall be restored to us, untarnished by the fleeting slumber of the tomb; and we shall press them to our yearning hearts, in the budding spring-time of the endless years.

Let us be happy, even if pinched by poverty, and wasted by sickness, and sore distressed by cruel disappointments; for the time draws near when pallid brows shall glow with the beauty of health, and the poor shall be evermore rich—richer than the Vanderbilts—richer than Crœsus.

Let us rejoice, at the New Year's dawn; for ere its fleeting days shall have been numbered the long, dark time of tears and want and pain and dying may have fled away forever, and the King in his beauty, and the kingdom in its glory may have come; and the weary, worried saints of the earthly ages may be gathered into the city not made with hands, eternal in the heavens. Amen. So may it be.

And so, with heroic faith; with heart beating to heart in glorious expectation, and with hands clasped for holy endeavor, let us greet the New Year's dawn.

And now, among you all, may grace abound, and joy abide, and peace be like a river, until the promised morn shall break and the promised kingdom shall come.

OUR FAMILY PAPER AND DENOMINATIONAL ORGAN.

As the Old Year's sun is setting we take a retrospective and prospective glance at our calling, our trusts, our work.

"Family paper," we say, because the Crisis does not belong to its Editors, nor the Editorial Committee, nor the Publication Society. Our denominational organ is the property and the treasure of the whole body of its patrons. In its columns EVERY ONE of our people have and hold an intrinsic and vital interest. And every subscriber should regard his interest therein as sacred and inalienable.

The Crisis is emphatically a family paper, devoted to biblical instruction and spiritual watching for the homes of all our people, and all others who desire its weekly ministries. It is intended and believed to be adapted to fireside reading, and to the promotion of home purity and domestic piety. It aims to carry, in tones of love and peace, the glad tidings of our Lord's coming and kingdom at hand to the hearthstone and the nursery. It seeks to shed the light of the "blessed hope" on the family altar, and to be a careful and faithful expositor of the Holy Word for the entire household. It aims to keep its columns free from bitterness, jealousy, fault-finding and malice, and to come to the home circle fragrant with precious divine truth, and laden with "meat in due season," so that its patrons need not be ashamed to present it to their friends and neighbors.

The Crisis is an ADVENT paper, devoted to the elucidation of adventual doctrines—the evidences, prophetic, historic, political, domestic and physical, of Christ's personal and literal appearing, as due in our own times. But it does not undervalue experimental truth and personal piety. It teaches and urges holiness of heart and life as absolutely necessary to personal preparation for our Lord's coming and for admission into his heavenly kingdom.

The Crisis aims at the promotion of union, harmony of feeling and effort, and brotherly love throughout all our borders. It will not cover sin nor wink at any known evil. It will deal faithfully with unbelief and rejection of the truth, and every wicked thing. But it does not believe that its readers are cursed with a morbid desire for frequent recitals of the disagreements, misunderstandings, failures, faults and jealousies which may have occurred among us during the last quarter of a century, the publication of which could only have the effect of nursing personal animosities, and promoting sectional alienation and strife between the different parts of our one great field. And we feel sure that every one of our readers will heartily commend it for keeping its columns clean from such contaminations.

Neither have we supposed it to be any part of our editorial duty to institute a jealous vituperative and cruel espionage of the motives and integrity of our brethren of like precious faith. But the Crisis has sought—"with love for all and malice for none"—to "seek peace and pursue it." And it will continue to do so. It will allow no provocation, however severe and unjust it may be, to betray it into a spirit of bitterness and crimination. It will not disgust and drive away its friends by unrighteous imputations of dishonesty and corrupt dealing. As the shadows of the judgment gather around us, it is no time for the dark and suicidal work of crimination and recrimination; and to that unchristlike arena the Crisis will not descend. The Crisis will not attempt to create sympathy and support for itself by traducing the character and sitting in judgment upon the purposes and work of others of "like precious faith"; but on the contrary it bids earnest "God-speed" to all "faithful servants" who are seeking, sincerely and peaceably, to give "meat in due season." It has no desire whatever to encroach upon the rights or liberties or success of anybody on earth, but simply seeks to prosecute its own divinely appointed trusts and work, in publishing, by every rightful facility in its power, to the largest possible number East, West, North and South, this side the waters and beyond the seas, the solemn but joyful tidings of redemption at hand. And this, by the grace of God, it purposes to do.

If it cannot always publish all that is offered, it will hold in equal respect and love those whose communications it may feel obliged to reject, for the good of the common cause.

Standing where we feel the constant pulse-beat of the body, scattered over the whole land, we do not hesitate to assure all the friends of the Crisis that whatever measures the representatives of our entire people, in Annual Convention assembled, shall believe to be best for the good of the WHOLE body, and for EVERY section of the country, will be most gladly accepted and earnestly prosecuted by the Publication Society, and by all who may be in official position.

"All we are brethren." Let us stand shoulder to shoulder, heart to heart, hand to hand, in our mutual, glorious work, and let no device of satan, however specious and well laid, divert us, for one moment, from our high and holy calling.

And now, may we not confidently appeal to every lover of our Lord's appearing, and every believer in Advent doctrines as taught in the Crisis, to make an IMMEDIATE and THOROUGH effort to increase our subscription list? Some are doing nobly in this regard. If ALL will do something, the spread of the truth will receive a new impulse, and the tidings of great joy will go into new homes and into many hearts.

Our columns are being constantly enriched by our Foreign Mission correspondence; and new elements of interest are soon to be added from quarters of the world in which we have heretofore had no voice.

Now is the time for grand and successful effort. Let us greet the new year with an advance movement all along the line.

We may be allowed to say to our dear brethren in the West that the more you do for the Crisis in the next few months, the more means will be in hand to meet the increasing wants of that vast and vastly important field.

May the Lord God baptize us anew with the Holy Ghost and with power from on high, from sea to sea, and stir every drop of blood in us with the mighty inspiration of our divine, our ever blessed hope, and our majestic calling and work.

A NEW YEAR'S PRESENT.

We are in our fifth year of service as an Editor of the Crisis. In much weakness and in constant anxiety we have sought to do our very best to make the Crisis a very welcome visitor to the homes and hearts of our readers. And we have received many, very many precious words of commendation and encouragement. And, although we make no claim, still we venture to ask each one of our 25,000 or 30,000 readers and friends to bless us with a New Year's gift. If you secretly inquire just what kind of a present we prefer, we answer: A new subscriber for the "DEAR OLD CRISIS," from each one of its hosts of friends. Now will not every one respond AT ONCE and send this desired token of your sympathy and co-operation? Now the Editor will watch the mail for his New Year's present.

AND THEN THE TENS OF THOUSANDS OF CHILDREN.

Surely the dear children must not be forgotten. And "Uncle Pilgrim"—the dear brother who works so hard and lovingly for the little folks—he must be remembered certainly.

Now the Editor of the Crisis is going to ask the great army of our Advent children to take this matter into their own little hands and manage it all their own way. But we would whisper in their ears that each little reader of The Young Pilgrim obtain one new subscriber, and send the name in a nice little letter to Editor Burr, as their New Year's present. And we are sure he will not forget to return his compliments, with increased affection for his great little flock.

TO OUR CONTRIBUTORS.

We must ask our friends who send us articles and letters for the paper not to be impatient if their communications do not appear in the very next number; for we frequently—as has been the case lately—have a rush of matter, and then we have to follow, as far as we can, the old rule: "First come, first served." But do not cease writing, for we want all the good, cheering and edifying matter we can get. So pour in your good, thoughtful articles, your interesting letters, your bits of experience, your church news, etc., etc. And may rich blessings from God our Father and from Jesus the Saviour, and the guidance and comfort of the Spirit rest on you all.

THE QUARTERLY JOURNAL OF PROPHECY.

The New Year's number of this important periodical has an unusual variety of very able and interesting articles.

Although this Quarterly is designed especially for the Foreign field, it is also intended for our home readers.

Let the Editor be cheered and encouraged by a handsome New Year's gift in the shape of a host of new subscribers.

EDITOR OF CRISIS.

PROPHETIC EXPOSITIONS.

Adventists have justly acquired a reputation for prophetic preaching, and are often faulted for dealing so much with these God-given themes. Our opponents are constantly holding us up to ridicule for meddling with the symbolic imagery found in the Bible, and sometimes we find in our own midst those who declaim against prophetic preaching. We might as consistently protest against our own existence as a people, for the proclamation of fulfilled and fulfilling prophecy led to our distinctive ecclesiastical existence, separating us from denominational ranks averse to our prophetic faith, not as a voluntary step on our own part, but as a compulsory move on the part of our clerical antagonists all over the land, and that, too, before our eyes had been opened to see the truth on the life and death theme. We were placed under the stern necessity of either smothering our faith to procure human favor, or of stepping out where we could have liberty to proclaim it in an untrameled manner; nor were we all permitted to step out voluntarily, but multitudes all over the land were ruthlessly driven out for clinging to our prophetic faith, and refusing to wear an ecclesiastical gag.

This was positively the starting point of our distinctive ecclesiastical history; and in the light of these facts, an outcry against prophetic preaching is but an outcry against our own existence as a people. For outsiders to thus deal out denunciations, is just what might be expected; but for our own people to join in the same censure is suicidal, and shame on those who dare to do it. A pretext for so doing may be found in the wildness of some reckless and unbalanced extremists in our midst, who habitually overdo everything they touch, or else do nothing at all, and thus bring the cause into disrepute; but this is not a good reason for traducing the truth itself.

But, by way of justification, it is sometimes said that Christ and the apostles never meddled with the prophetic measurements. Neither did they meddle with the prophetic symbols; and there was a good reason for it—the book was sealed up till "the time of the end," and neither Christ nor his apostles would rebel against Deity in breaking the seal. Never did Christ or his apostles expound the image of Daniel, or the four beasts, or the horns. But having entered "the time of the end," the seal is removed, and knowledge is being increased," and in order to be increased, it must come by degrees. So it is no wonder that the full light did not dawn upon us all at once; if it had so come, there could have been no increasing, nor could there have been a waiting time after a disappointment.

"INCREASE OF CRIME."

Such is the title of an article in the California Herald of Trade for Nov. 19, published in San Francisco, in which we find an extract from a recent speech delivered by Judge J. M. Maguire, which we here append:

"Sixteen years ago the County Court tried all cases of felony except murder in this city, and also heard all appeals from the lower criminal court. To-day it is impossible for three of the departments of the Superior Court to keep up with the trial of felony alone. Then, only one Police Court was necessary; now, two Police Courts are generally so overcrowded with business that a demand for a jury trial in either of those courts generally delays a trial for months. Then, there was but one State prison—that at San Quentin; now, there is another at Folsom, and the House of Correction has been added to the penal institutions, which are all crowded. Then, there were but few tramps, who were fed by our hospitable farmers; now, there is an army of savage outcasts—more savage than beasts and as unprincipled as savages. Now, those who are compelled to go in rags in search of work are so treated that soon they are compelled to resort to the crime of theft, which at first they abhorred. This completes the transformation, and good men are thus reduced to the lowest ranks of humanity."

So much for the statement of the Judge. Then comes the corrobarative testimony of the Editor of the Herald, from which we quote the following item:

"This is a horrible picture, but sadly be it said it is a true one. The criminal element is growing, growing in a greater proportion than the state. Luxurious habits, and the desire for wealth are filling the calendar of crime among the educated classes, who hold positions of great trust."

Nor is it California alone that furnishes such a sad picture of increasing crime. Yet, in the face of such thrilling and chilling facts and figures as these, we are ever and anon treated to clerical essays presenting the claim of the world's speedy conversion. That there are local advances in the right direction we doubt not, but that, on a general principle, the tide of carnality is becoming a seething torrent, is a fact too conspicuous to be concealed.

THE TRUTH.

The truth is not always restricted to some important feature of theology, but often relates to man's moral status. The truth that some men need to feel first of all is that they are sinners, and must repent in order to find salvation here, and the kingdom hereafter; and all other truths are worthless to such a soul, except as a means to an end, till this truth has been reciprocated. The truth that others need to find out to begin with is that they are graceless professors, and need to be brought into sweet communion with God. When men of graceless hearts spend all their zeal in talking about the truth of controverted theology, they begin at the wrong end of the string.

First, make your peace with God, or renew your covenant with the Lord, and then you can better promulgate the truth of theology than when stimulated to the work by the pugilistic spirit. The truth should be spoken, but it can be spoken with the wrong motive, and in the wrong spirit. The divine rule is, "speaking the truth in love." A man filled with the right spirit will be more potent in the promulgation of truth, than a man enthused with carnality; the one will attract, while the other will repel.

W. S.

PREDESTINATION.

God has predestinated a class to be saved, and reprobated another class to be damned; but he has not predestinated any man to belong to the one class or the other, but has left man free to place himself with whichever class he may prefer, and take the result of his choice. Paul, after speaking of "them who are the called according to his purpose" [which is "Whosoever will, let him come"] then adds: "For whom he did foreknow, he also did predestinate to be conformed to the image of his Son ["for as we have borne the image of the earthly Adam"—mortality—"we shall also bare the image of the heavenly," or immortality] that he might be the first born among many brethren ["first born from the dead"]. Moreover, whom he did predestinate, them he also called ["according to his purpose"]; and whom he called, them he also justified; and whom he justified, them he also glorified."

If the glorification was only in the purpose of God, instead of being a past transaction, which we know was not the case, then the justification, the call, and the predestination also was in the purpose of God, and in agreement with that revealed purpose, instead of being a compulsory arrangement in conflict therewith. "Whosoever will" may accept the call, receive justification, and thus make his "calling and election sure," and finally be glorified. W. S.

A LESSON FOR THE HOUR.

FROM AN ANCIENT DOCUMENT.

Hear this all ye people; give ear all ye inhabitants of the world; both low and high, rich and poor together. My mouth shall speak of wisdom, and the meditation of my heart shall be of understanding. . . They that trust in their wealth, and boast themselves in the multitude of their riches; none of them can by any means redeem his brother, nor give to God a ransom for him; . . . that he should still live forever and not see corruption. For he seeth that wise men die, likewise the fool and the brutish person perish, and leave their wealth to others. Their inward thought is, that their houses shall continue forever, and their dwelling-places to all generations; they call their lands after their own names. Nevertheless man being in honor abideth not: he is like the beasts that perish. This their way is their folly: yet their posterity approve their sayings. Like sheep they are laid in the grave; death shall feed on them; and the upright shall have dominion over them in the morning; and their beauty shall consume in the grave from their dwelling. . . Be not thou afraid when one is made rich, when the glory of his house is increased; for when he dieth he shall carry nothing away: his glory shall not descend after him. Though while he lived he blessed his soul: and men will praise thee when thou doest well to thyself. He shall go to the generation of his fathers; he shall never see light. Man that is in honor, and understandeth not, is like the beasts that perish.

What a picture of the condition of the wise, rich and honored among men! What an estimate is here placed upon that which is highest in the estimation of mankind! Of how little value in the sight of true wisdom is that which the world is everywhere seeking for. The end of it all is death and the grave. The wisdom, the wealth, the honor and glory of earth survive not these. Like beasts in the grave, death feeding upon them, what do men's riches, wisdom and honor, obtained in life, amount to? All is lost, and more: life eternal, which without these vanities they might have had. This statement is a divine one. Who will heed it? The mammon-lovers of to-day are dying; the honor-seekers are falling in death; the world-wise are sinking into eternal forgetfulness of all they have learned. The grave covers them all. "Their glory descends not after them." It may be talked of among living men, but it goes not to the occupant of the grave. Corruption, earth and worms are all that is possessed by those who are there. "Man that is in honor and understandeth not, is like the beasts that perish."

THEY WANT YOUR MONEY.

BY PHILO HITCHCOCK.

Every intelligent Adventist, who is not half asleep and the other half dead, knows that the nominal churches do not want a thing to do with "our faith." They despise it and reject it, and intend to do so to the bitter end. There are two items of our faith that they hate worse than they do sin. One is the "sleep of the saints," the other the precious doctrine of "Christ's soon coming." The professed churches would not have the dear Lord return in person to this planet for all the wealth of the world, if they could help it. If a heathen king sends word that he intends to visit America, the dignitaries of Church and State run out with waving banners to meet him, and welcome his approach. Christ they do not want, neither do they intend to have him. But they are going to see him just the same, and see him on earth. They can keep him out of their hearts, but when he gets ready to step into the car of glory, and waves the grand signal for moving to earth, the old orthodox cry of "Away with him!" will not prevent his "coming in the clouds of heaven with power and great glory."

But there is one thing connected with our people, or possessed by them to a small extent, that they all clamor for. That is the Advent dollar. It goes just as far as any other money in paying bills for "oyster suppers," "mite societies," skating rinks, theatres, etc. And frequently our people are left without a settled pastor, and sometimes are well to do in temporal matters, and don't you forget that they all want the dollar. And in too many instances they get it by tens and hundreds. "O," they say, "we believe in the coming of the Lord." But how do they believe it? About as we believe in the "return of the Jews." We believe it will never happen. But they want us to help support their cause, and build their churches, and "if we will only help, we can use their church whenever it is not in use." But they must have it in their name! And how frequently they have been known to make fair promises until they got the money, then some "unforeseen circumstance" happened that caused them to need it all the time!

There are of course some exceptions; but if I speak in other churches beside our own because our people have assisted in building it, I expect to give them the full benefit of every dollar they have invested! I shall do it for Christ's sake, and for truth's sake, and because the people need it. But it shall be in tears and tenderness, "speaking the truth in love." But I would have the thousands in this country who are not blest with "regular preaching" try and not forget the dying need of our general cause. Please do not forget the mission cause, both home and foreign; the tract societies, Crisis fund, poor fund, etc. The other churches are better able to pay their own bills than we are to help them; and if you want a hundred dollars from them to preach the coming of Jesus and the resurrection, they will never pay it. It is about time we were doing our own work as God shall help us.

CHURCH NEWS.

Bro. Stockman:—It has been a long time since I informed the Crisis readers how the Lawrence Church was getting along, and what they are doing. This has not been because of nothing good to say of the church, or of a lack of interest on my part. Many times I have been stirred to write, and resolved to do so, but time has seemed to fail me to put the resolution into effect. Now I will try again, and let you all know that you may pray for us if nothing more.

A week ago to-day Bro. Hemenway delivered two lectures on "Scientific and Biblical Evolution" to large audiences morning and afternoon. It appears to me that these lectures are timely, and ought to be repeated in all cities and large villages in the land. The tone is excellent, and well calculated to arrest a fast spreading infidelity. We noticed Bro. H. L. Hastings in the audience morning and afternoon, who spoke at two or more places in the city in the evening.

Monday evening meetings for revival and salvation were commenced in charge of the pastor, Bro. Couch, assisted by Bro. J. A. Gardner of Boston. Meetings have been held all the week past except Saturday evening and are to be continued this week. The church as a body has taken advanced ground; the cold and backslidden in heart have come forward, and some of the young have started for the first time. The Lord is at work. Bro. G. was alone to-day, and preached this forenoon from 2 John 8. He arose with much fear and weakness, and said he never felt the cross so heavy. As might be expected, the Lord was in the discourse. If ever we listened to a sermon that was marked for its absence of the human, and the presence of the inditing Spirit of God, that was such a sermon. Deep feeling prevailed. Pray for us that the Word may have free course and be glorified. More anon. Your Brother.

Lawrence, Mass., Dec. 20. C. E. COPP.

CENTS OR SOULS.

How true are the remarks recently made in The Moravian: "There was once in a certain church a certain treasurer whose custom it was, immediately after every service, to count the collection. Then, if the amount was small, he would ask the pastor: 'Aren't you feeling well to-day? It seems to me you didn't preach as well as usual!' If the amount was large, he would be profuse in his compliments and praise of the 'good sermon we had this morning!' To him the gospel was nothing but a means of filling the treasury. And he was not altogether peculiar. Many an empty sermon is praised most highly because a full church listened to it; and many a strong and full sermon counts for nothing, simply because the audience was small.

Too many ministers are valued, not for the instruction, the comfort, the spiritual life that they give to souls, but solely according to the amount of money they bring into the treasury, by the crowd they attract to their services. From trying to serve God and mammon, the very things of God are made to fall down and worship the latter. Cents are made to weigh more than souls. And the churches get exactly what they want and what they pay for. Spirituality and pentecostal power are sacrificed to secure worldly success and pulpit popularity. The tastes, not the needs, of the audience must be pandered to by the preacher. The pews, not the pulpits, select the texts, shape the discourses, and trammel the Spirit. The Treasurer of the Board of Trustees becomes the judge of what shall be said by the preacher and done by the pastor. 'Ye cannot serve God and Mammon.' Convert 'souls,' and you will not lack for cents."

In this connection we quote the following from The Armory, which is worthy of serious consideration: Did you ever see a man play preach? With a manner that had been imitated, a tone in which he had been trained, and a sermon which he had learned or copied, all of them beautiful, all affected, and all unnatural—did you ever see such a man, cool, collected, composed, and free from fervor or agitation, going through his work like a clock, earning his money, and retiring with an air of perfect satisfaction and content? He does not 'cry with a loud voice, as when a lion roareth;' he will 'roar you as gently as any sucking dove;' he will preserve all the proprieties of his position, he will exhibit no earnestness, no reality. He makes no unguarded expressions; he is faultless to a fault; everything is prim, precise, and irreproachable; but what does the whole amount to?

"O man of God, get down from these barren heights of self-conciousness, and self-conceit. Talk with the Lord in honesty of soul. Take to yourself words, and turn unto the Lord. And let them be true words, even if they are such as these: 'I am as dry as a gourd, as hollow as an egg-shell, a mere bundle of attitudes and platitudes, a cloud without water, an empty vine, a fruitless tree, a cumberer of the ground;—a good man, but what am I good for? Take me, break my heart, crush me, and bring me down to know what I am, and to be what I should be.'

"When men have come to take such a view as this of the facts in the case, let them be done with playing preach, and talk to the people out of honest hearts, confessing their own shortcomings and remissness, pouring out their cries to God, and seeking the Lord, that they may find peace in believing, blessing to their own souls, and the fruit of their labors to the glory of God, and the good of men. They will find themselves near the people, and near the Lord; and with his blessing their words will reach the hearts of men, and be fruitful to the glory of God."—Christian Standard.

THAT CHAPEL IS PAID FOR.

For years a debt has been hanging over the Advent Christian Chapel of Port Sanilac Mich., Bro. Robert Arnot, who has assisted very liberally in building seven Advent meeting-houses in this region, held the papers against the Sanilac Church, and has very patiently waited on them, till now they have raised the amount due, and the Chapel is free. The brethren wish to express their appreciation to dear Bro. Arnot for his long suffering and kindness to them in the past, also to those outside of the church who kindly lent a helping hand.

The church is in a prospering condition. All are united, and seem to have love for one another. A church in such a condition cannot fail to prosper. It is better to pay for meeting-houses before giving them to the Lord; but if any are burdened as this people has been, we would say to them—hold on by faith. Our Father is rich, and in due time will send help. C. PIKE.

REPORT OF THE YORK COUNTY A. C. CONFERENCE.

The Annual Session of this Conference was held with the church at South Windham, Me., commencing Thursday, Dec. 17, and continuing over Sunday. The meeting was called to order by the President, Bro. Jesse Gay. Prayer by Bro. S. G. Rumery. The old board of officers were re-elected unanimously. The reports of Finance Committee and Treasurer were heard and accepted.

On motion of Bro. Rumery, Voted, the time and place of holding the next session of this Conference shall be left to the decision of the President and Secretary.

The business session was adjourned to Saturday morning, at 9 o'clock, and the remainder of the afternoon and also the evening was devoted to social worship.

Friday morning had a real practical, social meeting. In the afternoon preaching. Prayer by Bro. Jesse Gay. Sermon by Bro. E. Harmon (Baptist) from Mark 13: 34. The evening services were conducted by Sister Abby Wood. Saturday morning, 9 o'clock, met according to adjournment, Bro. J. Gay in the chair. Prayer by Bro. Gay and others, after which was heard the reports of ministers and churches.

Voted, that we tender the brethren and sisters at South Windham an expression of our gratitude for their kind hospitality toward us during this session.

On motion of Bro. Carle, voted to adjourn to the call of the Chair.

Saturday afternoon, prayer by Bro. E. Harmon, after which Bro. A. Baker talked to us a little while from 2 Kings 5: 6. Saturday evening we had a real interesting children's meeting, conducted by Sr. Wood. The storm having cleared away Saturday afternoon, there was quite a number of brethren and sisters present.

Sunday morning our love feast was opened by reading the 15th chapter of John. There was quite a number of prayers, seventy-one testimonies, and nineteen songs. This meeting, like all our other meetings, had to be closed for want of time. The weather was so unfavorable, but few of the brethren and sisters were present; but the Lord was with us, and those present "had a mind to work."

Our social meetings were excellent. Every meeting was characterized by the love and power of God. The time was well occupied in every meeting, and we do not for a moment believe that God's word will "return to him void, but will accomplish that which he pleases, and will prosper in the thing whereto he sent it." We trust the church at South Windham may yet see the desire of their hearts in the salvation of the perishing about them.

SECTARIANISM.

BY A. J. WHEELER.

Sectarianism is what all hate and almost everybody indulges in to a greater or less degree. What is sectarianism? Worshiping God according to the dictates of your own conscience, and trying to make everybody do the same. Selfishness and egotism is the root which runs in the ground of shallow-mindedness, and grows up into illiberality, and finally blossoms out a large flower of sectarianism. Every church suffers more or less from its poisonous effects in consequence of its influence. Broad-mindedness is a gift of God, and but few suffer in consequence of it. God's Word is our orthodoxy. Men's opinions are worthless unless substantiated by it. A thorough knowledge of what the Bible teaches can only furnish us a foundation upon which to build our theology. Plain Bible truth is what the church needs in this age of unbelief. People go to church expecting to hear the gospel preached, and not a lecture on astronomy, agnosticism, psychology or metaphysics. If your church has been "born again," the new nature demands food upon which to grow, and the gospel alone can supply this want. We should go to church to pray and not to joke. Slang and sarcasm should never be heard from the pulpit. It shows signs of a lack of piety on the part of the speaker. The gospel does not consist of theories or witty sayings, but of glorious and startling facts concerning Christ's sacrificial death, his triumphant resurrection, and his promised advent "the second time without sin unto salvation." Such are the truths which ought to be held prominently before the church and the world as an incentive to faithfulness and mercy, not sectarianly, but in love and fellowship.

If we have received more light than others, it is not because God loves us any better, but because we have been faithful in letting our light shine. We need not feel ourselves more honored than they. The Pharisees were the most successful sectarians that we have any account of, and "except your righteousness exceed" theirs, your portion will be outside of the city. There is but one body. Are we members of that one? If so, we are saved and safe.

LOVE for souls. Oh, if we only had more of it! He that saved our souls taught us to weep over the unsaved. Have we that mind in us? Do we so yearn for their eternal salvation as to weep for them? Oh, if we had more of a compassion for souls, how God might use us to win them for him.—Herald.

FROM RUTH H. ROWELL.

Bro. Stockman:—I left Aurora and went to Brookings, and preached in the Baptist Church Tuesday evening. It had previously been announced in the Brookings paper, and Mr. Branch, the prominent man of that church, called where I was stopping and was introduced to me, and introduced me to the congregation in the evening. It was a cold, stormy evening, and the congregation exceeded my expectations. Professor Lapham, of the Agricultural College located here, took charge of the singing, while his wife played the instrument. The Lord gave me much liberty, and I felt it was an effectual service. The pastor's wife and others were introduced, and spoke many kind words to me. The pastor was gone, but came on the next morning train, and called on me in the afternoon. He inquired if I could remain and be with them, upon which I answered, "Impossible, as I must take the five o'clock train and preach in Aurora that night, continuing over the following Sunday." He told me whenever I could have time to preach for them to drop him a card, and he would attend to it.

My meetings in Aurora were held in the Union Church. The Congregationalist and Methodist pastors preach in this building. That you may know something of the interest, I send you an item from the Aurora paper of Dec. 11th:

"Mrs. Rowell of Winona, Minn., arrived in Aurora last Friday. She has delivered several excellent sermons during the past week, and has always been greeted with a crowded house. She will preach again to-morrow night, and Sunday morning and evening. She is one of the best speakers that ever visited our town, and all should go and hear her."

When I finish my work in Dakota I have arranged to go through Iowa to Kansas, and from thence to Arkansas, where I labored last winter. Will those who have an interest at the throne of grace pray for me, that I may be strengthened for this arduous work?

Aurora, Dakota, Dec. 12.

CONFERENCE REPORT.

The Nova Scotia semi-annual Conference met according to appointment with the church at West Head, Cape Island, Shelburn Co. Preaching brethren present: J. J. Woodworth, S. Woodworth, and Wm. Halliday. Some of our preaching brethren who were expected did not come, but those who did came filled with the spirit. The meeting began Thursday evening, Oct. 1st. Eld. S. Woodworth preached a short but stirring discourse, after which a number of exhortations followed. As the meeting progressed the interest increased. Sunday our chapel was filled to overflowing. Social meeting in the morning. It was a precious season of prayer and exhortation. Adventists, Baptists, and Presbyterians all praised the Lord together! At 11 A. M. the order of the meeting was changed, and Eld. J. J. Woodworth preached the Word with power. At 2.30 P. M. preaching again by Eld. Wm. Halliday, and baptism at 4.30 P. M. In the evening Eld. S. Woodworth preached to a large and very attentive congregation of hearers. Before the meeting closed a goodly number come forward for prayers, and were blessed.

Bro. Stephen Woodworth continued the meetings for ten days, and wanderers have been reclaimed and sinners converted. The church on the Island has been blest with a number being added to her, such we trust as shall be saved in the kingdom of God.

WM. HALLIDAY, Pastor of the church on the Island, and at Charlesville.

NO REST AT NANTICOKE.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Dec. 22. Little has been done at Nanticoke to-day, except to clear away the debris, preparatory to beginning anew, and render the machinery and appliances more substantial. The operations at the slope will be kept up, and all the debris removed as fast as possible. The most practical miners are of the opinion that when the dead men are found it will be in their chambers. If they have been caught in the fall of sand and culm, then the victims will be found one by one, as the excavation continues, and it may be two months before the last body is recovered.

The loss to the company is said to be estimated this afternoon at $150,000, and will be greater in the cost of sinking a shaft, loss of time, and the clearing away of a mile of debris, sand and rock, which is wedged in a solid mass in the gangways.

Michael Sarver, father of the two Sarver brothers, was among the last who came out of the shaft this morning. He wept like a child. He is very old and a lifelong toiler in the mines. In spite of his age, he is as strong and rugged as ever, and insists on working every moment that the officials will allow him to do so. He to-day expressed himself as entirely satisfied with the work being done to extricate the men. He did not place any blame for the disaster on any one, holding it was accidental. "I have two as fine sons as ever father had lying down there" he said, "and as good a daughter as a man could wish lying dead at home. But it is the will of God, and I say, 'His will be done.' It is a terrible affair, and others are suffering as much as I am. I will go down as soon as they let me, and I will work day and night to rescue them, dead or alive."

It is impossible to describe in words the consternation, the dismay, the agony which spread through the village when it was learned after midnight that all efforts to get the men out alive had been abandoned. The town never saw such a sight as that witnessed from two o'clock this morning. No one thought of rest. The whole population was out on the streets, discussing in the wildest manner the decision, and exclamations of despair, cries of agony and mutterings of discontent were heard in every street corner and in almost every household. Relatives of the unfortunate miners were in the wildest agony of despair, and several were seized with convulsions. Fannie Sarver, sister of the two Sarver brothers, was prostrated with violent fits, and has since died. Mrs. Kiveler, the aged mother of the three Kiveler brothers, was at death's door from weakness and shock, and many other relatives and friends of the victims were completely prostrated. The officials in charge of the work of rescue were forced to abandon their labors, as an investigation at an early hour this morning showed that sand, rock and culm had fallen to such an extent as to completely fill to the roof the mine in which the imprisoned men were confined, and that the unfortunate miners were undoubtedly dead. A second cave-in of very large proportions took place during the night, and the real extent of the damage cannot be estimated. This fall filled the mine with sulphurous gases, and put a peremptory stop to all work. At six o'clock this morning it was learned that the bodies of the victims could not be recovered for at least a month, and since this news has spread throughout the mining region the utmost excitement prevails.—Boston Herald.

BIOGRAPHY OF MRS. L. E. FASSETT.

By her Husband, Eld. O. R. Fassett.

The subject of this Memoir was well known to a wide circle of friends, among whom for many years she lived and moved as an angel of love, carrying the gospel of Jesus, and by true devotion, womanly modesty and Christian principle, setting an example worthy of imitation by women everywhere. No wonder that she won the affections of hundreds, who ask now she is dead, to have some record of so exemplary a life. Her husband—certainly best qualified to perform the task—has in this beautiful book endeavored to meet the desire of friends. Tenderly has he written, and the tender-hearted will here and there drop a tear while reading passages in the book. The Biography is a work that will sell from its own recommendation. Price, postpaid, 60 cts.

THE BIBLE.

BY MRS. J. E. JORDAN.

O the blessed Word of Life,
How it feeds the hungry soul!
How it quenches all our thirst,
As its limpid waters roll!
Fresh from underneath the throne,
Rippling o'er life's silvery sand,
How it talks of home and rest
Yonder in the promised land.

O the blessed Word of Life,
With its soul-enlivening ray,
Ever shining more and more
As we near the perfect day.
How it comforts, warms and cheers,
With its promises so sweet,
As we journey toward the land
Where our joy will be complete.

O the blessed Word of Life!
Like a sharp two-edged sword
It will pierce the harness-joints
Of the foemen of the Lord.
We believe its blessed truths—
It becomes to us a shield,
And the victory will be ours
In each hard contested field.

O the blessed Word of Life,
Hidden deep within my heart,
From thy precepts, just and true,
That I never may depart.
That I never may transgress,
I have purposed by thy grace,
For the pure in heart alone
Shall behold His blessed face.

O the blessed Word of Life!
More than all the world to me,
Soon, thy promises fulfilled,
Standing on the crystal sea,
We will sing our sorrows o'er,
Cast our trophies at His feet,
And we'll love thee more and more,
When our victory is complete.

Raymond, Me.

A STORM THAT WILL NEVER CALM.

BY S. A. DOW.

On the approaching evening of a beautiful December day in my boyhood, I was on board a steamer from New York bound for Wilmington, N. C. When the sun was about sinking out of sight, far beyond the glittering waters of the old ocean, many of the passengers were on deck taking a sunset view from off Cape Hatteras, and all on board seemed to be full of joy and glee, when suddenly, like life's journey through its shifting scenes, all was changed. As the evening came on the clouds, wild, dark and black, rolled fiercely and heavily together, as if to their appointed place, and the windows of heaven seemed opened, so overpowering was the storm that encircled and beat upon our gallant ship.

Night came on, but with it no abatement of the tempest, which still continued to beat and roar with appalling fury. Sadness brooded and settled upon every countenance. The terrible blackness was relieved only by the fierce and glaring lightning's flash, while the deep thunder rolled and echoed, with its thousand voices, from battlement to battlement. As the night slowly passed on, the fury of the storm increased. At midnight all were startled by a loud crash, with a grinding, stunning jar. The captain, who had with aching eyes and a sickened heart watched the storm so far through the night, told all on board that the vessel was leaking very fast, and must inevitably go to the bottom unless they could pump the water out about as fast as it was coming in, which was doubtful. Who can tell the suffering of that hour when father, mother, sons and daughters were all clinging to each other—husband and wife, mothers and children, rushing to and fro in frantic terror and agony. Appalling indeed it was to witness such a scene. Men who were a few hours before playing cards, drinking, and taking the name of God in vain, were on their knees, calling on God to save them and their loved ones.

At length, when all seemed to be awaiting the dread and awful summons to eternity, an angel of life appeared to ride on the storm, and guided the surging billows. Morning dawned serene and beautiful, and all was calm. But there is a terrible storm at hand that will never calm. Soon the angel of death will appear riding on an awful storm of fire, destroying all whose names are not written in the book of life. What an awful scene that will be when the millions that are living, and the countless millions that are raised from the dead shall stand before the throne of God, when every knee shall bow, and every one shall call on God to save them. And to all except those whose names are written in the book of life the awful response will be, "Depart, I know you not!" There will be no appeal. The verdict will come from one whose right it is to judge and to execute judgment—one who has for more than eighteen hundred years been pleading for poor lost sinful men and women, but his pleading will have come to an end.

No pen can picture the awful scene of a lost world in the last death agonies, weeping, wailing, lamenting and entreating the stern, yet righteous Judge, when he with all his majesty and power tells them they must be burned up root and branch.

In view of this terrible scene are you, my friends, who believe the great judgment day to be near, even at the door, doing just as you should do? Methinks I hear a thousand voices answer "No." I hear another thousand saying I have bought a farm, a piece of land, a yoke of oxen, a stock of goods, have married a wife, or some other poor excuse for not doing something to rescue the perishing.

With an eye of faith Abraham's land is in view. Oh, what an inheritance! a land that will ever blossom, but never fade—a land that will bear fruit which will never decay—a land where no sickness, pain or death can ever enter. No funeral dirge will ever be heard there. All will be peace, happiness and love throughout the land. A bright, dazzling crown will be upon every brow; purity will beam upon every countenance, and joy will fill every heart. The storm is coming. It will come, and not tarry.

Concord, N. H.

Good men cannot all be in the ministry, though all good men can minister in that which is good. They are called the ministers—servants—of the Lord, so soon as accepted in the Church, it being assumed that service is part of that to which they consecrate themselves. There are those, of course, who serve when they are waiting, and it is all they can do, but there are many others who do not serve in that way, nor in any other. They live a lifetime in the house of the Lord as guests, strangers occupying the "spare-room," and being waited on rather than giving their atten- [illegible] "I send you," "Go ye [illegible] way of speaking to all his [illegible]

TEXAS WORK.

After nearly two months work for Jesus, I have one day to rest, and will improve it by writing a condensed report of my last work in Texas. I left Tarrant County Sept. 4th, and went West via. Fort Worth, arrived at the village of Pendletonville in Belle Co. the 5th, where I stopped and preached four times. The people were much interested, and I hope good was done. Sept. 9th I went to Hutto, in Williamson Co., where I met Bro. and Sister Ross, formerly of Ohio, who had written for me. They were the only Adventists in the place when I went. The Baptists closed their church against me, and things looked gloomy. But I had access to a school room near the church, where I began meetings on the night of the 9th.

Sunday morning, the 13th, I visited the Sunday School in their church, read with the Bible class, and prayed for them at the close, then announced preaching in the school room. The house could not hold near all the people. After preaching twice, we went to the water, and I baptized Bro. Ross' son Grant; then back to the village and preached again at night to an immense crowd. What a change since my first arrival!

That night, which was the seventh effort in the place, the Baptist Pastor was present, and seemed to enjoy my talk on the kingdom, and at the close prayed feelingly for the "dear brother," and the simple truths he had delivered to them. After the benediction many came to give me a farewell hand, while many an eye was dim with tears of sadness at the thought of parting. O how I love that dear people who were such strangers three days before!

At 10 P. M. I took train for the long expected debate in Delta Co. Arrived in Honey Grove in due time, and met for the first time Bro. E. W. Alderson, of Clarksville, my opponent in debate. The 15th we rode together in a buggy fourteen miles to Ben Franklin, where on the 16th of Sept. he opened the ten day's debate by affirming that "The human soul, or spirit, is a substantial entity, and in conscious being survives the stroke of death, and will exist forever."

We spent four days on the first question. I repeatedly affirmed that the Hebrew word Nephesh is translated soul and life. That it is applied alike to men and animals, and twice applied to dead bodies. That it is always used in reference to this mortal life, and never has the Hebrew adjective Olam in connection with it, signifying that it is deathless or immortal. I declared also that the Hebrew word chai is translated life, but never soul, and that the adjective Olam (everlasting) is used with it, signifying that it is everlasting. That it is never applied to animals at all, and only to man to express the future eternal life of the righteous. Further, I affirmed that the word Psukie in the New Testament is the equivalent of Nephesh in the Hebrew, and is likewise applied to men, animals, and the beasts of the sea, and is translated soul and life, but that it never has the Greek adjective Aionios (everlasting) in connection with it. That the Greek word Zoe is the equivalent of chai in the Hebrew, and is likewise translated life, but never soul, and is never applied to animals at all, and only applied to man to express the future life of the righteous, and has the adjective Aionios (everlasting) connected with it.

After repeating these assertions in several speeches without a reply from him, I took the position that he was too much of a scholar to be ignorant of this, and too much of a Christian gentleman to deny it, and I thought he ought to have backbone enough to confess it, and give up the question. His only reply came at last, which was in substance as follows: "Gentlemen moderators, he has those Hebrew and Greek words by heart, till his tongue runs like a patent music box, wound up and turned loose with a spring. You can't stop it till it runs down." Of course all solid thinkers could see he could not meet it. I replied that my tongue ran on the track of God's truth, and that was the reason he could not stop it. I justly claimed a decisive victory for truth right on this point, for it is the pivot upon which hinges all difference between "my doxy" and "your doxy."

The fifth day we discussed the question of the kingdom of Christ. I affirmed that it is in the future. The question finally ended up on the pronoun "He" in 1 Cor. 15: 25. "He must reign," etc. My brother said the "he" referred to Christ now reigning as King, while I contended that it referred to the Father who must reign till he subdues all enemies unto Christ. Any unprejudiced grammarian can, by parsing a verse, easily see who is right, and to such I am willing to submit it.

The next two days he affirmed: "The Scriptures teach the baptism of infants." We sifted circumcision, and almost the Bible that had a "baby" in it, and every household where one might reasonably guess there was a baby. And utterly failing (at least to my satisfaction) he said near the close of the argument, "I admit the Bible does not say baptize babies, but I infer it means it." I was then ready to close the question and allow him to "infer" what he wished to. I was only contending for a "thus saith the Lord," which he acknowledged he could not find. I leave the reader to decide for himself as to victory. The last two days I affirmed that "a burial in water is gospel baptism."

On this question he had the advantage of me in point of experience, for he had discussed it before, and is also the author of a book on "The Action of Baptism," which is the ablest work I have seen on his side of the question. He was also my superior in the knowledge of Hebrew and Greek. I had only one advantage, and that was, I was on the side of truth. I asked the following questions the second time before he replied, viz: 1st. Have you ever seen in any version of the Scriptures the Greek word raino to sprinkle, or cheo to pour, used to denote baptism as a church ordinance? He said he had not. 2d. Have you ever seen in any version of the Scriptures the Greek word bapto or baptidzo, translated sprinkle or pour when used to denote baptism as a Church ordinance? He answered "No." Neither has he ever seen in any version the word translated immerse. In reply I mentioned the Emphatic Diaglott and the American Baptist Union Versions. He said they were not authorized versions, and not accepted by scholars. I proved by many authors, including even John Wesley himself, that the ancient mode was immersion.

The next morning, after the debate, I immersed a lady, and if he sprinkled any one I did not hear of it. He can think as he pleases. The people will think for themselves. It is due my dear Bro. Alderson to say that of all the thirty days I have spent in debate, I have not met a more pleasant man. During the ten days not a harsh or unchristian word was used by either of us. While we became "terribly in earnest" sometimes we both keep sweet tempers. Only one thing hurt me, and that was, after fighting me ten days on theory, I asked if he would be willing to unite with me in a meeting to save the perishing? He replied that my views of the soul of man made such a wide breach between us that he could not preach with me, but he would ever meet me as a friend, and regard me as a gentleman. O I thank God for a religion that soars above sectarian walls, and doctrinal differences. Next after the debate I preached in the city of Paris, in the Christian Church to a house well filled with attentive listeners.

Thus ended ten weeks of labor in Texas, during which I preached ninety sermons, and God blessed them to the conversion of forty-five, besides cheering the hearts of many discouraged church members. I baptized thirty-six and debated ten days of the time. I then came home and suffered five weeks with risings. Nov. 5th I left home for Georgia, where God has wonderfully blessed. Yesterday I set foot on South Carolina soil for the first time in my life. Bro. J. S. Du Bose, of Carterville, is with me. Meetings will begin to-night. Pray for us. JOHN A. CARGILE.

Denny's Cross Roads, S. C., Dec. 12.

DEDICATION.

Agreeable to the notice given in the Crisis, the Advent Chapel, at Bridgton, Maine, was dedicated to the worship of the Lord Sunday, Nov. 22d. Although it was stormy, a goodly number came out to the morning meeting. Prayer and conference meeting at nine. At half past ten prayer for the divine blessing by Bro. A. W. Taylor, followed by a stirring sermon by Bro. E. P. Woodward, from Zech. 4: 6.

At one o'clock P. M. the chapel was filled with an attentive congregation. Singing, reading of Scripture, followed by prayer by Bro. R. F. Emerson. Dedication sermon by Bro. Taylor, from Isa. 127: 1, was an instructive discourse, showing the only way a church can be successful in its work. Dedicatory prayer by Bro. E. P. Woodward.

At the beginning of the services a poem, written for the occasion by Bro. J. Albert Libby, of Castleton, Vt., was read by Bro. Emerson. It contained the history of the rise of the church. Bro. Libby was one of the first to bring to this place the good news of our soon coming King. Accompanied by Bros. I. C. Wellcome and E. M. Haggett, he came here in the fall of 1869 with a tent, and proclaiming the speedy return of the Master and kindred truths, planted the seed which, having been watered by the tears, prayers, and labors, of these and others of God's faithful servants, has sprung up and brought forth fruit to the honor and glory of God. In the evening Bro. Emerson preached to the church an excellent sermon from Luke 24: 49.

The meetings were continued every evening during the following week, and over Sunday, the 29th. Bro. Emerson remained and dispensed to us the word of life. These meetings were good. The church was strengthened, and seed sown, the fruit of which we trust will be found in the Kingdom. Pray for the little flock at Bridgton, that we may be overcomers, and greet you all on the fadeless shore.

MRS. GEO. E. HAM, Church Secretary.

DEDICATION POEM.

The following poem, read by Eld. R. F. Emerson, of East Rochester, N. H., was written expressly for the occasion by Eld. J. Albert Libby, of Castleton, Vt., a prominent clergyman of that denomination, whose voice has been heard from time to time in the pulpits of this place and vicinity.

It was years ago where a street now is laid,
And homes for the villagers too are made,
That a tent was pitched, and with curious eyes
The people loitered around it like spies.
But a few came in, and the songs they heard
Made them eager to linger and hear the Word,
So they went away, and in kindness said,
"It was out of the Bible the preacher read,
And he made so plain what he undertook,
Giving us chapter and verse in the Book,
That we see no harm in our going there—
And they opened the service, too, with prayer."
Then they came and went, as the seed was sown,
And some of it into their hearts was thrown.

And, after awhile, in a spacious hall,
Two preachers again did the people call,
And they told the story of grace anew—
Some days to many, and some to a few;
But not in vain did they stand and say
"The Saviour your burdens can take away."
And not in vain did they say to men
"Ye are wholly mortal, and dead in sin;
But the Saviour a victor has passed the strife,
To give those that serve him eternal life."
Not in vain did they preach Christ coming again
O'er the earth, and his people forever to reign.

But the hearers were scattered, and waited once more
Till God sent his preachers with words as before.
Now began to be seen of all labor the fruit,
And the Word newly spoken began to take root.
Souls hastened to Jesus, who gladly received—
And many in Bridgton this gospel believed.
Now, when they believed, and were dead unto sin,
They said, find a graveyard to bury us in;
So we went to the Lake, as in Enon of old,
They sought for much water the saints to infold;
And the dear ones were buried, as St. Paul doth talk—
To be raised in a newness of life, then to walk—
The only baptism that leads to perfection,
True figure of Christ's and the saints' resurrection.
A Church of God's planting this people has been,
Though not without trials, and fightings with sin.

See, what hath God wrought by the ones who were weak,
Who his favor have gained when his help they did seek—
A house for his chosen, a place for his name,
Where his servants may fully his gospel proclaim;
And here shall the story be told with new zeal,
That sinners the force of the message may feel.
This is your Bethel, to which you will come,
To tell of the joys of the bright kingdom home;
Here ye may bring the dear ones of your heart,
Over their caskets a season to part;
But here shall be told of the glad resurrection,
When the loved shall unite with undying affection,
Face unto face, and with eye meeting eye,
Safely at home in the sweet by-and-by.

Here ye will meet when the table is spread,
That tells of our Jesus once bleeding and dead,
Dead now no longer, but living above,
Pleading for men with the power of his love,—
Coming again! and this shall be spoken
By those who may mark every unfolding token.
Coming in glory as King of the world,
When all evil-doers to death must be hurled;
Earth then all-glorious his empire shall be.
Here ye may sing of that Grand Jubilee!

Castleton, Vt., Nov., 1885.

THE WORK IN GEORGIA.

Bro. Stockman:—Last month I visited the State of Georgia, and began to preach the coming of our King in the little town Brunswick, between four and five hundred miles from my home, an enterprising little city by the sea. It has about five or six thousand inhabitants, with good government, and bright prospects of removing the liquor from the city. The prohibitionists are working hard to elect their city officials. God bless them! I found several families there from the north, who with others kindly entertained me, especially Mr. D. F. Sleeper and wife, most excellent people, and I believe fear God. They have never joined any church on account of inconsistencies of the orthodox, but now I hope they have embraced the truth, and will go to the baptismal grave, and live with us in the new earth. I also met a family there from the north by the name of Durkee, who are not members of the church. The father very kindly sent me an invitation to visit his house. Mr. Durkee has a son about nineteen years old, the most intelligent youth I ever met. He has not walked a step for about nine years. He cannot move hand or head. He has had rheumatism from infancy. His dear mother died of the same complaint, and left him handcuffed and fettered (as I told him) incarcerated by disease, with no hope of escape from the iron gates until Christ shall come and tear the bars away. I preached the first Sunday morning and evening in the Baptist Church to large and attentive congregations, and God blessed the truth. We continued meetings during the week from house to house, with increasing and crowded congregations. Men and women of different denominations rejoiced in the truth. At the last meeting, in the midst of a crowded house of weeping and rejoicing Christians and friends, Bro. H. V. Skipper was solemnly ordained as a minister by imposition of my hands, assisted by that faithful and tried soldier of Christ, Bro. J. T. Potter. Bro. Skipper is a young man, about thirty-two years old, with most excellent character, and notable piety and gift of speech. When I arrived in Brunswick I found him a member of the Baptist Church, superintendent of the Baptist Sunday School, and president of the Y. M. Christian Association. When I left Brunswick he was an Advent preacher, proclaiming the coming of the Lord. Pray for him, and help him all who can. He is a poor man, and needs encouragement. May God incline the rich to send him aid. We need missionaries at home, and I believe he will do a good work in Georgia.

Bro. Skipper has an excellent brother, W. R. Skipper, a most humble and sacrificing Christian. This Brother, with Bro. J. T. Potter, is the nucleus of this blessed work in Brunswick. A church is organized there, with Bro. H. V. Skipper as pastor, and several candidates are to be baptized next Sunday. God has sent into their membership a dear old brother named Ward, an Englishman, the father of an eminent Baptist preacher in Georgia. All who know Bro. Ward love him, and consider him a man of remarkable patience and piety, being an Advent for many years. He has joined no church since he left the Baptist Church in England, but now his heart rejoices, and his tongue is at liberty. Thank God for the day I visited Georgia. Pray for me. Your Brother looking for the Lord. JOSEPH P. KING.

CORRESPONDENCE.

FROM A. J. STAEGE.

Dear Editor:—About twelve years ago, through the mercy of God, we were led into the truth concerning the nature of man, and the kingdom of God being nigh at hand, by a book entitled "Good Tidings," put in our hand by Bro. H. Pratt, of Butte des Morts. This relieved us of great distress of mind, not being able to harmonize the character of the merciful Creator (whose love could be seen in so many ways) with the endless torture of the wicked. Praise God for the light! My life has been like a new one since I now know God's Word instead of tradition. We have had some opposition, yet have ever felt a brotherly union with all who love our Lord Jesus Christ, and have enough of Christ's Spirit to discern and fellowship his followers, though not belonging to their church.

It is nearly fifteen years since I was led to humble myself under God's mighty hand. We first united with the F. W. Baptist Church, but we did not feel at home there long, so withdrew, and did not unite with any church, but continued to look to Jesus.

About three years ago Eld. Geo. W. Turner came here, being State evangelist, and held meetings, baptized nine, and organized and united eleven in church covenant, myself and wife being of the number. We do not now feel bound by human creeds, but to obey the Lord. We still continue united, have regular meetings, and hope for everlasting salvation when Jesus comes to make "all things new." We are all poor, shut up back in the woods, and cannot attend camp or other meetings; but we do not feel like complaining, for we are shut away from some of the snares of a sinful world, yet our greatest dangers may not be from without, but from within. It is written that we are "kept by the power of God through faith."

FROM B. W. DAVIS.

Bro. Stockman:—As I sit down to the perusal of our family paper, the Crisis, I think of a widespread feast, where there is an abundance, and variety of everything that heart could wish or flesh desire, where all may satisfy their various appetites. I find in it that variety of spiritual food necessary for the growth and comfort of the spiritual man to the stature of a perfect man in Christ Jesus. I go through with all its departments—the expository, the prophetical, the practical, the temperance, and the editorial, but none with more interest than the correspondence.

I thought if I enjoyed to hear from others so much, perhaps there were some of the brethren and sisters, especially in Northern New Hampshire, that would like to know why the Half Way House," where some of them have found a home, humble though it was, as they have been passing back and forth between New Hampshire and Vermont and Canada, has been vacant so long. About one year ago it seemed to be duty, and as I thought the leading of the Spirit, that I should come this way; and although the way has not all been sunshine, yet I can truly say the Lord is good, and my faith was never stronger, or my trust firmer in Him than now. I have found with the apostle "That the trying of our faith is much more precious than that of gold that perisheth, though it be tried with fire." I never have had such a severe trial of faith as the past year, but I trust it has yielded the peaceable fruits of righteousness, to us who have been exercised thereby.

I am so glad that Jesus has died to redeem us from that dark stream of death, into which the whole human race had fallen, and where we should ever have remained, if Jesus had not undertaken to rescue us, and that he is coming so soon to consummate our hope, and deliver his people from the cruel hand of the enemy. I can say with the Psalmist, "O, magnify the Lord with me, and let us exalt his name together." I want to exalt the name of Jesus he has done so much for me.

FROM MOLLIE GROVE.

Bro. Stockman:—I was thinking to-day of the promise in Isa. 55: 11.—"So shall my word be that goeth out of my mouth: it shall not return unto me void; but shall accomplish that which I please, and shall prosper in the thing whereunto I sent it," and how it has been fulfilled in this place. About eleven years ago Elder J. T. Ongley came to this place to hold a tent meeting. Much prejudice prevailed, and my mother, who was a widow, and a member of the Baptist church, was the only person who would grant him a place on which to set his tent. Her brethren in the church remonstrated with her, as they did not want the Advents to gain a foothold here. She told them there was no danger of getting too many Christians in the place. Among those who came out and took a stand for the truth were two women, both heads of families. They had much opposition to contend with, and in the course of five or six years one united with the Baptist church, the other (Sister Mary Gould) loved the truth better than popularity, and was willing to stand firm for it, which she did for ten long years, always praying the Lord to send some one to wake up the people, and warn them of a coming judgment. This he did, in the person of dear Sister L. M. Stoddard, who came from Oil City and preached in a hall, as neither the Baptist or Methodist churches would open their doors to an Advent preacher. As Mrs. Gould was my husband's sister, we went first to hear out of respect to her, and some curiosity too. We had not listened long until we were aware we were hearing different preaching from any we had ever heard before, and we commenced reading our Bible to see if these things were true. Reading brought believing, and believing brought conviction; and my husband was brought to see there was a glorious reality in religion, and he with myself were among the first five who were baptized when Bro. M. R. Miles came here. I bless the day that Sister Stoddard ever turned her face toward the Oil regions with her wonderful sweet story of Israel's coming King.

As the interest increased we had a chapel built, and Bro. Miles has several times paid us a flying visit from his busy cares, always baptizing some, and adding to our church, until we now have a membership of eighteen, and several professors of the faith who have not united. We also have the privilege of belonging to the North Western Pennsylvania Advent Christian Conference, of which Mrs. Stoddard is President, and to whose untiring energies we owe so much for making it a success. She has the hearty support of all God's people in the Conference bounds. It is wonderful how the truth has spread in this community. Calls are beginning to come in from other places for more preaching.

Bro. Miles has just closed a meeting at Wallaceville, a small town near here, and the interest he has awakened there is surprising. He has set the whole town to searching their Bibles. One prominent man said the few sermons he had preached there had done more good than all the other preaching they had had for forty years. Another old gentleman said he had gone to church forty years to hear the gospel preached, and the first gospel sermon he ever heard was preached by Elder Miles. Another man went one night in fulfillment of a promise to a neighbor who had requested him to go. He afterward acknowledged that he was as near being an infidel before he went as one could be, but that night he heard the Bible harmonized so well, he saw there was a beauty in it instead of contradictions. One woman, who was a member of the Methodist church, found she had not been baptized, and went to her minister requesting him to immerse her; but he refused, telling her that as she had been sprinkled that was enough. She disagreed with him, and soon after she and her husband were buried by Elder Miles in the likeness of Christ's death, and raised to walk in newness of life, rejoicing that they had heard and obeyed.

The last night of the meeting one intelligent young man arose and said that a short time before he was what the world called an infidel, but now he had seen new light, and something to live for. Bro. C. W. Stevens, of Oil City, has several times come to us and preached, which have always been seasons of refreshment to the church. Our Lord has verified his promise in this place: "My word shall not return unto me void." Your sister in the blessed hope.

FROM J. W. YOUNG.

Bro. Stockman:—Through the goodness of God I am spared to the present time, with health to read and enjoy the Crisis, and no part more than the testimonies and experiences of brethren and sisters scattered all over the world; and this led me to believe some one would like to hear from me. In all my sickness and suffering, trials and afflictions, I am still rejoicing in not only a crucified and risen Saviour, but in his coming and kingdom. May the dear Lord prepare us all for that glorious day, is the prayer of your humble servant.

The only effectual cure of unbelief is to act. Every step towards Christ kills a doubt; every thought, word and deed for him carries you away from discouragement.

IN THE ENEMY'S LAND.

BY V. F. HUNT.

I am reminded of the fact that we are still in the land of shadow, in the valley of affliction, where the substantial form of death is met, and where we realize its bitterness. We cannot say—as did one of old—"surely the bitterness of death is passed," for we see on all sides his work, which makes so bitter the cup of life. Bro. W. C. Randle has passed from life's work to rest a little ere he shall go into the kingdom of God to join the vast hosts of deathless ones.

How many old soldiers of the cross will awake in life's morning and wipe away the dust of the clods of the valley, and shout with immortal lungs the victory! the victory! "Oh death, where is thy sting? Oh grave, where is thy victory?" These good old men of God have not yet put on the victor's crown. They are waiting for the King to come in his beauty and power, and say the word that will finish time's great journal, and unlock the treasure house of death, and search out those worthy of immortality and eternal life, and usher them into the presence of the great King, that he may have somewhat to say to them—(Matt. 25: 21.)

How grand it is to think of men and women who in their young days gave themselves to God, and whom in turn God will honor with glorious resurrection to life eternal when Jesus comes.

Reader while the Book of Life is yours to write in, will you not record a life through the blood of the Lamb that will entitle you to a right to the tree of life and a seat in the throne of the Son of David, being the Son of God."

OBITUARIES.

BROWN. In Providence, R. I., Dec. 6th, 1885, of diptheretic croup, Walter A., only child of Thomas A. and Rosamond A. Brown, aged ten years, ten months and fourteen days.

Young Walter was really a bright and very promising child. He was quite a regular attendant upon my preaching, and used frequently to write down the text and things said in the sermon, thus manifesting his interest in religious things. Especially was this interest shown in his last hours. On being told that the doctor said he could not get well, "little Wallie" trustfully turned to the Lord in prayer, asking forgiveness, and left behind the comforting assurance to his parents that "it is all right." May the consolations of divine grace and of the "blessed hope" comfort and cheer the lonely parents, and all, in their bereavement, until the shadows flee away, and loved ones are reunited. Words chosen from Jer. 31: 16, 17. The writer was kindly assisted by the Rev. Mr. Osler. NORMAN P. COOK.

RANDLE. In Santa Anna, Los Angeles Co., California, Nov. 21st, 1885, the enemy, who has triumphed so many long years, came upon our esteemed brother, William Coleman Randle, and we laid him to rest with Job, to wait till God shall call the dust sleepers to awake and put on their beautiful robes of endless life. Bro. W. C. Randle was born in Green County, Georgia, in A. D. 1812. He united with the Missionary Baptist Church in 1837, and remained a member of that church until the summer of 1881, when he heard the proclamation of the Advent faith by Bro. Field and the writer while holding a tent meeting in San Bernardino, Cal. He heard and accepted the word of truth, and united with the Advent Church of Tustin City, Cal., and remained a faithful and devoted member till life's work was finished. He was strong in his trust in God, and said he hoped to live till Jesus should come, but if he died he knew Christ would raise him up. His was a fixed purpose in serving God. He leaves a wife, who is in the faith, and looks forward to the time when they may again greet each other. Thus passed away one of God's men, full of years, being almost seventy-three years old. Funeral services by Bro. Field. V. F. HUNT.

STEVENS. In Los Angeles County, California, near Tustin, Mrs. Ann R. Stevens, aged fifty-one years.

She was born in Ohio. I cannot give the exact date of her death, but it was in the last week of November, 1885. She with her husband had come to make a brief visit to their children. The first night after her arrival she was paralyzed, and remained so till her death. Funeral services in the Advent Church. Words were spoken by the writer from the words of Christ—"I am the resurrection and the life." Death is an enemy, but if we are in Christ we shall obtain eternal victory in the end. V. F. HUNT.

JESSEMAN. At Sugar Hill., N. H., Nov. 19th, 1885, of cancer, Harvey Jesseman, aged forty-three years.

It can be truthfully said that a Christian has fallen, a helper in the church, well spoken of without, a kind father, a true brother, a noble husband, a man who was a true friend to his pastor. He was possessed of divine benevolence, a great lover of the truths of the Bible. He has been running down for six years. During the last few months he has been a great sufferer, but the grace of God has been sufficient. He died triumphant in the faith. Calmly he came to the hour, under the comforting power of the Holy Spirit, asking those who stood by him to sing. Finally, when the last forces of life were passing away, he closed his own eyes, and fell asleep. Peace be to his dust until the Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a command, and the voice of the archangel and the trump of God shall awaken all the sleeping saints. Hasten the glad hour, O Lord! Words of comfort were spoken by the writer, from Rev. 14: 11, "Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord," assisted by Eld. Geo. Bowles, Eld. S. S. Nickerson, Pastor of Baptist Church, Eld. C. W. Dockham, Pastor of A. C. Church at Franconia, N. H., and Eld. D. Eastman. H. H. TUCKER.

NICOL. In Key West, Coffey County, Kansas, Nov. 4th, 1885, Freddie B. Nicol, only child of Bro. George and Sister Nannie Nicol, aged six years and twelve days.

His disease was malarial fever and tonsilitis. He was sick only three days. This dear child was intelligent beyond his years. He delighted to talk about Jesus and his coming again. He took great pleasure in the prayer circle. His last words to his brother were: "I think we better have a prayer meeting." This dear brother and sister are childless now, but "He who setteth the solitary in families" will be their comfort to the end, and then with the loved and beautiful one "they shall be comforted." Words of comfort by H. H. Klock from 1 Thess. 4: 13. D. WEBSTER.

HOPKINS. In Salem, Mass., Nov. 17th, 1885, Willard G., son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph T. Hopkins, aged four years and twenty-six days.

This lovely child, after a short illness, has gone the way of all flesh. The sweet, winning ways of the little one endeared him to every member of the household, and the hearts of the parents are made sad by this bereavement. Their knowledge of the glorious plan of redemption, supplemented by the giving of their lives to the service of the Master, will bring to them a blessed assurance of eventually clasping the loved child to their arms again when Jesus the Life-giver comes. Services by the writer. JOHN F. CLOTHEY.

STONE. In Westboro, Mass., Nov. 21st, 1885, Louie Belle, child of John and Susie J. Stone, aged seventeen months and twenty-one days.

God help us as we lay thee down,
Sweet darling Louie Belle,
May angels guard thy lowly bed,—
'Tis hard to say 'tis well.
O come, Lord Jesus, quickly come,
And raise our little sleeping one;
Restore to life, in health to bloom,
Our lovely one now in the tomb.

HISTORY OF THE SECOND ADVENT CHURCH IN PORTLAND, ME.

An Address delivered in Union Hall, July 4, 1886, by W. H. Mitchell.

(Concluded.)

IV.

We come next to glance for a moment at the "ministry" of this church. During its history of near half a century, more than one hundred professed ministers of the gospel have ministered to the spiritual wants of this church. It may be interesting to the younger members for me to give you a list of their names. We may not have gathered all, but nearly all. The following is the list: William Miller, Josiah Litch, Charles Fitch, J. V. Himes, Levi Stockman, Thomas Barry, Joseph Turner, James White, Hermon Stinson, Daniel Churchill, L. Boutelle, I. R. Gates, Apolos Hale, Lemuel Osler, O. R. Fassett, S. S. Brewer, I. E. Jones, Calvin French, Ezra Crowell, John Couch, Edwin Burnham, Thomas Smith, S. G. Mathewson, Israel Damman, Albion Ross, D. R. Mansfield, M. S. Mansfield, Timothy Cole, Henry Plummer, Henry Pratt, Walter Pratt, I. C. Wellcome, P. B. Morgan, H. L. Hastings, Wm. Ingham, James Hemenway, Miles Grant, J. S. White, Hiram Munger, T. M. Preble, Sylvester Bliss, John Howell, Isaac Adrian, F. H. Berrick, Geo. Burnham, Wesley Burnham, H. K. Flagg, Jacob Weston, Rufus Wendell, J. M. Tozier, J. W. White, C. S. Shattuck, D. M. Leavitt, W. S. Campbell, L. T. Cunningham, Cyrus Cunningham, R. R. York, S. K. Partridge, Jesse Partridge, C. Goud, Jared Whitman, A. W. Taylor and wife, N. G. Reed, H. Reed, L. L. Howard, Jesse Gay, B. S. Emery, E. M. Haggitt, Geo. W. Brown, G. W. Brown, F. A. Baker, J. Albert Libby, Peter Libby, Uriah Ladd, Ephraim Hodges, R. F. Emerson, H. F. Carpenter, Wm. A. Burch, H. S. Mitchell, A. A. Phelps, C. A. Phelps, Charles Goodrich, J. Hill, E. Owen, N. Billings, John Billings, A. W. Sibley, E. S. Moulton, E. M. Andrews, Wm. Kellaway, J. Ridley, A. C. Palmer, I. I. Leslie, L. C. McKinstry, Mrs. L. C. McKinstry, Geo. R. Kramer, Geo. W. Sederquist, E. A. Stockman, F. Burr, Geo. Champlin, F. H. Burbank, T. W. Piper, F. L. Piper, C. R. Crossett, C. Pike, F. W. Blackmer, A. A. Robinson, Charles Brown, H. M. Bryant, E. McCulloch, J. W. Daniels, C. Scruton, Silas Henn, L. A. Smith, J. G. Smith, E. P. Woodward, O. H. Wallace, H. Mains, E. S. Jennings, H. Clark, A. M. Tripp, Annie Smith, Warren Tenney, H. Howard, Edwin Wells, E. H. Long, W. H. Mitchell.

Thus has this church been ministered unto both by old and young. Men of small ability and men of large ability; men of spirituality, and men who have had more of theology than divinity. And while this people have delighted, during their entire history, to listen to men who were able to "rightly divide the word" and "bring out things new and old," yet they have not despised the "day of small things," but have been ready to open their doors to those just entering the ministry, and give them a word of encouragement in the good work in which they were engaged.

Few have been the pastorates of this church, and those of short continuance. Brn. L. S. Stockman, I. R. Gates, L. Osler, O. R. Fassett, N. Hervey, P. B. Morgan, R. R. York, E. A. Stockman and F. Burr are all I think who have acted as pastors. Bro. Burr's stay was, no doubt, the longest, which was three years. Many of these ministers have gone to the grave to rest till the trump of God shall awaken them from their slumber. Some have become enfeebled by age and infirmity, so that they preach but little. Others have deserted the ranks, while a goodly number are holding fast to the faith, and are still heralding the glorious message of speedy redemption.

V.

The progress this church has made has been slow compared with what it should have been. A great many things have hindered its growth. There have been difficulties to overcome from without and from within. For a long time a prejudice existed in the public mind against them. They were looked upon as a body of fanatics—a people not worthy the respect of the community. To attend such meetings required a great amount of moral courage on the part of those attending, on account of the stigma they would have to bear.

I recollect the experience of a young man in his first effort to attend the meetings of Adventists, which will illustrate this point. He had heard of this people, and his curiosity was awakened to visit their place of worship and hear them for himself. Accordingly one Sabbath morning he wended his way toward the place where they gathered for devotion, until he reached a point from which to proceed further he knew he should be suspected. Here he halted and watched his passing friends till he knew no one was near who would know him, and then fled with all possible haste and entered the place of devotion.

Now this fear of reproach kept many away, and there are, no doubt, to this very day, persons scattered through this city, among other religious bodies, who believe the doctrine advocated by this people, and who would make this church their own religious home but for the stigma they would have to bear.

It is very plain to be seen that, with this prejudice in the minds of the people, so many could not be reached as there might have been had it been otherwise. No doubt, in their early history there were some things among them wild and extravagant, well calculated to create prejudice. It would be strange, with all their early enthusiasm, and the excitement of expecting the end of the world in a few months, if there were not some extravagances among them.

Only a short period of time passed away from the opening of their meeting at Beethoven Hall, ere they were thrown into very severe trials, when terrible confusion prevailed among them. When I reflect upon it, I think of the confounding of language at the erection of the tower of Babel.

The time to which they so strongly looked for their Lord to come passed, and they were sadly disappointed, for to them the appointed time for Jesus to come was a reality. Then came from the leaders the explanation, or the reasons why Jesus did not come at the appointed time, and the wildest notions prevailed. Some claimed their time was right, and the door of mercy was closed to sinners; others, that it was not quite shut, but stood a little ajar. They came with special message after message. One woman even claimed that she had had direct revelations from God, and so marvellous were her visions that many were brought under her direct influence. Thus was this little flock so scattered and divided that in a short time their meetings at their Hall were given up.

Now when I consider the fiery ordeal through which they have passed, the only wonder is that they have an existence to-day; and so we exclaim with David, the sweet singer of Israel, "Unless the Lord had been my help, my soul had almost dwelt in silence." Had not God been with them they could not have continued till the present time.

Another hinderance to their growth was the different views they held in regard to church government. Some were opposed to any regular organization, while others maintained it was very essential to their prosperity that they be regularly organized. Thus was it difficult for them to unite their interests in one, so as to labor together harmoniously. Each believed his own ideas of church polity were the best, and sought by every possible means to have them prevail. Effort after effort was made for a long time to effect a permanent organization, but all of no avail. Distraction and confusion reigned until the people came together with the determination to lay aside all selfish motives, to accord to each the right to think for himself, and to love one another with "pure hearts fervently."

Another serious difficulty, and one which exists to the present day, is the want of a good, convenient place of worship. This embarrassment this people have labored under ever since they had an existence, and no doubt money enough has been expended for rent to have purchased them a good house of worship. We hope an effort may yet be put forth to secure to themselves a place which they may call their own, so that they may worship God under their own vine and fig-tree.

These, and many other difficulties too numerous to mention in this short history, this church has struggled hard to overcome and maintain their identity. They could not bear the idea of abandoning a cause so dear to their heart, and though at times meetings were suspended for months, they would again be renewed, and for the last thirty years regular meetings have been maintained; first, on Congress Street, and now on Free Street, and preaching every Sabbath by different ministers when they have no pastor. For a time two meetings of this body were supported, one on Congress Street, and the other where the body now meet, on Free Street, until, several years ago, when it was deemed advisable that the two bodies unite in one.

From time to time there have been meetings opened by people of this faith in different parts of the city, but not having sufficient means to support them, they have been suspended, so that only one regular meeting of this body is now maintained in the city. We would, however, that they might become so enlarged that several meetings might be necessary in different parts of the city to accommodate the public. This people are quite liberal in their finance, caring well for those who labor with them in word and doctrine, and seeing that they depart from them with something more than a "God bless you." The poor also among them are kindly remembered, and at every communion service, which occurs once a month, a collection is taken, that there may be a fund on hand to supply the needs of those who may be destitute in their midst.

I notice also from time to time very liberal donations from this church for missionary purposes, Bible Society, etc., etc. They are always ready to receive and care for those who are sent among them to minister the word of the Lord, and many a weary pilgrim has found sweet rest within their quiet homes. They have had revivals of religion among them from time to time, so that vacant places, caused by death and removal to other towns and cities, have been filled by those who have been converted from the ranks of satan. And, every thing considered, we think this church has grown numerically, spiritually and intellectually; thus heeding the admonition of the Apostle Peter, who admonished the church to "beware lest ye also, being led away with the error of the wicked, fall from your own steadfastness; but grow in grace, and in the knowledge of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ." We think we can safely say their condition the present year is more favorable than at any period during their entire history. They have a church membership of one hundred and eighteen, all acting in apparent harmony, each striving to build up the cause of Christ and save the perishing. We earnestly pray God that their love toward each other may abound more and more.

They have a very interesting Sabbath School numbering eighty-eight, well conducted and supervised. The school is composed both of young children and adults, who seem interested to learn what is recorded in the "Blessed Book." Many of these young persons have already begun to practice what they have learned from the blessed Bible, and are now leading pious and devoted lives. May God bless this school, and make it a means of bringing many children to the knowledge of the truth.

Five religious meetings are held weekly by this people. Two preaching services each Sabbath, forenoon and afternoon, and a prayer and conference meeting in the evening. On Tuesday evening they hold their general prayer meeting, led most usually by one of the leading members of the church. On Friday evening a Young People's Meeting is held for the especial benefit of the young, in which many young persons have become interested. At these meetings some quite young have given their hearts to God. Now, though they have no gorgeous temple in which to worship the God of hosts—nothing but a plain and commodious hall, they have no heavy church debts to burden and annoy them. In this humble hall the poor may find a hearty welcome, and the stranger feel at home. They are rigidly scrupulous about the means employed to raise funds for the support of their meeting; hence they have no church fairs or games of chance to gather in the "needful." By voluntary contributions their funds are raised, and by the blessing of God their bills are always met.

The present year has been one of much interest to this people thus far. Several have been converted, quite a number baptized, and fifteen received into the church. Others are ready to go forward in baptism, and to unite with them as soon as a favorable opportunity presents itself.

It is interesting to be in their social meetings, and hear the old man of more than fourscore years, down to the youth of twelve, testify to the power of saving grace in redeeming them from their sins.

In conclusion, let me say, this people have their place in the religious world, and their specific work to do, and if they faithfully discharge the duties assigned them, our Lord will say unto them when he shall come to reckon with his servants, "well done." Therefore they should not be despised nor lightly esteemed; but if set at naught, they must not "think it strange concerning the fiery trial which is to try them," as though some strange thing happened unto them, but rejoice that they are accounted worthy to suffer shame for Jesus' sake knowing if they "suffer with him," they will also "reign with him."

And now may the God of all grace, who chose Israel and exalted the people, when they dwelt as strangers in the land of Egypt, and who called this people unto a holy calling, and hath suffered their manners for a longer period than he suffered the manners of Israel, keep them in peace and holiness, making them examples of uprightness and purity among whom they may live, and at last present them faultless before His throne with exceeding joy at the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ, is my prayer. Amen.

THE SCRIPTURE DOCTRINE OF THE ATONEMENT.

BY SILAS HENN.

(Fifth Paper.)

There is ascribed to the gods of the heathen anger that was without a cause; they were revengeful and cruel, and hence they had to be propitiated; but there is no such idea attached to the word as used in the New Testament. The Apostle John declares that Christ is "the propitiation for our sins"; and he is the propitiation, not because there is vindictiveness in God, and an unwillingness to pardon the offender, but because the honor of the divine law required that sin should be punished, or an atonement for it be made. The second death-punishment with which God has threatened sin, is designed as a solemn warning to men against its commission; and if God does not inflict the penalty on transgressors, the greatest amount of good both to men and angels requires that some adequate expedient should be adopted for the upholding in its legal power and influence of the divine government.

"The death of Christ," says R. W. Dale, "was a propitiation for the sins of men because it was a revelation of the righteousness of God on the ground of which he can remit the penalties of sin; because it was an act of submission to the justice of those penalties on behalf of mankind, an act in which our own submission was really and virtually included; and because it secured the destruction of sin in all who through faith are restored to union with Christ. It is, therefore, the supreme and irresistible argument by which we can now sustain our appeal to God's infinite mercy to grant us forgiveness of sin and deliverance from the wrath to come."

1 Cor. 15: 3,—"I delivered unto you first of all that which also I received, how that Christ died for our sins according to the Scriptures." Now the gospel Paul taught be received; it was not anything of his own devising; and he received it, he tells us in his epistle to the Galatians, not from man, nor was he taught it, but it came to him through revelation of Jesus Christ. And the gospel thus received, he first taught to others. He made it prominent in his teachings; it was mixed up more or less in all his discourses; it seemed to be ever uppermost in his thoughts. And that gospel, or good news, was that "Christ died for our sins." His death was a proper atonement for the transgressions of the race.

Gal. 3: 13,—"Christ redeemed us from the curse of the law, having become a curse for us." On this passage we observe: 1. Jesus Christ is said to have become a curse for us, because he was crucified. This is evinced beyond doubt by the words which follow the passage. "For it is written," the apostle adds, "Cursed is every one that hangeth on a tree." 2. The object for which Christ became a curse for us was, that he might make atonement for the world's sin, and thus remove every legal hindrance out of the way of man's receiving the divine clemency; that through him the blessing of Abraham might come on the Gentiles, that we might receive the promise of the Spirit through faith. Christ has redeemed man from the bondage and slavery of sin, from the thraldom and yoke of the devil, and, prospectively, from the power of death. Though death holds even believers in its power now, there is provision in redemption for their resurrection from the dead. And Christ has ransomed us from bondage, not that we might go where we like, and do what we like, but that we might be free to serve him, and be under his righteous rule, and be renewed and guided by the Holy Spirit.

1 Thess. 5: 9, 10,—"For God appointed us not unto wrath, but unto the obtaining of salvation through our Lord Jesus Christ, who died for us, that, whether we wake or sleep, we should live together with him." This passage fully evinces the vicarious nature of Christ's death. Our salvation from future wrath, and our dwelling with Christ in future happiness, are connected with his dying for us. Notwithstanding the numerous opinions respecting the atonement, almost all Christian writers have agreed on one point—which is indeed the main point—that the sufferings and crucifixion of the Lord Jesus Christ are somehow very intimately connected with our deliverance from the wrath to come, and our restoration to the divine favor. That idea, which is the scriptural idea, and which can never be separated from Scripture, has been made prominent in every age.

Col. 1: 19, 20,—"For it was the good pleasure of the Father that in him should all the fullness dwell; and through him to reconcile all things unto himself, having made peace through the blood of his cross; through him, I say, whether things upon the earth, or things in the heavens." The atonement has placed man in such a relation to God that peace with God has been made possible. The phrase, "having made peace," must refer to the provision of peace, which is already made, and not to actual peace, as that is not obtained till the reconciliation is received by faith.

ENTIRE CONSECRATION.

BY C. H. PRATT.

In the early days of my Christian experience I used to hear much about people's being "truly converted to God," "advancing in the knowledge and service of God," etc., but since that time a word—not exactly a new word, but a word that was then seldom employed—has come into general use. That is the word "consecration." "Consecration meetings" are frequently held, and at these and other services people are urged to go forward to the altar, or in some other way manifest their desire for entire consecration.

I am often asked what this all means—what this new thing, which they call consecration, really is? These inquirers may be divided into two classes. The first class are sincere and earnest Christians, who are not conscious of having made any special act of consecration since they first sought the Lord, and yet never doubted their being wholly his until they heard consecration preached as something they must do in order to receive "the second blessing."

The second class is made up of persons who, though professedly the Lord's, have long lived under condemnation, and the more they hear about consecration the more unhappy they become. I hope to succeed in writing something that will benefit both of these classes.

I will first call the reader's attention to what is said of Saul of Tarsus in the ninth chapter of the book of Acts. We are there informed that as he was on his way to Damascus, suddenly there shone round about him a light from heaven. He fell to the ground, and in reply to the voice that spake to him, saying, "I am Jesus whom thou persecutest," he said: "Lord, what wilt thou have me to do?" This is rightly called the conversion of Paul, and to my mind it appears perfectly plain that this conversion was so thorough as to carry with it what is now so commonly called entire consecration. It is certain that the Bible says nothing about any subsequent act of consecration. It is plain to be seen that he understood at the outset that if this was his Lord, if he had been persecuting the Son of God who died for him, there was only one thing for him to do; that was to spend the whole of his remaining life—all he was and all he had—in the service of that Master; hence the question, "Lord, what wilt thou have me to do?"

Of course the apostle went on and took further steps; he received the gift of the Holy Spirit after that. He went on from strength to strength, from knowledge to knowledge, from love to love, there is no doubt; but we shall search the Bible in vain for anything that looks like a renewal of his consecration. I know of but one way to account for this, and that is by concluding that Paul never was in any degree a backslider.

If our conversion was like that of the apostle, and there has been no drawing back from the consecration we then made, then God does not require of us any renewal of that act. But the facts are that very generally we do go back more or less. Yet we try to live what we call a Christian life, without truly and practically admitting that we belong altogether to the Lord. In all such cases there is occasion for insisting upon consecration subsequent to conversion; or, in other words, such persons need to return to the fundamental fact that they do belong to God. They may acknowledge this fact as a matter of theory, but not realizing it practically they have occasion to come to God and beg forgiveness, and again place themselves in his hands.

If a person should come to you saying he had picked up and put into his own pocket a ten dollar bill which he saw a certain gentleman drop, and wanted your advice as to what he should do with it, you would not need to deliberate a great while to reach the conclusion that since no part of the bill belonged to him, that nothing short of his restoring the whole amount to the gentleman would save him from being a thief. And I think your eyes would open wide with astonishment if you should hear that man say, "Well, let me see, I really think I will do a rare and a very commendable thing. I will consecrate this ten dollar bill to its owner."

Many professed Christians talk very much like that. They fully subscribe to the apostle's declaration, "Ye are not your own, for ye are bought with a price; therefore glorify God in your body, and your spirit, which are God's," thus acknowledging that all they have and all that they are belongs to the Lord. And yet they are using more or less of this for their own objects. Now of what are they guilty? If it were a paltry matter of ten dollars, every right-minded person would call it stealing. When it is our life, belonging to God, that we are using for ourselves, can we use any softer term? Why, then, make so much ado about giving it back to God? Please notice the apostle does not say, "You ought not to be your own," but "are not."

Now how can any person, whatever his profession or however high his standing among men, be either right or happy until they acknowledge that they have "robbed God" in withholding from him any part of that which was altogether his, and returning it to him, promise that they will not do so again? When we thus place ourselves in the hands of God, we shall find God ready not only to receive his own, but also to use and keep his own. Then we are where he can and does richly bless us.

I would like to dwell upon the nature and extent of these blessings, but time and space will not permit. So long as we were defrauding God, and making war upon him—as is true of every person who does not make himself wholly over to the Lord—he could not bestow these blessings upon us, as that would serve to encourage us in our rebellion.

This life of entire consecration is the only life that is really worth living. To belong to God, to be his messenger, to be his witness, to be his servant—ah! to be his child!—who can conceive of anything greater or more blessed? Then God can and will let us have anything that will be good for us. Oh, the blessedness of being altogether at God's disposal! It is a holy and a happy life.

Dear reader, are you in God's hands? This is the one question for you to carefully consider in connection with this subject of entire consecration. If there is any doubt in your mind upon this point, take such steps as will enable you to rid yourself of those doubts, and then remember that having placed yourself in God's hands, no third party can step in to take you out.

HOPEFUL, HOPELESS AND JOYFUL.

BY B. FORESTER.

Different ideas demand different words, phrases and sentences to express those ideas. There are three leading opinions about the condition of man in death. We speak not of the body, for all the world agree about its condition in death. They differ only as to whether it ever shall or shall not emerge from that condition. The three opinions referred to find expression in the three classes of epitaphs with which we meet.

We note, first, the opinion that when man dies, he enters at once his final condition—a hopeless slumber. On many a pagan monument the petulant abreptus—"torn away," is found; and their sorrow for those who were "torn away" was hopeless. Alford quotes one pagan as writing: "Hope goes with life; all hopeless are the dead." Another: "Once dead, there is no resurrection." "Another: "Suns can set and come again, but to us, when our brief life goes out, there is one perpetual night to be slept through." Bonar gives the following language as expressive of their hope, or want of hope: "A shattered pillar; a ship gone to pieces; a race lost; a harp lying on the ground with snapped strings, with all its music lost; a flower bud crushed with all its fragrance in it; these were the sad utterances of their hopeless grief."

The Romans had thirty epithets for death, and all of them were full of deepest dejection: "The iron slumber; the eternal night; the mower with his scythe; the hunter with his snares; the demon bearing his cup of poison; the merciless destroying angel; the inexorable jailer, with his keys; the king of terrors treading down empires. Some of them were these, the bitterness of which is indescribable."

Epitaphs of the following kind, found upon heathen tombs, agree with the above stated opinions. They express the conviction of the Gentile mind, that all which had once lived was in death consigned to the grave, and would there remain forever. Domus Eternalis—"The Eternal Dwelling." Deterna Quies—"Eternal Repose." "Farewell forever!" were their parting words.

We insert one more, which is beautiful as it is pathetic, sad and hopeless:

> "Alas! the tender herb and flowery tribes,
> Though crushed by winter's unrelenting hand,
> Revive and rise when vernal zephyrs call;
> But we, the brave, the mighty and the wise,
> Bloom, flourish, fade and fall; and then succeeds
> A long, long, silent, dark, oblivious sleep;
> A sleep which no propitious power dispels,
> Nor changing seasons, nor e'en rolling years."

Truly, this class have no hope for their dead; they are "hopeless."

They who hold the second view do not differ from these of which we have just spoken concerning the condition of man while dead. They differ in this, that they do not believe that when man dies he enters his final condition. They do not believe that "death ends all," nor do they think it "begins all." They "sorrow, but not as others which have no hope." They sorrow because their friend is dead; they hope because they desire and expect he (the man) shall live again. This they believe because of the promise, "Thy dead men shall live"—not do live.

Their hope is expressed in such epitaphs as the following, to be found in abundance upon the tombs of the primitive Christians: "Filistoricus Hic Dormit,"—"Filistoricus sleeps here." "Hypolitus, a sweet soul, is here in peace." "Having left your relations, lie in peace, in sleep; you will rise; a temporary rest is granted you."

We could give you a very long list of such inscriptions from the catacombs, etc., but will close with two more.

> "ALL a MARY. 1861.
> "Though thy presence was a [illegible],
> Though thy [illegible],
> At the Saviour's bright appearing
> We shall meet to part no more."

On the tomb of the Rev. James Edmunds is one word only—"Resurgam"—"I shall rise again." Yet it expresses the hope of this second class.

The sentiment of despair does not appear upon the tombs of the primitive Christians; faith and hope take its place. "But [in the language of another] there is no idle talk of death as the state of glory; there is no confusion of life and death seen in it. The loved ones are regarded as truly in the grave, and not in glory, but the grave is only their temporary resting place, from whence they are to be called to glory by the voice of Christ in the day of resurrection."

The primitive Christian epitaph differs from the ancient Pagan as well as from the modern so-called orthodox Christian epitaph, a sample of which we will now give. They represent the departed as not truly dead at all, but alive; not as being in the grave, but in heaven with Jesus and their friends. The sentiment is not one of hopelessness, nor is it one of hopefulness, but rather of rejoicing.

On the tomb of Mr. C. F. Hanes we find the following lines:

> "Beyond the tomb [illegible]
> Thou art not dead, [illegible]"

Where in the Bible is such a sentiment, unless it be the language of the one Jesus said "abode not in the truth," when he uttered the memorable words, "Ye shall not surely die"?

On another is found the following: "She entered into the joy of her Lord June 21st, 1872, aged forty-nine years. The God of all grace hath called her into her eternal glory, after she had suffered."

> "Oh, call it not death, it is life [illegible]
> For the waters are past, and [illegible]"

This fairly represents the modern popular faith. The man does not die, and of course is a denial of the resurrection of dead men, for "there is no death, what seems such is transition," we are told. But if there is no death, it is nonsense to talk of "the resurrection of the dead."

In a collection of epitaphs published by Mr. Hill, I find this one:

> "Ere sin could harm, or sorrow [illegible]
> Death came with friendly [illegible]
> The opening bud to heaven [illegible]
> And bade it blossom there."

Here death is garlanded as a friend, and the poet rejoices (?) over the work of the destroyer! Truly, the three key words of these three classes of epitaphs are HOPEFULNESS, HOPELESSNESS, and JOYFULNESS.

The editor of a religious paper, in commenting on the words, "I would not have you to be ignorant, brethren, concerning them which are asleep," says, "The word 'asleep' refers, of course, to the body. Our friends are doubtless immensely more thoroughly awake than are we."

Is it not a little strange that the great apostle, after undertaking in a formal way to enlighten the "brethren" upon the condition of their departed friends, forgot to say one word about them, and spent his time talking about the "old body," the "casket," the "clog," which they had at one time occupied! And then he told them what every one knew—that the bodies of their dead would not go to heaven before the bodies of those to whom he was writing!

Shall we put such a bold treason into the mouth of the apostle to save a theory? God forbid. We "know that our Redeemer liveth," and he has promised to "redeem us from death." We believe him able to perform every promise. So we "rejoice in hope."

DECISION.

BY G. H. WALLACE.

An undecided person is unhappy—forever balancing between two or more opinions, and reaching no conclusion—unable to settle anything. Life is to such a nightmare. Indecision means failure in every enterprise, and trouble in every department of life. The person of positive temperament may not always be right; but they will, and do command the respect of those differing in opinion; while the undecided go-betweens fail in this as in all else.

People of marked individuality have minds of their own on matters of importance, and do not wait until "the rulers believe" before they express an opinion. Such persons always have an object in life—a goal to which they run, and their decision compels every other interest to serve the one great interest for which they live.

In the natural world, while Indecision waits and considers, Positiveness discovers continents, utilizes steam, tames lightning, tunnels mountains, explores the heavens, ransacks the earth, and belts the different departments of nature together like machinery. If this temperament takes the wrong side of an issue, it will work mischief like Saul of Tarsus. But if it can be enlisted in the service of God it will, like Paul the apostle, "labor more abundantly than they all" through the grace bestowed. And while double-minded, half-hearted, two-faced faltering Indecision receives nothing from the Lord, wrestling Jacob compels the blessing, and although lamed for life, he bears it away.

But it may be said that this is altogether a natural endowment, and nature has been decidedly partial in gifts of this kind. Conceding all that is necessary at this point, the fact remains that the Spirit of God makes the weak strong, the timid bold for God, the double-minded and undecided positive for truth and righteousness. Yes, its work in the church, in part at least, is to spur the slow, restrain the rash, and adapt all temperaments to the service of God in the different departments as best pleases him.

But let it be remembered that indecision has no place in the Church of God. "Choose ye this day," and stick to it.

CHRISTIAN LOVE AND THE HOLY SPIRIT.

BY GUY PORTER.

Christian love, unlike the love of the world, is unselfish, from the fact that in order to be truly Christian it must be Christ-like, and it cannot be Christ-like unless, like the Great Head, it has an aim to benefit others. The love that is selfish and sensual is no more Christian love than death is the voice that "Jesus sends," or the grave is the pearly gates to the city of our God. True Christian love is a precious jewel, and, like the true diamond, is more rare than might be supposed from the many base imitations that glitter in the showcase windows. And probably there is no one thing that more people are deceived about than this necessary element of Christian character. Please read carefully the 13th chapter of Paul's first epistle to the Corinthians, and there you can see what the fruits of true charity (or Christian love) are.

It was love that brought Christ, God's only begotten Son, into this ruined world to save the lost, to raise the fallen, and bless those who could not justly claim this wondrous love. It was love that caused our blessed Saviour to drink that bitter cup, and thus paid the debt for man. He neither erred by nature or transgression, and in meek submission to his Father, said, "Not my will, but thine be done."

Christ is the great fountain of God's eternal love to fallen man, and from him flows in all its satisfying fullness the pure waters of God's Holy Spirit; and when our hearts are filled with that Holy Spirit, they will overflow with kind words and loving acts, just like the fountain head. In John 4: 14 we read, "Whosoever drinketh of the water that I shall give him, shall never thirst; but the water that I shall give him shall be in him a well of water springing up into everlasting life." And in John 7: 37 he says, "If any man thirst, let him come unto me, and drink;" and in connection with this he says he that comes by faith to this fountain, from him "shall flow rivers of living water." He spoke of the Spirit which they that believed on him should receive. As the fountain never produces a flowing stream till it gets full itself, neither will the sweet fruits of the Spirit flow out in our daily lives till our hearts are filled with his Holy Spirit.

Many ask, How can I get my heart filled with this Holy Spirit? The way is simple, yet comparatively few find it. It is simply this: get empty of self, then go to the fountain and get filled. Do not be like the man Jesus spoke of who, when the foul spirit went out of him, stayed empty till the same spirit and seven worse ones got back into him. Some try to get the Spirit by living on the preacher's words and the faults of others. They have poor food, and lead a miserable life at best. The preacher tells them that they must expect to go on sinning every day, and they see some poor church member that they think is more wicked than they are, and between the two they try to be satisfied.

I was once talking with a young man on a steamboat about the peace and joy of salvation, and he said he knew there was nothing in it, "for," said he, "I got up once, and I didn't get any peace." I said to him, "The trouble was you didn't get down." We have to get down to strike the water of salvation. In California they bore many artesian wells, and they have to go down with their well through the mud and water of the surface vein, and every time the auger comes up it only brings up filth and muddy water; but when they get down low enough they strike the artesian vein, and then up comes the clear flowing water. They drive a pipe down as they sink the well to keep the sand from caving in, and leave the pipe there. The water washes all the mud out of the pipe, and then it flows itself. My brethren and sisters, how deep is your well? Have you struck the flowing water of Christian love? If not, get down deeper in humility. Do not scramble up the hill and be satisfied with a wet weather spring. You are in a thirsty land, and your hillside springs will go dry when you need water the most. Don't stop sinking your well in the mud and slum of the surface vein. Pump it up by hand, and tell people that is all the Lord has got for them.

The fruit of the Spirit is "love, joy, peace, long suffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, and temperance: against such there is no law." (Gal. 5: 22, 23.) May God help us all to get down where we can claim and receive all the Christian graces, and keep the quicksands of fear shut out by faith, hope, and love. Your brother abiding at the flowing well of salvation.

Two cannot walk together except they be agreed; a house divided against itself cannot stand; a distracted community will never be sought by one who loves peace. Union is essential to the well-being of the state. Without it, anarchy will take the place of law. It is essential to accomplish any work requiring joint effort. The Saviour prayed for it, in praying that his disciple might be "one." The members of a distracted church will bite and devour one another, and its power for good will be neutralized. All this will come by failing to "keep the unity of the spirit in the bond of peace."—Ex.

OUR WESTERN TRIP.

The journey of the Eastern Delegation to attend the Association meeting at Aurora, Ill., was a very pleasant and interesting trip, and an account of some of its experiences may be of interest to the Crisis readers; so I write.

The Departure.

Shortly before 3 P. M. on Monday, Aug. 30, the delegates with parcels, baskets and bundles in hand were seen hurrying from the Crisis office to the Fitchburg depot to take their seats in the train for the West. The great stone depot of the celebrated Hoosac Tunnel route was crowded with hurrying men and women, some going, some coming, each one only knowing his own business and trying to accomplish it as best he could in the crowd. The delegates and accompanying travelers, upward of twenty in number, found their seats in a Pullman car called the Peerless, which they occupied from Boston to Chicago.

Friends gathered at the depot to see the delegates off, and amid the crowd our efficient Business Agent found his ingenuity severely taxed to sort them all out and assign their seats and places. But the bell gave the signal for departure, and amid the din and confusion of the surroundings and adieus of friends on the platform, the train moved off and we were en route for the West. We passed through some of the beautiful scenery of the old Bay State by daylight, and were delighted with the beauties of nature, but the mists of the slow falling rain hindered our vision from seeing the distant mountains, and so Wachusett on the left and Monadnock on the right escaped our view. We knew when we entered the Hoosac Tunnel although it was quite dark before we reached it, for the porter shut the ventilators to keep out the smoke from the en[illegible] we did not find the protection perfect. Soon after this we were all in our berths, trying to sleep, but making poor work of it, yet when the morning dawned we found that we had traveled over hundreds of miles in the night, and were in an entirely new sort of country from that of our homes. Southern New York with its farms and villages was the place of our journeyings.

The Delay.

On inquiry we found that we were behind time at Binghampton, N. Y., having been hindered somewhat during the night. But still greater hindrances were before us, for information soon came to us that a wreck was ahead of us on the track. A collision of freight trains had occurred in the night, and we must wait until the track was cleared. We rode down to the wreck, and as morning was far advanced, and the station for breakfast was far ahead, the question among us was, where can food and drink be found. The farm houses near by were visited, and although not very inviting in outward looks, yet we managed to get milk, tea and hot water to go with our basket lunches which answered very well for a morning's meal. After a delay of nearly two hours we passed by the wreck of cars, several cars being badly smashed, and one lying nearly on the top of an engine, while cattle from the cars were in an adjoining field, and huge piles of grain were on the ground. We were very thankful we were not of the wrecked train, as we passed slowly by and saw the ruins.

We spent Tuesday in passing through Southern N. Y. and Northern Pa. entering Ohio towards night, for another night's ride. We spent the day in song, prayer and conversation, especially the latter, and the wisdom manifested in expounding Scriptures one to another was exceedingly interesting. The "Higgins corner" of the car was especially a school of information, and what we did not learn about Rev. 20, Nature of man, New birth, etc., etc., we can not tell. But the sweet songs of Zion rang out from the hearts and voices of our company to the delight of all. Bro. and Sr. Tucker were the leading spirits of the song service, and gave much pleasure to the company.

I must not omit to speak of the vast oil tanks of the "United Pipe Lines" which we passed in Allegany Co., N. Y. Among the valleys and along the route they were seen in great numbers, and caused much notice. Also the "Gehenna" appearance of the fiery furnaces of Pa. were objects of much attention. Their fires and furnaces glowing in the darkness were cause of much reflection and remark.

Another night wore away, and the morning found us still in Ohio, but we crossed the boundary into Indiana at an early hour. We passed over the ground of the great earthquake this night, but we had so much shaking up in the car by its motion, we knew nothing of the quaking earth. Yet we rested pretty well, and thanked God in the morning that we had been preserved.

Into Chicago.

Passing on through Indiana into Illinois, we began to behold indications of the western prairie lands, and the corn and grain fields attracted our attention, to say nothing of the acres of cabbage as we neared the great city of the West. We arrived at Chicago at 11.30 A. M., four hours late, but safe, and in good spirits. "Follow the leader" was the watchword as we passed along the extensive platform of the vast depot of Chicago and Atlantic R. R., and we soon found ourselves on board a Frank Parmelee omnibus whirling over the Nicholson pavement of Chicago to the C. B. and Q. R. R. depot on Canal St. "Show your tickets" bothered us some at the gateway, but at 12.30 P. M. we left the city of confusion for Aurora, the beautiful city of "morning light."

At Aurora.

Aurora is thirty-eight miles west of Chicago, on the Fox River, a fine stream that starts in Wisconsin and empties into the Illinois River at Ottawa, Ill. The city of Aurora is one of the finest in Ill. Jennings Seminary, a noted and flourishing institution of learning is located here. The campground, which was the objective point of all our journeying, we found to be one of the finest we ever saw. Conveniently located with its beautiful grove of evergreen and deciduous trees interspersed, accessible by horse cars from the city, all expressed their delight with its arrangements. Perhaps it being the end of a wearisome journey may have added to our appreciation of its merits, but the kindly greetings of our Western friends and brethren made us feel quite at home. The efficient camp committee do things up in Western style—plenty of every thing and no fuss about it. We like this Western heartiness and plentifulness.

The Meetings.

Just a word of this and I must close. The Association was held immediately on our arrival, and its sessions occupied most of the time for more than two days. The business was transacted rapidly, most of the time of discussion being spent upon the committees' reports. The officers of last year were mostly re-elected, and that by strong majorities. Our President gave a stirring opening address which was voted to be published, and his election as Editor of World's Crisis was by unanimous ballot at first call. The Business Agent and Treasurer's report made a good showing of increase of business. The figures will be seen in his report when published.

The Campmeeting proper opened under very favorable auspices. A larger number of tents than usual are already pitched, and more are coming. The meeting bids fair to be of more than ordinary merit, and we trust it will result in great and lasting good. In haste for the mail I close this brief sketch. F. B.

SPURIOUS AND GENUINE INFIDELS.

After the delivery of one of Ingersoll's discourses, which was listened to by several college students at Albany, they addressed a note of inquiry to Prof. Gouge, D. D., LL. D., which he answered somewhat at length, but in an amusing strain, an extract from which we here insert:

"But you say there are so many infidels. Boys, you are mistaken. An infidel is an abnormal growth. Nature feels funny once in a while and creates a freak—the living skeleton, the fat woman, the two-headed girl. So there is about one infidel to a million sane men. He is a freak, and he pays. Men pay to hear Robert abuse religion as they do to see Simmons wind up his watch with his toes. Not that a watch is any better for being wound up with the toes, but it isn't every slouch that can do it. A genuine infidel is a moral monstrosity worth seeing. The most of these noisy fellows are amateur infidels. They talk Ingersoll in fair weather, and pray themselves hoarse every time it thunders. A well developed case of cholera morbus will knock their infidelity out of them, and leave them in a cold sweat, like a China dog in an ice-house. I know them. The most of them are like the boy who runs away from home, and comes back to sleep with father nights. These men are only playing 'I spy' with their consciences, and you can find them every time. They are no more genuine infidels than a newsboy is an editor. They only retail somebody else's ideas."

No doubt there are honest infidels; but as a rule nominal infidels have propped themselves up with the cavils that have been retailed till threadbare, and are trying to justify themselves in their defiant attitude, while the silent voice of conscience is incessantly protesting. They finally stifle the voice of conviction, and give full play to their carnal preference, and declaim against religion, and recklessly rush on to ruin; but now and then the hand of Providence suddenly brings them to a halt—face to face with death and eternity—when their boasted infidelity deserts them, and remorse tears off the covering that concealed them. The land is flooded with fair-weather infidels, whose hearts "go pitapat" in the storm. They can defy God at a distance, but when brought where they think they must meet him, they quail and repent too late to find pardon. W. S.

CAMP AURORA.

The committee met on the ground to prepare for the meeting Aug. 27th, and held a meeting Aug. 29th. The Aurora Daily Express of Aug. 28th published the following kind notice of the meeting:

"Advent Christian Campmeeting.

"This Campmeeting will open to-morrow (Sunday), at Evans Park, by preaching at 10.30 A. M., 3 P. M., and 8 P. M.

Three small tents and two large ones are being put up to-day, and Eld. Wm. Sheldon of Wisconsin, Eld. Philo Hitchcock of Dakota, and several preachers from the southern part of this State, and one from Iowa, are already on the ground. During next week a car load, mostly preachers, are expected from Boston, Mass. Those already here say there will be not less than one hundred preachers here during the meeting.

The Campmeeting proper will commence next Friday and continue till Sept. 12; but previous to that time business meetings will be held by the delegates, the Publishing Association, etc., but there will probably be preaching for the public every evening during next week.

The public of Aurora and vicinity are cordially invited to attend these meetings, and it is hoped that before meeting is over a general interest will be awakened in the subject.

their faith.

The faith of this sect of Christians differs from that of other denominations in this: They do not believe in any spiritual existence outside of the body—do not believe in the immortality of any, except those who believe in Christ. They believe that Christ will shortly appear in person, raise the dead, judge the living, take the good into an earthly paradise; destroy the wicked, root and branch, so they will have literally no existence anywhere; remove the curse from the earth, so that it will produce no more thorns, thistles and the like, but become a paradise throughout, as the garden of Eden once was; and the good of all ages will be clothed in bodies suited to their condition, and live in this earthly paradise, over which Jesus Christ will be ruler. This includes a belief in the unconscious sleep of the soul or spirit of all the dead, good and bad, until the resurrection. They do not set any particular time for this second appearing, but think that it is not far off, owing to the fact that all lines of prophecy, as interpreted by the best scholars, centre to the present time or the immediate future. They also claim that the signs of the times import a change in existing conditions and point directly to the fulfilment of prophecy which foretells the Second Coming.

The Adventists have no creed except the Holy Bible, which they interpret literally, taking it for granted that it means just what it says—no more, no less. When it says, 'The wicked will God destroy,' it means that the wicked will be destroyed, not kept alive forever in torment. When it says the wicked 'shall be cast into the lake of fire and brimstone, which is the second death, from which there is no resurrection,' they believe that is the end of them.

They are always ready with a scriptural answer for everything they believe, and we guarantee that any of their ministers, or 'elders,' can quote more scripture than any man in Aurora.

There are but few Adventists who hold these views in this vicinity, and we trust that our people will give them a respectful hearing. They will learn something from their sermons and be entertained by their preaching."

The meeting is now (Sept. 7th) in full blast, and the outlook is cheering. Other writers will keep our readers posted with reference to its progress. We doubt not it will prove a grand success in unifying the general body, and in reaching the perishing around us. Meetings so far have been excellent. W. S.

VOLUNTARY SERVICE.

Willingness is a distinguishing mark of all true and acceptable service of God. "If there be first a willing mind, it is accepted." The service prompted by love is cheerfully spontaneous, and so it is said, "Love is the fulfilling of the law." Thereby a ready and a hearty compliance with the requirements of the law is insured. A demand of the service of God is, that it be "not of constraint, but of a ready mind." It is a rule which may be applied to this service, "Freely, ye have received, freely give." The service should be freely entered upon, and freely performed to the end. Cheerfully should it be rendered, not only at the beginning, but in a continuance which is unfaltering; for in no other way can it be pleasing to him who knows the heart in every case of the professed service of him.

God does not want a constrained service like that of a slave. The command to his servants is, "Serve the Lord with gladness." Those who serve him with sadness rather than with gladness, because the service is unpleasant to them, are not serving him as they should, if at all. "The angels serve him with songs, not with groans, a murmur or a sigh would be a mutiny in their ranks." This aspect of service should not be exceptional with them. Too many fail in this respect. They are far from serving God acceptably, who serve him because they fear him, and not because they love him. The servants of God should go singing,

"Help me to walk in thy commands,
'Tis a delightful road."

The service which is not voluntary is not recognized as fitting, if true service, by the Searcher of hearts. He looks with favor only on what is willingly rendered as the offspring of a genuinely devoted heart. Nothing but ready conformity to the will of God, and eager devotion to the glory of God, indicates a heart right in the sight of Him who is as well acquainted with thoughts as with actions. In the absence of voluntariness, there cannot be the love of God pervading the heart as the inspiration of all that can properly be called the service of God. The Master has said, "If ye love me, keep my commandments." Those who love will serve. Some one has said, "Love is like the spirit in Ezekiel's wheels, that made them move so swiftly, so that dulness, sluggishness, and wearisomeness are quickly dispelled by heavenly love, as the ice is presently dissolved by the sunbeams." Another has said,

"'Tis love that makes our cheerful feet
In swift obedience move."

The service of love is the most spontaneous of all service. This is what God should have. We should serve him, not because we dare not do otherwise, but because we would not do otherwise, and because we have no higher pleasure than to serve him.

In this voluntary service of God, those engaging therein will have the interests of his cause really at heart. It will be no matter of indifference whether that cause is prospering or languishing; whether the supporters thereof are many or few; whether its progress is great or small. Rather will it be a matter of the deepest concern that the laborers in the vineyard of the Lord are increasing instead of diminishing in number, and that the work of the Lord is well done instead of being left undone or inadequately done. With more of this willing service, there would be vastly more accomplished than is possible without it; there would be more diligence and zeal and more abundant success. Those who serve God constrainedly rather than willingly are ready to excuse themselves from everything not absolutely required either by an accusing conscience, or by respectability of standing as professed servants of God. Such service is imperfect, to say the least. If any are endeavoring to satisfy themselves with it, they may well fear lest it be found utterly worthless, so far as acceptance with God is concerned. Theirs is too much in contrast with the consecrated spirit which asks, "Lord, what wilt thou have me to do?" only wanting to know, in order to be found doing whatever is embraced in the will of God. Matthew Henry says, "It ought to be the great care of every one of us to follow the Lord fully. We must, in a course of obedience to God's will, and service to his honor, follow him universally, without dividing; cheerfully without disputing; and constantly, without declining: this is following him fully." In such service the language of the heart is,— "All that I am, and all I have,

Shall be forever thine;
Whate'er my duty bids me give,
My cheerful hands resign.

"Yet, if I might make some reserve,
And duty did not call,
I love my God with zeal so great,
That I should give him all."

Our grand business in life is not to see what lies dimly at a distance, but to do what lies clearly at hand.

"EARTH NOT A GLOBE."

One hundred proofs that the earth is not a globe, is certainly a very interesting as well as a remarkable pamphlet. It substantiates the Bible record of creation, which all infidel astronomers deny. It is only 25 cts. It is worth twice its price. Send to Bro. Hemenway and get it. And when you have read this you will then desire to read Parallax's "Zetetic Astronomy," which can be obtained also of Bro. Hemenway. Price, $2.25. All who do not understand Bible Astronomy, this is the book for you. A child may understand it. None can read it without being highly interested and instructed. N. D. Babcock.

SEND FOR IT.

Enclose one dime in your letter, and send to Bro. Hemenway for Bro. Teeple's tract on "The Rich Man and Lazarus." It is so plain and simple all can understand it. No brother or sister should be without it. You will not say again that you cannot explain it after you have once read it. Send it to your friends. Let it no longer be said that Adventists cannot explain that parable.

PASTOR LOUIS HARMS.

BY REV. A. T. PIERSON, D. D.

Pastor Harms, the wonderful missionary pastor and his church in Hermannsburgh, are the convincing proof and illustration of what one parish can do for missions. In 1849, thirty-seven years ago, a glimpse of the destitution of heathendom, as they saw it through the eyes of a poor disabled candidate, moved that congregation of poor peasants, farmers and laborers to organize a society for sending the gospel to foreign parts. A widow brought six shillings, a laborer sixpence, and a child a silver penny, and upon this slender pecuniary basis was built up the most colossal individual missionary enterprise of the ages! No bolder act is to be found in the history of missions than that of Louis Harms when he proposed to his people to be their own missionaries, when he undertook to inspire poor farmers, ignorant peasants and rude day-laborers to volunteer for missionary purposes, and both create and sustain, both with money and men, their own missions. It was very decidedly "out of the usual course," and so was the first Pentecost; but, like that, it was a moving of God. All the zeal of that parish was turned into a new channel, and the first definite development was the coming forward of volunteers who offered to become the living links between Hermannsburgh in Hanover, and heathendom. One volunteer brought his farm, and this, with its plain farm-house, was turned into a training school.

Africa was chosen as a field and the training of the raw recruits began. A sailor who joined the ranks suggested the building of the ship, and in 1853, the Candace sailed, with a missionary colony comprising eight missionaries, two smiths, a tailor, butcher, dyer and three laborers. They sought to pierce through Natal among the Kaffirs and work north, linking station to station in a chain. They were in constant exchange of missionary intelligence and friendly personal letters, and in order to diffuse this intelligence more widely and develop these personal ties of sympathy more richly, a missionary magazine was established, edited and published on the premises of their own training school. That ship moving to and fro was the shuttle, weaving a closer and fuller bond of contact with heathen people, and those letters and gifts and living men and women were the fleshly fires woven and braided into that bond. That ship was a constant appeal and challenge; and as often as it returned, new recruits were ready. More than forty left at one time, and in one year, 1863, one hundred offered themselves.

During the seventeen years of Louis Harms' conduct of the enterprise that parish enjoyed one long revival, and ten thousand church members were gathered into that parish; while the work grew abroad so that in 1883, thirty years after the Candace first set sail, over thirty stations had been established, they had forty ordained missionaries, fifty-five lay, and as many more women missionaries, twenty-two natives ordained, and 185 helpers, a total working force of 357; had gathered 3,920 communicants and 8,520 adherents from heathendom, and spent that year $70,500. Instead of finding their sympathies and efforts narrowing by such specific labors, in one field the result has been to expand and enrich their missionary spirit, to render it more catholic and cosmopolitan, and so we find them sending missionaries to India, Australia and even America. And let it be observed that this small and obscure parish in Hanover had no proxies or substitutes. They constituted their own Board, became their own secretaries, edited their own missionary magazine, and organized and administered their own mission work.

Is it not barely possible that the Boards of Foreign Missions, instead of being the mere agents or instruments of the active benevolence of our churches, are in too many cases a substitute for it? that our people are quite too content to give an annual offering to missions through some such treasury, leaving to wise and able secretaries not only to distribute funds and workers, but to conduct all correspondence; and then print intelligence from the field in a missionary magazine some twenty thousand of which perhaps are circulated among hundreds of thousands of communicants, and out of that twenty thousand one-quarter sent gratuitously to ministers and missionaries. Would it not be a grand help to the diffusion of missionary intelligence, to the increase of missionary offerings, and to the awakening of a profoundly prayerful, personal and sympathetic interest if each church might be linked to the heathen world by the life of some consecrated man or woman, and best of all, if that person be one sent out from among their own number, known personally, loved dearly, whose very name becomes inseparably connected with the work of a world's redemption? If the life of Hariet Newell, Adoniram Judson, David Livingstone, Alexander Duff makes all our pulses bound anew with yearnings to save the lost, what would be the effect on any church from which such heroic souls went down into the deep mine of heathenism charging those whom they left behind to "hold the rope?"—Words and Weapons.

God brings men into deep waters not to drown them, but to cleanse them.

"SPEAKING THE TRUTH IN LOVE."

BY C. H. COPP.

"Some indeed preach Christ even of envy and strife; and some also of good will: the one preach Christ of contention, not sincerely, supposing to add affliction to my bonds: but the other of love, knowing that I am set for the defence of the gospel. What then? notwithstanding, every way, whether in pretence, or in truth, Christ is preached; and I therein do rejoice, yea, and will rejoice." Phil. 1: 15–18.

The essential truths of Christianity—and for that matter all are essential, some being more important than others—must be preached somehow; and we are to rejoice with the apostle that they are preached, that Christ is put before the people. But it is best done with love. It is more effectual that way. Love wins; bitterness drives away. You can catch more flies with molasses than with vinegar. He who would win souls must be wise with divine wisdom, and have a wooing manner. Supposing a man wanted to gain the hand of a lady to be his wife; would his manner be harsh and grating? Would he ventilate his opinions in a repugnant manner, and show himself to be a bigot or egotist? No; he would talk as smooth as oil, and as carefully as an oculist handles an eye. His object is to win, and to that end every phrase would be bent. So "he that winneth souls is wise." It takes a wise man to do it—wise with heavenly wisdom—and he is wise for doing it.

But be not deceived about this matter. Errors come, like sardines, to us sometimes, nicely packed in oil. Error is error, no matter how delivered. Truth is truth, if it comes rattling down upon us like shag-bark walnuts, making us bleed. The shag-bark of the walnut should be divested and left behind before putting the nut into market. It is a walnut still if that is taken off. It is more marketable. So truth should be presented in a marketable manner. Every business man knows enough to put the best side of an article out. But as for truth it is the same all round and all through; yet there is a way to show it up to advantage. To old hands the truth is welcome in any shape; but it is a new dish to many, and should be served in the most inviting manner possible.

But it does seem as though some silly people preferred error smoothly given to truth plainly spoken. They do not seem to have even Pilate's interest to inquire "what is truth?"—do not care enough about it to know it if they were told. All they want is something that sounds pretty; that comes on the wing of smooth, well-rounded sentences and bewitching cadences. In this way the devil easily palms off chaff for wheat.

But there are others more noble who search the Scriptures daily to see if these things are so. They have a love for the truth itself, instead of a love for the pre-eminence which some have, using the truth only as a stepping-stone to boost themselves into notoriety. They prize the truth so highly that they bring it out and unfold it as carefully as a mother shows the picture of her honored son. O let us be baptized with love for the truth, and "buy it and sell it not."

HOOSICK VALLEY CONFERENCE.

Dear brethren and sisters, rally to this Annual Meeting. We cannot fail to discern the signs of the times. We behold the foretold distress of nations, with attending perplexity. We hear the roaring of the destructive tidal waves, the deep muttering that precedes the earthquake, and lo, the earth rocks and reels beneath our feet, and cities crumble to ruins. These and many other evidences are convincing proofs that the second personal coming of our Lord Jesus Christ is an event to be looked for in the very near future. Now can we do more than we yet have done to warn the slumbering world of the impending crisis? "Come, and let us reason together," and if possible devise some means by which we can more effectually carry out the great and beneficent designs of our blessed Saviour. We occupy a peculiarly responsible position, and God demands holy activity on our part. Please remember the Conference collection to be taken up in each church. Let us have a full representation. See notice.

Geo. A. Streeter, President.
W. O. Higley, Secretary.

ARKANSAS CONFERENCE.

Pursuant to notice, the following brethren met at Pleasant Grove Church, in Sebastian Co., Ark., Aug. 27th, for the purpose of organizing a second Advent Christian Conference. Ministers, A. J. McAllister and J. T. Nelson. Licentiates, Geo. W. Lessley and H. H. Pendergrass. Delegates from Pleasant Grove Church: Jas. R. Norcott, Jno. Maxwell, Jas. Hampton, and James McAllister. Long Branch, G. W. Lessley and H. H. Pendergrass. Eld. John A Cargile, of the North Alabama Conference, being present, was called to the chair, President pro tem.

On motion, Elders J. J. Smith and C. S. Norman were received as members of this Conference. On motion, election of officers was taken up, and resulted in the choice of J. J. Smith, President; A. J. McAllister, Vice President; J. T. Nelson, Secretary; Geo. W. Lessley, Treasurer; Jas. R. Norcott, Director.

On motion, the Constitution and By-laws of the Arkansas Christian Conference were adopted, with the following amendments: Article I. This organization shall be called the Second Advent Christian Conference of Arkansas. Article III. The preachers belonging to this Conference shall, on the recommendation of the churches to which they belong, have their credentials renewed at each annual meeting of the Conference, and no minister shall hold membership in this Conference unless endorsed by the church to which he belongs; and every minister is amenable, both to the church of which he is a member, and also the Conference, for his Christian character and conduct. Articles VI. and VIII. of the By-laws were by vote stricken out.

Bro. S. C. Crouche's application for license was granted, and the Secretary instructed to write it out.

By vote of the Conference Eld. J. A. Cargile was requested to address a circular letter to our brethren scattered all over the State, urging their co-operation, asking them to meet with us at our next meeting, in order to become more united for harmonious work, the cost of said circular to be paid by this Conference on receiving Bro. Cargile's report at the next meeting of the Conference.

Moved and carried, that the Secretary appoint a proxy to represent this Conference in the S. A. C. Association.

Moved and carried, that the Secretary furnish the World's Crisis and Bible Banner a copy of the proceedings of this Conference for publication.

Moved and carried, that a meeting of this Conference be held with Liberty Church, Edge, Van Buren Co., Ark., beginning at eleven o'clock A. M. on Friday before the second Sunday in February A. D. 1887.

Moved and carried, that the Secretary give credentials to the ministers of this Conference.

After prayer by Bro. McAllister the Conference adjourned to meet at the aforesaid time and place.

J. A. Cargile, President pro tem.
Jas. T. Nelson, Secretary.

Owing to the fact that the Orthodox Christians were holding a union revival meeting within two miles of the place of our Conference, the attendance was comparatively small; but Bro. Cargile did most excellent preaching, and I trust the sacred truths so faithfully delivered to the people by him found lodgment in honest hearts, and will be productive of much and lasting good. The Advent message is doing its work silently, but surely, in this part of God's moral heritage. Bro. Pollard sent me quite a lot of tracts from the Advent Christian Publication Society, and I am taking pains to scatter them judiciously. The Lord is blessing the truth, and surely as he says, "My word shall not return unto me void." Pray for us here in Arkansas, and may we never weary in well doing.

Jas. T. Nelson, Secretary.

SISTER WEAVER.

Bro. Stockman:—My feelings and sympathy are much wrought upon by reading a letter in the Crisis of Aug. 4th, written by E. M. Briggs, in behalf of Sister L. B. Weaver. My dear brethren and sisters, can we not do something for the dear suffering saint? I propose this: that each and all of us, no matter how poor we think we are, we who have health to walk about and ride out in the open air, will you with me promise the Lord to send to Bro. Stockman 50 cts, between the dates of Sept. 19th and 25th, to aid Sister Weaver financially, and as much more as you see fit to send?

Any of us can sell chickens, or eggs and butter to get this small amount. I set these special dates, so the money will go all at the same time. Do not neglect this matter. This is no begging. It is only a reminder for us to do our duty toward God and suffering humanity. I do hope this will not be looked over as something of no importance. Mrs. S. R. Knox.

SCOTSTOWN, P. Q.

Some of your readers will ask, "Where is Scotstown?" having never heard of this place before. Well, it is in the County of Compton, and about thirty-four miles east of Sherbrooke, on the International R. R. It is quite a new settlement, and, as the name indicates, a town of Scots. The first settlers came from Scotland in the year 1873. There are now two saw mills and a pulp mill to employ a large number of hands. But the town or village has grown lately, and for the most part is inhabited by French Canadians. We have a neat little Presbyterian Church, the only Protestant one in the village, and they have kept religious ordinances before the people, but somehow the church failed to reach the majority of the people. There is the form of godliness, but no power.

On the 27th of July a few members of the Canadian A. C. Mission Society came here and pitched their tent. With many others I was surprised at the earnestness of the speaker, and began to inquire if these things were so—that is, if the joy they expressed was true. They asked all those who loved the Saviour to testify to that effect in the meeting. This set me at once to thinking. What could I testify to? I was an elder in the church, but until these good people came with their tent, I was blind and dead; but now I see, thank God, and not me only, but many others.

Bro. I. W. Sornberger baptized fourteen, and there is a great awakening in this place. I have seen on prayer meeting night when it was hard to get fifteen out to church, but now we have three meetings during the week in the evening, and the church is filled to overflowing. I am sorry that I cannot give you a better estimate of the good work done, but at a future time will report progress.

God bless the Tent and Mission workers wherever they may go. It will be a green spot in the memory of the people of this place while they live, and when they come again to Scotstown they will get a welcome such as they deserve. They have been the means in God's hands of bringing many to the light in this place, of whom I am one. Yours in the Lord, Rob't B. Scott.

Thus ends another meeting where all felt it good to be, because the Lord was with us. After the afternoon services on the Lord's day we went to the water, where two happy souls were buried in baptism to rise and walk in newness of life, and may God give them grace to keep them faithful.

J. G. S. Satterlee, Secretary.

FROM E. P. INGERSOLL.

Bro. Stockman:—Some one has kindly sent me three numbers of the World's Crisis, for which I am very grateful. I have read them all, and am rejoiced beyond measure to find your paper is advocating the certainty of the literal fulfilment of the divine promises, and that without variation or equivocation. True, you have devoted your time to the investigation of the prophecies chiefly of the certain coming of Christ, as my mind has been called to the investigation of the prophecies of "lost Israel." But as "all roads lead to Rome," so, and more surely, all prophecy leads to God through Jesus Christ.

This I find, that the contemplation of any one prophecy fills the mind so completely as almost to shut out all other things; for no finite mind is able to comprehend the fulness of the divine plan of redemption. All are swallowed up in the infinity of God's plans. They are high as heaven, broad as the universe, and reaching through all time into eternity, where we become lost. But our loss is in God—swallowed up in him. Go on therefore, my dear brother, you have nothing to fear as long as you keep hold of Jesus' hand. He never leads astray. But human theories always lead to darkness and doubt.

I wish I were able to subscribe for your paper. But as I have devoted all my little means in hunting up "lost Israel" (and that in my more than fourscore years), yet with infinite delight, I have nothing of gold and silver—only good will, to devote to any other work. But if that friend (whoever it may be) can send me future numbers of the World's Crisis, I shall be most happy to receive them; for the return of Christ, according to Acts 1: 11, has long been to me a certainty. And that we are nearing that event is, I think, also certain, but how near I cannot tell. Does it not seem that Ezek. 37 must be fulfilled, and the battle of Gog take place, when all the enemies of Christ are to be consumed? Yet I lift up my head and rejoice, knowing that our redemption draweth nigh, and I say, "Come, Lord Jesus, and come quickly."

Springfield, Kansas.

A BLASPHEMER'S FATE.

Last week while at work in the fields, a farmer by the name of Sylvester Redyan, owner of several hundred acres of fine farming land in Mercer county, Ohio, began cursing in a most shocking manner about the drouth injuring his crops, and wound up with an oath that he would cut God's heart out if he would come down. No sooner were the words uttered than a vivid streak of fire resembling lightning came down from the cloudless sky and struck Redyan. His companions who were in the harvest field with him were rendered insensible for several minutes. When they recovered they were nearly frightened to death at the sight which presented itself. Redyan, the man who just a few seconds before had uttered the terrible curse had been transformed into stone, and lay on the ground near where he had stood when he made the shocking offer to the Supreme Being. His clothes had been burned from him, and the lips were parted in the stone figure, just as Redyan had finished the oath. An awful heat arose from the piece of stone, and was so intense that no person could go near it.

While the story is so strange that it may not be believed by many, its truth is vouched for by my informant and several others as equally reliable men of that vicinity, with whom your correspondent has talked regarding the strange affair. Each of them had been to the place and seen the transfigured body, and do not hesitate to say that every word of the account which I have given is correct. One man offered to hire a gig and drive the Enquirer man to the spot, and if things were not as he represented them to be he would pay the expense.

Redyan was a man about forty years of age, and had a family of a wife and five children, who are nearly wild with grief. Redyan was addicted to swearing, and could scarcely speak a word without accompanying it with an oath.—Cincinnati Enquirer, July 27th.

Liberalism is not Charity.—The great danger of the hour is unfaithfulness to God in the tolerance of error or evil. There is abundant room for the exercise of Christian love in bearing each other's burdens, and the strong can never be excused from bearing the infirmities of the weak, but in neither case are we to suffer wrong or falsehood to remain. Tenderness to persons is quite compatible with fidelity to truth; nay, we do injustice to our brethren, no less than injury to ourselves, when we sacrifice a single doctrine the Scripture reveals. The liberalism of to-day is not the charity of the New Testament. The Holy Ghost teaches us to speak the truth in love; the spirit of the age tells us to speak something very different. We may lead a quiet life and have a pleasant time if we swim with the current and with a supreme unconcern for truth allow all doctrines to be indifferent. And if in our heart of hearts we really believe nothing, we can scarcely claim credit for a toleration, the refusal of which would be as unreasonable as foolish; yet while we thus, in another sense than that of the apostle "become all things to all men," unlike him, we will gain none. The Duke of Argyll recently remarked that the English nation had developed a fatal tendency to be mentally "flabby." If his grace cares to find further illustrations of this "flabbiness," we promise him abundance if he turn his attention to present day theology.—Word and Work.

NOTES BY THE WAY.

BY H. B. SEVEY.

I thought some would be interested in hearing of our mission tent work in the State of Maine. We called for help through the Crisis. Four responded as helpers, but as we had not the means, concluded to give it up until after haying. Then Bro. J. R. Hall said he would go with me, and mentioned Montville Centre as the place. In the meantime Bro. and Sr. Dinsmore concluded to go also, and made arrangements to commence meetings Aug. 1st. Neither of us were acquainted with the people of the town or the settlement. We ordered our tent to be sent by R. R., and on arriving found part of two, which was sent through mistake, and had to be sent back and exchanged.

We found Montville to be a very hilly town, and many well-to-do farmers around the Centre, one store and post office, which was the main business; with an old ancient meeting-house, built some seventy-five years ago, capable of seating about three hundred or more, with box pews, here was once a flourishing church, established by the Free Baptists; but by some cause it has run down, and for many years they have had preaching only occasionally, as there were but few members to attend. Spiritualism has flourished in the town, and now has a strong hold on many; but some good-minded people were disgusted at their sayings at a meeting they held in a grove while we were there. One speaker said, "After you get thoroughly into Spiritualism, you will do away with your Jesus entirely"; the natural outcome of natural immortality, which is held by the professed churches of our day. No wonder that Spiritualism flourishes when fed from such sources.

Under the most discouraging circumstances we commenced meetings, but the numbers increased with the interest, as we visited from house to house in the forenoon, and after our tent was pitched the attendance still increased. For twenty-three days, afternoons and evenings, with only a few exceptions, our meetings were held. Bro. J. R. Hall was with us ten days, and I think I can safely say that never in all our tent work did we have, under existing surroundings, better results. The community for miles were moved. Brethren came five miles or more to help us, and at our evening meetings the tent was filled. The Spirit of the Lord drew them. Backsliders were reclaimed, six or eight were hopefully converted, and many are under deep conviction.

Our last Sunday evening meeting was held in the Methodist House, as our tent had to be at the Washington Campmeeting. Some three hundred were out. We arranged for a baptism the first Sunday in September. The people were desirous to sustain meetings a part of the time, and chose a committee of seven to solicit funds for that purpose. Bro. Dinsmore is making arrangements to move among them. It is one of the best fields for mission work I ever saw. Among the crowds that came out to meeting not more than twenty or thirty would identify themselves as being on the Lord's side. I should not have left but for an engagement at Washington Campmeeting, and especially if it had not been for my being overworked. Bro. and Sister Dinsmore returned Sunday evening to commence again. May the God of all grace continue the work is my prayer.

Our mission fund was about forty dollars. I did wish that some of our good brethren in the ministry who go to old places and settle down, where somebody has broken the ground and made the nest for them, could have been with us and helped beat the bush once, and seen the difference; and also our lay brethren and sisters, who have the means in their hands to carry the glad tidings into many such places in our State, could have witnessed our feeble effort among strangers, who feared to take us in at first, and afterwards the open doors with open hearts to receive us into their homes, and seen the anxious tears that filled their eyes, which bespoke the anxiety of their hearts to know Christ, and also the songs of deliverance from sin, and the hope of being ready to meet Jesus at his coming with all his saints. We left them in hope of meeting soon in the kingdom, and also with the assurance in our own heart that we kept back no truth due to them, and hope to be found faultless at the coming of Christ without their blood being found in my garments.

Wednesday we went to the Washington Campmeeting. We found much improvement on the ground, with new cottages, and a new boarding-house, and by permission of the committee a man had erected a house in modern style for his home, which he opened freely to all. The meeting was well under way, but not up to the key-note as we hoped it would have been. I was not able to labor the first of the meeting. The preaching was good, and the last part timely, especially on the coming of Jesus. Some were quickened to a newness of life by laying all upon the altar. But oh, the contrast in Campmeetings now and fifty years ago! Then no waste time between meetings. All were in their tents holding prayer meetings, and pleading for sinners who were crying for mercy, while fathers and mothers in Israel were leading them to the Lamb of God with deep sobriety, which was a token of their feelings for the unsaved. I will not find fault, but I would have the campground inside of tents, not one for pleasure for the young people to swing in during the time of preaching, if at all; and would have the tents closed when practicable. We had some interesting Bible readings.

This meeting is the leading one in Maine. The attendance increased to the last, which was variously estimated the last Sunday to be from three to five thousand. I have been satisfied for years that our time could be better spent if one or two ministers, with a few brethren and sisters, would go into some new place with cloth tents, and hold a meeting for a few days with less expense than at Campmeeting; and instead of one Campmeeting, hold fifteen, or fifty, or a hundred small ones. Then all could work, and no feeling that "I" could not be put on to preach as well as Bro. A., B. or C. Dear brethren and sisters, let us think this over, as we well know that our Campmeetings have lost much of their former power and usefulness, and try to remedy the cause if possible, or strike out in another line if time continues. But ere another year comes around we may be in the camp of God, which the devil with his hosts may surround, but no harm will come to the saints of God.

"EARTH NOT A GLOBE."

BY WM. CARPENTER.

One hundred proofs presented in this pamphlet of twenty-eight pages, are attracting some attention among the profound thinkers of this age. Says the Michigan Christian Herald:—

"This is a remarkable pamphlet. The author has the courage of his convictions, and presents them with no little ingenuity, however musty they may appear to nineteenth century readers. He takes for his text a statement of Prof. Proctor's that 'The earth on which we live and move seems to be flat,' and proceeds with great alacrity to marshal his hundred arguments in proof that it not only seems, but is flat, 'an extended plane, stretched out in all directions away from the central North.' He enumerates all the reasons offered by scientists for a belief in the rotundity of the earth, and evidently to his own complete satisfaction refutes them. He argues that the heavenly bodies were made solely to light this world, that the belief in an infinity of worlds is a monstrous dogma, contrary to Bible teaching, and the great stronghold of the infidel; and that the Church of Rome was right when it threw the whole weight of its influence against Galileo and Copernicus when they taught the revolution of the earth on its axis."

This work is an epitome of "ZETETIC ASTRONOMY," and presents a bold front in opposition to the common accepted theories. Pamphlet, 25 cts. "ZETETIC ASTRONOMY" sells for $2.25. For sale at the Crisis Office.

THE CHISTIAN'S SECRET OF HOLINESS.

BY MARK GUY PEARSE.

Twenty-seventh thousand English edition. First thousand American edition.

This is decidedly the best book on holiness we have yet seen. In grasp and scope of conception; in freshness and vigor of expression; in freedom from the extravagance and rashness which mar many works on this important scriptural subject; in richness of experimental power; in strength and conclusiveness of biblical argument; in close scrutiny of false experiences; in direct and effective appeals to the understanding, the conscience and the heart, it surpasses all other productions of recent times. It is neatly bound up; contains nearly three hundred pages, and is for sale at the Crisis Office at the low price of 73 cts. postpaid.

A. C. Publication Society, 144 Hanover Street.

WHICH: THE NEW OR BIBLICAL THEOLOGY?

By REV. E. S. STANLEY, of the Methodist Episcopal Church. This is a very neatly made up little volume of some seventy pages, devoted to the discussion of traditional biblical theology. The author does not attempt a consecutive argument, but a condensed treatment of vital and inclusive topics touching the nature of man, the second coming of Christ, the resurrection of the body, and the kingdom of God on this earth, renewed. The work is written with much candor, with a plain and simple style, and in a strictly Christian spirit. Let it have an immediate and large circulation. Published by the A. C. P. Society. For sale at Crisis Office. Price postpaid, 15 cts. $1.50 per dozen.

PARABLE OF THE RICH MAN AND LAZARUS.

Two Sermons by George L. Teeple, delivered in Westfield, Mass., Feb. 14th, 1886. Published for the author by the Advent Christian Publication Society, 144 Hanover Street, Boston, Mass. This is a neatly made up pamphlet of fifty-four pages, in which the author clearly presents his views of this much discussed and much mystified subject, showing ability and close, careful thought. While we cannot endorse all phases of the argument, we commend the work to liberal patronage and careful study for the many valuable things it contains. For sale at Crisis Office. Price postpaid, 10 cts.

"CAPITAL AND LABOR."

Bro Couch's book just published, entitled "CAPITAL and LABOR," is an exhaustive survey of the entire arena of this startling last-day struggle between the two mightiest forces of the world. A vast amount of statistics is interwoven with inspired prediction in a most impressive and convincing way. The work is of very great value as a thorough and comprehensive study of the subject, and for easy and reliable reference. The special gravity of the theme, the well known ability of the author as a writer on prophetic subjects, and the extremely low price, will insure for this neatly gotten up pamphlet the wide sale its merits deserve. For sale at Crisis Office. Price 25 cts.

EUROPEAN TRAVELS AND EXPERIENCES OF MILES GRANT.

This is a reprint of Bro. Grant's letters published in the Crisis and now put into more enduring form in a very tasty pamphlet of nearly 200 pages. These letters are written in very readable and attractive style, and are richly freighted with important and useful information on many interesting subjects, beside giving a careful account of his missionary work proper. As a little book of travels, it is delightful reading for both young and old. As a narrative of missionary labors in foreign lands, it is a wonderful showing of how God is opening all quarters of the world to the message of our Lord's near coming. For sale at Crisis Office. Price 25 cts.

LINES

On the death of Bro. Z. Boody, who died at Watertown, Mass., in April, 1886.

TO OUR BELOVED SISTER, THE BEREAVED WIFE.

BY MARTHA S. HORNE.

And can it be our brother dear
Is numbered with the dead?
That to the cold, dark sepulchre
His cherished form has fled?
That nevermore we'll clasp his hand,
Or his kind welcome hear,
Never again will hear him sing
The songs of Zion here?

A faithful servant of the Lord,
He never shunned the cross;
And if he might the prize but win,
He counted all things loss;
For oh, the blessed, heavenly hope,
That Jesus soon would come,
Cheered him in his pilgrimage
Towards his long sought home.

My sister dear, your loss is great,
And lonely is your way,
The gentle friend that loved you well,
Is borne from you away;
And in his little narrow house
He rests from every care;
No sickness, sorrow, grief or woe
Will ever reach him there.

How much you'll miss him, sister dear,
Indeed no tongue can tell,
But lean upon His mighty arm
"Who doeth all things well."
For many years his loving care
Has kept you day by day,
And now he never will forsake,
But guard you all the way.

And so the tried and faithful ones
Are falling one by one;
Their vacant places who will fill
To press the battle on?
Oh, may the young and vigorous ones
Gird up to meet the foe,
And in their great Redeemer's name
Conquer where'er they go.

Our brother sleeps a little while;
Soon will the morning break,
And rising from his dusty bed,
His upward flight he'll take;
And in the holy, deathless land,
His heaven-tuned voice will ring
In songs of everlasting praise
To Jesus our great King!

WICKED AND SLOTHFUL SERVANTS.

"For the time is come that judgment must begin at the house of God."—PETER.

In a recent conversation with an eminent Brooklyn pastor, he said to me that he was greatly troubled over what seemed to him to be a growing disposition on the part of ministers toward self-indulgent living. The habit of self denial, he said, seemed to be unknown, as a rule, among ministers. And the worst of it is, he went on to say, that it is very difficult to lift up one's voice against it with sufficient tact and force to escape the attitude of a mere complainer or censor of the brethren. And, too, he added, it is very difficult to avoid prevalent forms of self-indulgence without becoming a narrow fanatic or sacrificing that sweetness of Christian speech and life which it is more important to maintain than almost any other virtue.

Is the Brooklyn pastor correct in supposing that the ministry of this day are a self-indulgent class of men? And does that partly account for the fact that they have very largely lost their hold upon the consciences of those who respectfully listen to them preach?

A wise man will not make assertions which embrace an entire class in any community. I, therefore, will be wise enough not to do so; but I believe, nevertheless, that I could, without being very unfair. So many ministers lack moral earnestness and live diametrically to the teaching and example of their Master, that we shall not go far astray if, granting exceptions, we say the ministry are self-indulgent, easy-going, and thus have lost their power over themselves and others which belongs to moral earnestness.

Just as we say politicians are corrupt, meaning that so many are that all are brought under suspicion; so we may say ministers are a jovial, worldly set of men, who, if they believe half they preach, certainly do not practice it. We know there are hundreds of earnest, devoted Christians in the pulpit who are trying to be what their Master said they should be—servants; expecting no reward in treasures which minister to the senses, quietly, unostentatiously, doing their duty, willing to be unknown, finding a melancholy satisfaction in doing right and in respecting themselves.

But we know also that these are not representative of their class. The representative minister is a jolly, good fellow, full of jokes and quips; who slaps the worldliest man in his congregation on the back to let him know that he, by no means, objects to him; who preaches very good sermons, as sermons, during the fall and winter for a very good salary; who is fond of preaching because he admires his own sermons and enjoys the stimulus of a crowd of listeners, the reputation which the crowd brings him, the reports of his sermons in the newspapers; who does very little pastoral work, because it is disagreeble, unappreciated, makes no show, is too much like being a servant, and he can maintain his position without it; who packs his grip-sack in the early summer, lays in a stock of good cigars, and is off to Europe, or the woods, or a summer watering-place, anywhere in which he can be free from the claims of his parish upon him. Sometimes he preaches in other pulpits than his own during his vacation, because in this way he adds materially to his salary. If he does not preach, he rarely goes to church at all. He wishes rest; he desires change; he must recruit his nervous energy.

Laying aside the fact that ministers alone, of all the busy workers in the community, the rest of whom have two weeks vacation, if any; ministers who can take "a day off" any time they wish; laying aside the fact, I say, that ministers alone enjoy from one to three months' vacation during the year, a fact which in itself scores heavily upon the side of self-indulgence—laying aside that fact, I do not hesitate to say that the ordinary minister on his summer vacation is not a person who is calculated to awaken the slumbering conscience of the on-looker. You would never point him out as a representative of Him who, in the midst of all his gentleness and kindness, never failed to eave a moral impression about him.

I believe I will not be asked for a bill of particulars when I say that the average minister is worldly; has extravagant tastes; is not spiritually minded; does not order his life as one who sees the Invisible; follows not his highest convictions; is a trimmer and a time server; thinks quite as much of his salary and position in uttering his mind as the truth; has neither the fortitude of philosophy nor faith.

Not very long ago a pastor found an inquirer awaiting him after a Sunday evening service. She was an inmate of the home of a distinguished neighboring minister. He asked why she did not unite with the church of which her employer was the pastor. She said that she could not; she had never heard him preach; she would not listen to him; observing him in his home had almost made her an infidel; he had absolutely no religion; his apparent religious life was an unmistakable sham. She was not an ignorant or vindictive servant, as may be supposed, but an intelligent person, well educated, capable of forming an opinion upon such a subject without venom. The minister of whom she spoke is noted in this country, at least within his denomination. I know him and (it is wicked to judge of one's inner life, but we may have an opinion of one's conduct), I am satisfied that the woman was right. If the man is a Christian, there is nothing about him that gives evidence of it.

This is only one minister of many thousands. But when you consider that he is the pastor of one of the largest churches in the United States, that his voice is constantly heard where the "most influential" divines are chosen to speak, that the organized church is proud of him, he becomes more than one man—he becomes a type, an illustration of what is tolerable, acceptable in the pulpit. . . .

A member of the board of a missionary society told me that not long ago the board was calling for a hundred ministers to go into the Western field as missionaries. Very, very few could be found. Meantime a pulpit was vacant in a certain Eastern city, and there were over one hundred men who were wire-pulling for the place.

But wherein lies the utility of such an article as this? A large number of ministers will indignantly deny it; I shall be abused for it; it will be said that I am judging others by myself, as if that would make the statements any less true; and few laymen will care anything about it one way or the other. The rank and file of the church seem to not object to a self-indulgent, worldly ministry, which would be curious if one did not understand human nature well enough to know the reason.

It was Jeremiah who said: "A wonderful and horrible thing is committed in the land; the prophets prophesy falsely, and the priests bear rule by their means, and my people love to have it so." And it was the same horrid complainer who declared "The pastors are become brutish, and have not sought the Lord; therefore they shall not prosper, and all their flocks shall be scattered."—Words and Weapons

GOOD NEWS.

Bro. Spence, who has the general charge of my tract and colporteur work, and translating and publishing in India, writes again, giving some items of deep interest as concerns the progress of the work there, which all our helpers will be glad to read, and sympathizers also. I. C. WELLCOME.

"Madras, India, June 13th, 1886. My Dear Bro. Wellcome.—Your letter received to-day, one day less than a month, from America. This is very quick time. The reports I send you in another letter today from Daniel are very encouraging. He has, as you will see, been very well received, and the work is spreading. I have had two thousand more of your 'Gospel Keystone' printed, and hope to have two thousand more of your 'Bible Creed' from the printer in a few days. I purpose to make a selection from what we have published in the Tamil and Telugu Bible Banner as tracts for you. They are just what are now needed, and will open the way for anything else we may print hereafter. A portion of 'The Plan of Redemption' will be printed in the Malayalam language within a few days, and, as you will see by the letter of Bro. Massillamani, which I send you to-day, the work is being pressed forward.

"You will be glad to hear of Bro. T—— of Burmah, of whom I give you an account elsewhere. I have written to tell him I shall be glad to pay for printing some of our tracts in the Burmese tongue. He is an apothecary. He has been doing a good work since he came into the faith. Nathaniel, who has lately come into the faith and is much interested, will, I am sure, be very glad to work for you as tract distributor in his spare time, if you can afford him about five rupees ($1.80 cts.) per month, and I can give him your work of translating into Tamil, as he is a good Tamil scholar. And if you can possibly afford it, I shall be glad for you to allow Daniel about five rupees more per month, as his expenses are far heavier since he travels abroad in strange places than when near home, and his clothing and board cost more. If allowed this amount (in all $7.20 per month), he will be able to do his preaching work better than he can at present. Now please say whether you can allow me to pay him five rupees more per month. Bro. T—— of Burmah, to whom I alluded, is a young man of about twenty-four years, very intelligent and very zealous. I hope you will write to him. With best Christian love I remain yours in Jesus. J. SPENCE."

IS IT WELL WITH THEE?

Dear brethren, remember it was the ready ones that went in with Him to the marriage, and the door was shut. The promise is only to those that do the will of our Father in heaven, who will hear it said, "Well done, good and faithful servant." I am glad it is written, "And the time came that the saints possessed the kingdom." Then there will be rest for the weary, comfort for the sorrowing, life for the dead, and joy and peace for the waiting ones, that will last throughout the endless ages of eternity. Then "they that be wise shall shine as the brightness of the firmament, and they that turn many to righteousness as the stars forever and ever." The prospect is glorious, the reward is certain, and it will be well with the righteous.

Brethren, is it well with thee? The greatest marriage that ever was known is soon to take place, and "the secret of the Lord is with them that fear him, and he will show them his covenant." At the time appointed the end shall be. What is it to appoint but to make known? We shall know if we walk in the light as He is in the light, and shall be like Mount Zion which cannot be removed, but abideth forever. Glory to his name, joy cometh in the morning!

"Have you anything for Jesus,
Who died on Calvary?
Have you anything to give Him
Who shed his blood for thee?"

He says, "Son, give me thine heart," and "Honor me with the first fruits of ALL thine increase; so shall thy barns be filled with plenty, and thy presses shall burst forth with new wine." I believe it.

H. P. C. ADAMS.

CORRESPONDENCE.

FROM BRO. A. N. SEYMOUR.

Dear Friends:—Through the good and kind providence of my dear Heavenly Father, I have been wonderfully preserved from sickness and accident during my exceedingly and deeply interesting journey to the Eastern States to attend the well regulated and orderly Campmeetings held at Springfield and Alton Bay. Oh, it was joy unspeakable and sometimes almost uncontrolable, to sit day after day among so many of the lovers of God and his Son Jesus Christ, and witness their perfect willingness to arise one after another in rapid succession, and listen to their very valuable and deeply interesting confessions of God's love, goodness, mercy and truth to them. Their vessels seemed to be running over all the while. I felt like being quiet and listening to the warm outgushing of hearts, so free and full of the rich blessings of God's love. It was truly a very rich and blessed feast to me, and if the sweet and lovely faces of so many of God's dear children was an index of their hearts, then surely they must have been enjoying the smiles and loving favor of Him who is all-wise, and in whom dwelleth all the fulness of the Godhead bodily, and as one dear brother expressed himself, "Why, dear children, your faces look just like a sweet flower garden." To me it was joy inexpressible to sit with such a large company of sanctified souls, and listen to their free-will offerings as they fell from their lips so freely and willingly.

The last meeting I attended was on Wednesday night in the New Tabernacle, fifty by seventy-five feet in size, thoroughly filled with loving hearts looking for and loving the appearing of Jesus Christ, and listened to a well arranged, deeply interesting and impressive discourse from Bro. Stockman, from Rev. 21: 1, 2. Thursday morning I took the first train for Worcester, a beautiful city of seventy thousand inhabitants, and tarried over night with our much loved and highly appreciated Bro. and Sr. S. G. Mathewson, who entertained me with all the kindness and cordiality possible, for which they have my warmest regards and thankfulness.

Praise the dear Lord for such loving and sympathizing hearts! Oh, it is truly blessed to know that the gospel of Jesus Christ produces such fruit. Very truly indeed it makes everybody sweet and lovely. All sermons during both encampments had a tendency to elevate and strengthen the saints in the speedy return of Jesus, and when I witnessed the earnestness and zeal of all the dear lovers of Jesus, I could only realize that the dear Lord was clearing up and fully preparing a people for translation, and for that far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory.

A very strong impression is being made upon all hearts that soon, very soon God's dear waiting ones are to take their exit from this sin-cursed earth, and stand with Daniel in their lot. Thank God, I do not feel like raising the least objection, and will say, "Come, Lord Jesus, come quickly." Amen.

P. S.—Allow me to say that just before leaving for the East I had the pleasure of baptizing three dear souls near Cold Water, Mich., in hope of the glorious world to come, and one was the father of Bro. Henry Sanford, aged about sixty years, and two were married daughters of Bro. and Sister Williams, whom I baptized over thirty years ago. Two other daughters of the same family stand ready to be buried, when circumstances favor. The dear Lord bless them all. A. N. S.

FROM S. R. STEWART.

Bro. Stockman:—I read the letters from our dear brethren and sisters with much interest, and would say to them that I am still looking for and loving the appearing of my blessed Saviour. I have for many years enjoyed this same blessed hope, and it grows stronger continually.

Dear brethren and sisters, what a blessed time in which we live, when God is pouring out his Spirit upon his children in such a wonderful manner, to prepare them for the great and last change. I thank my kind Father that he has given the watchmen the united cry to the world, "Behold He cometh!" Let us prepare to meet him. The work of preparation is sweet and blessed, and gives joy that the world knows not of. I believe deliverance is near.

We have no minister at present, but are praying God to send us one that shall be for our good and his glory. Our little church is strong in the Lord, loving his appearing, and the preparation for it, which is holiness to the Lord.

Bristol, Vt.

BRO. GEORGE FARNSWORTH writes from Ottawa, Mich.:—"We count the Crisis a companion at our side, we love its pages so dearly, and the truth it contains has been a beacon light to our poor souls, as we live where there is no preaching of this kind. I have had my mind stayed for some time to work in spreading the gospel of the soon coming King to reign. I am a farmer, and do not expect I can do much until my crops are taken care of; then I will be willing to go to the front to battle for the Lord. There is a large field to work in, and there is no reason for being idle. Old earth has such a burden, that she is groaning under her load. She is laden with sin on every hand, and ready to be delivered. The space of time is about finished when all things shall be ushered in, and time brought to a close."

BRO. A. N. SEYMOUR writes:—"I am now returned to my field of labor and usefulness, where I stand ready to attend to calls to labor wherever the way opens to preach the blessed news of the Saviour's coming speedily, for I am full in the faith that very soon Jesus is coming to put an end to sin and suffering and labor, and what is done must be done soon for the salvation of the impenitent. I leave myself entirely in the hands of my dear Saviour to guide me in all his counsels and ways. I do not desire to have any will of my own in anything. None of self, and all the Lord's, is my motto and earnest prayer. Address me at Burlington, Calhoun Co., Mich."

SAMSON got his honey out of the very lion that roared against him. The Christian often gets his best blessings out of his greatest seeming calamities.

SPECIAL NOTICE TO CORN RAISERS.

My experience in raising and grinding corn has been of advantage to some in this vicinity, and will be to others if followed.

Do not cut up your corn early and bind it in bundles, for fear of frost. Cut the stalk before the frost, and let the corn stand two or three weeks. There is virtue enough in the hill, if the stalks are cut, to ripen the soft corn if left on the hill. A heavy frost don't hurt the kernel. If it is cut and bound up when in the milk it will mould, and be unfit for anything; but if left standing will ripen and be sound. Corn cut up and stalked up will not be dry enough to grind till March generally. If left till November it is dry in January, and will weigh two pounds a bushel more than that cut up. I am a miller, and know this fact.

You will get ten per cent. more sound corn to let it stand two or three weeks after the stalks are cut. The stalks cut early are worth more for fodder than the whole cut up, and it is double the work to husk it than if picked. Try it by letting the same amount have the stalks cut, and the corn picked three weeks later than the same quantity cut up, and you will prove this to be true. I have tried it, and know there is a gain in every respect from six to eight per cent., and less work. One man said he followed my advice and had no pig corn, and his pigs grew poor. That is as good reasoning as many use. Experience is worth something to some people. H. MUNGER.

TO A BEREAVED FAMILY.

BY CORA E. FAY.

Once again death's ghastly angel
Comes to rob your home of one,
Not this time a loving daughter,
But a kind and noble son
Has been called to sleep in Jesus
Till shall dawn that glorious day
When our sorrows shall be over,
Every tear be wiped away.

Now your hearts are sad and lonely,
Now your hearth seems desolate,
For dear Charlie's feeble accents
Lovingly in vain you wait.
Weep not that from you he's taken,
Weep not, it is but his gain,
They who sweetly sleep in Jesus,
Neither sickness know, nor pain.

And though death seems dark and fearful,
Such a strange, mysterious sleep,
Though you miss your son and brother,
And for him so often weep,
Though the grave on yonder hillside
Be o'erswept by wintry gales,
Let your hope of life immortal
Be a hope that never fails.

For beyond this "vale of shadows,"
Where no sorrow ever comes,
Where the righteous live forever,
We shall meet departed ones.
Let this thought your sad grief lighten,
Let it raise your hopes on high,
You will meet your loved and lost ones,
You will meet them by and by.

QUIET WORKERS.

Christ's lowly, quiet workers unconsciously bless the world. They come out every morning from the presence of God, and go to their business or their household work. And all day long they toil, they drop gentle words from their lips, and scatter little seeds of kindness about them, and to-morrow flowers of God spring up in the dusty streets of earth, and along the hard path of toil on which their feet tread. More than once, in the Scriptures, the lives of God's people in the world are compared in their influence to the dew. There may be other points of analogy, but especially noteworthy is the quiet manner in which dew performs its ministry. It falls silently and imperceptibly. It makes no noise; no one hears it dropping. It chooses the darkness of night, when man is sleeping, and when no one can witness its beautiful work. It covers the leaves with clusters of pearls; it steals into the bosom of flowers, and leaves a new cupful of sweetness there. It pours itself down among the grass and tender herbs and plants, and in the morning there is fresh beauty everywhere. The fields look greener, and the flowers are more fragrant; all life sparkles with new splendor. And is there no lesson here as to the manner in which we should do good in this world? Should we not scatter blessings so silently, so sweetly, yet secretly that no one should know what hand dropped them? God help us for his dear Son's sake.—M. A. Getchell.

MORAL REFORMS.

The gospel is the principal agent for all moral reforms. Unsanctified enthusiasm may for a time seem to outrun Christian zeal, but it is seed on stony ground. Thomas Paine was a furious patriot, but his infidel sentiments and vicious life disgraced the new born republic. Gospel temperance is the hope of our country. The various temperance movements that ignore Christianity are very shallow and partial. We have no word of disapproval for any effort towards any moral reform, but we do feel the importance of impressing our readers with the fact that human skill is not a match for satanic cunning. We need the Lord's help. Moody's meetings in Boston resulted in the conversion of seven thousand, including thirty saloon keepers who gave up their wicked business. It is scarcely necessary to add that no secular agency could have accomplished so much for temperance in so short a time. So it is in every moral reform. Our anti-lodge friends must remember this. Not a single case is known in the State of any man seceding from one of the major secret orders except led by the Spirit of the Lord. While we argue and work, let us not forget to pray.—Ex.

WATCHING AND WAITING.

If we expect our Lord to come in our day; if we love his appearing; if we desire to see him: if our hearts condemn us not in what we allow; if we are diligent in business, fervent in spirit, serving the Lord; in short, if it is our delight to obey God, then we can say we are waiting for his Son from heaven.

We have reached an important era in this world's history—a crisis in human affairs. Is it possible probation is about to close for this generation? Then he that is holy will be holy still, and he that is filthy will be filthy still. What are we doing? Are we as diligent as we ought to be in warning the world of coming danger? As sure as we live they are watching us to see if we really believe Jesus is coming, and if we do believe thus we shall tell our friends about it when we see the sign of his coming. Oh, how we shall wish we had done as the apostle did—warning every man and beseeching every man, night and day, with tears.

Nothing short of obedience will please Him who has bought us with a price. We are not our own, therefore he requires of us obedience and fidelity in our different spheres of labor. When we shirk his eye is upon us; if we are busy he notices that too, and we shall receive according as our work shall be.

How deep his love to call us out from the world to serve and honor him! He wishes us to share his glory; he is more eager to save us than we are to be saved. His service is sweet. I love to work in his vineyard. His ways are ways of pleasantness, and all his paths are peace."

LAURA H. PERKINS.

OBITUARIES.

SLATER. At Feeding Hill, Mass., July 20th, 1886, Sister Caroline, wife of Salmon Slater, aged forty-six years.

Hers was a humble life of faith and prayer, and although cut down suddenly, she was prepared for death. Her step-children speak of her in terms of praise, and her husband mourns her as only sleeping a little before the joyous scenes of the opening day of "eternal redemption," which is now close at hand.

"And these, new rising from the tomb,
With lustre brighter far shall shine;
Shall have a never-ending bloom,
Safe from disease and from decline."

G. H. WALLACE.

SHUMWAY. In Belchertown, Mass., on Sunday, Aug. 8th, Bro. Henry Shumway, aged sixty-five years.

Brother S. was afflicted with Bright's disease. For two years the church of which he was a member has missed his presence, as he was there but two or three times. He was very zealous, both in word and work, to sustain the Advent faith. He dearly loved to sing the sweet songs of Israel, and many have heard him thus singing as he plodded his way homeward after his day's toil. When able he was seen at the house of God, coming and going both ways many times on foot and alone. The services were by the Methodist minister, as their efforts were unavailing to get an Adventist. Perhaps one remark of his will be sufficient for this notice. He said "After having learned of Bro. Shumway's sickness, and not having a personal acquaintance, I made several inquiries about him, and the only answer I received from all was, 'Bro Shumway was a good man'" Rest on, rest on, Bro Shumway, it will not be long.

STEARNS. Fell asleep in Jesus July 28, 1886, Sophia C. Stearns, of Whatcom, Washington Territory, aged sixty-nine years.

The deceased died from dropsy, from which she patiently suffered for some time before her death. She was born in Chesterfield, Mass., March 22nd, 1817. She was the daughter of Chas. Cudworth. In Oct., 1835, she was united in marriage to Ezra B. Stearns. From her native home they moved to Chickasaw, Iowa, in the year 1856. In 1872 they moved to Floyd, Floyd Co., Iowa. There they united with the Christian Advent Church. They were firm believers in the doctrine of immortality through Christ alone, and, like Paul, their only hope of eternal life was in the resurrection from the dead. In the spring of 1873 they came west to Falls City, King Co., W. T. The same summer her husband died of paralysis. He was fifty-nine years old at his death, where he now sleeps till Jesus calls. In 1882 the widowed wife moved with her only son (with whom they always had lived) to Whatcom, W. T. Her life was modest and unassuming, but it was made brilliant by her noble deeds and kind acts toward those around her. Her memory will be sacredly cherished by those who are left to mourn her loss. She had cherished the hope that she might greet her descending Lord without tasting death. Truly nothing but the resurrection hope can sustain in this sad hour. And when the last stroke of time shall bring the glad day of redemption, this dear one will be among the blood washed throng. They have taken the Crisis from its first publication. The deceased leaves a son, Rufus Stearns and wife, and grand-daughter, Mrs. Ellen Cade and family, to mourn her loss.

"Asleep in Jesus, blessed sleep,
From which none ever wake to weep,
A calm and undisturbed repose,
Unbroken by the last of foes."

KNAPP. At Sandy Hill, N. Y., July 30, 1886, of cholera infantum, Adella, daughter of Ellsworth and Mary Knapp, aged four months.

Little Della was sick about four weeks with whooping cough, terminating with cholera infantum. She is missed from the home, but we hope the affliction may be sanctified to the good of the parents, and that when the little sleeper shall come again from the land of the enemy, they may as a family be welcomed to the kingdom of God. Services by the writer. W. O. HIGLEY.

ALBRIGHT. In Savannah, N. Y., Aug. 11th, 1886, of congestion of the brain, Peter Albright, aged eighty-three years.

He died on the farm that he occupied over fifty years, though in feeble health. His death was very sudden. Twenty-five years ago he became interested in the doctrine of Christ's soon coming to wipe out the curse of sin, and all of its deadly effects, and to give life and immortality at the resurrection of the just. He will be greatly missed by the cause and its friends, in the extended liberalities of much more than the "cup of cold water" to the faithful servants of Christ, and to the poor around him. The cause of God and truth was his daily theme. He leaves a wife, two daughters, and numerous relatives to sorrow, but not without hope. Funeral at his residence. Discourse by the writer to a large and sympathizing congregation. Text, Job 17: 13-15.

E. C. COWLES.

BAKER. In West Hoosick, N. Y., Aug. 30th, 1886, Mrs. Julia Baker, widow of the late Potter Baker, aged seventy-one years, seven months and fifteen days.

The subject of the above notice made our church her place of meeting for the last ten months, and although she never has made a public profession of religion, she has manifested a deep interest. She attended church Sunday, Aug. 29th, and appeared quite joyful. She retired to bed that evening at ten o'clock, and was found unconscious in the morning, having had a paralytic shock. One common remark among neighbors was, "She was a good woman." Her funeral was attended by the writer at the residence of her son-in-law, Bro. N. Mosley. Text, Job 17: 15.

GEO. A. STREETER.

PROPER. In Wallaceville, Venango Co., Pa., June 24th, 1886, Sister Melissa Proper, wife of Bro. Joseph R. Proper, aged fifty-six years.

Sister Proper lived a Christian life about thirty years, and about two years ago she embraced the Bible faith of the soon coming of the Lord, and kindred truths, in which she remained unwavering to the last. Her daily walk was an open letter of Christ. Neighbors said, "You cannot say too much in her praise; she was never heard to speak disrespectfully of any person, but always had a kind word for every one. She visited the sick and afflicted, and willingly ministered to their wants." She died in the faith that at the coming of the Lord she will have part in the first resurrection, and receive eternal life from the great Life-giver. She leaves a husband, three sons, two daughters-in-law, grand-children, and a large circle of friends to mourn her loss. Services by the writer. C. W. STEPHENS.

WE sometimes hear the advice, "Do all the good you can in the world, and make as little noise about it as possible"; but some persons, judging by their actions, read it, "Seldom do a good action, but when you do, loudly proclaim it, and make as much noise about it as you can."—Sel.

WHAT WOMAN MAY DO.

Says Goldsmith: "The modest virgin, the prudent wife, or the careful matron, are much more serviceable in life than petticoated philosophers, blustering heroines, or virago queens. She who makes her husband and her children happy, who reclaims the one from vice, and trains up the other to virtue, is a much greater character than ladies described by romance, whose whole occupation is to murder mankind with shafts from the quiver of their eyes." All this is testimony of which all sensible persons acknowledge the force and truth. Indeed, we may say we shall never know in this world how much we owe to the labors and prayers, and pious efforts, and fervent zeal of devoted women.

It was to a woman that the risen Saviour first showed himself after the resurrection, and to whom he announced his ascension into heaven. Not to Pilate, the conquered Roman judge—not to the chief priests and elders, who might thus have been convinced—not to St. John the gentle, or to Peter the penitent, did Jesus first reveal himself, but to her out of whom, in the days of old, he had cast seven devils. To a woman, of whom we know nothing more than that she was afflicted, and that "she loved much and had much forgiven." Jesus gave the divine commission to preach the first gospel of the resurrection and the ascension. And surely thus has the Master given a like divine commission to all Christian women—that of telling the story of the risen Jesus wherever they have an opportunity to do so.—Ex.

TEMPERANCE.

A "RUM ONE."

"Poke him up, boys! Poke him up! He's deader'n a log!" And the boy who was the ringleader in the troop urged the others on to torment the wretched man who lay prostrate on a cellar door. A loud laugh answered his speech, and the group gathered round the drunken man. But just then a bare-headed girl came flying down the street, and with clinched fists and flashing eyes defied the crowd of boys. "Let him alone, every one of you!" she cried. "Jest touch him if you dare! I'll thrash you, every one, if you try it!"

"Halloo! what have you got to do with it?" growled one of the larger boys, edging up to the girl. "I'd like to see a girl thrash me, I would." "You will see it if you don't stand off," threatened the girl. "He's my father—that's what I've got to do with it! Tom Dobbs knows he's my father, and you shan't touch him, if he is drunk!"

Another big boy laughed, a loud, jeering laugh. "Yes, he's your father," he said. "And a rum one he is, too! Come on, boys; let the girl alone. We'll find fun round the corner." He led the troop away; and the bare-headed girl, looking after them, said bitterly—oh, so bitterly for such a child,—"Yes, he is a 'rum one,' but not the way you meant, Tom Dobbs. If it wasn't for rum, he wouldn't be here; I know that as well as anybody." She knew that Tom had only used the word as it is used in its street slang sense. But alas! she realized its bitter, bitter truth. Rum had, in reality, made her father what he was—a hanger-on at low saloons, a curse to himself and every one who came near him.

Rum had made her, poor Minnie, a miserable drunkard's child, almost an outcast. Many times, when he had come home in a drunken fury, he had driven her into the cold streets, and she dared not return until he had fallen asleep. Many nights she had crouched, wild-eyed and afraid, in porches and deep doorways, seeking shelter from rain and tempest, gazing, with eager, longing gaze, through lighted windows into happy homes, and vainly wondering why she need be so wretched, while they were so warm and well-clad and joyous.

What a life for a little child, and yet multitudes of children live this weary, wretched suffering life. Not a great city in our land—and alas! few little ones—but hides thousands of poor children whose days are spent, not in happy play and healthful study, but wandering from corner to corner, hearing and learning all that is bad in the streets, searching saloons, alleys, and cellar-ways, to find the drunken father, who should be caring for his children; coaxing him to the miserable home, and then shrinking and hiding from his cruel blows and fierce anger. What kind father would cast such shame and sorrow on his child? How strange that a man should be reduced so low as to need the defense and protection of a little girl; and how many fathers there are whose acts cause shame to their innocent children, and make sad the hearts of those whose lives they should fill with joy and sunshine.

Little did that father think when he tasted that first glass, that he would bring himself to such helplessness and misery. Little do the young who are to-day sipping the intoxicating cup foresee the evil which is coming upon them. But it will come. Thousands on thousands have gone down this fatal path, and have sunk into the darkness of the drunkard's grave; and thousands of others are going along on the same terrible and fatal course. Oh, that every man and woman who loves God and pities frail humanity, would reach out a hand to help those who are ensnared and led astray by the power of this destroyer. "Look not upon the wine. At the last it biteth like a serpent, and stingeth like an adder.—The Safeguard.
